the advisability of levying postage on newspapers, increasing the rates on parcels of local origin and destination, and on letters to the United Kingdom, British possessions, and foreign countries.

"The large number of sacks of newspapers, of which 5,000 were dispatched last year from the G. P. O. to local Post Offices, free of postage, is a heavy tax upon the resources of the Department. The bags alone used for this purpose cost the Department $2 each, not to mention the increased cost for conveyance by courier of such heavy mail matter."

In the following December (1921), the Minister announced that at the next session of the House he would introduce a bill asking for certain increases in postage rates, among which would be a 4c rate on letters to the Empire, and the U. S. A.; and on newspapers and periodicals, which had hitherto passed through the mails free of charge, a rate of a half cent a pound when mailed from the office of publication, and 1c for four ounces when mailed by others. By this extra taxation he expected to augment the postal revenue by approximately $10,000.

In the House of Assembly, on April 28, 1922, the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs moved the House into Committee to consider resolutions respecting increased postage rates, which were embodied in a bill entitled "An act to amend caption 35 of the Consolidated Statutes of the Postal and Telegraph services." After considerable discussion the bill passed, and in the St. John's papers of June 18th, 1922, the new rates were advised as coming into effect on the 1st July:—

"(Royal Arms)
POST OFFICE NOTICE

Postage Rates for Letters and Newspapers.

On and after the 1st July next, the postage rate for letters addressed to Great Britain, Canada, and all other places in the British Empire, also to the United States of America, will be 4 cents per ounce or fraction. The rate for letters addressed to European and other foreign countries will be as at present, 6 cents for first ounce, and 3 cents for each additional ounce or fraction of an ounce. Letters addressed to places within Newfoundland will be forwarded at the present rate, i.e., 3 cents for first ounce, and 2 cents for each additional ounce or fraction of an ounce.

Newspapers published in Newfoundland and mailed from office of publication to places in Newfoundland, will be subject to a postage charge of one-half cent per pound. Newspapers, local and foreign, mailed to addresses in Newfoundland (except from office of publication), will be subject to a postage charge of 1 cent for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof.

Telegraph Stamp Tax.

The amendment to the Stamp Duties Act passed this year, cancels the necessity after 1st July next, for affixing a 5 cent stamp on telegrams sent to local addresses over the Nfld. Postal Telegraph Lines, but 25 cents will continue to be charged for sending a 10 word message to local destinations. It is still necessary to charge and affix 10 cents in stamps to foreign or cable messages, and 5 cents in stamps must still be affixed to all local messages sent over any Company's lines.

W. W. HALFYARD,
Minister Posts and Telegraphs.
Jne. 8. 10. 1922."

In October, 1921, of the 293,300 4c Caribou stamps received on April 7th, 1921 only 20,000 remained. In the following month the stock of the three lower values became so low that it was feared fresh supplies would not be received in time to cope with the situation. Steps were being taken to surcharge the 24c and 60c Cabot remainders, for use as lower values, but this action was rendered unnecessary by the receipt on December 15th, via New York, of a quarter million each of the 1c, 2c and 3c stamps. This lot was just sufficient to care for the Christmas mailings, and in January, 1922, not only was stock of these values low, but the 5c as well. The Post Office clerks were instructed to conserve stocks all possible, and to use higher values where possible, instead of multiples of the lower denominations. When a further lot of 1c and 2c stamps reached St. John's, on January 21st, by the S. S. Digby, the 4c had gone completely, and of the 3c very few remained. In December, the Department had cabled to Whitehead, Morris & Co., Ltd., to dispatch as soon as possible, a 6 months supply of the 4c stamp, so that they would be on hand when the proposed postal increases became effective. The stamps did not arrive until June 7th.

In January, 1922, the 6c Cabot exhausted, followed by the 8c, in June, which left the island without stamps of these denominations. The 6c and 8c Caribou stamps had lasted only until December, 1919, and March, 1920, respectively. The 12c and 15c Caribou stamps exhausted on November 9, 1920, and February 13, 1921, respectively, since which time these values in the Cabot series have had to serve.

When the 10c Caribou (of which 283,400 were received in the original shipment on December 31, 1918) exhausted May 6, 1922, the 4c had not yet been replaced. On May 28th the reserve stock in the G. P. O. vaults of the 2c was 167,000; 3c, 228,000; 4c, none; 5c, 117,000. Finally on June 7th a shipment of 4c and 10c stamps was received, in shades differing slightly from the earlier printings.

In February, 1923, the only stamps available at the G. P. O. were 1c, 2c, 3c, 4c, 5c, 10c, 24c and 36c of the Caribou series, and 12c, 15c, 24c, 30c and 60c of the Cabot series. It is extremely doubtful if any further printings will be made of the higher value Caribou stamps, as a new pictorial series is in preparation and is expected to make its appearance during the present year.

CATALOGUE PRICES OF HUNGARIANS.

By H. K. THOMPSON, M. D.

You thought when the last new Scott came out that Hungary would be one of the countries the prices of whose stamps would go down. You were right, 649 stamps decreased in list price.

On the other hand 172 have risen in value. Out of 821 stamps whose price was changed, some 21% increased in value. The figures above indicate used and unused items as two.

Consistent with good reasoning substantial increases were realized in the first two issues. Many of the lower values of the 1874-99 issues are, however, still at an apparently low premium. "Try an' get 'em." They are at least not in the European market at one-half of Scott's price despite the advantageous exchange rate of the dollar.

On the other hand many of the later surcharges are still readily available at less than one-half catalogue, even after the drop.

"Speculative" issues can frequently be recognized by the unused quotations being the same as the used quotations. Since the majority of Hungarian issues fall in this category, the number (821) above given will refer to a great many reduplications.

There are then about 400 catalogue varieties which have dropped in value by the last Scott Catalogue, out of a total of approximately 1,000. Most the drops were of course among the s charges, the brunt being borne by Roumanian, while Arad was a cl second with a total drop of $202 Stamps not formerly listed but n priced (as No. 1350, $250.00) are not cluded in these "advance" figures.

It is interesting to note that more ga were made in the first issue of Debrec than in all other issues of Hungary together.

THE PHILATELIC STAMP AGENCY.

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

On November 25, 1921, due to the efforts of an unusually active Third Assistant Postmaster General, Warren Irving Glover, the Postmaster General, then Will H. Hay, issued an order, effective December 1st, establishing the Philatelic Stamp Agency at Washington. Since then, those in charge have done everything reasonable within their power to serve the philatelic public in a prompt and efficient manner and most of us will agree that they have accomplished their purpose. At first they occupied a small office in the Post Office Building adjoining Union Station, with the Agent and a lady assistant in charge. Since then they have taken larger quarters across the hall and the force of two has grown to a force of five with an extra clerk recently loaned from another section.

In the meantime orders have grown from one or two a day to one hundred and fifty and even more a day. Since May first the business has averaged around $1,300 daily, the mail orders around 150 a day, with a good number of daily callers who spend quite a little time and money in picking out what they want. Since its establishment several circulars have been sent out to the five or six thousand names upon their mailing list calling attention to the varieties available. What is the result—many thousands are now able to buy everything in the hands of the department at face and get picked copies at that, besides plate blocks, positions and the like are supplied where possible.

Since the new issue has been completed dozens are writing for the complete set and therefore instead of answering a letter in a day or two as heretofore, at times it takes a week or more. Some writers are of the opinion that they are the only one doing business with the Agency and if they do not receive a reply by return mail sit down and write the Third Assistant Postmaster General and complain that they are not being treated fairly. Because the dealer or collector across the street has the new stamp just issued and you haven't, you get the idea that he was favored and you were slighted, where as a matter of fact he may have written a week ahead of you. All orders received are numbered and the first is served before the second receives attention. At times stock may have to be ordered from the Bureau, which delays matters. When you consider that many orders have dozens of items you must appreciate that it takes time to select the varieties. While there recently, I saw a couple of orders just in which ran over 50 items and one called for sixty-five items in addition to five sets of envelopes and the entire order only ran around $60. Remember the department likes to receive these and fills them promptly, but is it fair to complain just because your order may be a week late in arriving. One man who has been buying consistently since the establishment of the Agency and who as a rule not only requests plate numbers but designates the very numbers wanted has always had his orders filled, as was seen from his file, in two to three days, and this included dozens of orders. Recently due to the large number of orders and the inadequate clerical force his order was delayed about a week and as a result he writes a long letter to the Third Assistant Postmaster General. One man ordered a complete set of the current issue with top plate number, on the single stamp too, not blocks, and because one value was off center complained. The Agency tries its best to send picked specimens but when a non-philatelic clerk has been picking out stamps all day he begins to see double by evening and some off centers may slip through but even then if it happens to be a high denomination they will gladly replace it. Do not, however, return to them stamps that you have bought elsewhere and expect them to replace them. They keep account of all orders and know what has been sent you, for there is always a check and re-check on every order.

Another thing which should be remembered, if you order stamps and want to ask for philatelic information write two separate letters, otherwise your stamps are likely to be held up until some other person can answer the inquiry. Then too, remember, that they can only supply exactly the items on their published list, they do not reprint, reissue, or make to order stamps for the Agency. They, however, do have the Bureau of Engraving & Printing pick out especially fine stock for the Agency of any issued variety that they might have on hand. What is more, they try to bring in from outlying offices any varieties or shades that are not obtainable in Washington. For instance, the smaller offices pay the newspaper postal charges by cancelling sufficient postage stamps to equal the amount of postage collected from the publishers and these are returned to Washington. They pass through the Division of stamps and if they are unusual the Postmaster is ordered to return this stock to the Agency. As the postmaster generally gets rid of his old and undesirable stock in this way, quite often odd things are noted. It is because of this good work that several varieties have recently become available, such as the $2 orange and black, the 50c and 75c Parcel Post, the old 10c registration stamps and several others that I do not recall at the instance. When they are doing all this for us do you think it fair to complain? Do you not think a letter of appreciation is more in order? You know the Agency was only established after many letters from collectors and against the opposition of some officials, and if you want it discontinued all you have to do is to let the officials higher up become disgusted with the whole thing. In several weeks they will no doubt be able to answer letters within a day or two but now with the new series just completed orders are coming in faster than they can take care of them.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—A copy of the East Kent (England) Times is before us, and in it we note nearly a column devoted to the loss Margate is about to suffer in the departure of A. Leon Adutt who is soon to take up his residence at Great Shelford, close to the town of Cambridge. The article gives a detailed story of Mr. Adutt's busy life during the forty years he has been a resident in Margate. In 1912 and 1913 he was mayor of the town. He is known to us as a keen philatalist and is a Fellow of the Royal Philatelic Society.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF BELGIUM.

By Bertram W. H. Poole.

PART III.—POSTAGE DUE STAMPS.

Chapter I.

The First Issue.

For some time the Belgian adminstration had been aware that there were considerable irregularities attaching to the collection of the postage due on letters wholly unpaid or insufficiently prepaid at the time of posting. But nowhere has the vacillation of the Belgian postal department been more conspicuously shown than in its treatment of the unpaid-letter stamp question. The irregularities attendant on the collection of postage due became so intolerable in 1869 that it was decided to issue special labels, so that proper check could be kept on employees charged with the collection of insufficient postage and also on postal accounts dealing with this side of postal revenue. Two very plain stamps were produced and were ready to be issued on January 1, 1870, the design consisting of a double-lined frame containing "BELGIQUE" at the top and "POSTES" at the bottom with ornamentation filling the sides. In the centre were bold numerals indicating the value with "CENTIMES—A—PERCEVOIR" in three lines below. The design is attributed to Mr. Wiener, though it must be confessed it is totally unlike anything else produced by this skilled artist. At first it was decided that the stamps should be produced by lithography, then the official mind was changed and orders were given for a supply to be printed by the typographic process. Supplies of both denominations were printed, the 10c being in black and the 20c in deep blue and they were all ready for despatch to the principal post-offices. Before any were distributed, however, an order was given to destroy all these stamps; not on the grounds that the authorities had repented of their intention to put such an execrable design in circulation, but because they had again changed their minds and decided not to issue any unpaid letter stamps at all!

Yet almost immediately that decision must have been rescinded for the authorities had another change of heart and on July 20, 1870, the following Ministerial decree was issued:—

"By Order of the Minister of Public Works.

Art. 1.—The issue is hereby sanctioned of special control stamps of the values 10 and 20 centimes, which are to be designated 'chiffres-taxe': they are to be affixed to such letters as are entirely or partly unprepaid, always provided that they are only to be used for letters which are posted in and delivered by the same office.

Art. 2.—All instructions given with regard to the preparation, storage, issue and bookkeeping of ordinary postage stamps apply equally to these postage dues.

Art. 3.—This decree will come into force on August 1st next.

Brussels, July 20, 1870.

(Signed) V. Jacobs."

Exactly a month later, on August 20th, a circular was issued to postmasters, etc., from which the following is an extract:—

"Since August 1st of this year, the amount payable on unpaid or insufficiently prepaid letters, distributed by the same post-office in which such letters are posted, is denoted by special stamps, called 'chiffres-taxe' (i.e. Postage dues); these stamps are to be affixed by the postal officials according to the amount payable. These postage dues are issued in two values, 10 centimes and 20 centimes; they may not be used by the public to frank letters. Postmen are forbidden to collect money on the class of letters indicated above, unless postage due stamps amounting to the sum demanded are affixed to the letters."

The design is the same for both denominations and is particularly neat and attractive. In the centre are large numerals on a ground of solid color with a double-lined frame which is a trifle more oval than circular in shape. This frame is inscribed "A PERCEVOIR" at top and "CENTIMES" below, the inscriptions being separated by small ornaments, while the whole is surmounted by a Royal Crown. In the upper spandrels are small circles, the one at left containing an open hand, symbolical of justice, and the one at right the Belgian lion. Below is a ribbon scroll taining the motto "L'UNION FAIT FORCE." The whole is enclosed in an upright rectangular frame mented with small crosses.

The stamps were designed by M Hendrickx, and the dies were engr by Mr. A. Doms, this being indi by the small initials "H H" and "A shown in the lower portion of the sign at left and right respectively.

The stamps were produced typog ically but whether the plates were o subjects or not, like the contempo postage stamps, we have been unab discover. They were printed on wove unwatermarked paper and perf. 15.

No 5 centimes value was include this set and when the amount of postage was 5c, 15c, 25c, etc., the 5 times was indicated by using half centimes stamp. This bi-section officially authorised and a circular is by Director-General Tassiaux on uary 6, 1871, made it very clear th these cases the 10 centimes stamps always to be divided horizontally. spite of these official instructions, ever, the stamps were also bi-se vertically and diagonally. In some fices, too, when 10 centimes stamps short the 20c value was bi-sected used as a temporory expedient. W these bi-sected varieties of the 20c well known they were never offic authorised like the 10c.

According to Mr. Bouvez alth these two stamps remained in use late in 1895, and very large quant were used, altogether only 11,029 of 10 centimes and 93,765 of the 20 times were used on articles that w make them ultimately available to lectors. If this information is co it would appear that the catalogue v given the 10c as compared with the is out of all proportion to its true v as indicated by the above quoted fig The same writer refers to some pr sional postage dues as follows:—

"On the 1 April, 1895, several Bel post-offices being without unpaid le stamps of 10 and 20 centimes, bec a fresh stock of these values had been able to reach them in time, it necessary to replace them provision The offices which were in this posit not having received any instructions, not being able to delay the distribu of the "catch" letters, used pos stamps of 5 centimes green, 10 centi bistre, and 20 centimes olive, shor

In addition to the booklet the "Postage Stamps of Canada" issued by the writer, two other publications have appeared within the past few weeks by Canadian stamp collectors. "The Pre-cancels of Canada" by Mr. Thompson of Winnipeg and the "Postal Markings and Cancellations of Canadian Stamps" by Fred Jarrett of Toronto. Both authors are to be highly commended for the valuable and instructive contributions to Philately.

All the advanced collectors are excited regarding the re-entry on the 12d black as described by Mr. R. Roberts in his May house organ.

Information is being eagerly sought for particulars of the Crown surcharge on the 2c green and 3c red of the small Queen Victoria issues. Same consists of a small crown on the top, in the centre of the stamp undoubtedly printed on by machinery so regular in the same position does the Crown show on the only three specimens at present known.

A cover dated in 1893 has every evidence that same was on the stamp when posted, as the cancellation partly covers the Crown. It is suggested that the Crown was affixed as a mark of esteem to the Duke of York on his visit to Canada and used on the Royal train.

Any information will be greatly appreciated.

From the ranks of 10c per hundred to this amount and more each, have the low values of the small Queen issues risen, the demand being so great for the many varied and rare cancellations which adorn this issue.

THE STAMP AGENCY IN CANADA.

Montreal Philatelists Have a Banquet and An Exhibition of Stamps.

Official recognition of the hobby of stamp-collecting in Canada has been given by the Dominion Postal authorities, who have started a stamp agency at Ottawa, the purpose of which will be to supply collectors direct with special, picked, or other copies which collectors specimens which they may require. E. L. Taylor, of the Postage Stamp Department, Ottawa, will personally supervise the agency, and it is announced that he will make a special study of the hobby of stamp collecting to supply collectors with specimens which they may require. By this action, Canada becomes the second country in the world to recognize this particular hobby, its agency being similar to the only other philatelic agency in the world, namely, that controlled by the Government of the United States. This announcement was made by Edward E. Goodchild at the first annual banquet of the St. Lawrence Stamp Collectors, held at the Edinburgh Cafe May 30. The anouncement was also made that on July 1, a one-dollar stamp will be issued, which will be the first of the King issue of this value.

Approximately forty philatelists of Montreal attended the May 30 banquet, which was presided over by the president of the association, Karl Woodward. At the conclusion of the dinner, Mr. Woodward spoke briefly, outlining the growth of the society from its organization two years ago, at which time there was a membership of five, up until the present time, when the membership reaches the fifty mark. He expressed appreciation of the assistance and co-operation of the officers, mentioning particularly the secretary-treasurer, Norris Oughtred, and solicited their support for the ensuing year.

Brief addresses were given by members of the association, including J. Snasdell, C. H. Goulden, Col. Wurtele, Douglas A. Shaw, and Rev. Mr. Nicolls, who has been a stamp collector since 1868.

An interesting entertainment was provided for the occasion by Messrs. Ridge, Bert Kennedy, Harry Jones and Thomas Calvert.

Three splendid collections of stamps were on exhibition after the banquet. These were the property of Mr. Woodward, Mr. Oughtred and Mr. Shaw, respectively. Mr. Shaw's collection comprised more than three hundred threepenny Beavers, including a strip of four valued at approximately $50.

Among the rare specimens in Mr. Oughtred's collection is a two-dollar revenue stamp of the third issue, inverted head, of which only one sheet of twenty was issued. This one stamp is valued at between thirty and forty dollars. Mr. Woodward's collection includes an unused threepenny Beaver, a one-cent Queen on laid paper, and a one-dollar Alcock-Brown trans-Atlantic Air Post Stamp of 1919. Some very fine Jamaican, Samoan, and Cape of Good Hope stamps are also among the collection.

Officers of the society for this year are: President, Karl Woodward; vice-president, F. Remus; secretary-treasurer, Norris Oughtred; executive committee, H. F. Kenyon and Dr. Whitehead.

EDITORIAL.

The close of the International Stamp Exhibition on May 26th emphasized the success of the two weeks' philatelic festival. King George and his philatelic secretary, Mr. E. D. Bacon, visited the hall and spent several hours in a critical examination of the stamps and was pleased to comment favorably on many of the exhibits. The members of the jury on awards were presented to his majesty who said that he appreciated the difficulty in singling out for preferment from so worthy a presentation, the prize-winning displays. Our correspondent says that there is so much to say of the exhibition that he does not know where to begin but he speaks of the success of the American exhibitors and confirms particulars that have already been printed in the WEEKLY. He adds that he has every reason to think that the American visitors will have pleasant recollections of their trip and he says that a bond of philatelic union has been established between the two countries that will create a better understanding between collectors here and there. We believe that our friend is all too conservative in his observations and that fittingly he could have indulged in a few superlatives.

Among the newspaper clippings that have been sent us by our correspondent in London is one that is of particular interest and we give here the London Times' account of a philatelic reception in Buckingham Palace: "The King's Stamps. The King's interest in stamp collecting is well known. A few afternoons ago he received the fellows and members of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, at Buckingham Palace. The Royal collection of postage stamps of Great Britain and Colonies, contained in about two hundred special albums, was laid out on long tables in the Picture Gallery, and the visitors spent an hour examining the many rare and interesting specimens displayed. His Majesty received each guest individually, afterwards mingling with them and discussing a variety of matters of philatelic lore. Since then the King has visited the International Stamp Exhibition at the Horticultural Hall, the first since 1913, and said to contain the greatest collection of 'philatelic gems' ever brought together under one roof. Another Royal visitor has been the Crown Prince of Sweden." Philatelists certainly may pride themselves on the fact that King George's interest in stamp collecting is actual and not merely academic and that he does not ignore any proper opportunity to recognize philately.

Our blithe contemporary, Stamp Collecting, London, has ably attended to the picturization of the great exhibition for its readers; and in the issue for May 26th that has just been handed to us, we find many details of the "golden fortnight" of philately. For instance, we read of the King's visit to the exhibition and learn that "the King came provided with a small magnifying glass, and instantly detected the defect of a group of old Spanish stamps. 'What a great pity it is,' he said, 'that the postmarks are so heavy.' The stamps he referred to were worth thousands of pounds. According to one privileged auditor, the King even gave a few hints on the most effective methods of 'fixing' and displaying stamps of delicate colours, and was much attracted by the collection formed by Pat Collins, a schoolboy of sixteen, to whom the Junior Championship Cup has been awarded. This collection specializes in Trinidad stamps and His Majesty expressed astonishment that a boy of that age could have formed it. When he was about the same age, he remarked, he was himself a collector but he had nothing then to compare with this collection." The King "expressed his pleasure at the Exhibition, which he described as 'wonderful.'"

By chance, we happened to resurrect several notices of one of the first philatelic exhibitions held in this country, that at the old Eden Musee, New York, in February, 1889, under the auspices of the three societies that flourished in what is now New York City. According to statistics prepared by Mr. C. B. Corwin, stamps from 167 countries were exhibited and 275 sheets, corresponding in size to those of the Staten Island Society's permanent album, were required for the accommodation of the stamps on display. The value of the stamps shown was $30,000, and the exhibits were insured for that amount. It was said that "the organizing societies have certainly conferred a boon upon philately by their spirited action, and it is safe to predict a great increase of interest in philatelic circles as a direct result therefrom." This was a creditable showing for nearly thirty-five years ago, and it is evident that the sponsors of the exhibition were alive to the stimulating effect that a public display of stamps might have on outsiders. There were ardent exponents of the publicity idea then as now and as we look over the names of those instrumental in having made this old exhibit a success, we are convinced that their interest in the promotion of philately was unselfish and based upon a wish to share a pleasure with those who knew nothing of the attractions of the pursuit.

We have had word from Mr. Archibald G. Gibb concerning the new pictorial set of Newfoundland to the effect that he has been informed by the Deputy M. of P. that the denominations from one to fifteen cents, inclusive, will arrive in time to be placed on sale on the first of July. It is possible, however, that none of these stamps will be sold until the complete set is available.

A letter has been received from a correspondent who asks if there is any list published of printed post-office forms such as have been used by the post-office department and in the postal service from the early times. We are certain that no compilation of the kind has been issued as we cannot conceive that the subject is of sufficient importance to justify the effort of an historian. However, collectors are interested in these letters and notices as an accompaniment of their U. S. collections, they are well worth having. As to question when the printed letters first used we can say that we have them dated in the '30's.

The worse he is, the be my chance of business, as that kind man knows values. A member of the American Phila Society expresses the wish that the s ety at the coming convention make vision for a literary exchange departn through which members who cared to so could dispose of their "dupli stamp literature." We had forgotten about the literary exchange that once a department of the Amer Philatelic Society but which evide died of inanition. It may be all righ propose the re-establishment of the partment in question but we cannot lieve that there is any popular dem for this medium of exchange.

STAMP COLLECTING AND COLLECTORS, YEARS AGO AND TODAY.

By Edward S. Knapp.

I collected stamps as a boy in the '90s, but as is often the case with boys, I lost interest after filling the inexpensive spaces in my album, and the old album was put away and forgotten. That was in about 1895.

In 1913 I was in Paris with my wife and two young children, a boy of eight and a girl of six. If you have ever been to Paris and roamed around a bit, you must have noticed that everywhere you see postage stamps displayed for sale in the shop windows. There is hardly a street that you may walk on that you do not see packets of stamps advertised and displayed. The concierge in the hotel you stop at, collects, ditto his wife, and his children, if he has any. If you get any mail from America, the concierge or some member of his family or the bellboy who brings you your mail, is sure to ask you for the stamps that are on the letters. This is also true of all places I have been in Italy and Switzerland. You never fail to get asked for the stamps on your foreign mail. They are one and all collectors.

Nothing that I have yet discovered "gets by" children aged eight and six, and mine were no exception to that rule, and the first thing I knew they were collecting stamps, and the packets displayed in the shop windows were required, whenever I wanted to make myself popular with the family. My wife, even, "got the fever."

By the time we were ready to come home we had quite a flock of packets, but no album. The children preferred what they called "wild stamps," so-called because they had the picture of an animal on them, and we were especially "strong" in Borneo, Nyassa, etc.

Then we came home and I dug up the old album, which had my original collection in it, and we bought two new Scott's albums and divided the "spoils." I was elected to mount the collections, or rather I elected myself, as I found fault with the way the children put the things in. That settled it. Before that, I was only mildly interested, after that, I became an enthusiast. The children soon lost interest, but I have never stopped since that time.

I find on talking over collecting stamps with other collectors, that many have taken it up a second time, for reasons similar to the ones described in my case, and all agree that "the second attack is apt to be fatal." If you "get the bug" the second time you are apt to keep on collecting for the rest of your life. I advise "getting" it, if possible, as I believe there is nothing in which more pleasure and relaxation can be gotten than by collecting stamps. You can "bite off" as much or as little as you choose. A man who is interested in collecting shades of current 2c U. S. has a good time, and it costs him practically nothing, and the man who may spend $50,000 a year, can do it without making more than a "dent" in the present market. Try it and see.

I had a general collection at first, but found that too difficult to keep up, so sold my foreign. Then in 1916 I still further reduced, by selling my United States and specializing entirely in Confederate States. I have since then again taken up collecting U. S., but only in a mild way, and my interest is principally in Confederates.

It is only in the last decade that stamp collecting in this country has become more or less general. There were collectors to be sure, in the '80s and '90s, who had wonderful collections, but even when I started to collect, it was considered a fad and you never told anyone about it, for fear that you would be laughed at. You had a darned good time, but you had it by yourself or with one or two men, whom you had gotten to know through "stamps." As an example of this:

I played billiards probably on an average of twice a week during the winter of 1916-17 with Harry Lapham, of Boston, one of the big collectors of this country, and it wasn't until we met by accident at the Worthington sale at the Murray Hill Hotel, in August, 1917, that we either of us knew that the other one collected stamps. We had both kept it quiet, for fear that the other one would think us a "nut."

That Worthington sale was the first auction at which I saw a large number of collectors, Before that, Gerald Curtis and I used to sneak off to auction together and we were often the only collectors who attended. Laurie Mason sometimes came in, but we were often the only ones. Now, if you go to an auction you will find that there are many collectors attending, and some big ones too, whom you've never seen before. Auctions used to be for the dealers only; now the collectors buy probably more than the dealers at a big sale. It's an example of how the hobby has taken hold of people, and the stamp collector of today is proud to be one. There is nothing that a collector or hobbyist of any kind enjoys more than to talk about the thing he is interested in, to someone who is equally interested and knows what he's talking about. Every collector, almost without exception, has "tried it out" on his wife and found it to be impossible. There is no use cloaking the fact that the ladies as a rule do not like stamps, nor do they understand anything about them, nor do they want to. If you want to bore your wife to distraction, try to tell her. This may be a blessing in disguise, as I for one hate to think what might happen to the already small bankroll if the wife also collected.

To my way of thinking, Percy Doane has as much to do with the advancement of the "stamp fraternity" as anyone of the present day. Percy doesn't collect stamps himself; he collects collectors, and men of all kinds drop in at his office to talk things over. The specialist in the 3c Green (which he terms "The King of All Stamps") is there, also the man who collects the 10c '47 on covers, and they both are a little sorry for the other fellow. Percy "kids" them both along, and everyone is happy. Some facetious gentleman has named this daily congregating of the collectors "The Fox Club" and it is one of the best "clubs" I belong to.

The Story of the Four "Livingstons."

In my wanderings around Nassau Street, I have heard many interesting stories of old collections and old collectors and one that was told me by the Burger Brothers I think will be of interest.

Somwhere about 1887, the Burgers purchased a copy of the 5c Livingston Provisional for $25, this they sold to Klein for $395 and in 1892 it was again sold at an Albrecht auction for $780. The Scott publication of that time had an article about it, and this was the highest price which had been paid up to that time, for any postage stamp, at auction.

In 1888, the Burgers bought the collection of Mr. Norman Spang. Mr. Spang came from Pittsburg and collected in the early '80's. He collected stamps on covers principally and was especially partial to Confederate States. There were two copies of the Greenwood Depot provisional in the Spang collection, besides other items which are rarities now-

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Mr. Warren Irving Glover, Third Assistant Postmaster General, who accompanied the exhibit of the American Government to the International Stamp Exposition held at the Royal Horticultural Hall in London during the latter part of May, returned on May 31, 1923.

We are pleased to state that the special exhibit was awarded a special prize.

Since the exhibit was not a specialized collection but was more in the nature of a work of art composed almost entirely of the newer series of stamps, it did not come within the field of exhibits entitled to one of the regular prizes. So impressed were the officials of the exhibition, however, with its appearance and beautiful workmanship that a special award was made. The medal is now being engraved and is expected to reach this country in short order. The proof of the 24c aeroplane with inverted center, a part of the exhibit, attracted unusual attention and was especially noted by King George.

While abroad Mr. Glover had an audience with the King and also presented to the British Postmaster General a beautiful leather bound booklet containing die proofs on regular paper, card mounted, of the new 1922-23 series of United States postage stamps.

For a number of years the Post Office Department has utilized envelopes with return imprints in the upper left corner, that have been redeemed for some reason or other. The imprint is covered by means of a heavy black rectangular overprint and across the embossed stamp there is printed in small black block letters, "Penalty for Private Use to Avoid Payment of Postage, $300." Copies of the 1c green, 2c carmine and 3c purple have been known for sometime in the several dies and sizes but I now record the 4c black so surcharged which has just been noted. This was used from Washington under date of May 31, 1923.

In a recent Chronicle mention was made of several Business License Tax stamps issued by the State of South Carolina. Mr. J. V. Nielson, Jr., sends for inspection several more values and informs us that higher denominations are about to be issued. Those known to date include the 24/64c, 36/64c, and 42/64c in olive, the 1 1/5c and 1½c in purple and the 1c, 2c, 10c and 20c in carmine.

While in Washington recently I learned that our dies for the embossed envelopes are engraved at the Philadelphia Mint by one who has engraved many of our coins. This came as news for I was under the impression that this work was done by the envelope contractors rather than through the department. Since Mr. Glover's return prompt action may be expected on the new 12c envelope for all of the data is now ready for his approval. It is barely possible that the department may now decide to make a 2c envelope linen lined instead of the 12c. Under such conditions it would not be necessary for a firm using this type with corner imprint, investing a good amount in postage. They could buy the 2c and add 10c in postage as desired. They will cost the public a few cents each for the envelope but not near as much as a similar envelope in the commercial market.

BRITISH GUIANA.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us for chronicle a copy of the 2c purple script watermarked, which he advises is printed in sheets of 240.

CEYLON.—Mr. R. Roberts submits a copy of the 1r on new yellow paper with the old multiple CA watermark.

EGYPT.—Contrary to what was stated in our "Stop Press" Chronicle for April 28th, we learn that the new portrait stamps are not the work of the Boulac Bureau of Engraving and Printing, but have been produced by Messrs. Harrison & Sons, Ltd., by a new process known as collagravure. The high values, which are expected in the new future, will be larger format.—Stamp Collecting.

GUATEMALA.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us a 25c stamp with a view of "Palacio Nacional de Antigua" in the centre and the figures of value in each of the upper corners. Between are the words "Veinticinco Centavos" and at the base in two lines "Republica Guatemala." The color is brown.

HONDURAS.—Bright & Son send us the following:

We have just received some recent Provisionals from the republic of Honduras, the current 1c stamp has been overprinted 10c both in figures and words and an additional inscription "Habilitado Vale" in green. 2c has been overprinted similarly 50c, and the 5c overprinted $1.

In the last named value there is a curious error which occurs on one stamp only in the sheet, namely the word Peso is spelt "Pseo."

LUXEMBURG.—Mr. Henry Hooreman sends us the three values of Charity stamps of the 1921 issue with the added overprint of "25" at the top and the words "27 mai 1923" at the base. The overprints on the 10c and 25c are in red and that of the 15c is black.

NIUE.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the appearance of the 2s6d, 10sh and 1 pound New Zealand Queen stamp duty stamps with the surcharge "Niue" in blue.

Mr. Spang died in Paris recently. en Mr. Spang sold his collection urger Bros., he told them of a man named Sherrard, who lived vingston, Ala., who knew where was a pair of the 5c Livingstons cover, and in 1892, when Mr. ur Burger went South on a trip, ng for stamps, he went to Living- nd saw Sherrard, being introduced n by Mr. Spang. RECOLLECTIONS.

far as I can ascertain, there was cally no plating or reconstruction ets of stamps by the collectors of 's, or '90's. Prominent among the ctors of that time may be men- : Hiram E. Deats, C. T. Harbeck, Clotz, E. R. Ackerman, F. r, C. B. Corwin, J. F. Seybold, , Foster, H. C. Needham, Harrison rd, J. W. Scott, C. H. Mekeel, J. ndreini, Lawrence, Thorne, Edgar , Ayer, Robert Brock, Chapman, , Brunner, Sheridan, Ferrary and Evans.

not claim that this list is at all prehensive one. They are merely of the men from whom most of rities have been handed or brought to the present generation, and they collectors of United States and derate States principally, which is happen to have heard about them. are also, with the notable excep- f Ferrary and Major Evans, men ved in the United States.

Deats collection which was sold ion in 1899, contained a very won- accumulation of the Confederate ional stamps, Baton Rouge, Beau- Goliad, the rare types of Macon, ille, New Orleans, Pittsylvania, burg and others, were remarkably ented. To give one an idea of the se size of this lot, Mr. Deats wrote me some years ago and incidentally mentioned that at one time he had no less than 400 copies of the 5c New Orleans. Think it over. Mr. Deats also had a very fine collection of revenues; and he was also interested in Philatelic literature.

During the '80's, Messrs. Deats, Corwin, Scott, Mekeel and Major Evans (who frequently visited this country) were all interested in (and collectors of) Confederates and much of the information we now possess concerning the Postmasters' issues of those stamps was gathered at that time, by one or another of these gentlemen.

In the early '80's (sometime before 1885), Mr. Harrison Sanford, who was a general collector, made an attempt to plate the Brattleboro. He succeeded in getting six copies.

Until 1882, there was no special boom in stamps in this country. From 1882 to 1896 was a time when prices were continually rising. From 1896 to 1910 seems to have been a period of depression, of which I have never heard a plausible explanation, but it is apparent from catalogue prices that there was such a depression, and the prices in the 1909 catalogue, for instance, are in many cases lower than the corresponding ones of 1896.

It is generally conceded that the buying impetus, that started Philately booming in 1910, came from Europe; certain it is, that stamps began to boom again and the new crop of collectors that sprang up took a leaf from Europe's book and began to study varieties.

Dr. Chase showed us that all U. S. stamps were interesting to the student, and the age of specialization was started. For specialization and knowledge of the stamps they were collecting were something that appealed to the collector. With specialization came the science of plating and reconstructing, and, where before a collector only cared to have three or four copies of one stamp, he now needed hundreds to fill his plates. Add to this the collecting of different cancellations, which infinitely broadened the field, and it is easy to see why stamps have advanced so much in price in the last few years.

The plating of stamps naturally made pairs, strips and blocks more sought after, and this taught the man who sought them, their rarity. Fifteen years ago, a strip was priced as so many singles; if you wanted a single, they cut one off the strip. I spoke to a dealer, who told me he distinctly remembered severing a pair of 10c '47's, so that he could sell a single to a customer.

Another thing happened in 1910, which may seem of little importance to some but which I believe gave collecting an added impetus and interest. It was the sale of the truly great collection of stamps on covers, which had been accumulated by the late Mr. John F. Seybold of Syracuse. Mr. Seybold had collected for over 25 years and he had a love for rare and unusual covers. I have heard of how on several occasions, he closed up his business and took a long journey, to buy some rare item he had heard of, and on one occasion at least he went all the way to New Orleans, which was no small jaunt. Mr. Seybold had an artist's eye for color and symmetry and most of his covers were things of beauty. There has not been a sale of covers since, that has approached the Seybold lot in the way of general excellence and average condition of material. It opened the eyes of many collectors and showed them what could be done. People, however, were not "educated up to" the value of these things and coming as it did, just at the end of a long period of depression, the prices realized were only a small fraction of what they would be were there a similar lot offered today.

How would you like, Mr. Reader, for instance, to be offered Lot No. 41, which is described in the catalogue as follows:

> "U. S. 1847 ISSUE
> 10c Black, horizontal strip of Six on letter, cancelled in red "Mobile, Sept. 24," and addressed to New York. The stamps are also cancelled in red and are in wonderfully fine condition; a very rare cover."

Which sold for $81.00! ! !

Lot 42 was a similar cover (another strip of six of the 10c '47) which was addressed to Europe. That fetched $110. I wonder what these two items would bring today!

As proof that, even as late as 1910, collectors did not "know" rare covers, I will cite a smaller item from the Seybold sale.

"Lot No. 454—Confederate States, 10c milky blue (210a), block of 8 with fine cancellation "Richmond, Va., May 7, 1863," rare in blocks and especially on covers."

This item sold for the princely price of three dollars and twenty cents ($3.20) and was purchased by the late Mr. Hermann and he took it off cover, and threw the cover away. I speak feelingly about this, as I bought the block when the Hermann collection was distributed a few years ago. There is no question about it being the same block cancellation, for one thing proves it. Used blocks of this common stamp are not rarities by any means, but a used block of 8 on cover, I have never seen.

The sale of the Worthington collection in 1917, added further impetus to the upward movement in prices, and although it would seem that the World War should have depressed prices, it did not. Collectors merely put their collections away, until the war was over, and the market was inactive but always firm. Since the war, United States collectors have taken advantage of the rate of exchange, and financial conditions in Europe have forced foreign collectors to sell here, where the highest prices can be obtained. The Ferrary rarities are finding their way into the albums of U. S. collectors and, at the rate we are now going, we will soon have a great proportion of these rarities. Philately and the study of varieties is here and it's here to stay. It is necessary to specialize in one country or one particular group of countries, or even in one issue or in one stamp.

Yes, gentlemen, the day of the specialist is here, and we will never again see the prices of 1908-1909. There may be a reaction in some of the specialties, as there is in every healthy market, but the demand and the number of collectors is ever increasing and the supply is decreasing.

I do not think it anything but a conservative statement, when I say that there are three times as many serious collectors today as there were when I started to collect in earnest, in 1916.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

FIJI ISLANDS.

The Local Postage Dues.

The inclusion for the first time of the locally printed Postage Due stamps of Fiji in the new edition of Gibbons' Catalogue, though they were issued in January, 1917, naturally makes them of interest to collectors in this country. There may have been references to them in the British philatelic press, but we do not remember seeing anything conclusive, so our readers may be glad of a summary of studies of this issue by Mr. John N. Luff in Scott's Monthly Journal, and by Mr. A. J. Derrick in The Australian Philatelist and Australian Philatelic Record, as, between them, these gentlemen have been able to reconstruct a conclusive history of these stamps. Mr. Derrick had the advantage of a personal visit to Fiji and the opportunity of making enquiries in official circles on the spot, but he could get no definite proof of the make-up of the original sheets of stamps, as apparently no proofs had been kept, and as the sale of stamps over the counter was forbidden, unused blocks and strips were practically unknown. However, Mr. Luff had secured a strip which was of great value for evidential purposes, so that the facts may be considered as established.

In November, 1916, the Colonial Postmaster requisitioned for a supply of Postage Due stamps, the quantities asked for (based on sheets of 120) being 960 of ½d, 2,400 of 1d and 2d, 3,600 of 3d, and 600 of 4d. On receipt of the order, the Government printer decided to print the values on one combined sheet. He found that he had available a laid paper in sheets measuring approximately 13 inches by 8 inches, large enough for only 96 stamps of the size he wanted. He therefore decided to print enough of such sheets approximately to fill the order.

The rules and mitred rules used to set the frame lines of the stamps were from an ordinary font in use. They gave stamps measuring ⅞ inch full by ¾ inch, and the plain rectangle thus formed contained the words "POSTAGE DUE" at top, "FIJI" at foot, and the value in large figures in the centre.

The sheet was made up of eight vertical rows of twelve stamps, the vertical rows from left to right comprising stamps of 1d, 1d, 1d, ½d, 4d, 3d, 3d, 3d, respectively. It will be seen that the 2d stamp was not included. On the creamy laid paper already mentioned, he therefore printed 130 of these combined sheets, but the method adopted deserves notice. In order to avoid the work involved in setting up complete sheets of 96 stamps, with the numerous rules, etc., involved, only one vertical row was set up, and this row was printed on each of the 130 sheets. The same operation was repeated for each of the other vertical rows, the necessary alteration of figures being effected for the rows where this was required. The 130 "combined" sheets were delivered to the Receiver-General on December 8th, 1916, and through the Colonial Postmaster they came into use at Suva on January 1st, 1917. Levuka had one small lot from Suva P. O., and Lautoka had two small lots direct from the Receiver-General.

As there were no 2d stamps in the original setting, 31 sheets of 84 of this value were printed separately, and delivered on December 15th.

The quantities of some values did not, however, meet requirements, so further printings of the ½d 1d and 2d were made, consisting of 70 sheets of the ½d, 53 sheets of the 1d, and 52 sheets of the 2d, the sheets being of 84 stamps each. There does not appear to be any evidence as to whether the 2d is from a new setting, but Mr. Derrick states that there are considerable differences of type, especially in the two printings of the ½d, in the first printing of which the type is very heavy, and the bar is bordering on the horizontal; whereas in the second printing the figures are smaller and the "d" larger, and the bar lighter and nearly upright. The varieties in the sheet cannot, however, be listed, as, with exception of Mr. Luff's strip, there not seem to be any material availab

With the arrival of the Postage stamps printed in England, the issue was no longer required. former arrived on June 18th, 1918, were at once put on sale at Suva, an August 1st, the Postmaster returne the Receiver-General the balance of local issue. Mr. Derrick has been to establish the printings, as alr stated, and has also had access to certificate of the Board of Survey, w supervised the destruction of the mainders of the local issue on Septer 4th, 1918, so that he gives us the fol ing definite figures regarding this teresting issue, column (a) giving numbers printed, (b) numbers destrc and (c) numbers actually issued.

½d	7,440	6,396
1d	9,132	5,496
2d	6,972	3,948
3d	4,680	3,564
4d	1,560	1,188

Mr. Derrick adds a note regarding perforation, concerning which he s "The stamps were not gummed. T were perforated by an ordinary guillc machine, gauging 11, the sheet b turned for the cross perfs. In som the sheets the margins were not pe rated, so that the outer stamps are perf. at side or end, and the co stamps both side and end."

In conclusion, we trust that the gentlemen who have elicited the facts regarding this interesting is which may practically be regarded War Provisional issue, will forgive M. C. for making use of the results their labours for the benefit of readers—Gibbons Monthly Circular.

"MISH"—AGAIN.

By Edwin B. Hill, Ysleta, Texas.

For W. C.

Follow the Old Santa Fe Trail. Three miles below the quaint old town of Ysleta, two canals have "headings" from the main ditch. The water is used for irrigating purposes. On the left, the larger canal crosses diagonally a strip of alfalfa land. In the center of this ten acres is a marked depression. When irrigating water is run upon the surrounding land, the depression becomes a lake. In it grow a few cat-tails, and marsh-grasses abound. It is a charming spot, with a beautiful grove of cottonwood adjoining. I had noted it many times, and loved it. Then mine ancient young friend, "Mish," rented the land, and began to farm it—vicariously. That is, a Mexican worked it on shares.

"The Mexican works the land, Mish works the Mexican, and I work 'em both," declared good old "Tex," cowpuncher and former deputy marshal, now fallen upon evil days because of untold wealth having been willed to him.

I met up with Tex leaning against the adobe walls of Mish's erstwhile unhappy home. He was smoking a cigarette, and smiling at the landscape.

"I've took it into my confidence," declared Tex, waving his cigarette at the adjacent and distant scenery. "We like each other. I'm going to stay—temp'ry."

"What devilment are you up to now, you heathen?" I jeered, as I opened converse from the flivver across the canal.

"Come along tomorrow and you'll see Exhibit A," shouted Tex. I put spurs to the flivver, and drove on.

Three days later I slowed down the old relic, and read a large sign, artistically printed:

"Buy a goldfish from Lake Mishagain. Catch your own."

I recognized the outer aspects of the sign-board. It had been donated unconsciously by its owner, its duties having been to advertise the charms of Welcomehurst, a suburban tract which died in the making. It was a good sign.

"Cost me six dollars to get that there sign painted," began Tex, as he clambered into the flivver. "Mish is sure to get home in about an hour, and I prefer not to be among those present. You see, he possibly might not like the sign."

I assured Tex Mish would enjoy it.

"Think so?" questioned Tex. "You see, it's one of six. The chap needed the money, and I needed the signs. He comes out every week. Then he swaps lies with me, for a space, and then he paints the sign."

Our business took us late into the afternoon. When I dropped Tex off at Mish's shack, we heard the redoubtable explaining to a tourist, with fluent and varied and bitter language, that there wasn't a blue-bellied goldfish in the blue-bellied pond. Besides, it wasn't a pond, anyway. With much more language to the same effect.

"Reckon I'd best not tarry," I whispered to Tex.

"Reckonin's good," he whispered back. I threw her into high and left Tex sitting by the roadside.

Next week I passed that way again. To be more exact, I did not pass, I tarried. Tex was singing "Molly Darling." Mish was trying to drown him out with "White Wings." They gave up about the time I honked the third yawp. Then they came to the door, and beamed across, as well as Mish's misplaced eyebrow would allow.

"Come over here, you!" Mish's voice could be heard almost to Paso del Norte, fifteen miles away. I came.

"Seen the latest?" Mish waved at the new sign.

"Rent a boat and catch a goldfish for exercise."

I howled with joy.

"That ain't the worst," declared Mish. "Co'mere."

He led me back of the house. There were three canvas-bottom boats, laid out like corpses, and beside them nineteen fish-globes.

"The blue-bellied nut bought all the gold-fish he could get to stock the pond, and then he had these here three boats made. Nice boats, too. I fell out-a one of 'em three times in thirteen minutes."

I leaned against the building and laughed until the tears came.

"Look out, ole timer. You'll get your clothes soiled," said Mish, as I essayed to pack a boat to the bank. It was like old times. I paddled until I was weary, with Mish for audience.

Then Mish essayed to try it. I played the part of on-looker. Twice he fell into the canal, and choked and gasped and said things for my ancient ears to applaud.

Tex did not appear. I called him.

"Nope. Thinkin' up another sign!" declared the irrepressible. But when Mish came forth from the water, Tex turned out to jeer.

The news of the signs had penetrated. There were three cars parked over near the field. A joyous kiddy was dancing up and down on the bank.

"Oh-ee! Muvver! Real fishes!"

A gentle-faced woman walked slowly across the sward, and knelt beside the child. Tex disappeared behind the house. He returned with a small dip-net and a fish globe. Then he trailed them over to the pond, and proceeded to catch three goldfish in his net. These he placed in the globe, which meantime he had filled with water, and gave it to the child. The little thing placed the globe upon the ground, and held up his little arms to be taken up. Tex bent his head. When he came back he was very quiet.

"Seems like I did that fool thing for a purpose," said Tex. "You never can tell. The kiddy thinks it's all in a life. His mother—well, I sure felt mighty small there fer awhile. But the kiddy—he thinks goldfish nacherly roost there."

Tex poked into the house. I drove away, the faint sound of a happy child's laughter in my ears.

Three days more. It was sign-time.

"Get a pole and fish for carp. Package of rare postage stamps with every fish."

Tex sure was playing his sense of humor strong against his friends.

The pretty girl who rapped at the door of the shack where I was stretched upon Mish's cot, twirling his sixshooter on my index finger in approved movie-gunman's manner, asked very seriously for a pole. She said she collected, and she wanted to win a prize.

Mish and I faded, leaving Tex to do the honors. He did. Five hours he did them. Then Mish came to.

We sneaked out the back door, to the drainage canal, and proceeded to break the law of Texas by netting five large carp. These we kept alive. When Tex and the girl went over into the grove, Mish and I sneaked along the ditch-bank, hooked two carp on the hooks the couple had left dangling, and dumped the other three into the lake.

"The goldfish'll enjoy a change of society," declared Mish, as we went back over the trail to the shack.

Twenty minutes later Tex turned up. He began prowling amongst some papers in his war-bag.

"What's up, down, or sideways?" asked Mish, with a ponderous wink at me.

"Kinda lookin' for them packages of stamps," said Tex. "Seems the fish has growed up and took to bitin' something dreadful."

He found them, did Tex, and disappeared. The day being so far gone, I proceeded to do likewise.

Three days of Texas cold. I holed up, and then set forth.

"Skating privileges for the winter."

The sign showed signs of wear. Some peeved buncoed tourist had shot nine holes through it. I did not stop.

Two days, and then, joy of joys! Tex had rigged up a dinky open-air shelter, moved his cot over, and was sleeping beneath the canopy and the sign. It read, in large white letters,—

"When in doubt, shoot first—but make it Mish."

Nine miles further I met up with Mish. He leaned from his horse and peering into the car, asked:

"What's the blue-bellied nut got now? I ain't seen 'im fer four days."

I explained. Mish choked and gasped.

"That settles it—and Tex—and the signs. They fail in dry weather—signs." I came past in the night, and did not even pause. I honked cheerfully at the dark house, with a farewell Blah! I heard the door slam. I did not know what they said,—that pair,—but they said it.

A fortnight passed. I slowed down. Mish came to the door.

"He's done gone,—him and the sign. And that ain't all. Come in."

I disembarked.

"He done took his trunk and his war-bag and everything but his sixshooter and his collection. Think we'd better divide up the effects of the late diseased?

The blue-bellied Texican! I caint tell which of 'em got him,—the widow or the girl who collected."

Mish rolled a cigarette. Then he poisoned the air. The faint tinkle of the telephone called our attention.

"Well, what d'ye want?"

Mish's manners were thoroughly hard-boiled.

Then his tone changed.

"Ex-cuse me! I thought it was a man who owed me money!"

Mish was looking down the barrel of the receiver and smiling inanely.

"He what? Tex? Yuh don't mean it! Which one? The one who collects, er the other one? Don't keep me all het up this-a-way. Yes, he's here. Want to talk with him?"

I grabbed the receiver. A silvery voice I recognized imparted the news that Tex had gone to California again to pick apricots. He had gone with a lady. She collected. She collected Tex.

"Ask her"—Mish's voice boomed out discordantly,—"ask 'er if she's doin' any collectin' fer herself?"

The voice came laughingly over the 'phone. I held the receiver to Mish.

"Yes," the voice said. "Yes—stamps."

ARMENIA AND IIS POSTAGE STAMPS.

The ancient and sadly oppressed Armenian nation finally achieved its long-sought independence in May, 1918, receiving formal recognition as a separate Republic by the League of Nations in January, 1920. Twelve months later the country was overrun by the Bolsheviks and a Soviet established.

Armenia is a land of great antiquity, whose history is traceable back to 2350 B. C. The early rulers of Armenia were subject to those of Assyria, until the country was conquered by Alexander the Great and placed under the governorship of Arsace, King of the Parthans (second century B. C.), who, having subdued it, gave it to his son Vagharschag, who founded a dynasty which ruled until 478 A. D. In the seventh century the Armenians fell victims to the power of the Arabs, but in 885 A. D. a new dynasty was established by Prince Aschcd. During the eleventh century the country was again reduced by the Byzantines and its people oppressed with great barbarism. A large number fled to the Taurus, and subsequently, denuded of its population, Armenia became an easy prey for the Turks and Tartars. In course of time the land was divided between Turkey, Persia, and Russia, who in the early part of the nineteenth century, seized the Armenian provinces of Erivan, Elizabethpol, etc. Turkish, Russian, and Persian stamps without any distinguishing mark were used in their respective spheres of influence.

The first national postage stamps of Armenia were issued at Erivan under the auspices of an Allied Mission in February, 1920. They consisted of various Russian stamps in the Arms type of 1909-18 both perforate and imperforate, impressed with a hieroglyphic device signifying "H. P." (Haygazan Post). Of this overprint there are four main types, struck in violet or black, as under:—

Feb. 1920.

1. Small monogram in frame.
2. Small monogram without frame.

Mar. 1920.

3. Large monogram in frame.
4. Large monogram without frame.

There are also a number of sub-types. It has been suggested that, as in the case of the Ukraine, each of these types emanated from a different town, but so far as our information goes it is clear that the whole of the overprinting was carried out at Erivan, where several handstamps were provided in order to expedite the work.

The 60k on 1k provisional without hieroglyphic preceded this issue in November, 1919, and with the "Z" overprint added in January, 1920.

To keep pace with the declining value of the rouble new denominations of 1, 3, 5, 10, 25, 50 and 100 roubles were surcharged upon the former Russian types, together with a new hieroglyphic device between April and August, 1920. This surcharge is also found upon the Romanoff types of 1913 and upon the War Charity series of 1914.

Meanwhile a distinctive series of Armenian postage stamps in pictorial designs had been prepared at the French Government Printing Establishment in Paris. Three stamps of this series, recess printing with a vignette of an eagle grasping a broadsword, was issued about December, 1920, but owing to the Bolshevik invasion never found their way into general use.

Between May and December, 1921, ordinary Russian postage stamps in the Arms type, without overprint, were employed throughout Armenia.

Consequent on the further fall in the value of the rouble in December, 1921, the Soviet authorities caused the remainders of the high value Russian stamps of 1909-18 to be uniformly surcharged "5,000 Rbls.", and at the same time overprinted with the Soviet device of a hammer and sickle, enclosed in a star-shaped frame.

These provisionals finally gave place in February, 1922, to a full series of sixteen picturesque stamps, designed by a native Armenian artist, and somewhat crudely lithographed at Erivan. The subjects of the designs are mainly archæological, as the following descriptions show:—

1 rouble green. Soviet device in a frame composed of Arabesque Assyrian and Byzantine ornaments copied from ancient illuminated manuscripts.

2 roubles grey-green. Ancient bas-relief discovered in the neighbourhood of Erivan.

3 roubles rose. Soviet Arms surmounted by decorative border reproduced from ancient MS.

5 roubles brown. Vignette of the ruins of the city of Arni, capital of Armenia under the dynasty of Bagratides; destroyed by the Turks in 1079.

25 roubles grey-green. Bas-relief of mythological bird with woman's head, discovered in the ruins of Arni.

50 roubles vermilion. An Armenian soldier, with the Soviet badge upon his helmet.

100 roubles yellow-brown. Bas-relief of mythological animal from ruins of Arni.

250 roubles blue. Soviet Arms sup-

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

SOME BRITISH COLONIAL DUES.

By Harry E. Huber.

The announcement by the Crown Agents in September, 1922, that postage due stamps, 2c and 4c, were being prepared for British Honduras, makes it the fourth British possession in the Western Hemisphere to adopt the use of these stamps.

Trinidad.

Trinidad was the first to issue postage due stamps, or as they are called by some, surcharge postage stamps. They appeared on January 1st, 1885, being forecasted by a circular of November 17th, 1884, which the Postmaster-General, J. A. Bulmer, sent around to the chief commercial houses in the island.

"General Post Office.
Port of Spain,
17th November, 1884.
Memorandum.

On and after 1st January, 1885, the sum to be collected in Trinidad from the addressee, on unpaid and insufficiently-paid correspondence, will be represented by a special stamp or stamps similar to the specimen below. These stamps will be affixed to the cover of the letters, etc.

With a view to expediting the delivery of mails by abolishing the present system of debiting unpaid charges in the books of this department, and also of preventing errors by overcharges, I beg to solicit your co-operation by providing your messenger, on the arrival of each mail, with a sum sufficient to cover the charges on any unpaid or insufficiently-paid correspondence, so that such charges may be collected when the correspondence is delivered.

From the date mentioned all registered and unpaid correspondence for your firm arriving by the English mail will be delivered in the room set apart for delivery to private box holders together with the ordinary correspondence.

I am, gentlemen,
Your most obedient servant,
Signed, J. A. Bulmer, Postmaster-General."

The series consisted of 9 values, ½d to 1s, in an unpretentions design—a very plain frame inscribed "Trinidad" at the top, and "Surcharge Postage" at the bottom, in labels conforming to a central circular opening, in which a large block numeral is inserted at a second printing. The stamps were printed in black, in sheets of 60 (6x10), on Crown CA watermarked paper. The plate number 1 appears four times, over the 2nd and 5th stamps of the top row, and under the corresponding stamps of the lower row. There is no marginal line.

Between 1905 and 1907, all values except the ½d, for which the need seems to have disappeared, were issued on multiple Crown CA watermarked paper.

On July 25, 1922, there were no 2d surcharge postage stamps in stock at the G. P. O., and it was reported from official quarters that "2d surcharge postage stamps are to be issued shortly." As the Postage and Revenue stamps of this Colony, since 1913, have been inscribed "Trinidad & Tobago" it was thought that when further supplies of surcharge postage stamps were required, they would be printed from a plate with changed inscription. However, the plate was not changed, and in February, 1923, the 2d surcharge postage stamp was issued, on multiple Crown and script CA watermarked paper.

There is no restriction against the sale of these stamps in mint condition by the Post Office.

January 1, 1885. "Surcharge Postage" stamps, typographically printed by De La Rue & Co., Ltd., London. "Trinidad" at the top, and "Surcharge Postage" at the bottom, conforming to central circle containing figure of value in large block type. Watermarked Crown CA Perf. comb. 14.

Gibbons Stamp Circular

This snappy little publication is mailed free for nothing—not even postage—once a month unless the editor goes fishing or yachting. This season of the year therefore is a good time to write for a copy. This circular is not mailed to substitutors, send-em-back-unregistered fiends and such like. Post-cards also go straight into the waste paper basket. Serious and interested collectors would do well to send for a copy and get on the list free before we close the offer with the ten thousandth name. [H2

Match and Medicine
The recent sale of a large lot of these interesting revenues from the collection of the late Clarence H. Eagle brought surprises to many. Dealers, never thought to be interested in this line, bought heavily at high prices, and prices in general proved the stability of an investment in these stamps of a hundred shades, shapes and sizes.
I have stocked Match and Medicine stamps for years and have accumulated everything in fine condition that I could lay hands on. Irrespective of the fact that many varieties are impossible to get undamaged, due to their use on match boxes and over corks in bottles, my stock shows a high percentage of really fine copies.
WANT-LISTS ARE SOLICITED from good buyers, who can report within five days from receipt. Reference is required if you are unknown to me.

GRENADA.

Grenada was next to adopt the use of surcharge postage stamps, and in 1892, three values, 1d, 2d and 3d, appeared. In the same year, provisionals were made locally, by overprinting 6d and 8d postage stamps of the 1883 series, in three lines,—"1d. (or 2d.)—Surcharge—Postage." Both values were surcharged for use as 1d and 2d due stamps. The surcharges on the 8d stamps are especially desirable, the 1d on 8d being priced by Gibbons (1923) at 70s, and the 2d on 8d at £8.

The design of the definite surcharge postage stamps differs but slightly from that used by Trinidad, in that "Grenada" and "Surcharge Postage" are in straight labels at the top and bottom, instead of conforming to the circular opening. They were printed on both Crown CA (1892), and multiple Crown CA (1906-11) watermarked papers, in sheets of 60 stamps, with plate number 1, four times on the sheet, over the 2nd and 5th stamps of the top row, and under the corresponding stamps of the lower row. A continuous marginal line surrounds the pane. It is interesting to note that the numerals of value on these stamps are in the same large block type used for Trinidad's surcharge postage stamps.

In December, 1921, stamps in the same design, but with "Postage Due" substituted for "Surcharge Postage," at the bottom, were issued, on script watermarked paper, and on December 15, 1922, a 1½d value was added to the series. These stamps are likewise in sheets of 60, but bear no plate number, and the marginal line is broken.

For many years the surcharge postage stamps of Grenada were sold only in cancelled state, but in 1921 this restricton was removed.

Postage stamps of 1883 series, Queen Victoria, "Grenada Postage" at top, and value in words at bottom, surcharged locally, in black, in three lines, "1d (or 2d)—Surcharge Postage." Each alternate horizontal row is inverted, thus producing tete beche pairs. Watermarked Crown CA. Perf. comb. 14.

Cancellation Fans

Postage stamps and fans go together well in the winter, but are less popular in the summer time. For that reason summer is the better time to buy for those who can spare the time. The demand is so great in the winter it is practically impossible to give anyone the undivided attention we should like to, because our stock is scattered all over the country. In summer the approval books are back in and we can remount and re-arrange to meet individual requirements.

Not half the stamps acquired in the three big cancellation collections this spring have yet been mounted or sent out on approval. If there is anything you particularly want to see we shall be glad to send it against the usual commercial references.

after the following arrangements will supersede the regulations now in force.

1.—The Department will issue a special stamp which will be known as the Postage Due Stamp, and on the delivery of any article of mail matter on which unpaid or additional postage is to be collected, the Postmaster will affix and cancel as ordinary stamps are cancelled, postage due stamps to the amount of the extra postage charged on such article.

2.—The short paid postage must be collected from the addressee before postage due stamps are affixed; otherwise, the Postmaster is liable to lose the amount of such postage.

3.—Postmasters will obtain postage due stamps on requisition to the Department, but the initial supply will be furnished without requisition, so that the new system may go into operation on the date above mentioned. When a new form is ordered postage due stamps will be included in the printed list, but it is proposed to use the stock on hand, which would otherwise have to be destroyed. The denominations of the new stamps will be 1c, 2c, and 5c."

The design, which is treated in a horizontal rectangle, has a large colorless numeral in an octagon, above which is "Canada," and below "Cent" (or "Cents"). At the sides are scrolls, and across the bottom, "Postage Due." The background is of intricate engine turning.

The stamps were printed by the American Bank Note Co., of Ottawa, from line engraved plates, in sheets of 100 stamps (10x10), and in the top margin, in the center, is the imprint "Ottawa" followed by the plate number. Plates 1 and 2 are known for all three values.

Sale to the public of these postage due stamps is prohibited, and the Postmaster General in his report for 1906, makes mention of this fact.

"A system of accounting for short paid postage collected by Postmasters, by means of special stamps known as Postage Due stamps, has been adopted by the Department. These stamps are to be affixed to short paid mail matter and cancelled by Postmasters when such matter is delivered to the addressee, and are not to be used for any other purpose. They cannot be used for the payment of ordinary postage, nor are they to be sold to the public."

July 1, 1906. "Postage Due" stamps. Numeral in octagon, "Canada" above, "Cent" (or "Cents") below, "Postage Due" across the bottom. Single line perf. 12. Printed by American Bank Note Co., Ottawa, from line engraved plates. Plates 1 and 2.

SOUVENIRS OF THE CONGRESS.

We are indebted to A. Leon Adutt for a collection of matter issued in connection with the International Exhibition the Tenth Philatelic Congress recently held in London. We appreciate Mr. Adutt's courtesy and feel that many of our readers will be interested in some of the items, viz.:—

A set of airmail labels printed in brown, purple, orange and blue, the result of a contest inaugurated in connection with the Exhibition.

A menu of the banquet held at the Hotel Cecil, Friday, May 25, under the auspices of the Junior Philatelic Society. Fred J. Melville was toastmaster, and proposed toasts to the King, the Queen, Queen Alexandra, the Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family. Three other toasts were given to "Distinguished Philatelists," "The Junior Philatelic Society and the Chairman of the Congress," and "The next Congress." The dinner plan showed a number of the American delegates seated at the guest table, in addition to which there were twenty-one other tables required to accommodate the large number of guests.

The Evening Times of Monday, May 21, had a cartoon picturing "Today's Attractions." After humorously treating with cricket, chess, horse-racing, and automobile driving the stamp exhibition was shown with the remark "But anybody who feels equal to it ought to visit the Horticultural Hall and see the stamp exhibition. Personally I don't think I can manage it. I am afraid the excitement would be too much for me."

The Daily Telegraph announcing to the public that it was the first daily newspaper in the world to devote regular attention to philately stated that under the heading "Postage Stamps" Fred J. Melville had conducted a department in each Thursday's issue of that publication. This enterprising paper invited the delegates to the Congress to visit its establishment and see the paper in the process of being printed. The invitation was responded to with a great degree of unanimity and each person was presented with a copy of the paper in miniature, the size of the page being 7x9 inches and yet clearly legible to the naked eye.

The menu of the official banquet held in connection with the stamp exhibition was adorned with a picture of the special air-mail stamp. The banquet was held on the evening of May 17, at the Hotel Cecil, and of this function Mr. Melville was chairman. In addition to toasts to the royal family there were toasts to the visitors, the jury, the J. P. S. and the chairman. To the latter Mr. Luff responded. The U. S. visitors were grouped at the table directly in front of the presiding officer. Among the guests were Sir William Joynson Hicks, Bart., Postmaster-General; H. E. the Japanese Ambassador, Baron Hayashi; Their Excellencies the Ministers of Poland, Esthonia, Latvia, Lithuania; The Chinese Charge d'Affaires; Viscount Burnham, C. H.; Hon. W. Ormsby-Gore, M.P., Under Secretary of State for the Colonies; Sir William Berry, Bart.; Sir Bertram Mackennal, A.R.A.; Sir Anthony Hope Hawkins; Donald Banks, Esq., Private Secretary to the Postmaster-General; Stuart de la Rue, Esq.; Col. Robert Johnson, C.B.E., Deputy Master and Comptroller of the Royal Mint; C. W. Stonestreet, C.B.E., Inspector of Stamping, etc., etc.

ICELAND—THE ISLAND OF FIRE.

By Charles G. Wilson.

That the stamps of Iceland are prized by collectors is attested by the high prices they bring. Prime favorites among these stamps are the "cameos" of the issue of 1911-12.

Iceland has been called the Island of Fire and with reason, for not only is the island itself the result of volcanic action, but it is today the home of volcanoes, hot springs, geysers, and earthquakes.

The first permanent settlement was made in Iceland in 874 A. D., by a Norwegian chieftain, Ingolf. At that time colony after colony of Norwegians left their home country and went to Iceland to escape the tyranny of Harold Fairhair, the King of Norway. In about fifty years a union of these various colonies was formed and Iceland was a republic until 1261, governed by a national assembly, the Althing, which met in the open air at Thingvalla.

In the 13th Century, during a civil war which weakened the power of the chiefs, the island came under Norwegian rule. When Norway fell in turn to Denmark in 1380 Iceland also became subject to the Danes and so is to this day.

During the Napoleonic Wars the English took Iceland, but they returned it to Denmark in 1815.

Iceland's greatest contribution to mankind is its classic literature. During the long, dark days of the winter which lasted the greater part of the year, the Icelanders, isolated in their villages, fell to story-telling for amusement, and to this the Sagas, or hero stories, owe their being.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF BELGIUM.

By Bertram W. H. Poole.

PART III.—POSTAGE DUE STAMPS.

Chapter II.

The Second Issue.

On November 1, 1895, a new series of postage due stamps was issued for the purpose of carrying into execution the Ministerial order quoted below, under which the system of collecting insufficient postage by means of adhesive stamps was extended to letters passing anywhere in the kingdom, instead of being confined to those passing within the same postal district. The order was as follows:—

"Department of Railways, Posts, and Telegraphs.

The Minister of Railways, Posts, and Telegraphs, pursuant to Article 107 of the Royal Decree, dated 12 October, 1879, in which the Minister of Public Works is authorised to sanction all details necessary to the execution of the law of 30 March, 1879,

And Pursuant to the Ministerial Decree, dated 20 July, 1870, by virtue of which Postage Due stamps were issued, to be affixed to letters posted at, and delivered by, the same office such letters being unpaid, or insufficiently paid,

Is Convinced That this system of control may with advantage be extended to letters destined for all parts of the kingdom,

Orders and Decrees the Following:—

Art. 1.—That Postage Due stamps of a new design be issued on November 1st next.

Art. 2.—That the Postage Due stamps be issued in five values, i.e., 5, 10, 20 and 50 centimes and 1 franc; they will be inscribed 'A PAYER and TE BETALEN,' and will be printed in the colors of the corresponding values of the last issue of postage stamps.

Brussels, October 8, 1895.

(Signed) J. Vandenpeereboom."

The design is the same for all values and shows large numerals on disc of solid color within a transverse oblong rectangle. Above is an uncolored tablet containing "A PAYER" and across the bottom the equivalent in Flemish—"TE BETALEN"—is shown on a straight. label. On each side of the central disc are Belgian lions and foliage which one writer described as "being in a very snarly state," the background being composed of thin horizontal lines.

The design was drawn by Mr. P. Lemaire, of Ghent, and the dies were engraved by Mr. A. Doms. These gentlemen's initials are shown in microscopic letters in the small triangular indentations at each side of the upper label, "P L" being at the left and "A D" at the right. It will be noted that nothing is shown on these stamps to indicate their country of origin.

They were all printed on wove unwatermarked paper and, like the ordinary postage stamps then in use, were perforated 14.

Reference List.

1895. Designed by P. Lemaire and engraved by A. Doms. No wmk. Perf. 14.

5 centimes, green.
10 centimes, orange brown.
20 centimes, olive green.
50 centimes, pale brown.
1 franc, carmine-rose.

Chapter III.

The Third Issue.

A Ministerial decree dated March 15, 1900, commanded that for the future the postage due stamps of the values of 50 centimes and 1 franc should be printed in grey and orange respectively. The colors thus corresponded with those of the same denominations in the ordinary postage series in contemporary use. When the regular 10 centimes stamp was printed in carmine the same color was ordered for the 10 centimes postage due, a decree dated March 15, 1901 announcing and authorising the change. All three values were printed from the same plates as before and on similar paper with the usual 14 perforation, the only difference being that of color.

Reference List.

1900-1. Same types as before in new colors. No wmk. Perf. 14.

50 centimes, grey.
1 france, orange-yellow.

Chapter IV.

The New 30c Value.

In March, 1909, a new denomination—30 centimes—was added to the existing set of postage due stamps and it was announced that a 40 centimes stamp would soon follow it, though this latter value never appeared. The design of the new denomination is, at first glance, like the others of the series but in an interesting note in the Monthly Journal for May, 1911, Mr. L. Hanciau points out that this is not the case. While the variations are small they are of sufficient importance to show that an entirely new die was engraved and while it was thought this 30c might be the forerunner of a series in the altered type no others appeared like it. Mr. Hanciau points out that the chief differences are as follows:—

Left side. The device in the upper corner is in the form of a triangle, and the scroll below it touches the outer frame instead of being a certain distance from it. The Lion, with the exception of its nose (which has the nostril V-shaped), has its head completely covered with shading, instead of having the lower part almost white.

Right side. There is a white space between the frame and the scroll, which is thinner than before, and the recurved portion of this scroll is not continuous. The nose of the Lion is nearer to frame, and the ear in this type is w marked. There is a little device tween the fourth and fifth leaves fr the top of the Oak Branch, which w not there originally. The foot of Lion seems to us to be more distinct a the claws are differently arranged.

The horizontal lines in the cent circle are more distinct; the lower la is 19¼mm. long, instead of 19¾mr outside the ends of this label th are eleven horizontal lines at one e and ten at the other, instead eleven at each end; the upper label l the initials smaller at left and larger right than in the other values; fina the stamp measures 21¾x17¼mm., stead of 22¼x17¾mm.

This stamp was printed on the sa wove unwatermarked paper as that us for the other denominations and the p foration gauges 14.

Reference List.

1909. Design as before but sligh modified. No wmk. Perf. 14.

30 centimes, pale blue.

Chapter V.

The Re-engraved Stamps of 1915.

In 1915, when the new series of or ary postage stamps was issued at Hav a series of five postage due stamps w also placed in circulation. These stam like those for regular postal purpos were produced in London, being surfa printed in sheets of 100 by Mess Waterlow Bros. and Layton. None the original dies being available n ones had to be constructed and such close copy was made of the original d sign of 1895, that some values are qu difficult to distinguish. The design 1895 was, indeed, so carefully copi that even the initials of the original d signer and engraver were retained at t ends of the "A PAYER" tablet. In foot-note in Scott's catalogue we read: "In the re-engraved stamps the tuf on the Lion's tail are separated from t ends of the bottom tablet by one wh line instead of two. The tail of t lion at the left has a smaller tuft th on the 1895-1909 issues and of differe shape." Unfortunately the differenc are not distinct on the majority of t 1915 stamps owing to the fact that th are usually heavily printed. But t mere fact that one cannot clearly di tinguish the white lines between t tufts of the tails and the line below

METROPOLITAN STAMP CO., 7 West 42nd St., New York City.

A 10c BUCHANAN DISCOVERED.

Only Six Copies of this Rare Postmaster Known to Exist and All in the U. S.

One of the scarcest of the early United States Postmaster stamps, issued in Baltimore in 1845, was recently discovered in Italy and is now in the possession of Edward Stern of 87 Nassau Street. James M. Buchanan was the Baltimore Postmaster who, two years before the first Government postal issue, issued a few 5 and 10 cent stamps. Both of these issues now rank among the chief philatelic rarities. The 10-cent denomination is the more valuable.

The stamp which has returned to America after being hidden somewhere in Italy for more than seventy-five years is of that variety. It is valued at $7,500 by Mr. Stern, who is the head of the Economist Stamp Company. One year ago, at the famous Ferrari collection sale in Paris, a stamp of the same denomination, on the original envelope, was bought for $6,600 by an American dealer.

Before the present discovery only five of the 10-cent Baltimores were known to philatelists. Up to 1901 only three were known. Two were discovered within the past year. The fifth copy found was a unique specimen, being on bluish paper, all the others being on white paper. That was first sold by the Scott Stamp and Coin Company a few months ago and afterward resold, it is said, for $7,500 to Arthur Hind, the Utica textile manufacturer. It was shown in his United States stamp exhibit in the recent international postage stamp exhibition in London, and won the grand gold championship medal.

The stamp which has just come here from Italy is distinguished from all other known copies, says Mr. Stern, in that it shows all of the four outside border lines. It has been cut from the original envelope, but a large piece of the cover has been retained. It is canceled with a small ink mark. The last two letters of the word "Paid" appear on the left side. How the stamp went to Italy and where it has been during the three-quarters of a century Mr. Stern has not been informed, but has written asking to have as much of its history ascertained as is possible.

All six of the copies are in this country. Mr. Hind, whose United States collection is recognized as the best in the world, has two copies. In addition to the unique copy on blue paper, recently purchased, he owns the fine copy formerly in the Gibson collection at Philadelphia. One copy is owned by A. H. Caspary of New York. The former Ferrari copy is still in the hands of a dealer. The fifth copy was in the collection of the late Henry Duveen. The Duveen United States stamps were purchased by Mr. Hind shortly before the London international exhibition. It is understood that Mr. Hind disposed of it to another private collector.

There are only two other United States Postmaster issues which are scarcer than the 10-cent Baltimores, those being the Postmaster issues of Boscawen, N. H., and Lockport, N. Y., both unique and formerly in the Ferrari collection. They were purchased for Mr. Hind at the Paris auction last June, the price of the Boscawen stamp with the French auction tax being about $12,000 and for the Lockport stamp $8,500.

Mr. Stern has recently purchased the large United States collection of the late G. F. Ralph of Utica, which contained twenty-five of the early Hawaiian "numeral" stamps, a fine copy of the 10-cent St. Louis Postmaster issue, many of the rare Carriers, and several pairs of the New York 5-cent Postmaster issue of 1846. This collection was valued at more than $20,000 and was contained in seven large albums.—N. Y. Times.

EDITORIAL.

We are interested in the greetings that we have received from those who attended the recent London exhibition and we thank those who remembered us with cards and clippings. We are grateful to Mr. A. Léon Adutt for his postal with a specimen of the air mail, one-penny stamp. A clipping from the London Times, showing the Crown Prince of Sweden as an interested scrutineer of one of the sheets in the stamp display is a fine example of the intelligent grasp that the newspapers had on the proceedings.

The following letter has been received from Mr. H. F. Whittaker of the National Research Council, Washington, D. C.: "In the editorial columns of the May 12th issue, I was surprised to note your comment relative to the service rendered at the Philatelic Stamp Agency here in Washington. Knowing Mr. Mount as I do, I am sure that such public criticism or comment is unjustified, for granting the fact that poorly centered stamps were sent to your correspondent, it must have been an oversight on the part of the Agency, which is certainly not a usual thing. Criticism is the weapon which makes most of us walk in the straight and narrow path; and doubtless some of it is good medicine at times for all of us. It seems to me, however, that your correspondent was not inclined to be critical in a charitable way, and in deference to the efforts of Mr. Mount to serve thousands of people who write him for 'nicely centered stamps' I am inclined to believe that the WEEKLY should have concealed this criticism down in the lower right-hand column corner of the last page, rather than to have put it in the editorial columns. It does not take long for one who is in personal contact with Mr. Mount and his agency to feel that they are endeavoring to give personal attention to all the little whims and peculiarities that philatelists are known to have. This is certainly indicated by the large piles of rejected stamps which are periodically sent back to the main office for redemption. . . . I certainly think that the sharpness of your correspondents criticism should be softened somewhat by an article written in the spirit of after-thought."

We want to say that Mr. Mount of the Stamp Agency is fortunate in having the number of friends who have written us to expostulate about the editorial paragraph in the issue of May 12th. We suppose that chameleon-like, we took on the color of the letter of our correspondent who sent in some of the stamps. Now, however, we know that with the rush of business that sometimes sweeps the staff of the Agency off its feet, the wonder is that the routine is maintained so well. Our regard for the Stamp Agency is no secret and our compliments to Mr. Mount, its chief administrator,—and to his courteous champions. The Stamp Agency is a great constructive factor in philately and it is farthest from our wish to hamper its progress in the slightest degree.

The following order was issued by the third assistant postmaster general, under date of June 7th, 1923: "This department is advised that postage stamps have been removed from letters and other mail, domestic and foreign, apparently by postal employees interested in philatelic work, etc. Postage stamps are affixed to mail as evidence that the proper postage has been paid and postal employees should be aware of the fact that when mail reaches its destination without evidence of the prepayment of postage, the deficiency is collected from the addressee, thus in many cases leading to complaints against the Postal Service. In addition, the removing of postage stamps from mail constitutes a violation of the law embodied in section 537, Postal Laws and Regulations. Postal employees are therefore cautioned against removing postage stamps from any class of mail, whether domestic or foreign." This departmental order is intended to correct one of the oldest abuses from which philatelists have suffered. Complaints based on the removal of foreign stamps have been made almost from the beginning of our pursuit. At some time or other, most of us have been disappointed in finding that a foreign letter had been denuded of its stamps; and the stamp papers have recorded many a case of the kind. Occasionally, we receive a letter from a reader calling attention to a more or less flagrant case with the request to know what action should be taken in order that the culprits be not unwhipped of justice. We can only advise the complainant to certify his case to the local postmaster and cause it to be brought to official notice. Collectors cannot be beguiled into thinking that the stealing of stamps from letters is other than downright petty larceny and they are hopeful that the warning that has just been published will improve conditions, although they by no means are as obnoxious now as they have been in the past.

Many months ago, Mr. William Carney wrote asking several questions in reference to postal conditions in 1855 and 1856, the answers to which might solve certain problems presented by covers in his possession. Recently we came into the possession of the report of the postmaster general of the U. S. for 1856 which embodies information on two of the points brought out by Mr. Carney. As accounting for a railroad cancellation on a cover mailed in California, it is to be said that there were three railroad mail routes in that st on June 30th, 1856, route 12500 fr San Francisco to Sacramento City, a tance of 125 miles; route 12501 fr San Francisco to Stockton, 125 miles a route 12529, from Sacramento City Marysville, of 54 miles, making a to mileage of 304 miles. Regarding Canadian cover: in 1856, additional a cles of agreement were adopted to p vide for the exchange of registe letters between the post-office depa ments of the United States and Cana The full postage rate was necessary letters "alleged to be valuable," toget with a registration fee of five cents. letters originating here, the registrat charge was kept by us, while Canada tained its fee, likewise.

There is one organization in this cou try that is slowly recruiting strength order to climb to a position that ul mately will be the most important in material way that an association philatelists can aspire to; and the orga zation in mind is the American Sta Dealers' Association. The singular pe versity of a percentage of stamp dea ers is shown in their refusal to identi themselves with this dealers' protecti body; or their stand may be based on t belief that the stamp business is pecul to itself and is not to be put on a p with other vocations. EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By Warner Bates,

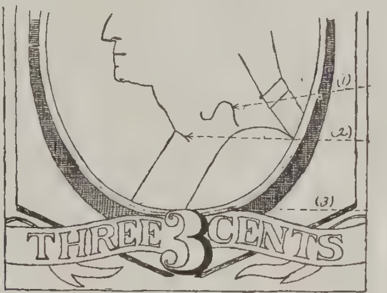
Three Cent Green.



Major C. H. Bonesteel, West Point, N. Y., is responsible for the drawing which accompanies this chronicle, showing three most interesting plate varieties of the standard favorite, the three cent green.

No. 1 consists of a curved hair-like green line at the base of Washington's neck in the drawing, but which in reality appears somewhat lower on the "scarf" just over the shoulder. Major Bonesteel drew it in this position in order to illustrate the three varieties in one drawing without conflicting with each other. Have never seen this variety before and imagine it to be due to a hair getting on the plate. However, if other copies could be produced it would tend to prove this a true plate variety, possibly a scratch made by careless handling.

No. 2 consists of a very short but apparently deep line just below the base of the neck in front. This line is on the "scarf" and seems to extend out in the background of the vignette a little. I imagine this is a true scratched plate. Can any reader show another copy of this variety?

No. 3 is the finest shift I have yet seen on the three cent green. It shows an extra line in the white space surrounding the oval vignette. This line goes completely around the bottom part of the oval. The shift also shows in some of the letters and elsewhere on the stamp. Unfortunately, the copy which Major Bonesteel presents is torn so that I cannot study the stamp in its entirety. I would appreciate it if some reader owning this variety would send in a complete copy for examination and mention. This is on the 1873 issue in the light green shade. The other two are of the vintage of 1879.

H. C. Flierl, 432 Vermont Street, Buffalo, has shown me copies of the two-cent internal revenue orange on soft paper, and also copies containing the stitch watermark. I have always suspected that the stitch watermark could be found on the revenue stamps, although I have never handled enough of them to find it myself, and this opens up an interesting field for discussion.

Specialization in low values of early United States stamps has been going on for many years among a limited number of collectors. Years ago the fellows were mostly specializing in such stamps as the five cent '47, the one cent 1851, etc. I remember perhaps fifteen years ago or more, a friend showed me something like three hundred copies of the five cent '47 that he had accumulated.

"There is a great future for this stamp and I enjoy sorting out various unlisted varieties and the different kinds of cancellations," he said. Think of it. Those stamps, if he still has them, are probably worth a small fortune. And we all know what specializations in the one cent 1851 resulted in. Specialists of the earlier days picked up copies of this stamp for a few cents that today are worth hundreds of dollars.

Then came those who specialized in the three cent 1851 and 1857 in the days when those stamps could be bought by the thousand for a mere song, and those lots used to contain blocks occasionally, and pairs, strips, plate number pieces and the like. And next came specialization in the three cent 1861, a stamp that can no longer be picked up in very large lots.

The three cent green has for many years been a favorite among the specialists, but mostly because so much has been written about it. When the praises of a stamp have been sung sufficiently, everybody wants to collect it.

But I think I can say that the chances for pleasure, with the assurance of a profitable investment, are just as good as in the good old days when the five cent '47 was selling for under a dollar each. There are any number of stamps issued before 1890 which today are selling at under 50 cents each, and some of which can be bought very reasonably by the thousand, which present as wide and interesting a field for specialization as any of the standard varieties which have been mentioned, and which some day will sell at greatly advanced prices.

For instance, I believe that some of the lower values of department stamps will find favor among the specialists in time. Why not? These stamps were issued in 1873 and 1879 by the Continental and American Bank Note Companies, and they present all the various varieties of paper, plate, odd impressions, etc., that engage the enthusiastic collector of minor varieties of the three cent green. Although I have not seen it, the departments undoubtedly show the stitch watermark the same as other stamps of this period. And all the favorite cancellation varieties are to be found in the departmentals, together with some that do not crop up on the postal issues.

The departmentals are far scarcer than the postal issues and they are underpriced for the reason that only a limited number of collectors are gathering them in. As soon as a few specialists get into the field, up will go prices. But fortunately, these things come slowly and those who go into the game now will have plenty of time to garner the wheat before the price advances.

Lest it be thought that I am interested in boosting the departmentals, let me say that I do not collect them and have none in my possession with the exception of a few of the 50 cent agriculture, which I have recently picked up.

And what has been said of the departmentals, applies to the revenue issues. Here there are many stamps which can be secured in quantities at a song and which furnish a great field for the specialist. I know because I have a friend who specializes in them and he is getting together a really wonderful collection.

Then there are still a number of the postal issues which offer a splendid field for the specialist, but which have been greatly neglected, such as the three cent 1869 (although this is rapidly coming into favor), the one cent blue, two cent brown (Jackson), six cent carmine and pink, ten cent brown, five cent yellow brown and blue (Garfield) four cent blue green and carmine (Jackson), issues of 1870 to 1888 inclusive. The two cent brown (horseman) 1869 is a good stamp to collect.

Of course, there are specialists in the stamps mentioned, but not nearly as many appreciate the field as should, in my opinion. Most of the stamps mentioned are cheap but some are far scarcer than the price indicates.

BELATED CREDIT.

Given to Hon. E. R. Ackerman.

In connection with the London Exhibition we received a cablegram signed in such a manner as to be unintelligible. There were four or five letters making a meaningless jumble and we thought it meant either Mr. Poole or Mr. Pack, with chances favoring the latter. After all we guessed wrong and we now at this late date give Mr. Ackerman credit for his courtesy regretting that it is so belated.

The Managing Editor.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—In a recent issue mention was made of the fact that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing had turned out an extra plate of the new 14c denomination, that is, five plates instead of four. As a rule, when an extra plate is made such as this it is for the purpose of replacing one out of a lot of four that has been broken or discarded for some reason. I now learn from the Bureau that this extra plate, number 14526, was made as a matter of precaution in order to have an extra one of this new denomination on hand to take the place of any break in the series. These plates are all in good condition and still in service.

Under date of June 7th, the Third Assistant Postmaster-General notifies postmasters through the Postal Bulletin that complaints have been received relative to the removal of postage stamps while mail is in transit. Their attention is called to the fact that this is a direct violation of the law. He therefore cautions them against such removals.

In this column some months back mention was made of the fact that while the 1c and 7c State Department stamps were listed on soft paper your Editor had never seen either. Copies of the 1c were in the recent Eagle sale so this variety at least exists. Something else odd was noted in the department issues at the same sale. Two plate number strips of the 1c Executive from top and bottom of the plate were present showing that this plate was at first incorrectly numbered 81 and that lines were then run through this number and the plates were marked 82.

The same sale showed what I have always contended that a damaged or inferior stamp is high at any price. Better pay double catalogue for a perfect specimen than a tenth for a poor one. For instance, the 30c, 1869, with inverted center with a crease and a corner perforation missing was purchased by Mr. Eagle, on October 21st of last year at $1,165, whereas in auction during May, it passed to a new owner at $410.00. The 15c described as repaired in the upper left corner sold at $151.00, while the 24c which was announced on the floor as repaired went for $137.00. These stamps in fine condition could have been purchased by Mr. Eagle for just a few dollars more and would have brought at least his cost, if not a very fair profit. It may be of interest to mention that this sale included a very fine counterfeit of the 1869 30c invert made from the proof, by Wolle, and this variety found a new owner at $5.25.

In our Chronicle for November 30th, 1918, we listed, on the advice of one of our correspondents, the small library size 2c red postal card on cream. I now learn that such a variety does not exist and that these small cards were sent out by the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., and that they were cut to this size to fit the files of the Company. Therefore, this variety should be deleted from any list upon which it is mentioned.

CHINA.—Mr. S. R. Sheldon, writing under date of May 15th, sends us the following:

"While in Peking recently I visited the Chinese Bureau of Engraving and Printing and saw the printing of Chinese postage stamps. The plant is modern and up-to-date. All processes are carried out here and the Bureau is even manufacturing their own inks, and some grades of paper.

During my visit I noticed that the new 1 cent and 3 cent values of the current issue were being printed. The 1 cent is the same color as the 1918 issue while the 3 cent value is in a somewhat brighter green. Both are from entirely new dies, similar to the old dies but with many differences, the most noticeable change being the removal of the fringe under the upper label and the omission of all shading from the arabesques at the top of the design. The die is very similar to that of the new 4 cent gray which you have already chronicled. These stamps will be on sale within a few weeks. Those being printed were in the sheets of form for making up booklets and will probably first appear in that form.

The new 50 cent value is now on sale, or rather was on sale, as I have a used copy but found them sold out at the Shanghai post-office when I called for them. This is also in nearly the same color as the 1918 issue but somewhat lighter. The die is the same as the new 15 cent blue and differs in many respects from the old 50 cent die, chiefly in the removal of unnecessary shading and the strengthening of the central design.

I am informed that new dies are being made for all the values even where no change in color is contemplated."

FRANCE.—Mr. W. T. Wilson and the Economist Stamp Co. have shown us copies of the Pasteur commemorative set. They are 10c green, 30c red and 50c blue, all of the same type with a profile view of the great scientist, perforated 13½x13.

ICELAND.—Mr. W. T. Wilson reports the appearance of the 10a of the 1920 type with the overprint "20 aur. Pjonusta" in black in two lines.

IRELAND.—Mr. R. Roberts has sent us copies of the 5d purple, in the "Sword of Light" design, and the 10d brown, in the Celtic Cross type. Both stamps are watermarked and perforated as those previously noted.

JAPAN.—We have received from the Economist Stamp Co., copies of two values of an issue to commemorate the visit of the Japanese Crown Prince to Formosa. They are handsomely engraved and picture Mount Nutaka, wise known as Mount Morrison. values are 1½s orange and 3s viole KENYA.—Our Special Correspo Mr. Guy A. Procter, informs us th 12 cent denomination has been drawn. This value was used chie a receipt stamp, but by a new ord cents is to be the amount for rece in future. A postal decree, statin new charge and ordering the return all Post Offices of all sheets of 1 stamps in stock, was received a we so ago, at the same time stating th 12 cent denomination is withdraw indents for same to cease.

This applies to all Post Offic Kenya Colony, but our correspo has not been fortunate enough t out if it also applies to Post Offi Uganda. At any rate, 12 cent s are now unprocurable at the Post where he called early in April. stamp—if the same order appli Uganda—should be good; issued o vember 1st last year, it has had any postal use owing to it being e used as a receipt stamp.—Stamp C ing.

RUSSIA.—The Economist Stam calls our attention to the 15k violet and blue, of the 1902-4 type, has been surcharged "P 100 P." base with the usual star overprint This surcharge has been issued on the perforated and imperforated

Some ten cents "Frank- ecancelled with new types have perseded by the ten cents "Mon- nd are quite scarce. I cite two ies to illustrate: Lincoln, Nebr., hester, N. Y. SOUREN CO.
132 NASSAU STREET NEW YORK CITY

De Kalb, Ill.—This office is now furnished with a plate of the popular U-18 type and is turning out some attractive precancels.

Garden City, N. Y.—For some time the 1c overprinted in U-18 has been franking circular matter. Lately, though, the other values have been showing up. Two nice pieces that I have picked up are a perfectly centered strip of three 20c and a superb copy of the 7c, with plate number. Garden City formerly turned out very makeshift precancels which were handstamped illegibly and carelessly. Now conditions have changed and I keep an eye peeled for any packages from the Nelson Doubleday Co.

Lancaster, Minn.—There is in the precancel realm: Lancaster, N. H., Ohio, Pa., and now we have Lancaster, Minn. A handsome clear-cut overprint, resembling U-9, adds to the desirability of the stamps from this Minnesota town. The only ones I have are the 4c and 5c, reading normal.

Kansas City, Kas.—Mr. H. C. Davis sends me a fine pair of the $1.00 precanceled in middle sized capitals, handstamped. This will be Type III, and is the first time K. C. has precancelled the dollar value.

Maquaketa, Ia.—I am also indebted to Mr. Davis for a pair of 30c from here. Maquaketa first used precancels in 1914 but of a slightly different type. Bushnell lists only the 2c perf. 12, and no perf. 11. The current type is a handstamped overprint resembling. U-8.

Lincoln, Nebr.—For some reason Lincoln is precanceling with both her old and new plates. Three new varieties in the old type are the 5c "Roosevelt," 10c "Monroe," and 25c "Niagara."

Oakville, Conn.—Mr. C. G. Dills has submitted four precancels from here. They are the 2c, 5c, 20c normal and 1c inverted canceled with a handstamped type.

Omaha, Nebr.—Like Lincoln, Nebr., Omaha is also using old plates. The mimeograph type is getting rather worn looking and after holding sway for many months is sharing the work with Types IV and V. Mr. H. C. Davis submits the $1.00 normal and double in the mimeograph, two items which are worth at least half the face value.

Osborne, Kansas.—The new special has appeared bearing the regular type, reading inverted, up and down.

Reading, Pa.—Several months ago I chronicled a smudgy type hardly discernible. This reads up and down and came on most all values. Seventy-five per cent of the precancels were worthless on account of their illegibility, but now no more shall be cast away because Reading has joined the throng of towns possessing copper plates of the U-18 type.

Van Wert, Ohio—This place with the Dutch name is using a handstamp consisting of small block capitals between bars. I note the 3c surface, inverted, and the 4c normal.

Attica, N. Y.—This city has been using the U-18 type for some time on the 1c denomination.

Philadelphia, Pa. — Mr. Dale Walker sends for inspection a copy of the 1c coil clearly spelled BHILADELPHIA. Watch for this error.

Chicopee Falls, Mass.—Two settings of type make the precancels from this bustling manufacturing center rather interesting. In one setting the "M" of Mass. falls under the interval between the "c" and "o" of Chicopee, while in the other the "M" falls below the "p" of Chicopee. Pairs are procurable, showing both types, but as Chicopee precancels are pretty scarce out our way, I have not, as yet, secured any.

Several collectors have written in asking about the various types referred to in these notes. They are illustrated in Bushnell's Standard Precancel Catalogues. At present we have three catalogues which are up to date. The perforated twelve, listing all precanceled stamps up to the perforated ten issues, which sells for $1.00; the perforated eleven catalogue, selling at 60c; and the aeroplane, victory and Pilgrim catalogue, listing and pricing over a thousand precancels of these issues, which sells for 40c. I shall be glad to forward postpaid, any or all of these upon receipt of price. I shall also take pleasure in replying to any inquiries on this hobby and in making any suggestions on how to build up an attractive precancel collection.

I wish to thank Messrs. S. Hyman, John L. Parker, H. R. Jansen, H. J. Keeley, and others for notes of interest.

THE PHILATELIC AGENCY

By C. J. West.

Since the establishment of the Philatelic Agency, many favorable comments have appeared in the columns of Mekeel's. While it is only natural that adverse comments should be heard now and then, the experience of the reader as related in the editorial columns of Mekeel's for May 12, is so contrary to my own personal experience, and also to the policy of the Agency as I know it that I feel that someone should speak again in favor of the Agency.

I cannot deny, of course, that the reader who made the criticism did not receive poorly centered stamps, but I can assure him and other readers of Mekeel's that such is not the policy of the Agency. At the present time Mr. Mount has at least five people working with him, handling the large volume of business that comes to the Agency. The demands made upon this working force is illustrated by the fact that during the first twenty-eight days of May, over 3,000 mail orders were received. This, it is seen, is over 100 orders a day; the highest number received on any one day during the month of May was 220. This, of course, does not include the personal visits to the Agency, many of which occupy more time than that required to fill a mail order. It is estimated that each order involves from twenty to fifty pieces and, when it is remembered that it is sometimes necessary to handle five or ten stamps in order to secure a suitable stamp for philatelic purposes, one can see the large amount of work and time which are necessary to handle the business of the Agency.

Mr. Mount tells me that in all cases "condition" is the first consideration in filling orders. From my personal contact with the Agency, I know that this is true. It is not improbable, however, that in the rush caused by the great demand for the 1922-1923 issue some poorly centered stamps may have been sent out. The force of the Philatelic Agency has the same interest that Mr. Mount has in pleasing the stamp collecting public and it is only through their desire to fill orders as rapidly as possible after receipt that such errors creep in. A fact not generally known, but which has an important bearing on the matter, is that during the past quarter, stamps to the face value of over $20,000.00 were rejected by the Agency, and returned to the Supply Division for credit because of straight edges and poor centering, and I am told that the amount will even be larger this present quarter. This fact will not suprise U. S. specialists because they realize the average condition of U. S. stamps, but it does emphasize the fact that not everything that comes in is sold to the public.

As a further evidence of the desire of the Philatelic Agency to co-operate with stamp collectors may be mentioned the effort now being made to establish a closer liaison between the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Philatelic Agency. This has resulted from the comment upon the fact that in the recent distribution of the converted two's of the new issue, the entire lot was sent to New York without any being reserved for the Philatelic Agency. It is hoped that a plan may be worked out whereby a sufficient supply of each new stamp will be sent to the Agency immediately upon completion by the Bureau. In this way the Philatelic Agency will become a reliable source of information for new issues and will also be in a position to furnish these new issues immediately after the public learns of their existence.

The Philatelic Agency has unquestionably filled a real need in philatelic circles. This is evidenced by the number of letters received by the Department in which individual stamp collectors point out the benefits received by them personally. Its success has in a large measure been due to the personal interest of Mr. Glover and Mr. Eidsness, and the untiring enthusiasm and good will of Mr. Mount and also to the liberal support of the philatelic public. All concerned are glad to receive constructive criticism of the Agency, but it is hoped that, before adverse criticism is given to the public through the press, the Agency may have an opportunity of defending itself. We cannot afford to lose the Philatelic Agency with its many benefits.

KINGS STAMP PARTY.

100 Collectors To Tea At Buckingham Palace.

The King, who is an enthusiastic stamp collector, yesterday entertained 100 stamp collectors at Buckingham Palace. He showed them his 200 wonderful collections and afterwards they had tea with his Majesty. All were exhibitors and officials of the stamp exhibition now being held at the Royal Horticultural Hall, Vincent-square, S.W.

Receiving his visitors in the Palace picture gallery, the King plunged into a keen discussion regarding their collections and his own. The experts were astonished at his philatelic knowledge and listened with great admiration to his comments on his collections.

The King chatted for some time with Mr. Arthur Hind, the U. S. millionaire-owner of the famous £7,000 British Guiana stamp, for which special lighting is provided at the stamp exhibiti

"Your wonderful stamp fills m envy," he told Mr. Hind. "But along with me," he added, smiling I will show you some that eve haven't got!"

Among those which the King s with special pride were his ext rare Post Office Mauritius coll "Aren't they beautiful!" he aske his guests admitted they had neve any so fine.

The King was much interested t that one of the party, Mr. Walter of Cardiff, was the original owner of his choicest possessions—a large of what are known as "Cardiff Reds." He asked Mr. Scott for th tory of the "reds," and Mr. Scot him that in 1870 he sent his office buy some penny stamps. The bo away some time, and when he cam said: "I'm sorry I have been so but I have had to cut out the s with a pair of scissors."

Mr. Scott examined the stamp found they had not been perforate immediately bought the rest of th which had been sent to Cardiff b cials who were unaware of the that they had not been perforated.

"You were very fortunate," sai King, "and so also am I to have now."

The "stamp party" lasted fully hours.—London Daily Mail.

TUPPENNY BLUES.

(A Tale for Philatelists,)

By P. R. CHALMERS.

You've heard of the Mauritius Blue,
  Worth fifteen hundred pounds or so,
But never of my great-aunt Prue—
Well, here's a story of the two,
  In half a dozen rounds or so.

I'd tell you of my great-aunt Prue
  When she was Prudence Bevan,
Her cheeks were pink, her eyes were blue
  In 1847;
A year of philatelic fame,
  For—lest my point should miss you—
In 1847 came
  The first Mauritius issue.

O famous plates! O famous hues!
  They stand among their fellows:
Five hundred celebrated Blues,
  Five hundred noble Yellows!

Today but one or two exist
  In honored far niente
To gladden the philatelist
  And please the cosnoscenti.

To pretty Prue who lived in Bath
  And reverenced her betters,
One morning up the garden path
  The postman brought the letters.

She ran to meet him at the door,
  As sweet as "young Virginia";
See, two are hers—the rest are for Her guardian, Miss Lavinia.

The first her school-friend Belle is from
  Who says her frock's delicious;
The other comes from Cousin Tom,
  Just then in the Mauritius.

Now Tom, it cannot be denied—
  Of sentiment the token—
Before he sailed had looked and sighed,
  But hadn't really spoken.

So, see her now—her cheeks the lamps
  Of maidenly sensation.
Exclaiming at his postage-stamps
  In coy procrastination.

"What pretty blue!—the dear Queen's head!
  Why, anyone might crave them!
How kind of Tom!" (I'm sure she said)
  "I certainly shall save them."

She breaks the wafer, flushed with hope—
  The wafer—for the fact is,
In her young day the envelope
  Was not a general practice.

Then, "Oh," she cries, "the wretch—he's wed
  A sugar-planter's daughter,"—
And would have fallen like the dead
  Had not Miss Livvy caught her.

With smelling-salts they bring her to;
  They bathe her pretty forehead;
They tell her: "Burn the letter, Prue,"—
  And "Tom was always horrid."

She burns the page of Cousin Tom
  And eke the stamps upon it;
And then, to take her mind therefrom,
  Goes out to buy a bonnet.

That month her Cousin Philip tried;
  The next beheld their marriage!
She bore him sons, and lived and died
  And always kept a carriage.

And now, whene'er I hear my friends
  Their grand relations naming,
Who burnt their candles at both ends,
  And lost a fortune gaming;

Or saying how Sir George went strong (Their tales are long and many)
And sold the Romneys for a song
  And didn't leave a penny.

Then—as I say—when thus they do—
  Though pride is meretricious—
I always counter with Aunt Prue
  Who burnt the Blue Mauritius!

STATE ACCUSED OF FORGERY.

Austrian Deputy Asserts Government Faked Old Postage Stamps.

Forgery and misrepresentation by a Government for purposes other than political or diplomatic may have been practiced many times in the past, but specific accusations of such probably have been rare. Such a charge is now made, however, which will have particular interest to philatelists. A member of the Austrian National Assembly accuses the Government of the republic of forging used or obsolete stamps for the purpose of enhancing their value as souvenirs.

Herr Schliegl, the member in question, asserts that after the war a large quantity of stamps which were printed for the use of the Army Post Office were found among the surplus stores. These stamps, he said, were sent to the State printing offices, where they were surcharged with Serbian or Italian values in bani or centesimi to make them look more interesting before being handed over to the Dorotheum, the State pawnbroker and auctioneer, to be sold on the Government account.

The stamps in question are Series 4 of the Field Post set, which were issued in October, 1918. The same was also done with the Bosnian Jubilee stamps of 1912, of which 2,000 sets, according to Herr Schliegl, were sent to the State printing office to be surcharged only a few weeks ago.

Herr Schliegl declares that some dealers have protested to the Government on more than one occasion against this practice, but without effect. The Government is no doubt within its rights in manufacturing an article of which it has the patent and for which there is a public demand, but it is hard luck for stamp collectors who are in possession of the genuine wartime article. It is, however, not yet clear whether it was really the Government which profited by this kind of business, or merely an unscrupulous official.—N. Y. Times.

THE STAMP EXHIBITION.

It is not given to all exhibitions to satisfy the expert and attract the ordinary man. The International Stamp Exhibition, which has just closed its doors, has won the interest of those magnates of philately whose lives are passed in the society of rarities such as few of us have heard of and the humble youth who has only made the first vague fumblings towards a collection. The Junior Philatelic Society has done much good work since its foundation in 1899, but this is an event historic in the fortunes of philately. The president of the society, Mr. Fred J. Melville, to whom and to whose family the success of the exhibition is due, may well be congratulated on the result of his endeavours. There have, of course, been international exhibitions of stamps in the past which have won considerable popularity. This is the first since the great interruption of the war, which, indeed, had peculiarly violent repercussions in the affairs of philately. Never before have so many of the world's great collectors sent their most precious treasures to a display under one roof. Never before have so many peopled travelled across the world to study the wonders of philately. The three sections into which the entries were divided, one for the British Empire, one for Europe, one for the rest of the world, included almost all the greatest collections for the different countries. The task of the judges who had to draw up the order of merit must have been extraordinarily difficult, but we may believe that they revelled in it, for one of them joyfully declared that he "had often dreamed of seeing a wonderful exhibition, but never that he would see so many of the world's finest gems under one roof." How keen and critical an eye is required of a judge in philately may be demonstrated to the tyro by the case of the expert who detected one of the stamps exhibited as a clever "fake" from an illustration in one of his own books. The ingenious artist had, however, provided it with a cancellation which could not have been used at the date of the stamp.

Such are the perils of the collector. But the fascination of the pursuit which enlists all ranks and all sorts and conditions of men has never been so signally demonstrated. The value of the collections in the exhibition was estimated at some £2,000,000. But rare stamps have risen in price even more than necessaries of life. It is said that the one cent stamp of the 1856 issue of British Guiana, of which, we believe, only one copy is known to be extant, would fetch £8,000. Not so many years ago people talked of three or four hundred pounds as a fabulous price for a stamp. But there are other incentives to philately besides the desire to acquire objects of value. We were told the other day that Mr. Charles Lathrop Pack, who won the highest award in the British Empire section for his collection of the stamps of Victoria, had filled nine large volumes with rare examples of no more than four stamps. The interest in minutiæ, the love of accuracy, and the desire for completeness all find exercise, if not satisfaction, in philately. Mr. Pack, indeed, has just remarked that one of the greatest charms of stamp collecting is that the collector's task is never finished. Though he may specialise in the stamps of one small State—but sometimes we may be tempted to think that the smaller the State the more numerous its stamps—though he has indefatigable energy, large resources, and luck, still, time and change will continually give him more work to do. The last few years, indeed, have multiplied the opportunities and the labours of the philatelists. The passing of Empires, the transference of Colonies, the volcanic emergence of new States or nations, have created innumerable stamps and made many obsolete. The changes in the spirit of the design which some of the new issues show are almost as significant as the changes in image and superscription. Thus philately is not merely a recreation or a form of the common collecting instinct, but a study which illuminates the development of nations and of art.—London Telegraph.

CARBON TETRACHLORIDE.

C. S. T.

About every so often someone discovers that CCL_4 is a substance which will make watermarks strut their stuff, also that they can puff a pipe over it and inhale the smoke, because the said CCL_4 is non-inflammable, being used in auto fire-extinguishers sold under the trade name of "Pie-eyed Irene" or some such monicker.

Also, about every so often, the Balboa, Vasco da Gama, or Christopher X. Columbus who makes this revolutionary and bolshevistic discovery, finds out, to his sorrow and pecuniary impoverishment, that carbon tetrachloride is no good stuff to put on postage stamps.

This comes as a result of inserting a bicolor Nyasaland Protectorate or a big Bermuda chalky or some such specimen of the art of printing with doubly fugitive inks, said inks becoming all het up and rarin' to go in the presence of CCL_4.

And 40c a pint! Ye Olympian Divinities and diminutive gastro-chlorotic piscatorial specimens! Where do they acquire that 40c per pint commotion? Outside of the fact that this colorless compound with the aroma of long-defunct onions has no business with stamps, such a price is not only prohibitive, but confiscatory. In fact, for philatelic purposes it is not worth a profane expletive.

Yes! Carbon tetrachloride is a good thing to keep away from stamps. Let It Alone. This is the advice of a man who has been familiar with chemicals, including CCL_4, for a much longer period than he cares to recall.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF BELGIUM.

By Bertram W. H. Poole.

PART III.—POSTAGE DUE STAMPS.

Chapter VI.

The 1919-20 Issue.

In October, 1919, a 10 centimes postage due stamp appeared in a new form, the value in the centre being shown in color on white instead of in white on color as previously. This was followed soon afterwards by 5 and 50 centimes values and, in 1920, by 20c and 30c denominations in the same type. The stamps were apparently printed in Belgium, for we believe the Stamp Printing Office in Malines was again in working order at the time the first of these new dues appeared and at first glance the issue would seem of cursory interest, differing from its predecessors only as regards the centre. But a study of the few blocks and part sheets at our disposal shows that there is probably much to be found out regarding these stamps.

The stamps were printed, like those of the 1915 series, in sheets of one hundred arranged in ten rows of ten. In addition to the usual control mark "DEPOT 1919" or "DEPOT 1920" we find printed in black in the upper margin of each sheet, at the right hand side, another control mark which comes in two varieties. We have part sheets of the 10c, 30c and 50c showing "F 10/" etc., followed by "No." What the "F" means we cannot say but the numerals always correspond to the facial value of the stamps. We have the 10c and 20c showing another variation, viz.:—"FS—10C" in two lines, the lower one indicating the value and the meaning of "FS" being a mystery so far as we are concerned. The "No." refers to the numerical order of the sheets but owing to the way in which the right hand margins are trimmed only parts of the numerals may be seen. The numbering is unimportant but the different controls are interesting from the fact that we have found both sorts in connection with the 10 centimes, and a study of the stamps soon showed that they were from entirely different plates. This led us to examine the other values more closely and we found many differences which we are quite at a loss to account for. For instance, stamps on the same sheet will show minor differences in the shape of the large numerals, more pronounced differences in the shape of the "C" and, what is most important of all, differences will be found in the width of the spacing between the "C" and the outline of the circle below. Clearly these stamps were not produced by the same method employed in printing the other due labels.

All values were printed on wove unwatermarked paper and this may be found in two qualities, one of which shows the weave so pronounced that the paper appears to be watermarked with a series of minute dots.

The perforation measures exactly 14 though Scott erroneously states it is 14½.

Chapter VII.

The 1922 Issue.

In 1922, the colors of the postage due stamps were changed and though the denominations are the same as those of the preceding issue new plates were made for all five values. The chief differences lie in the shape of the large numerals and the "c" below. In this re-drawn type the numerals are not only of different shape but are thicker while the "c" below is squat and almost closed instead of being upright and very open, as in the 1919 series.

1922. Similar design but re-drawn. No. wmk. Perf. 14½.

Now that the next Scott Catalogue will give major numbers to coils and imperfs. this handbook—the last word on specialism, will be in greater demand than ever. The work prices the varieties of the coils, of the imperfs., of imprints, etc., and is what might be called an elucidation of the Standard Catalogue's listings. Copious notes will be found explaining the different dies and so forth, and one of Scott's new folders with Illustrations of parts of U. S. stamps will be given, free, with the work. [tf

Chapter VIII.

Provisional Issues.

Various provisional issues of due stamps have been recorded during the last two years but as to their official status there seems to be some doubt. Gibbons and Field both catalogue the 30c pale blue and 50c grey of 1909 and 1900, respectively, overprinted "VERVIERS I" vertically in black. Verviers is one of the larger towns in the province of Liege and these stamps are said to have been issued provisionally in April, 1919, only about 400 of each being overprinted.

Various values of the "Helmet" series and also some of the 1915 stamps have been variously reported overprinted with a large "T" for use as temporary postage due stamps. Regarding these we find quite conflicting opinions. One writer asserts these varieties were undoubtedly officially sanctioned by the Director General of Posts at Antwerp and that for a time they could have been purchased at the Post-office in entire sheets if desired. Later this privilege is said to have been withdrawn and the "T" mark was applied to the stamps after they were affixed to the insufficiently prepaid letters. Other writers are just as insistent that these varieties have no official standing and that the "T" mark was applied "by officials ignorant of the definite instructions given that the stamps in question were not to be converted into Unpaid ones."

In any case it would seem that where this mark was applied after the stamps had been affixed to the letters it was more in the nature of a cancellation than anything else.

Finally, we find recorded instances of the 10 centimes stamp being bi-sected and each portion used as a 5c postage due stamp. The 10 centimes so misused was, apparently, of the vintage of 1915 and we are told by one writer that very few were used, "the postal authorities preferring the easier course of allowing the unstamped postcard of printed matter to pass without exacting any payment whatsoever."

W. R. M'COY JOINS OUR FIVE YEAR CLUB

We are pleased to announce that W. R. M'Coy, a longtime friend of the WEEKLY, has taken upon himself the honor of membership in our club of five-year subscribers. We are glad to add his name to the lengthening list and thank him for this evidence of faith in the WEEKLY.

ALSO W. E. BOOKER, D. D. S. of MASS.

Dr. Booker is located in the "Heart of the Commonwealth," as Worcester is called. We give him thanks and the glad hand as he takes the royal step of membership in the Five Year Club.

PLEASE EXCUSE DELAY.

House wreckers, tearing down an old homestead in Worcester, Mass., found a sealed envelope behind a secret panel.

Envelope was received thru the mails in 1845 by James Munro Schofield. He put it away by error and forgot to open it. Inside is a will, leaving to Schofield a Scotch estate worth nearly $1,000,000 then. What is it worth now? Schofield's heirs will rush to Edinburgh to find out.

The case is an allegorical warning to people who continually are saying, "I forgot." That is the most costly expression that ever rolls from the tongue of man.—Clipping.

AMERICAN PHIL. SOC. CONVENTION.

By Jas. F. Duhamel.

When the members of the A. P. S. assemble in Washington about the middle of August they will find themselves in a locality unique for the stamp collector. Not only members of the Society alone but all philatelists will be welcome and provided for, so the local men are looking for the banner assemblage of American stamp collectors.

This is obvious from the extra attractions Washington has to offer. Here we have America's greatest stamp factory, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, which for the past fifty years has been grinding out billions of stamps and which is no doubt the greatest engraving and printing establishment in the world.

Many visitors are bound to find the new Stamp Agency a most attractive quarter because stamps in perfect condition and from any part of a sheet may be obtained and the buyer does not have to contend with an impatient stamp window clerk, but one whose pleasure it is to deal with perfection cranks.

In the National Museum is located a very interesting stamp collection embracing many rarities and where comparisons of stamps may be readily made. The stamps are mounted in large frames about two by three feet and between glass panes. These frames slide into cases or racks and may be readily pulled out for inspection, from 9 to 4.30 each day.

Washington has many historic dwellings where the celebrities who adorn the stamps once lived. The homes of Decatur, of the old 90 cents, Roosevelt, Cleveland, McKinley and Garfield are near the Shoreham, the official headquarters; while the Capitol, Arlington amphitheatre and Lincoln memorial, subjects on the new stamps, may be seen. The home of Washington, Mount Vernon, will be visited, and at a couple of miles from the headquarters may be seen the homes of Jefferson and Grant while living in Washington.

While Washington had no postmaster's stamps it had a "penny post" system where several clerks were employed to carry the letters from the city post-office to the parties addressed for one cent each letter. A private local delivery was started but did not meet with much success although it issued a very artistic stamp, a very graceful equestrienne with a letter in one hand.

The committee has arranged trips for the visitors by which they will pass through the ancient Alexandria, George Washington's home town, where he attended church, belonged to a Masonic lodge, was a member of a fire company, bought his household supplies and doubtless superintended the militia organization.

On another day the conventionites will visit another ancient borough, Annapolis, the site of the first American theatre, where Congress once met and where Washington delivered his famous farewell address. The town never was large although admirably situated on the waterfront and very substantially built.

Both Alexandria and Annapolis issued postmaster's locals. Baltimore locals exist to some extent and it is understood that the enterprising collectors of that town, will make a very strong bid for a visit from the delegates. Baltimore specialists have some wonderful collections.

The local collectors are looking forward to the rare exhibitions which may be brought here by the visitors and arrangements will be improvised for the displays that may be made.

The Washington Philatelic Society is leaving no stone unturned to make the convention a success and many suggestions are being offered to complete an enjoyable program. Any informat

Change of Address

We have purchased, and by the time this appears, expect to have moved into the Pratt Bank Building, Hammondsport, N. Y. This change will make it possible for us to show clients our stock when they are in this vicinity. Those collectors who are touring Central or Western New York may find it worth while to put a book or two in their luggage and plan to spend a few days looking through our stock of U. S. from New Yorks to surface-print freaks, of covers, revenues, departments, etc. Of early Canadians, Great Britain, Holland, Belgium, German and Italian States, and other classic issues. If you are interested in cancellations on the '57, '61 or bank-note issues, we think we can keep you interested for days at a stretch. A letter or telegram advising us of your coming and suggestive of what you are looking for will give us an opportunity to prepare for you.

J. O. MOORE, Inc., Hammondsport, N. Y.

GOSSIP OF THE MONTH.

By Cornelius Wrinkle.

A Great Good Time.—The Philatelic Fortnight is over, and there are some J. P.'s who are not likely to feel fully rested for some time to come. It was a great time for hosts and visitors, and no words of praise are adequate to the case of all those splendid men and women who served so uncomplainingly and with such zeal in the multifarious duties associated with the Exhibition and Congress. Never was army more loyal or zealous to win through, and certainly never was there a stamp exhibition of importance so completely organised and ready for opening.

The Judges' Task.—A high tribute is due to the judges. Few of them were young men, and their task was both difficult and tiring. Considerations of space and the regulations of the London County Council precluded the provision of seating accommodation in the main hall, and the judges, like the public, had little opportunity of resting their legs. Where all the collections were of such high standard, it must indeed have been difficult to arrive at decisions, but their report proclaims the judges to have been unanimous.

The Double Event.—For some of the workers the second week added considerably to the complexity of their duties, and they were confronted with the problem of how to be in two or three places at the same time. But, thanks to the efficient general organisation of the Congress arrangements, Congress went off as smoothly as the Exhibition arrangements.

A Memorable Gathering.—The Exhibition Banquet on May 17th, in the Grand Hall of the Hotel Cecil will go down to history as the greatest and most distinguished gathering of philatelists ever brought together. A photograph of the 400 or so people present was taken, but so large was the company it is very doubtful whether half the number can be recognised individually in the picture. Notable speeches were made on this occasion, which deserve to be printed and spread broadcast as demonstrating the vast influence of philately in cultured and intellectual circles.

H. M. the King and Philately.—Philatelists the world over were honoured by the high and gracious recognition of the Exhibition by His Majesty the King. A number of the most eminent visitors and Fellows of the Royal were privileged to see His Majesty's own collections at Buckingham Palace, where they were entertained to tea. His Majesty also spent the greater part of the morning on Friday, May 19th, inspecting the Exhibition, and was highly interested therein. To the Exhibition Banquet and to the Congress in response to loyal greetings the King sent felicitous telegrams.

Publicity.—The publicity which the Exhibition and Congress attracted exceeded all precedent. Interest had been worked up in the press for months beforehand, but no risks were taken of letting off all the press fireworks before the event. From the opening day right through to the last there was a steady flow of news items, and philately has been given the finest advertisement any pursuit could ever have. Summing up the Exhibition in a leading article after the show closed the Daily Telegraph (May 29), said:—

"It is not given to all exhibitions to satisfy the expert and attract the ordinary man. The International Stamp Exhibition, which has just closed its doors, has won the interest of those magnates of philately whose lives are passed in the society of rarities, such as few of us have heard of, and the humble youth who has only made the first vague fumblings towards a collection. The Junior Philatelic Society has done much good work since its foundation in 1899, but this is an event historic in the fortunes of philately. . . . There have, of course, been international exhibitions of stamps in the past which have won considerable popularity. . . Never before have so many of the world's great collectors sent their most precious treasures to a display under one roof. Never before have so many people travelled across the world to study the wonders of philately."

The Daily Telegraph, by the way, published two leading articles, each of great distinction as contributions of the exposition of Philately as a recreation and study. These, in addition to the fullest daily accounts of the Exhibition, the functions, and the Congress meetings.

Official Catalogue.—Everyone ought to possess the fine 236-page Official Catalogue of the Exhibition, of which a few copies are still available, and a copy will be sent, together with the list of the judges' awards for 1s6d post free from the publisher of The Postage Stamp. As a record of the contents of some of the world's greatest connections the book is of important reference value.

Aero Stamp.—The ideal air stamps which were printed at the Exhibition on special watermarked paper may also be obtained as souvenirs of the event. They are sold in sets of six colours at 6d, or in sheets of 120 with imprint and control at 10s per sheet. The proceeds go to the Exhibition funds. The stamps may be obtained from the Exhibition Office, Mr. H. F. Johnson, 44, Fleet Street, London, E.C.4.

Roll of Distinguished Philatelists.—The original foundation of fifty names inscribed upon the Roll of Distinguished Philatelists was completed at the London Congress. Henceforth only two can be added each year. It is noteworthy that of the forty-six living "distinguished philatelists" no fewer than twenty-four were present in London at either the Exhibition or the Congress.—Postage Stamp.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—H. P. Atherton, of Springfield, submits for our inspection a rather interesting cover. It consists of a 3c 1861, and other things, namely:—an illustration in black and white of the very stamp used on the cover, also a business card giving the return address of Mason & Wells, who are announced as "Coin dealers and real estate agents. Coins, stamps, autographs, relics, etc." Singularly enough the street address is given in detail with the assumption that anyone in the postal department would know where Arch St. is located. No city is named. The firm also published "Mason's Coin and Stamp Collectors Magazine" at $1.50 per year.

—On the evening of May 28, a banquet in honor of Hon. A. M. Eberhardt, Chicago, was held at the Hamilton Club. Charles E. Severn of the WEEKLY was temporary toastmaster and an entertainment of marked merit was provided. Some seven speakers paid tribute to the life and work of Judge Eberhardt and the occasion was a pronounced success.

—Both the editor and the managing editor are pleased to announce that their junior partner, Mr. Jewett, has just received a well deserved honor. He has been elected Commander of the Maine Sons of Veterans. A host of friends, philatelic and otherwise, will join in extending congratulations.

—Harold K. Frederick of St. Joseph, Mo., writes us a letter protesting at our condemnation of the activities of Angelo Panelli in producing forgeries of stamps. It has been the policy of the WEEKLY during its entire existence to energetically oppose stamp forgeries of all kinds. During the life of Fournier we were scrupulously careful that his address should never be made public and we are satisfied that "scientific research in philately" does not call for spurious issues in rarities even though they are supposed to be properly labelled on the reverse side. Too many people have good forgetteries. "Safety first" is a good motto.

—Kenneth Tallmadge sends us two clippings of interest. One is from the Sunday Oregonian of Portland, entitled "Epics of Early Travel," an editorial of more than ordinary interest dealing with the pony express. The other is an editorial "Strange Values" from the State Journal of Lansing, Mich.

—There is a letter at this office for George Albrecht which will be forwarded upon receipt of address.

—The Syracuse (N.Y.) Standard of June 1, contained a news story dealing with the new silver half dollar issued as a souvenir in connection with the Los Angeles celebration of the Monroe centennial. The coin was received by A. A. Leve and the paper regards it "as beautiful as any souvenir coin ever issued by the U. S."

IRISH FREE STATE.

By CHAS. G. WILSON.

Ireland took its place among the stamp-issuing countries of the world when in 1922 the current issue of Great Britain was overprinted "Irish Free State 1922," in Gaelic. A national Irish issue is at this time making its appearance and replacing the 1922 Provisionals.

Ireland, whose history is a history of invasions, raids, and internecine wars, was invaded in 1000 B. C. by the Milesians, or Gaels, who came probably from Spain or Gaul. The Gaels conquered the native race of hunters, known in legend as the Dedannans, and they introduced agriculture and an elaborate legal system, the Brehon Laws.

In about the 3rd Century A. D. pagan Ireland reached its highest glory under King Cormac who held court at Tara. Ireland was at that time divided into five kingdoms, but King Cormac dominated all.

In the 5th Century St. Patrick preached Christianity and schools were founded throughout the land and for two centuries Ireland led western Europe in learning and was called "the Island of Saints and Scholars."

Toward the end of the 8th Century wave after wave of Norsemen swept the Emerald Isle and the Irish chieftains, weakened by war against each other, were unable to successfully resist. At last in 1014 Brian Boru defeated the Norse at Clontarf and they never raided Ireland again.

In the 12th Century the Norman Earl of Pembroke, called Strongbow, by permission of Henry II of England, went to the aid of Dermod, King of Leinster, who had been driven from his throne. Strongbow married Dermod's daughter and later claimed his throne. Thus began England's conquest of Ireland and there followed six centuries of oppression.

When in 1922 the Irish Free State was created Ireland took her place among the free nations of the world.

COULTER PAINTING SELECTED FOR NEW 20c STAMP DESIGN.

(Courtesy HENRY B. PHILLIPS.)

Have you noticed the new Golden Gate stamps, which are now on sale at the San Francisco post-office?

When the Postmaster-General decided to make the Golden Gate the motif of one of the new stamps, United States Senators Shortridge and Johnson were requested to provide the best available pictures of the Golden Gate.

They referred the requests to the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, which provided each senator with eight or nine photographs. Included among these photographs was a photograph of the Golden Gate especially taken by the Chamber of Commerce.

The photograph selected by the Postmaster-General's office, however, was one of an oil painting of the Gold Gate by W. A. Coulter, owned by J. Levison, president of the Fireman's Fu Insurance Company. This photogra was sent to the publicity department the Chamber of Commerce by A. Lange, advertising manager of the Fir man's Fund, and it won out again all competing pictures, including t special photograph made for t occasion by the Chamber of Commerc As the selection was strictly up to t Postmaster General's office, it speaks lot for the impression made by t Coulter painting.

Some of the newspapers have erre in saying that the picture selected hang in the pit of the Merchants Exchang The photograph is of the Coulter painting hanging in the office of Mr. Lev son, the picture in the Merchants Ex change being by the same marine arti but differing in several minor detail —San Francisco Business.

AT THE STAMP COUNTER.

Though perhaps not quite so exciting as ping-pong, stamp-collecting has its hectic moments, and an ardent philatelist with the blood-lust on him is a sight not easily forgotten.

Put him down in front of a Mauritius red, early state, large margins, and you will see his eyes sparkle with ill-suppressed desire; while the sight of a New South Wales 8d golden-yellow, very rare, will at once give him a temperature.

To see the collector at his best you must drop in at Messrs. Harmer, Rooke & Co.'s stamp auction rooms in Fleet Street, when there is a good sale on and and the room is packed with frenzied philatelists, all smoking hard and nodding their heads to the thump of the ivory gavel.

I found some fifty men sitting around the green baize cloth, writes a Star man, scanning precious stamps through magnifying glasses, talking learnedly of early states and intermediate impressions, poring over perforations, and whispering to each other of watermarks and wide margins.

There was a solemn hush about the gathering that, but for the tobacco smoke, reminded one of an inquest.

From his rostrum the auctioneer rattled through the lots in quick time. There was no need to expatiate on the merits of these treasures, for the men at the tables knew as much about them as he did. So he called out the numbers, and left it at that.

"Lot 281, Mauritius, early state, vertical lines. . . . Fifty pounds, five, sixty, five, seventy, five," and so on, at £5 a nod, until the bidding slackened up and stopped at £100. That stamp was just about three-quarters of an inch square, and used at that!

"Lot 282, ditto penny, early state. Fifty, five, sixty, five . . . eighty, five. Eighty-five I am bid." Wallop! "Mr. Smith."

Probably the Stock Exchange has more noise and thrills, but there was something grim about those silent men, gritting their teeth and chewing their cigarettes in agony, as the longed-for prizes drifted past their purses.

Next to me sat a young man who showed no signs of animation until Lot 327 came on the board. Then his fingers twitched, his cigarette went out, and, taking the stamp from the lady in waiting, he went over its points as one would inspect a pedigree terrier.

This was a Natal stamp—violet, mint copy, with a misprint in its wording. The engraver had evidently been to a friendly lead the night before, and his hand shook so badly that he dropped the "s" out of the word "Postage." And a postage stamp labelled "Po-tage," as if it were soup, is worth having.

"Lot 327—Ten shillings, twelve, fourteen." My man nodded so that he nearly dislocated his neck. "Sixteen, eighteen, a pound." Beads of perspiration stood upon his fair young brow, and he put the wrong end of his cigarette in his mouth. But he never noticed that.

"Thirty shillings, five, forty, five" The suspense was terrible. Across the table the opposition was nodding as hard as it could go, and seemed prepared to stick it out all night if necessary.

"Fifty, fifty-five." Was he weakening? Why did he take the money from his pocket and count it? Why did he look thus at his watch? Was he going out to Attenborough's with it?

"Three pounds. Three pounds I'm bid."

A nod from the other side. "Three two six. Three two six. . ." My young man breathed hard, the veins in his neck stood out like whipcord. But his blood was up, his back was to the wall, and with a gasp he whispered "Three five."

That seemed to scupper the opposition. He returned from the flight, and turned up his nose as who would say that it wasn't much of a stamp after all. No gum on it.

As for the young enthusiast, he clasped the lovely morsel to his bosom, put it in his pocket-book, and his pocket-book in his coat, which he buttoned. And then he unbuttoned it again, and took out the pocket-book to see that the prize was still there.

This battle over, the auctioneer called for refreshments, and the buyers were served with tea and biscuits at the firm's expense.

Altogether it was quite an exciting afternoon, and the first sixteen lots in the sale fetched a total of £450.

Not the least interesting of these was the original leather postbag used by the late Sir Rowland Hill, and bearing a brass plate with his name and address. This was sold for £3 15s.

Incidentally, it was at 69, Fleet Street, where these auctions are held, that in 1840 the first British postage stamps were printed, the now almost priceless Queen's Head Blacks.—London Star.

SPECIAL-DELIVERY SERVICE WITH CANADA.

Attention is invited to the circumstance that, effective January 1, 1923, a formal arrangement was concluded with Canada, providing for the exchange of special-delivery mail, subject to a special-delivery fee, in each country, of 20 cents for each article.

The foregoing arrangement supersedes the previous arrangement whereby an article received in the United States from Canada bearing a United States special-delivery stamp was accorded special-delivery service in this country without additional charge. Since January 1, 1923, special-delivery mail posted in Canada and bearing only a 10-cent United States special-delivery stamp is treated in the Canadian service as special-delivery matter, but is rated as entirely unpaid for the special-delivery service and subject to collection from the addressee on delivery of a charge of double the short payment, or 40 cents. Such mail received in the United States will be given special-delivery service, but the addressees will be required to pay 40 cents, as rated thereon by the Canadian service, less a credit of 10 cents for the United States special-delivery stamp affixed thereto, or 30 cents. In case an article posted in Canada bears two 10-cent United States special-delivery stamps, 20 cents will be collected from the addressee.

It is to be observed from the department's announcement of March 26, 1923, that postmasters are to require full prepayment of the fee of 20 cents on special-delivery mail for Canada, any insufficiently prepaid special-delivery mail inadvertently sent to Canada being subject on delivery in that country to a charge equal to double the deficiency.

Postmasters are urged to take careful notice of the foregoing and to give the widest possible publicity thereto.

PAUL HENDERSON,
Second Assistant Postmaster General.

A DISAPPEARING ISLAND.

Stamp collectors past and present will recall the series of gayly colored stickers bearing the name Heligoland issued by the British Government, whether for collecting or for the dispatch of mail one could never quite determine. Their decorative value was high and the stamps themselves popular.

Heligoland has had a varied career —a career that now seems soon to end with a roar of dynamite and a cloud of dust. The little island commanding the Keil Canal was ceded to England by Denmark in 1814, and by England to Germany in 1890. Germany fortified the island as a measure of defense for the canal and coast and near the island in 1914 occurred the first important naval engagement of the late war.

By the terms of the peace the fortifications of Heligoland were to be destroyed. In destroying them, Great Britain and France are practically destroying the island itself; what is left after the destroyers are through is likely to be swept away by the sea. Those Heligoland stamps are given new interest by what is occurring there in the North Sea.—Cleveland Plaindealer.

ALASKA'S MAIL.

The Alaskan mail service stands alone in the annals of postal deliveries in that it uses virtually every type of transportation. Ocean liners take the mail to Seward, up-to-date mail cars carry it to Nenana, dog teams and river steamers take it to Iditarod, auto trucks distribute it to out-of-the-way places and fleet-footed reindeer assist in hurrying letters to Nome, St. Michael and Golivin. Now seaplanes are soon to take their place in the service to coast towns.

Leaving Seattle, mail for interior Alaska is carried to Seward by steamship. At that point it is transferred to the railroad which takes it to Nenana, 300 miles inland. This takes nine days from Seattle. At Nenana the mail is made up for the mining and trading camps.

In spite of improvement, the old obstacles of ice and snow, whirling rapids, glacier-crusted mountains, storms and mosquitoes wage their fight against the mail carriers, who make their deliveries with remarkable regularity.

In the event of President Harding's visit to Alaska, his official mail will be delivered by army and navy seaplanes. —Newspaper.

INDEPENDENCE, PLEASURE AND GOO

Are YOU Awake to the Great Possibilities?

The Great War; the overthrow of kings and kingdoms, and the consequent formation of countless new countries in Europe, each with its unique and interesting stamp issues; the vast amount of publicity now being given to philately — all of these things have created a great new army of stamp collectors whose buying power in the aggregate is so tremendous that it can hardly be expressed in dollars and cents!

Have YOU ever thought of taking advantage of existing opportunities? Do you realize that the stamp business is no longer an "infant industry" but instead a thriving enterprise capable of returning your investment a thousand fold??

BEST RESULTS FROM THE "BEGINNER" TRADE

For the past year, we have been recommending the entrance of prospective dealers into the juvenile field, and the specialization in cheap stamps for beginners. Statistics show that there are almost FOUR TIMES as many juvenile collectors as there were before the war. The universal recognizance of the educational and historical value of stamp collecting, plus the press publicity which is now being given the hobby, will cause the "beginners" ranks to swell beyond imagination within the next few years. Not only are good profits possible because of present low quotations on the cheaper varieties (due to demoralization of foreign currencies), but by progressive advertising, a good system, and the investment of several hundred dollars, a paying business can actually be built up within two or three months!

WHAT OUR HELP AND ADVICE MEANS TO THE NEW DEALER

The above statements are not "sales talks" nor are they exaggerated in any respect. Every word is founded on ABSOLUTE FACT and can be verified by anyone who cares to do so. To speak plainly, we aren't one bit interested in the FIRST PURCHASE of the new dealer, even if it amounts to hundreds of dollars.

Why?

Because it isn't a picayune compared to the money he will spend with us month after month, year after year, from the proceeds of his successful business.

Most of the dealers whom we have started in business have left entirely to our judgment the selection of stock, printing of price-lists, circulars, stationery, preparing of advertising copy, etc., etc. In such cases, our years of successful experience is donated absolutely free of charge and the rough roads of doubt and inexperience are swept away. Furthermore, we select only such stock as will prove to be popular and quick-selling, thus insuring good sales and rapid turn-overs.

To those who have commercial instincts along this line and would like to engage either in a part or full time occupation which, with an adequate capital, will in time make them financially independent—to such parties, we can most sincerely recommend the STAMP BUSINESS as a safe and sane investment, combining real pleasures with the utmost in monetary returns!

Appreciative Testimonials from a Few of o many "New Dealers"

The following letters represent the unstinted appreciatio a few dealers who placed their confidence in us and never regret it. By persistent, hard work, and good judgment, plus the h which we have been only too glad to give, they are building up commercial establishments which will in the years to come f part of the bulwark of the great "New Era" in the stamp trad an era of business-like management, fair and square dealings, prices and large turnovers. Although these dealers, through th advertising, have received circulars, price lists and other adver ing matter from scores of wholesale houses both in this coun and abroad, it is a striking tribute to our prices, and a big com ment to us, that we still receive their whole-hearted support patronage! As you already know, my physical condition has long made all stren occupations impossible, and my little business, with its attendant "thr in opening the mail (I now get about 100 letters each day!) has truly be God-send. You will remember that my investment was about six hun dollars and that I relied entirely on you as to the selection of proper sto a move which I have never regretted. Although I started less than months ago, my mailing list now comprises over 3,000 names, and sales increased every day, reaching a high of $185.07 for last week. As my g profits average over 200%, I cannot help but feel enthusiastic, and I bel you will agree that future prospects are indeed bright.

Getting away from the purpose of this letter, I wish to compliment on the "Bargain Bulletin No. 12" which you prepared and printed for The special packets of 1,015 varieties at $1.85 each are selling like wild Your records will show that I have bought one hundred and twenty of t packets within the last two weeks. Well, please send post-haste ano hundred and print two thousand more of the circulars.

You certainly responded in true-blue style to my call for new adve ing copy, and I feel sure that this "ad", when inserted in the "American and "St. Nicholas", will carry me swimmingly over the dull summer mo and attract several thousand new customers.

Mr. Harris, I hope some time to be able to express to you personally gratitude for the services you have rendered—and I am sure the volum my future patronage will well repay you.

Wishing you every success in the world, I am

Cordially yours,

CO-OPERATION ON BOTH SIDES

"Gentlemen: I certainly appreciate the treatment received at hands, and if there was ever a concern that deserved the trade and good of the stamp dealers, you are IT. If you treat all of your customers same way, you will undoubtedly soon be the largest philatelic house in world. It would take an awful lot of pulling to drag me away from H Harris & Co."—WM. L. LEIGHTON, 2 West Smith St., Seattle, Wash.

WILL RE-ESTABLISH ON THE COAST

"Gentlemen: The reason you have not heard from me lately is bec I am leaving for Los Angeles shortly and have been very busy with the p arations. This stamp business has proved very fascinating, and as soo I get settled out there, I intend going at it again. You may be sure you will hear from me, for I certainly appreciate the kind way in which helped me to get started and the very satisfactory stock and service furnished me. "Dear Mr. Harris: Although we have been actively in business for two months, our sales last week were almost $100.00, which we consider v fair considering the fact that our original investment was less than $500. I am relying entirely on you both for stock and new ideas, as my own sm experience does not leave me fully competent to handle all of the probl which come up. DEALERS' STOCK OF HIGH GRADE STAMPS

This lot, containing only high class stamps cataloguing from $1.00 to .00 each, represents part of the stock of the Northern Stamp Co. of Mon- l which we recently purchased. The stamps are mounted in two blank lbums, the first of which contains:

British Colonies only, of the 19th and early 20th century, with a very few of the ater issues. About 1,100 stamps, most of which are priced at $2.00 each or over, nd the total catalogue value will exceed $3,000.00. This is practically a collection, s there are not more than 50 duplications, nor more than two of any kind. The verage condition is good. Such popular colonies as Bahamas, Barbados, Bechuana-and, British Guiana, Ceylon, Falklands, Grenada, Lagos, Nevis, Rhodesia, St. Chris-opher, etc., are all fairly well represented. All in all, a wonderful little lot for ny dealer, or for a collector who can dispose of the very few duplicates.

Foreign stamps only, 80% of which are from Europe and South and Central Ameri-a; all 19th and early 20th century, no Seebecks or New Europe. About 900 stamps, ach cataloguing from $1.00 to $20.00, and all different with exception of about 20 luplicates. The average condition is good. A nice little collection of high grade tems, with catalogue value of over $2,600.00.

two books above described have a total catalogue value of more than $5,600.00. Having purchased the lot at a low price for cash, we are passing the opportunity on to our clients.

10,000 VARIETIES NO. 2 QUALITY

These are collections received occasionally from various parts of Europe h are not of the regular "Harrisco" quality. They generally contain a ber of revenues, telegraphs, minor varieties and sometimes a few dupli-s. All of the stamps, however, are in pretty fair condition and quite a ber of higher priced items may be found. We have only one collection on hand, which is mounted with hinges in forty blank books. The usual ney-back-if-not-satisfied guarantee will apply.

Net Special for $101.50

2,000 EUROPE ONLY UNMOUNTED FOR $6.50

Two thousand different stamps from Europe only, including such coun- s as Albania, Crete, San Marino, White Russia, Jugo Slavia, Montenegro, nia, Upper Silesia, Azerbaijan, etc., etc. Many old as well as new issues, uding a few high values cataloguing up to 25c each or more.

A particularly interesting packet at this time when all eyes are turned ard Europe. Catalogue value about $60.00.

Another "Harrisco" Surprise at $6.50

4,000 EUROPE ONLY MOUNTED FOR $44.50

This collection has just been added to our list of packets, but we know that it will prove to be one of the "leaders." Every thinking collector wants to obtain a good representation of Europe, as they are not only interesting for the stamps themselves, but also as commemorating the Great War, and marking the political events, revolutions, massacres, etc., both prior to and after that time.

Practically every country on the continent, both old as well as new, is liberally represented. Mounted alphabetically in four books, this collection is well worthy the attention and popularity which it will acquire.

SPANISH COLONIES

A Dealer's Accumulation

We were fortunate in obtaining an excellent representation of these scarce stamps from the colonies of Spanish Guinea, Fernando Po, Rio de Oro and Elobey. Everything is unused, mint, and some of the items are in blocks, part sheets, etc. Although most of the stamps are of cheaper variety, cataloguing from 10c up to $1.00 each (and therefore easily saleable to the great army of "medium" collectors), there are hundreds of high values, complete sets, and scarce surcharges cataloguing up to $50.00 each. Below is a brief synopsis of contents:

	Number of Stamps	Face Value	Catalogue Value
Elobey, Annabon & Corrisco	825	$ 90.00	$ 662.80
Fernando Poo	1,901	273.10	1,723.50
Rio de Oro	242	13.23	204.59
Spanish Guinea	6,083	852.30	2,516.82
Totals	9,051	*$1,228.63	$5,107.71

(*—Face Value computed at pre-war rate of 20c for each peseta.)

All of the stamps are in good condition and absolutely guaranteed genuine. We can recommend this stock to any dealer who is "weak" on Spanish Colonies. Special arrangements regarding payment in part cash and balance by notes, will be considered from reliable parties.

NEW REPUBLIC

A Very Fine Specialized Collection

Contains, with about five exceptions, everything listed by Scott, as well as a great many unlisted varieties which are catalogued by Yvert & Tellier and Gibbons.

Included are a few pairs and blocks, practically everything in the way of double impressions; errors without date; tete beche; arms inverted; arms tete beche; arms omitted; imperforate vertically and horizontally, etc., etc.

Catalogue value is over eight hundred pounds, or about $4,000!

All copies are in immaculate condition, with full gum, and are unconditionally guaranteed genuine. These stamps are by no means common or speculative. The country is not at present very popular with collectors, but when sentiment changes, any of the stamps will be well worth catalogue. We have never had the privilege of offering such a valuable and highly specialized collection of any one country, and it has our highest recommendation as a "good buy" either for resale or investment purposes.

Our Price Only $735.00

2,750 BRITISH COLONIES

Mounted in Three Albums for $165.00

It was our intention to prepare a collection of 3,000 different, but in pursuing our rule as to the complete exclusion of watermark, perforation, and minor varieties which are so abundant and plentiful, we got stuck at the 2,750 mark and were unable to proceed further for lack of stamps. We believe our readers will realize the great difficulty in preparing large collections of these popular Colonials when adhering so strictly to our motto of "Quality First", and at any rate, it is no doubt needless for us to call attention to the superb condition of every stamp. We will as usual guarantee complete satisfaction, and as space does not permit of a detailed description, we can only ask that interested parties rely on our recommendation and guarantee.

The Collection Intact for $165.00

500 ASIA MOUNTED FOR $6.50

This is not one of our regular packets, but having obtained a small supply, we will offer them until sold. A description is unnecessary except to state that there are many stamps from such countries as Ceylon, Cyprus, Dutch Indies, Indo China, India, Palestine, Persia, Siam, Malay States, etc., etc. Mounted alphabetically in a blank approval book.

Order Immediately at Our Price of $6.50

500 AFRICA MOUNTED FOR $5.50

This is not one of our regular packets, but having obtained a small supply, we will offer them until sold. The stamps are mounted by countries in a blank book and include, among many others: German East Africa, Rhodesia, Azores, Cameroons, Gold Coast, Congo, Egypt, Liberia, Libia, Mauritius, Nyassa, Sudan, Togo, etc., etc. An excellent collection worth double the price asked.

A Special at $5.50 Net

17,500 VARIETIES FOR $545.00

Balance of a 25,000 Variety Collection

For the money involved, we consider this without exception the best bargain in the entire list. It is the "remains" of a 25,000 variety collection which we recently sold to one of our best customers on the "Return-of-Duplicate" plan. As his own collection already consisted of more than 30,000 different, he in many cases already had the rarities and retained only odd values and cheap varieties which happened to be missing.

This collection would be of immense value to any live-wire dealer for a counter book, or to fill want lists. It is also a regular "pick-up" for a large collector. Because of the fact that many of the best stamps were left in the collection, we consider it of much better actual value than the packet of 18,000 varieties which we are now offering for $725.00. It is still mounted in the original 25 books, and as we do not have the clerical help necessary to remount it, we are offering the collection at actual cost price for a quick cash sale. Furthermore, any purchaser who does not feel that he has received much more than his money's worth, may return the lot intact at any time within thirty days and receive a full refund, plus his expenses!

EDITORIAL.

A good many years ago we made the suggestion that the post-office department issue a special envelope for registration use that would be made of a linen-backed paper. Many envelopes used for the enclosure of valuable stamps and other articles were of a quality of paper that was not suited to resist the wear and tear of their fellows in the pouches of registered mail; and foreign correspondents in particular complained that some of the envelopes for registered mail were so flimsy that they were reduced to shreds by the time their long trip was completed. We suppose that the enterprising newspaper editor would claim the credit for the action of the department in proposing to issue special envelopes for registered mail and we quote the following words on the subject of the envelopes: "Tentative arrangements have already been entered into with the view of manufacturing a specially designed envelope for registered mail to be sold to the public. It is contemplated that this envelope be linen-lined with a 12-cent embossed stamp thereon different from the regular embossed stamp on stamped envelopes. Some difficulties have arisen with respect to the manufacture of this envelope and particularly the gumming thereof, but it is expected that these difficulties will be overcome." We predict a liberal patronage of the envelopes in question by stamp folks.

We are told that a twelve cent envelope is about ready for use as a special delivery envelope but our informant bases his news on a newspaper report to that effect. It is just possible that some confusion has arisen in the editorial mind over special delivery and registration service. We cannot think that a demand for a special delivery envelope could compare with that for a registration envelope made of durable paper; and, in consequence, we shall be satisfied with the envelope that Washington tells of in so many words, as quoted.

It is learned through a foreign despatch from Berlin in the Chicago News that large numbers of spurious cigarettes are being sold by a Greek firm operating in Cologne and Hamburg; and the treasury department has given an opinion that the internal revenue stamps on the packages of the bogus cigarettes are forgeries. Too, the newspapers have accounts of counterfeited liquor stamps that have been the products of boot-leggers, we may add for purposes of record, rather than interest.

The stamps in the Ferrari sale this month of June are interesting and we are told that the indications are that the prices will be high on items such as the 1869 inverts, the St. Louis provisionals, Hawaiian missionaries and other popular issues. It is safe to predict that the seventh sale will swell the total receipts from the Ferrari sales to well over a million dollars. At a recent meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society, Mr. C. W. Watson exhibited some of the lots in the Ferrari sale on the original slips and he interested the members greatly by detailing some of the highlights of the sale that he attended.

Mention should have been made last week of the receipt of the catalogue of the awards made by the jury of the London International Stamp Exhibition, as it was with a sense of pride that we saw how well the American competitors fared in the battle royal. Among the winners, we have satisfaction in repeating the names of Charles Lathrop Pack, Arthur Hind, D. Pick, J. A. Klemann, E. S. Knapp, Alfred Lichtenstein, Hon. E. R. Ackerman, Arthur Newton Pack and the Scott Stamp & Coin Company. It is pointed out that the single stamp denomination "in one design, with major and minor varieties," was of exceptional interest and is worthy of being quoted from the catalogue, so far as the results of the competition are involved. It was in this section that Mr. E. S. Knapp won a silver medal. Gold—Bertram McGowan, Great Britain (1d red, Die II). Silver—D. C. Gray, India (1854 issue). Silver—Edward S. Knapp, (New Orleans, 5 cents, 1861). Silver—Sir N. E. Waterhouse, U. S. (New York, 5 cents, 1845). Special silver—B. Goodfellow, Norway (4 Skill., 1863-66 issue). Bronze—Herbert R. Oldfield, Bolivia (1866-68 issue). Bronze—P. A. Mossin, Norway (4 Skill., blue, 1885). In our issue of June 2nd, we spoke of Mr. Knapp's exhibit and a correspondent calls attention to the wonderful work of Mr. McGowan in his penny reds, die II of Great Britain and to the excellent results achieved by Sir N. E. Waterhouse with his New Yorks. Mr. Gray and Mr. Goodfellow as well come in for especial mention by our correspondent.

From Dr. Emilio Diena of Rome, we have received an important volume that we are glad to mention here. Dr. Diena writes that during the recent Italian Philatelic Congress, a committee was named and charged with the task of compiling a specialized catalogue of the stamps of Italy, the old Italian states, Italian colonies, etc., and we now have the fruits of the labors of the committee in the form of a bound volume of over four hundred pages. The volume is embellished with illustrations of some of the types of the early Lombardy-Venice, not to mention other pictures of watermarks and varieties. As the catalogue is historical as well as descriptive it is valuable indeed in its information on the subject of the Italian states fron philatelic view-point. We should that the book bears every evidenc care and good judgment in carrying the wishes of the Italian Congres create a specialized catalogue of the and that it is worth having by t who may not know Italian provided they have any special inclination Italian issues. We should welcon similar catalogue of the stamps of United States specialized only to the tent that the stamp itself is refle without being considered in its rel to cancellation, original envelope, et

We regret to announce that Henr Mudge of Chicago, who twelve y ago finished his second term as presi of the American Philatelic Society who before that time had served as p dent of the Chicago Philatelic Soc for successive terms was badly inj on June 16th, by an automobile. He hurried to the hospital where an ex nation revealed his condition to be gr Mr. Mudge is not so young now as w he was a leading spirit in organized lately in this country and the shock his system was severe. A host of fri will be concerned to hear of Mr. Mud misfortune and we hope that we rel their fears to some extent by our bull in the next number.

The question of the issue of "a tinctive non-resalable stamp" has b brought to the attention of the p office department at Washington and following answer has been prepar "The use of a postage stamp for p age purposes only would be invalu to the department. Unfortunately, h ever, the suggestion is believed to impractical of administration. The partment has no power to prevent star from being transferred from one in vidual to another and efforts to admi ter a law prohibiting such transfer, i law of this kind could be obtain would be too expensive to be conside The department some years ago rec mended the enactment of a law to complish a similar purpose but the commendation was considered unfav ably."

THE PRECANCEL DEPARTMENT.

FRED'K W. ALLEN, Editor,
521 So. 4th, Grand Forks, N. D.

New Issue Notes.— The 1c, rotary press 10 x 10, is out, precanceled New York, N. Y., in a small neat looking type consisting of fancy caps in two lines between bars. Mr. Chas. Metz is the first to report it, with Mr. Chas. Townsend close behind him.

Other new ones, which continue to come out fast, are 2c Fresno, Calif., Lansing, Mich., and Pueblo, Colo. The 3c is being used by Baltimore, Md., and Fremont, Nebr. The latter city has now adopted the U-18 type. The first 6c seems to be Newark, N. J., in the block capital type (U-2). Bismarck, N. D. comes on the 5c both normal and inverted. Likewise Elkhart, Ind., Lansing, Mich., and Dallas, Texas (U-14). The 10c Clinton, Ia., Fresno, Calif., Houston, Texas, and Ypsilanti, Mich., are also new ones to be listed. On the 25c I have seen Buffalo, N. Y., up and down and Yonkers, N. Y. I am not endeavoring to keep a strict list of these, only listing those items which come to my attention through the readers of this department.

Altoona, Pa.—Mr. Ashley Le Duc writes me that he recently visited at this office and gained some interesting information. He writes as follows: "Altoona, Pa., has a rather inadequate precanceling outfit for a city of over sixty thousand people. They employ a ten-at-a-time handstamp to cancel the large number of stamps used at the parcels post window which does very unsatisfactory work from the collector's view point. I have seen entire sheets with all sorts of settings; doubles, diagonals, etc. Most of the stamps are hardly discernible and some show only a smudge. I noticed the following new varieties while there: 3c Victory up and down, 1c Pilgrim inverted, and down, 2c Pilgrim down, and 10c Special normal, all precanceled in black ink.

Clearfield, Pa.— A bright blue ink comes on some values. Colored inks are seldom found on printed precancels, so watch what comes on your "Postage Stamps" next month. Speaking of colored inks I wish to mention that I have the 2c surface from Omaha, Nebr., (mimeograph type) in blue ink. While I am at it, I wish to say that the 1c inverted, Clearfield, is a really scarce item, as only one sheet out of the many hundred used, has had the overprint inverted.

East Aurora, N. Y.—I have at various times noticed the lower values precanceled with the U-9 electro reading up and down, but it surprised me to run upon a superb 50c reading down, from this city. This item, together with East Hampton, Conn., 10c inverted, and Nashua, N. H., 7c down (fancy caps between lines) were three nice ones that I picked out the other evening from a helping of Roessler's "mission mixture."

Erie, Pa.—Who has seen Erie, Type I, (U-13), with one ERIE spelled FRIE? I, for one, have a 10c 1908 issue, reading down with this distinct error. The "F" is perfectly formed, this being the reason I class it as an actual error.

Keokuk, Ia.—A 50 cent, that I have, precanceled in the current handstamped type, reads KEOKUX. Another interesting variety in my collection is a 1c Kansas City, Mo. (U-3 electro), spelled "KANSAS BITY."

Leesburg, Fla.—Precancels are a recent innovation for this office. The U-21 handstamp appears on nearly all values up to the 50c. I have seen the 1, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 15 and 20 normal.

Leland, Miss.—Mississippi precancels are quite difficult to secure and those from this new comer will doubtless prove to be no exception to the rule. I have heard of only the 11c double in a handstamped type.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Doubles quite frequently occur on the early issues of the Quaker City, but an unusual one that is well worth noting is owned by Mr. Chas. Metz of that city. The stamp is the 10c 1908, doubly canceled, one overprint being normal and the other inverted. However, the normal is spaced 15mm. between bars, while the inverted is spaced 10½mm.

Rochelle, Ill.—This town, according to Mr. Metz, is now using precancels, but I am unable to give the type as he stated no details.

St. Louis, Mo.—It seems that this office has recently precanceled some 3c Victory issue with the current electro. Mr. H. A. Pippel writes that he has just secured a fine block of four with the overprint reading down. San Francisco likewise has precanceled this stamp, their regular electro appearing the same way on these stamps as St. Louis.

State College, Pa.—Mr. E. S. Willard reports the 1c rotary press both normal and inverted. He adds that they are used by the Alumni office of Penn. State College and the State Center Electric Company. If you are a Penn. State Alumnus no doubt you have this variety, but if not you'll have a hard time locating one.

Tyrone, Pa.— Mr. Ashley Le Duc writes: "Tyrone, Pa., has replaced the old electro plate (which had several flaws) with a new one. This office also employs a handstamp, of similar appearance, in case they temporarily run out of the printed precancels. Several weeks ago I had the opportunity of looking over several hundred sheets at the post-office and failed to find any inverted cancellations. The P. M. said the work was carefully done by the printer and very few sheets have come inverted. For this reason I think Bushnell's prices too low on the few Tyrone inverts that he lists. The catalogue chronicles only the 1c to 11c normals but the 12, 15, 50, $1.00 and 75c Par. Post. are also used. The latter comes only handstamped. In the handstamped type I noticed the 3c Victory up and down and 1c Pilgrim up and down.

I wish to thank Messrs. Don. P. Fuller, Jos. L. Finch, Allen Gudmundson, L. C. Metcalf, W. K. Snyder, and others for their co-operation. Any notes of interest will be welcomed and acknowledged. So send them in.

AN UNITED STATES ERROR

As a whole, 20th Century United States stamps have advanced more in the last few years than any other class, and the end is not in sight. As an investment, I know of few stamps that offer a better return.

In an auction held in Philadelphia on June 15th, a horizontal pair of the 1917-1919 1c green, imperforate between, Scott's 409b, listing at $25 sold at $24.25, and was well worth the amount.

At the present time I have a superb mint block of four at $40.00, or will furnish a pair at $20. If there are any other varieties that you desire, especially mint blocks or singles from 1890 on, I would be pleased to receive your want list.

Are You Interested in Old U. S. Stamps?

So am I to the tune of about $25,000. I stayed off the foreign end of the game to give others a chance, but when it comes to good old U. S., just listen. I have a lot of them, rare cancellations, scarce pairs, strips, blocks, covers, well, figure it out for yourself, what $25,000 worth looks like, and you have some idea what I hold in this line.

So if you wish to add a few nice things to your album, let me talk to you, or rather, tell me what you would like to purchase. Satisfy me your credit is first class and let me send something interesting for you to look over.

I have quite a few thousand invested in B. N. A., too, just good American stamps, that are as sound as bonds, unless I am badly fooled, and I ought to know a little about stamps, having started my first collection in 1881. Write before you forget the address. It is—

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

United States.—I take pleasure in quoting from a most interesting letter received under date of June 16, 1923, from Mr. M. L. Eidsness, Jr., Superintendent, Division of Stamps:—

"The Philatelic Stamp Agency has now reached the point where it has passed the experimental stages. The receipts of the Agency for this fiscal year will reach approximately $125,000.00 with every indication of exceeding that amount during the coming fiscal year.

The Department has therefore during the past week allotted additional space for this Agency and increased the clerical force 100%. Special plans are now being formulated to fill all orders promptly during the next fiscal year with stamped paper in any manner desired, insofar as plate numbers, arrow blocks and center lines are concerned.

Arrangements have been made with the Bureau of Engraving & Printing whereby representatives of the Philatelic Stamp Agency may select the stock needed for sale at this special bureau and it is believed that these arrangements will greatly expedite the filling of orders, inasmuch as practically all the stock received from the Bureau will be suitable for collection purposes.

A new system of billing the orders to patrons will be installed, together with special invoices, which will protect the purchasers against loss or error, as well as affording the same protection to the employees of the Agency.

The Department has ordered a large number of albums in which all selected stock will be entered, thereby insuring patrons that the best possible centering will be furnished at all times.

It is the intention of the Department to close the Philatelic Agency to the public on July 1st, for a period of fifteen days, in order to make an annual inventory. No orders will therefore be filled until after July 15th and then in regular turn of receipt. This action is necessary in order to prepare for the increased business and to facilitate more expeditious delivery of stamps to patrons.

It is believed that this new system at the Agency will be in perfect operation by August 1st, and will be open for inspection to the members of the American Philatelic Society, which convenes in this City during August.

The Department will be glad to receive suggestions from patrons for the betterment of the Philatelic Agency and readers of your "Chronicle" may be assured that such suggestions will receive very sympathetic consideration.

As shown in the past, the work of the Philatelic Stamp Agency is of a very highly fluctuating character, so much so, that at times when additional stamps have become available, the facilities of the Agency have been greatly overtaxed, due to the lack of trained clerks. However, four of the additional clerks now assigned to the Philatelic Stamp Agency are being trained in the 'hobby' of stamp collecting and within a few months will be able to handle any volume of orders promptly."

These few remarks will give the philatelic public an idea of the great amount of trouble and expense the Department is going to in order that the stamp collector or dealer may have the best service possible. It will be seen that they are not only trying to furnish the ordinary run of singles and blocks but plate blocks, arrows and the like. The fact that the Agency will be able to select its stock from the Bureau will mean that the oddities, such as compounds and similar varieties, will in time be available in Washington. We know of no government that extends such a courtesy, and in the name of philately we take this opportunity of expressing our appreciation to the officials responsible for this forward step.

The Postal Bulletin for July 15th notifies postmasters that the postal laws and regulations are so amended that beginning with July 1st all messengers and carriers will obtain a receipt upon the delivery of a special delivery letter or parcel. This order is dated June 13, 1923, is signed by John H. Bartlett, Acting Postmaster-General, and affects Sections 859, 869, 870, 871 and 1096. Where a special delivery letter is also registered it will not be necessary to take a second receipt.

Mr. J. H. Blair sends for inspection a new provisional envelope used by a firm in Newkirk, Oklahoma.

BETWEEN OURSELVES.

The Exhibition had a rather narrow escape in the matter of having the Postmaster-General for its Honorary President. Its first Hon. President was Mr. Neville Chamberlain, whose tenure of office at the G. P. O. was a short one, lasting 130 days. He was succeeded by Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Bart., who rendered signal service to the Exhibition. Sir William's promotion to the Cabinet office of Financial Secretary to the Treasury leaves him with the record of the shortest term of service as Postmaster-General in our history, extending over just 74 days.

While our congratulations are sincerely tendered to Sir William Joynson-Hicks on his well-merited advancement, they are not unmingled with regrets that he has left a great Department where his enterprise and initiative, and his masterly grasp of intricate detail, were much needed, and would have been of inestimable value.

His interest in Philately, considerably enlarged by his association with the Exhibition, would have been of service both to the Department and to the philatelic community.

Writing of short periods of service in the office of P. M. G., "Observator" states in the Observer:—

Sir William Joynson-Hicks's tenure of the Postmaster-Generalship is the shortest on record: it has lasted just 74 days. His predecessor, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, had also a short term of 130 days. Mr. Lyon Playfair (afterwards Lord Playfair) was at St. Martins-le-Grand for only 112 days in 1873, and the Duke of Argyle for 109 days in 1860. The record for length of service is held by Sir Thomas Frankland, who was joint P. M. G. with Sir Robert Cotton from 1690 to 1708, and continued in partnership with Sir John Evelyn until 1715.

Lord Burnham's "Classic."—Philately owes a great debt of gratitude to Viscount Burnham, C. H., for the splendid support accorded to the Exhibition and Congress in the columns of the Daily Telegraph, the great newspaper which was the first to lead the way in opening up its columns to a regular weekly discussion on postage stamps. An extremely busy man, whose energy and activities are unbounded, he made a notable speech in proposing "the Judges" at the Exhibition Banquet. One of his utterances on that occasion has been rightly acclaimed as a classic, and will endure in the minds of philatelists. "The postage stamp," he said, "is the common currency of human affection."

The "Daily Telegraph."—Lord Burnham visited the Exhibition, and was much impressed with its excellent organisation, and with its breadth of interest. During Congress week he and the proprietors of the Daily Telegraph provided one of the most enjoyable functions of the fortnight in the reception at the offices of the newspaper. The splendid hospitality shown us on that occasion and the great interest everyone found in the mechanical production of one of the world's greatest newspapers, will ever remain as a precious memory with those who were so fortunate as to be able to accept his lordship's invitation.

An Acknowledgment.—On behalf of the delegates and members the President sent Lord Burnham the following telegram on Friday, May 25th:—

"British philatelists and their guests from overseas desire to record their great appreciation of your Lordship's hospitality on the occasion of the Tenth Philatelic Congress, and to express their high sense of the valuable support of the Daily Telegraph gives to the study of Philately."

The message was gracefully acknowledged by Lord Burnham.

George Robey's Dicta.—Points from Mr. George Robey's fine tribute to the value of Philately appealed to the newspapers in diverse ways.

The Sunday Times selects:—

"I like postage stamps for the breadth of vision they give one."

The Observer:—

"I am by way of being a doctor, specialising in the cure of the blues."

The Evening News:—

"Philately lifts me out of myself and sends me back to the footlights refreshed."

The Star:—

"Stamps cure the Hump."

"A broad view of life is a great asset to men and women of my profession, and what home hobby gives greater scope for the cultivation of such a wide outlook."

Tom Webster's Cartoon.—In the Daily Mail on Whit-Monday, Mr. Tom Webster included the stamp exhibition in his cartoon entitled "To-day's Attractions." Cricket, Chess, the Cart Horse Parade, the Races, Brooklands, led up to the Exhibition and the note.

"But anybody who feels equal to it ought to visit the Horticultural Hall and see the Stamp Exhibition. Personally I don't think I can manage it. I'm afraid the excitement would be too much for me."

The sketch showed an excited collector pointing out a "blue Mauritius" appropriately exhibited in a cucumber frame, over which a policeman, armed with a revolver and a bludgeon, was standing guard.

Dearth of French Exhibits.—The dearth of exhibits from France was an unfortunate feature of the Exhibition at a time when France and Britain are so closely allied, and when their international interests have so much in common. Several of the greatest collectors in France, such as M. Burrus and M. Theodor Champion would have exhibited but for the unfortunate Customs difficulties in getting the stamps back home again free of tax. It will be scarcely conceivable to British philatelists that the French Customs wanted to put their oily handstamp on every stamp sent over for Exhibition so that they might recognise it on its return. This lest an exhibitor should add to his collection while it was abroad, and thus escape the French tax on new purchases. We can scarcely contemplate M. Burrus permitting his Mauritius, Guianas, Hawaii's, etc., in superb condition to be disfigured—sur le dos—with the clumsy impress of the Customs seal.

It seems strange that the country that has done so well out of the Ferrary sale cannot find a better way of encouraging its own philatelists to take their part in the international competition of philatelists.—Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

GERMAN EASTERN COMMAND.

By Douglas B. Armstrong.

The postal service of the German Eastern Command (Postgebiet-Ob-Ost) was organised early in 1916 for the benefit of the civil population of the occupied Russian provinces of Lithuania and Kurland, comprising the districts of Suwalki, Vilna, Kowno, and Kurland. Postage stamps in the "Germania" type overprinted "Postgebiet-Ob-Ost" in two lines of Gothic characters were first brought into use on January 15th, 1916. The original series of five denominations was subsequently extended to ten by the addition of the values 2½, 7½, 15 and 50 pfg. and 1 mark on August 1st, 1916, and 25pfg in 1918. Apart from shades there are no outstanding varieties to record:—

1916-18. Overprinted "Postgebiet-ob-Ost" in two lines of Gothic type on contemporary postage stamps of the German Empire, at Imperial Printing Works, Berlin. Watermark Lozenges. Perf. 14.

3pfg	brown, dull brown, yellow brown.
5pfg	green, deep green, dark green.
7½pfg	orange, orange-yellow, red-orange.
10pfg	red, dark red, rose-red.
15pfg	brown.
15pfg	violet, grey-violet, black violet.
20pfg	blue, ultramarine, Prussian blue, lilac-blue.
25pfg	orange and black on yellow.
50pfg	purple and black on buff, violet and black on buff.
1 Mark	carmine.

With the advance of the German Armies the territory served by the postal system of the Eastern Command was extended over Livonia and Esthonia as far north as Reval.

Provisional Issue at Dorpat.

Dorpat, the capital of Esthonia, was occupied by German troops on February 26th, 1918, and a few days later, on March 3rd, the civil postal service was resumed by order of the Town Commandant, Lieut.-Col. von Reichenbach. To provide the necessary stamps, pending arrival of a supply of the "Postgebiet-Ob-Ost" series, instructions were given for a portion of the stock of Nice lots from Germany, Poland, Egypt, S. America have just been placed in my approval books. They are different—no long sets at so much for the series. Sets are there, but each stamp has its own price, so that you can fill that one space without buying the whole set.

None of those 1 and 2 cent approvals from me! I've hated them for fifteen years, so I'm making up mine on the "variety is the spice of life" principle. Yes, variety in stamps and variety in price. One sheet or a book may have stamps at a cent in it, but mixed in with others at a quarter or a half dollar. I always liked that kind of sheets!

No, Melissa, you don't have to buy a dollar's worth at a time. I'll pay postage, too. My references: Butler County Natl. Bank, Butler Business College, Butler, Pa. Record: 8 years in one place, and not in jail, either.

I've always been such a condition crank that I can't forget it, and so my approvals are full of stamps in dandy condition. No free premiums as bait, but if I like your ways, I may give you a present once in a while to keep the orders coming. I'm frank about it, at least. Order the following on a money back guarantee—no credit slips. I'm here for business, so let's have some of yours.

75c U. S. Parcels Post, o. g., superb, 89c
Pair $1.85; block 4, $3.90. Some plate number pieces and corner blocks. Write me about them. Isn't it worth a little more to get this stamp in the right condition? All of my previous ads are still good—look them up!

former Russian stamps remaining in the post-office to be surcharged with new values in German currency to represent the requisite rates of postage, viz., 20pfg for postcards and 40pfg for letters.

These stamps franked the correspondence as far as the head German post-office for the district of Riga, where additional stamps required to prepay them to their destinations were affixed according to the prevailing tariff, without further fee. All letters were censored and forwarded to Riga in sealed bags.

The surcharges in question were applied to both adhesive stamps and postcards at the printing establishment of Mr. C. Mathiessen, Dorpat, in the following numbers:—

20pfg on 10 kopecs, 300 sheets of 100= 30,000 stamps.

40pfg on 20 kopecs, 281 sheets of 100= 28,100 stamps.

Postcards, 20pfg on 5 kopecs 25,000 stamps.

The sale of these provisional stamps commenced on March 6th and continued until March 22nd, 1918, when a supply of the regular "Postgebiet-Ob-Ost" series was received. Actually they ceased to be sold on March 18th, but were accepted in payment of postage during the ensuing four days. The total numbers used postally during that period amounted to 4,952 of the 20pfg, 5,810 of the 40pfg, and 10,421 postcards. The cancellation applied to those provisionals consisted merely of the name "Dorpat," struck with a rubber stamp, which was prepared by a local engraver named Berg.

1918. March 6th-22nd. Provisional issue. Values in German currency surcharged on Russian stamps of 1909, by C. Mathiessen, at Dorpat.

PROVISIONAL ISSUE OF LIBAU.

Following the Armistice of November 11th, 1918, the postal arrangements in the Baltic Provinces were gradually handed over to the newly-created Republic of Esthonia, Latvia, and Lithuania, and on December 26th of that year the "Postgebiet-Ob-Ost" finally ceased to exist.

For a time, however, the military post-office attached to the German Army Headquarters at Libau continued in operation.

During a temporary shortage of the new stamps of Latvia, the Latvian Post Office at Libau arranged with the German Field Post Office to handle and stamp civilian correspondence until such time as fresh supplies of the national postage stamps could be secured. This temporary arrangement was in force from January 2nd to 11th, 1919, d

JOHN J. MACKLIN & CO.

By Christopher West.

The history of this firm and the history of the stamp, which has brought no small measure of philatelic fame to itself and to its proprietor is indeed remarkable and in many ways reveals the struggles, the vicissitudes, the indomitable perseverance and even the tragedy which were so frequently the lot of the men who engaged in the business of manufacturing matches in the years just before, during and after the Civil War in America.

Much of the data regarding the proprietor of the firm came to the writer through the courtesy of Stonewall Jackson, Beauregard Macklin of Covington, Kentucky in December, 1916. When a young man Mr. S. J. B. Macklin had been associated with his father in the business and was able to throw considerable light upon facts which for many years were obscure or unknown.

John Joseph Macklin was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, May 24, 1827, and died in Covington, Kentucky, July 18, 1905. He came to America when four years old and in the late 1840's, when only about eighteen years old, he was operating a match factory in New York City. As a side light on Macklin's character it is interesting to learn that, although at the time hardly more than a lad, Macklin was able to hold his own in a contest with the merchant prince A. T. Stewart, who wished to build a house on the location occupied by Macklin's factory, but having failed to obtain Macklin's consent was unable to accomplish his purpose.

In 1849 Macklin went to California by the Isthmus of Panama with the Argonauts and invested in a quartz mill in Grass Valley. He had owned, or was financially interested in a property at Forty-second Street and Broadway, New York City, and through the failure of the quartz mill lost his entire interest in that property, which at the present time must be worth many, many times more than it fetched in 1849. He returned to the East and resumed the match business, successively in the Cities of Philadelphia, Baltimore—where he married, Wheeling, Cincinnati and Covington. He was burned out at least once in each place and all together suffered nineteen fires, all of which were total losses with no insurance.

The writer has not been able definitely to trace Macklin in the New York or Philadelphia Directories, but the Baltimore Directories of 1855-56 and 1856-57 list Macklin as a partner with one James B. Duke, in the firm of Duke & Macklin, first at 51 Stirling Street, and then at 184 East Monument Street. Both Directories also list the Baltimore Chemical Company, 9 Hagen's Court, Sterrettstown, in connection with the Macklin firm. The Baltimore Business Directory for 1853 lists the predecessor of this concern as Duke & Hagen, who operated a match factory in Hagen's Court, Stirling Street, between Monument and Madison Streets. The Baltimore Directory for 1860 lists the firm of Duke & Smith, match factory, between Eden and Gay Streets, and this firm appears to have been the successor of Duke & Macklin.

The Cincinnati Directories contain the following references: 1859, match maker, Wade Street; 1860, match manufacturer, 506 John Street; 1861, Agent Shanghai Match Co., 13th & Holman Sts., Covington, Ky.; 1866-67 match manufacturer, 13th & Holman Streets, Covington; 1869, same—office 606 Madison Avenue, Covington.

About 1870 he was sheriff of Kenton County, Kentucky, which includes the City of Covington, for two years, and for several years thereafter was engaged in other businesses in Covington or across the Ohio River in Cincinnati. Later in the 1870's he resumed the manufacture of matches in Covington, but there is no record that he used any private die stamps at this time, and there was no match factory in Covington between 1880 and 1883.

About 1881, however, he was back in the match business again and reference to his activities is found in two localities fully a thousand miles apart and each of them several hundred miles from Covington. One was the Northwestern Match Company of Lyons, Iowa, which is a small town on the Mississippi River two miles north of Clinton. This factory appears to have been operated for several years, as it is listed in Polks Iowa Gazetteer for 1887-88. The other factory was known as the Southern Match Company and was located in Atlanta, Georgia. The proprietors of this firm were William Teitelbaum and J. J. Macklin and the factory was at 294-296 New Wheat Street, between Jackson and the Boulevard. Later the firm became Teitelbaum, Macklin & Fuller and after Fuller withdrew it was Teitelbaum, Macklin & McClellan. The Atlanta factory went out of business December, 1883, as they found it impossible to compete with the Match Trust. The name Teitelbaum also appears as Teitlebaum and as Tittlebaum, and the latter spelling apparently appeared in the firm name in the records of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

The Atlanta factory used stamps from the plate of the Maryland Match Company, printed by the Bureau of Printing and Engraving on watermarked paper. These stamps will be considered elsewhere in these articles.

The Atlanta Directory for 1882 lists John J. Macklin, merchant, residing on Baugh Streeets, in the West End, and the Georgia Gazetteer 1883-84 lists the Southern Match Company with data as stated above.

Further reference to Macklin's last known venture in the match business is found in the Philatelic Journal of America, Vol. 1, No. 7, September, 1885, under "Notes for U. S. Philatelists" by an excellent student and writer of the period, Robert S. Hatcher. Mentioning several of the private die stamps used by individuals or firms, whose names are different from the inscriptions on the stamps, he states that the Maryland Match Company stamp was used by Tittlebaum, Macklin & Co., of Baltimore. While it is quite certain that this statement is incorrect, yet for many years Macklin seems to have maintained some connection with one or another of the Baltimore match factories and this circumstance may well account for certain misunderstandings and misstatements which have confused various students of the private die stamps.

For example, the Boston book states in regard to the orange stamp inscribed "Alexander's Matches" on old paper, "The firm name was T. H. Alexander & Co., and the business was located at Covington, Ky." The present writer has also been informed that an old gentleman who was living in Covington a few years ago was absolutely certain that the Alexander factory was located in Covington, because he had worked in it. This last statement can hardly be reconciled with other known facts, but in a measure can be explained by other facts which Macklin's son, Mr. S. J. B. Macklin, recalled.

Mr. S. J. B. Macklin lived in Covington all his life and had never heard of anybody by the name of Alexander in the match business in Cinncinnati or Covington. No Alexander appears in the Cincinnati or Covington Directories as being in the match business at that period, and no such firm as T. H. Alexander appears in either of the Directories. In 1852 one Archibald J. Alexander of the firm of A. J. Alexander & Co., lumber merchants and manufacturers of Cincinnati and Covington is listed, and a Thos. Alexander is listed as a carpenter in 1852 and 1857, while the Baltimore Directories list the firm of T. H. Alexander & Co., at the period that the Alexander stamp on old paper was in use.

As the large black Macklin stamp, Scott's No. 5227, was used not later than 1867, Mr. S. J. B. Macklin was too young to remember it and as a matter of fact he had no recollection of it, but he did remember the Alexander stamp and believes that his father had the rooster device copyrighted. He also recalls that at one time a considerable quantity of matches were brought to Covington from Baltimore to be redipped and in addition to recalling the Maryland Match Co. stamps, he also thought that some of the stamps of the rooster design were used in Atlanta. These last would necessarily have been the blue stamps bearing the name of J. W. Eisenhart. The Boston Book states that these stamps were last issued presumably for Mr. Eisenhart, May 16, 1881, and as the first issue of the Maryland stamp on watermarked paper is stated to be September 5th, 1882, it is barely possible there was an unrecorded issue of Eisenhart stamps on watermarked paper to Tittlebaum & Macklin in Atlanta. However, the period when the Atlanta factory was in operation coincides so closely with the issue of the watermarked Maryland Match Co. stamps to Tittlebaum & Macklin, the issue of any Eisenhart stamps to them seems highly improbable.

Among his more vivid recollections may be mentioned the fact that during a fire in the Covington factory a neighbor's boy rescued the revenue stamps. The package had just arrived from Washington and was still unopened. At that time it was the firm's most valuable asset. From an economic standpoint it is equally interesting to note he distinctly recalls his father saying that in a period of approximately fifty years, the price of phosphorous, which was an important ingredient of the composition which formed the heads of the matches, had hardly changed at all.

The Macklin stamp is a large upright rectangle measuring about 36mm x 52mm. The simple frame is composed of a heavy rectangular line and a much finer one within it. The principal feature of the design is a rooster, facing left, and holding a lighted match in his beak. Above the rooster is a round device composed of concentric circles, the outer ring labeled U. S. INTERNAL REVENUE above and PROPRIETARY below. The second one is labeled ONE CENT above and below and the central disk bears the numeral I. At the left in large capitals placed under each other is the word SHANGHAI and similarly at the right is found MATCHES. The lower part of the stamp is occupied by four lines of plain inscriptions reading Manufactured By—JOHN J. MACKLIN & CO.—Cor. 13th & Holman Sts.,—COVINGTON,

The 10c Green of 1851

For more than a year we advertised pretty steadily for fine copies of the 10c '51, and picked up perhaps twenty in the course of that time. Recently they have come in showers. First, a small specilized collection of about fifty copies, then a mediocre lot of over a hundred and now a correspondence from someone who was most particular to cut out each stamp with nice margins, and whose philatelic instinct was so strong that he selected copies with full scrolls, re-cuts or shifts; only twenty-seven stamps in this lot but they are exceptionally fine.

We have all the principal plate varieties, a very few nice cancellations, including "PAID 3" in a circle, red and blue towns, grids, et cetera. Fine things are mounted in approval books and will be sent against the usual commercial references.

er to you in my last communication. tell the truth I have been so unfor- tate by fires in my business I could afford to pay for another plate. If will not print from my present die ill still have to use the Proprietary mp. It will confer a favor on me if will accept of the transfer. Please wer by return of mail and oblige."

his elicited a long reply from But- & Carpenter which Mr. Rollins an- red July 17, 1867, as follows:

Your communication of the 22nd no in regard to printing of stamps n the private die of John J. Mack- has been received and considered.

reply I have to say that I have day informed Mr. Macklin that his est for the transfer of his plate n the Amer. Phototype Co. to your se cannot be complied with and that e desires a further supply of stamps n a private die it will be necessary him to make arrangements with you the production of a plate from h stamps may be printed that are s open to objection than those for- y used by him."

e Proprietary stamp to which Mr. klin referred in his letter of June ,1867, could only have been the 1c ral issue Proprietary of the first rs and as stated in the Boston Book natural inference to be drawn from correspondence is that shortly after Commissioner received Butler & enter's letter of March 29th, 1866, nformed Mr. Macklin that he must ntinue the use of the stamps led by the American Phototype pany. Allowing this to be so the p in question must have had a cur- of about one year, and, in all ability, Mr. Macklin was forced to he regular Proprietary stamp from time until May, 1868, when he be- o receive stamps from the plate of Alexander matches.

In 1868 the Alexander die was sold to Macklin and he received stamps from it from May, 1868, to July, 1869, inclusive. These Alexander stamps were printed in orange on old paper and so far as the writer is aware cannot be distinguished from the orange stamps from the same plate used by T. H. Alexander & Co., of Baltimore, between August, 1864, and November, 1866.

There is no available evidence to show how many of the American Phototype stamps were printed or used by Mr. Macklin. At one period, which was probably in the 1860's and may have been in 1866, he was making fancy matches, which were put up and sold in little wooden varnished barrels, but at various times he produced hand made wax matches and tapers and various kinds of block and card matches, (except safety matches), which were sold in packages containing from 100 to 500 matches. At this date it is impossible to state what kind of a package, or what kind of matches had the tax paid by the large black Shanghai rooster stamp. Both the reader and the writer will have to wait until a copy is found used on the original cover before those facts can become known.

The writer has been able to locate less than ten different copies of this stamp and as they are all singles it is impossible to state how many subjects were contained on the original plate. Many differences have been noted between the various existing specimens and they are such that if there was a supply of the stamps, especially in multiple, it is quite likely the plate could be reconstructed.

In a letter from Butler & Carpenter to Macklin, dated June 19, 1865, they state:

"We have seen an adhesive, perforated one cent stamp, used on your match boxes, concerning which we have no knowledge. * * * * *"

This statement would indicate that some of the Macklin stamps were perforated but no perforated copy has been brought to the writer's attention. Most of the few known copies were rouletted in colored lines and those that exist inperforate could well be rouletted copies with their margins partly trimmed. Nearly all the known copies are printed on a thin yellowish tissue paper, but two or three are known on a thick white paper similar to that used by the American Phototype Company for some of the V. R. Powell stamps—those printed in a design of the Powell wrapper. A goodly proportion of the Macklin stamps on the tissue paper are defective in some degree as might well be expected.

In a collecting sense the stamp has always been rare. Sterling valued it at $35 in 1888, when $35.00 for one stamp, and a match stamp at that, meant more than $135.00 would mean philatelically today. The Scott quotations were:

60.00 in 1898,
75.00 in 1900 and 1901, and 100.00 since 1902.

There are not many philatelic rarities of which so few copies are known that can be purchased on the basis of $100.00 catalog value.

STAMPS OF THE AIR.

AUSTRIA.—The new stamps that are about to be introduced in connection with the Austrian air post service between Vienna, Budapest, Prague, Paris, and Warsaw, will make a striking addition to the air post collection. The designs, representing a symbolical figure of a falcon for the low values and a portrait of the Austrian engineer, Kress, for the higher denominations, are very finely executed by Professor Wm. Dachauer of the Vienna Academy, the stamps from 50 to 100 kroner being printed by the typographic process and those of 250, 500 and 1,000kr. from line-engraved plates. The name of Kress is prominent in the history of aviation as one of the pioneers of the use of motor engines in aeroplanes. He was compelled to abandon his experiments, however, owing to lack of funds, and so failed to reap the reward of his labours, which others carried to a successful conclusion.

BELGIAN CONGO.—The now obsolete series of air post stamps was engraved and printed by Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., in London.

FRANCE.—Two series of semi-official air post stamps were lately created by authority of the French Ministry of Posts in connection with aviation meetings held at Rouen and La Baube respectively. They were employed to denote payment of supplementary fees upon letters carried on exhibition flights.

The Rouen series, showing a vignette of an aeroplane encircling the spire of the Cathedral, was issued on September 2nd and 3rd, 1922, in denominations:—

25 centimes, violet.
50 centimes, blue.
75 centimes, green.
1 franc red-brown.
2 francs orange.

The stamps issued at La Baule are of a more primitive type, very crudely lithographed in Paris, with a picture of a passenger biplane crossing a coastal bay. They bear the inscription of the Societé de Propaganda Aeronautique, and a set of six values was printed in the following proportions:—

25 centimes violet,	12,000
50 centimes blue,	12,000
75 centimes green,	6,000
1 franc orange	4,000
2 francs red,	4,000
5 francs blue,	2,000

The stamps were delivered at La Baule on September 1st, 1922, with the exception of 10,000 of the 25c, which were held back to be perforated, and owing to the postal strike were not received until a week later. Meanwhile, in order to meet the demand for 25 centimes stamps, small supplies of the 1fr. and 5fr. values were locally surcharged "0.25" and used provisionally:—

"0.25" on 1fr. orange,	1,000
"0.25" on 5fr. blue,	1,200

A single sheet of 20 of the 1 franc exists printed in red, instead of orange, and one of the 2fr. in orange instead of red.

Between September 2nd and 11th, 1922, these stamps served to frank air post letters between La Baule and St. Nazaire, Le Bourget, Paris, Nantes, Angers, and Rochfort.

As in the case of the Rouen issue, special cancellations were employed.

POLAND.—A series of air post stamps in designs by Prof. Mehefor of Cracow is in course of preparation for use in the service Dantzig-Lemberg-Paris-Warsaw.

PORTUGAL.—The Times reports that various of the current Portuguese stamps are to be overprinted "Correios Aeria Portugueza" in connection with the newly-established air post between Lisbon and Paris.

SWEDEN.—Amongst the rarest varieties of air post stamps are the Swedish series with inverted overprint. Of these 200 copies only of the 10 öre and 3 öre exist, and 300 each of the 20/2 öre and 50/4 öre.—West End Philatelist.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF BELGIUM.

PART IV.—THE PARCEL POST STAMPS.

Chapter I.

The First Issue.

In his article in Gibbons Stamp Weekly for July 10th, 1909, Mr. Ch. de Bont gives such a clear and concise account of the facts that led to the issue of parcels post stamps in Belgium that we cannot do better than quote his remarks verbatim:—

"Previous to 1897 the cost of conveying small parcels within the confines of the country varied according to the distance travelled. This led to a certain restriction of trade, especially in goods of no great value. Royal Decrees dated February 25th, 1861, and October 26th, 1868, were therefore promulgated, by the terms of which the Minister of Public Works was authorized to arrange special rates for such goods.

In 1870 a great expansion of Belgian trade took place, owing to the large number of strangers coming to reside in the country. The French in particular insisted on a change in the Belgian mode of buying and selling; thus it became necessary for even the smallest purchase to be delivered to the buyer's residence free of charge, and even articles for the country had to be delivered free when the purchase exceeded a certain minimum value.

Owing to a general desire for a reduction in the very heavy rates charged for carrying parcels, which rates were hitting retail trades very hard, the various trade associations and chambers of commerce devoted a great deal of time and trouble to the formulation of a workable scheme. A great number of petitions were prepared and addressed to the Legislative House and to the Minister of Public Works.

It was by no means an easy task to establish a uniform rate for any distance, owing to the fact that at that time most of the railway lines were in the hands of various companies, amongst whom part of the receipts had necessarily to be divided."

However, after giving a good deal of study to the matter the Ministry of Public Works evolved a scheme under which small parcels were carried at special rates irrespective of distance and a lengthy decree was published, from which we extract the following:—

"The Minister Of Public Works

Believing that it is desirable to meet the wishes so frequently expressed by the Chambers of Commerce for a uniform tariff applying to small parcels of not more than 5 kilograms (11 pounds) irrespective of their destination on the State Railways:—

Decrees:

Art. 1.—Parcels weighing 5 kilograms and under, which may be dispatched on the State Railways will be subject to a uniform rate of 80 centimes or 50 centimes, according as to whether they are accepted under tariff 1 (express) or tariff 2 (fast freight); the above rates are inclusive of carriage and delivery.

Art. 6.—Stamps of 10, 20, 50 and 80 centimes will be provided for the purpose of franking such parcels. They will be placed on sale at all stations on the State Railways.

Art. 9.—This decree will come into force on May 1st, 1879.

Brussels, April 15th, 1879.

(Signed) Sainitelette."

On August 1st, 1881, a 25 centimes was added to the series, this value being necessary under an agreement between certain states of the Postal Union extending the registration or insured privilege to parcels. The fee was fixed at 25 centimes, hence this particular value.

Finally a 1 franc stamp was issued, this being for use on foreign parcels weighing not more than 3 kilograms (about 7½ pounds), sent without declaration of value.

The design is the same for all values and shows in the centre the Belgian Lion on a shield with background of crossed lines, surmounted by a Royal crown. These details are enclosed by an oval frame, broken at top and bottom, on each side of which a winged wheel is shown, the tips of the wings pointing towards the oval. These winged wheels are on a ground of thin vertical lines and the whole is enclosed within an oblong frame inscribed "CHEMINS DE FER" (Railways) at the top, "BELGIQUE" at each side, and with the value in words at the bottom. In all four corners are numerals of value on a ground of solid color. In the case of the highest value these corner squares contain "1fr". The design is 34½mm wide and 25mm tall.

One original die, with the corners and lower label blank, served for the production of secondary dies for all values. To these the necessary indications of value were added and then the plates of 200 stamps were made up in the usual manner for typographic printing. The original die was engraved by Mr. Ch. Wiener.

According to Mr. de Bont the first supplies of the 10, 20, 50 and 80 centimes stamps were printed by Gowveloos Fréres, of Brussels, and it was not until the 25 centimes stamp was being prepared in 1881 that the Belgian Administration undertook the printing of the parcel post stamps as well as those for ordinary postal use. In that year a special printing office was opened at Malines for the printing of these stamps, the establishment being quite distinct from that at which the regular postage stamps were manufactured.

Mr. de Bont says "In November, 1881, the size of the paper was altered, the sheets consisting of 100 stamps only." Consequently the plate for the 1 franc consisted of 100 impressions but this new departure did not affect the other denominations for none of these were printed later than August and in 1882 a new issue appeared.

The same writer tells us that there were two printings for each of the 50 and 80 centimes denominations (the ones in largest demand) and only one printing for each of the other values, the total quantities produced being:—

10 centimes,	100,000
20 centimes,	500,200
25 centimes,	1,059,000
50 centimes,	2,100,000
80 centimes,	1,200,000
1 franc,	495,500

All values show more or less distinct variations in shade, the 50c in particular providing a bright tint due to the employment of aniline ink in the second printing.

The stamps were all perforated 14 and Mr. de Bont tells us that all denominations exist imperforate. The 10 and 20 centimes are also known imperforate horizontally.

Minor varieties showing broken letters or broken frame lines may be found but as they are due to defective printing they are not of a very high degree of philatelic importance.

CHAPTER II.

The Second Issue.

On August 1st, 1882, the 50 times value appeared in an entirely design, this being the forerunner of regular series replacing the issue 1879-82. The 80 centimes in the n design appeared on March 15th, 18 the 10 and 20 centimes values w placed in circulation on May 1st, 18 the 25 centimes was issued on Janu 1st, 1887, and the 1 franc made its pearance in July, 1888. Altogeth therefore, six years elapsed before the stamps of the first set were repla by corresponding values in the new sign. Finally, in 1894, two new nominations were added to the series the reasons set forth in an official c cular issued at the time, and fr which we make the following extract

"Owing to the provision of additio extensions of the parcels post servi is in excess of 2 francs, and aga owing to the introduction of a system called 'railway' stamps have been us on a single parcel.

In order to remedy this condition affairs, the Minister has decided sanction the issue of two new adhes stamps, respectively, of 2 francs and
centimes."

This circular was dated January 12
1894, but as none of the new 15 c times or 2 francs stamps were print until the following month neither of values could have been on sale mu before the end of February.

The design of which was the same f all eight values, was engraved by Mr.

In the ckground is an old type locomotive, st of which is obscured by the me- llion and its supporters, but the okestack shows at left and the end the tender at right. At the bot- n is a tablet containing the name "ELGIQUE" the whole being enclosed a double-lined frame of which the er and thinner line is separated m the inner one by a space of about m.

he plates consisted of 100 stamps h and all values were printed on ite wove paper, each sheet of which, h a few exceptions, was water- rked twice with one or other of ee devices. These watermarks con- ed of (a) a winged wheel and "HEMINS DE FER DE L'ETAT"; the Belgian Arms and "ROY- ME DE BELGIQUE"; or, (c) the gian Arms on a larger scale and hout accompanying inscription. The ermarked devices covered quite a ber of stamps so that specimens wing a part of one or other of watermarks are quite plentiful. ether the watermarked devices were se at different periods or were used hazardly we have not been able to over. For a short period, extending ober, 1899, until sometime in 1902, atermarked paper was used. Mr. Bont tells us the reason for this was some of the watermarked paper de- red in 1899 was of such inferior ity that many of the sheets of stamps to be discarded as they were not o be issued. A contract was then ed with the Royal Paper Mills at stricht for the delivery of a special r of stronger grade but as nothing specified concerning watermark it supplied without. In 1902, bids for lying the paper were advertised and ntract was made with Messrs. De sscher, of Brussels, who supplied all paper for the parcels post stamps that date until the advent of the t War.

bbons says the perforation is 15x , whereas Scott insists it is 15½x . We have measured a large num- of the stamps and find that, without ption, the stamps gauge 15½x14½. ere were many printings of those es most in demand and only a few he denominations not so frequently . According to Mr. de Bont the quantities printed were as follows :—

15 centimes,	98,600
20 centimes,	200,000
25 centimes,	100,000
0 centimes,	2,900,000
0 centimes	850,000
1 franc,	200,000
2 francs,	198,200

th the exception of the 15 and 25 nes and 2 francs all values of this provide numerous pronounced es. This was due partly to the num- of printings and partly to experi- s with different sorts of printing k One printing of each of the 10

JAMAICAN PICTORIALS.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

The ½d.

Of the current Jamaican pictorial series, the ½d was the third value to be issued, the Gazette of November 11, 1920, announcing it for appearance on the following day:—

"Stamp Office,
10th November, 1920.

The following is the description of a halfpenny adhesive stamp to be used for Postage and Revenue purposes.

This stamp will be put into circulation on Friday, 12th November, 1920.

The design is denoted by a representation of the main building of the Jamaica Exhibition.

The denomination, ½d (in a circle) is shown at the top, in right and left corners, and between is the word JAMAICA.

At the bottom of the design are the words and figures JAMAICA EXHIBITION, 1891, and underneath are two palm leaves crossed at the end, and tied with ribbon.

The colour of the border of the stamp is light green, and the design is of light blue.

Signed, C. C. MANTON,
Deputy Stamp Commissioner."

In form the stamp is a horizontal rectangle, 28½x22mm., and printed from typographic plates in olive green and dark green on chalk surfaced paper, watermarked multiple Crown CA, upright. The perforation is comb 14. The general appearance of the stamp is very poor, and at first glance it might readily be taken for a poorly lithographed advertising label rather than a postage stamp.

The sheets are of 160 stamps, 2 panes of 80 each, (8 horizontal by 10 vertical), one above the other, and the plate number 1, which is part of the vignette plate, is in the upper margin of the upper pane, between stamps 1 and 2, and 7 and 8, and in the corresponding positions in the lower margin of the lower pane. Sheets are known with the upper margin perforated through, and the lower margin imperforate, and vice versa, depending on the feed to the perforating machine. The side margins are without plate number marking, and are not perforated through. A double marginal line surrounds each pane, irregularly broken, the inner line belonging to the frame, and the outer to the vignette.

In the frame design JAMAICA occupies a prominent position at the top, and the value, in colorless numerals within circles formed of laurel, is in both upper corners. At the left and right sides, respectively, are "Postage" and "Revenue," in small colorless letters, reading vertically from the top. The vignette lettering at the foot "Jamaica Exhibition, 1891," is part of the frame design, and below are two branches of the coconut palm, crossed, and tied with ribbon.

The vignette represents the central portion of the main building of the Jamaica Exhibition, which was opened in January, 1891, by H. R. H. the Duke of York (now H. M. King George V), on his third visit to the island, made especially for the purpose, and continued until May of that year. The exhibition was illustrative of Jamaica's natural products and manufactures. A most creditable showing was made, and much attention attracted to the island, although it was not a financial success. It was held on grounds at the north of Kingston, now occupied by the buildings of Wolmer's school, and the Mico College. The main building was broken up, but many of the smaller buildings were sold as they stood, and some are still in existence, one in particular being used as a Presbyterian Church in the slum district of Kingston.

No special stamps were issued to commemorate the event, but a branch Post Office was opened, and all mail matter deposited there was postmarked with a special cancellation, circular in form, inscribed "Jamaica Exhibition" around the top, and "Post Office" at the bottom, with the date in the center.

The first consignment of stamps sent out comprised 22,602 sheets of 160 stamps each (3,616,320 stamps), and when this lot neared depletion, the script watermarked variety which had been in the island for many months was issued, on February 6th, 1922, and the two sold concurrently until the first lot exhausted.

1920-22. ½d olive green and dark green. Main building of Jamaica Exhibition, 1891. Plate 1. Comb perf. 14. Chalk surfaced paper.

a. Nov. 12, 1920. Watermarked multiple Crown CA.

b. Feb. 6, 1922. Watermarked multiple Crown and script CA.

The 1d.

The 1d of Jamaica's pictorial series, sent out from Berne early in 1921, and received in the island soon after, was withheld from issue for many months, to allow of lowering the large stock in hand of 1d of the Georgian series. It was not until September 29, 1921, that the Gazette announced it for appearance on the 3rd October.

"The following is a description of a penny adhesive stamp to be used for Postage and Revenue purposes.

This stamp will be put into circulation on 3rd October, 1921.

The design of the stamp is denoted by the figure of an Arawak woman seated on the ground in front of her hut, preparing cassava. At the top of the design is printed JAMAICA in white on an orange background, and on each side, on a shield, the denomination 1d. At the bottom of the design is printed in orange on a white background the words ARAWAK MAKING CASSAVA. At the sides and bottom of the frame are shown Arawak implements, weapons and pottery.

The colour of the stamp is light red, set in a frame of orange with a white border.

Dated this 27th day of September, 1921.

Signed, J. A. MCNEIL SMITH,
Acting Deputy Stamp Commissioner."

The stamp is an upright rectangle, 22x28½mm., printed in orange and carmine, from typographic plates, on chalk surfaced paper watermarked multiple Crown CA, sideways to the left, and perforated comb 14.

The sheets are of 160 stamps, 2 panes of 80 each, (10 horizontal by 8 vertical), side by side. A double marginal line, irregularly broken, surrounds each pane, the outer being in the color of the vignette, and the inner in that of the frame.

The border or frame plate is numbered 1, and this numeral appears twice in the left margin of the left pane, between the 1st and 2nd, and 7th and 8th horizontal rows, and similarly in the right margin of the right pane. The upper and lower margins are without plate number marking. The sheets are perforated from the side, so that either the left or right margin is not perforated through, depending on the feed to the perforating machine.

EDITORIAL.

Let us erect another marker along the road of philatelic progress and pause a moment to felicitate ourselves upon the action of the Canadian government in recognizing philately much in the manner that our own country has done. Dispatches tell us that a stamp agency has been established at Ottawa in order that collectors may be supplied with selected specimens direct from the seat of government, and we are glad to learn that Canada has emulated the enterprise of the United States in catering intelligently to the interests of philatelists.

We had the privilege of interviewing C. F. Heyerman, president of the American Philatelic Society, on his arrival in Chicago en route to Denver, where he will spend a month before leaving for the convention at Washington, and his answers to questions about the preparation and the passing of the bill to allow the illustrating of U. S. stamps under restrictions were enlightening. Mr. Heyerman previously had represented himself as firm in the belief that no halfway concessions would be accepted and he favored a bold play to gain the desired ends for collectors. However, when Chief Moran was encountered, a few ifs and ands altered the current of thought of the gentlemen on the committee. Chief Moran said that stamp illustration was against the law and he could not countenance any direct flaunting of it. He added that they could go over his head and perhaps gain their points, but he showed a spirit of fairness in acceding to provisions that at first did not seem wise, and no one who could hear Chief Moran expound his position would say that his objections were groundless and not based on seeming necessity. By a kindly sequence of events, the bill was passed at the last moment and was one of the forty-seven signed by President Harding just before the adjournment of Congress. That the sponsorship of the stamp bill was influential need not be emphasized, and the general feeling among those who know something of Congressional action is that the achievement of the committee was one giving cause for congratulation. The suggestion of Chief Moran that permission be obained from the treasury department by those who wished to take advantage of the bill was the last to be vacated. We might add that the description, "border of stamp," means that part of the stamp outside the vignette, which is a liberal enough construction, but it is to be said that the "vignette" is jealously regarded and is to be considered immune from any liberties whatever.

The other night we asked our friend, Henry R. Rathbone, Congressman-at-large from Illinois, if he ever collected stamps, and he said that he thought he had, although his recollection was hazy. "Then," said we, "you are an apostate philatelist and all members of the faith will remember your fall from grace, and so it behooves you to repair your philatelic fences before election time." He promises to look for the old album, and if he finds it, to begin to collect again.

From Mr. Frank L. Applegate, Medford, Oregon, one of our first students of state revenues in particular, we have received a few chastening words that are deserved, it is to be added: "I consider it unfortunate that you give emphasis to the poll tax 'stamp' of California (placed under Oregon in Forbin's Catalogue), as this is something of a hoax in its way. It is not an adhesive stamp, nor yet does it represent a documentary tax, as do the imprinted checks, etc., but is only a vagary of the designer in getting up a poll tax receipt with no more significance, except possibly in appearance, than any other part of a common tax receipt, which we all get when we pay our state taxes. You will not find it in the new State Revenue Catalogue. On the other hand, special mention is always due the circular California tax stamps, pioneers in their line, antedating, as they do, not only the civil war revenues of the United States, but all the adhesive revenue stamps of the new world and those of most of the old." When mentioning this alleged poll tax stamp of California, our memory harked back to the old Sterling catalogue of revenue stamps of 1888 or thereabouts. We are pleased that Mr. Applegate brings us back to earth.

In the Chicago Tribune for June 26th, we find on the front page the sensational heading, "Add Philately to Wine, Women and Song Perils," and, eagerly reading the Berlin dispatch that it introduces, we learn that a German postal inspector began his peculations by stealing letters to get stamps for his collection, and that in one bundle of newspapers from this country he found several dollar bills. Then he seems to have developed "a taste for rare wines," and after that — the deluge Now you see how wicked it is to take stamps from foreign letters in the mail, and that the consequences of the act cannot be other than, to use a refreshingly original term, dire. We might say that we have been informed that no fewer than four warnings have been issued to postal clerks by our post-office department not to remove stamps from mail passing through their hands.

THE SUPER - MYSTIC A Vacation Special 350 Varieties $1.02

Now that the summer has come and you want something that will take your mind away from the summer's heat, we have decided to produce a new M—. C—. Superlative adjectives fail when we try to describe this incomparable ensemble. Imagine 350 vars. from all parts of the world, Iceland, Norway, Chile, lands of cold and snow at this time of the year. From Hong Kong, Salvador, etc. It's hotter there than it is here. Provisionals and new issues—at least 120 vars. in this M. C. have not been in our former M. C.'s. The SUPER-MYSTIC catalogs at least $12 and we don't have to "pad up" the catalog value, either. Take the SUPER-MYSTIC on your vacation, enjoy it at home, we promise you more fun for your $1.02 than you ever had before.

Super-cars, super-ships, super-men, and now a SUPER-M. C. with a superabundance of really fine South and Central Americans in postally used condition, and new issues from Europe which show that they, too, have seen postal service.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—John H. Feeman sends us a clipping from the St. Louis Daily Globe Democrat of June 21 which contains a picture of New York's delegation to the International Rotary convention recently held at that city. Prominent in the first row is C. J. Phillips, the well known New York dealer. Mr. Feeman observes Mr Phillips' classification as "Philatelist," and adds:—"I see no reason why this occupation should not be listed and recognized." "It certainly is listed and recognized," for the managing editor of the WEEKLY is a Rotarian under the classification "Newspaper-Philatelic."

—We have received a sample package of philatelic arrow indicators such as were used in a Gold Medal collection at the recent London exhibition. They are used to point out the special features t be noted, and are very neat. Price 28c per hundred postpaid. Our thanks to W. T. Wilson, Birmingham, England.

—A new advertising cancellation comes from San Francisco, Cal., reading:—"National Council Travelling Salesmen, Sept. 5-6-7, Atlantic City."

—Quite recently we made a mention of and reviewed a price-list. A subscriber sent for one, enclosisg postage, and in return received a letter contain ing two sheets of cheap approvals with the price-list, plus 2c postage due. W have written the firm and called atten tion to this act upon the part of its offic help and suggested that we should be compelled to eliminate complimentary mention of price-lists unless the policy of sending out unsolicited approval selections was discontinued.

—A Chicago subscriber, Robert T Anderson, writes a strong letter to th WEEKLY condemning the action of a auction dealer who endeavored to pas on to him as a bidder one or more lot for which satisfactorv bids were n secured at the sale. He mentions an ex perience where such a lot was returne only to have the claim entered that had never been received. The WEEKL finds it impossible to adjust these detai in business relationships, and can onl plead for the finest quality of servi in the direction of both dealer and co lector.

—We are indebted to A. A. Wasser scheid for showing us the following a vertising cancellation from Newport, I.:—"American Legion Memorial Wee Newport, R. I., July 23-28, 1923" We have also received from N. Hufnell a Wilmington, Del., cancella tion reading as follows:—"Dela ware State Fair, Wilmington, Augus 27-Sept. 1". From Little Rock, Ark. comes a cancellation of a similar charac ter reading:—"Arkansas State Fair, Lit tle Rock, October 3-13, 1923."

—We are advised by Charles Met that Germany Nos. 156 and 157 hav been received overprinted in Germa "Stamp Exhibition Regensburg, 26- Mai, 1923".

—The June number of the Sudde Service Surcle from the office of t Fennell Stamp Co. is just at hand. It is a bright and breezy publication with considerable matter of general interest. The editor of this publication is Paul P. Murray, and the number before us has much in condemnation of the counterfeit stamp.

—Fred E. Prohaska, 82 Hutton St., Jersey City, N. J., has just issued a neat general pricelist of twenty pages. Stamps singly and by sets are listed therein.

—Milwaukee, Wis., has a new advertising cancellation reading:—"Citizen's Training Camp, Camp Custer, Mich. Aug. 1-Sept. 1".

—We are in receipt of a letter from B. K. Miller in which he urges the mounting of stamps in the thin, strong and perfectly transparent envelopes that may now be obtained as a substitute for hinges. It is true that many collectors are now using these envelopes, and especially in connection with rare stamps. These envelopes come in diff

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED SRATES.—Mr. W. C. Haase has shown me an irregular block of nineteen of the 2c carmine, series of 1917-19, perforated 11, imperforate horizontally. This block was found several years ago better investments can be made than in fine U. S. stamps. While we look for the postal items to bring stiff prices, in this case even the revenue stamps brought half catalogue and more and in many cases near full catalogue price.

A copy of the 10c 1847 on cover with double transfer in the "X" in lower right corner, blue Philadelphia cancellation sold at $81.00. Copies of the 5c sold from $3.70 to $26.00, the latter being for a 5c brown-orange in a brilliant color. A 1c 1851 crack plate cancelled on cover went to New York at $35.00. Railroad cancellations on the 3c 1851 sold at good figures, the Philadelphia and New York finding a new owner in the former city at $15.50. A Philadelphia and Pottsville sold at $13.00. A superb 10c with outer line cut and both top and bottom with magnificent margins and a blue Cincinnati cancellation changed hands at $115.00. A 1c 1857 crack plate on cover went to New York at $40.00. A pair and single of the type 4 1c used together on one cover sold at $36.00. A mint pair of the 1c green 1917 imperf. between Scott's No. 409b sold at $24.25.

The $200.00 second issue reached $181.00, the 1c with inverted center $48.00, while the $1.00 Proprietary on green sold at $127.00. A repaired copy of the $5.00 on violet of beautiful appearance sold at $91.00. Match and Medicine stamps generally sold well.

CHILI.—Mr. G. Herbert Dannatt kindly brings to our notice a new series, issued at Santiago on April 28th, to commemorate the Pan-American Conference. The one value before us, viz., 2c red, is transverse oblong in format and has a view of the Conference Palace at Santiago, flanked by flora at left, with inscriptions: 5A CONFERENCIA PANAMERICANA in two lines at top, CHILI at foot, with SANTIAGO in tiny capitals below the building depicted, and the printers' imprint ("Imp. Fiscal") at bottom. "1923" is in the upper right-hand corner, and CENTAVOS (or "Peso" or "Pesos") in the lower eft, with numerals of denominations in an oval shield in the lower left-hand orner.

The issue is said to be very limited, nd likely to last only a few days.

JAMAICAN PICTORIALS.

the frame design, and in the vignette an Arawak woman is shown, seated on the ground in front of her hut, performing this task.

The consignment sent to the island consisted of 22,388 sheets of 160 stamps (3,582,080 stamps), but to get the total printing must be added the stamps sold to dealers in London by the Crown Agents.

Through an oversight "Postage and Revenue" was omitted from the design, and it was reported that the Government had for a time seriously considered recalling the stamp, but there was none other to take its place. The Crown Agents, however, were instructed to have a corrected plate made up, and this they advised in their December, 1921, communique as having been accomplished—"A new border duty plate with the additional wording 'Postage and Revenue' has been put in hand for the 1d duty."

Much discussion took place in the local press over the vignette inscription "Arawak Making Cassava." Some claimed that as cassava was an edible tuber, it could not be made—that the legend should rather be 'making cassava starch.' Others pointed out that the word had another meaning, that of starch or flour made from the tuber, and that in this sense cassava could be made just as tea or coffee is made. One correspondent wrote that he really didn't think Mrs. Arawak had any use for starch; she had no garments that needed starching, and therefore, she must have been making the thick cassava cakes that are the staple food of the Jamaican peasantry to this day.

The following letter from Mr. Frank Cundall, F.S.A., Secretary and Librarian of the Institute of Jamaica, Kingston, and designer of the stamp, is taken from the Gleaner of November 3, 1921—

"Editor, The Gleaner,

Sir,—Murray's New English Dictionary is usually considered the final authority as to the true interpretation of English words, and this gives as the meaning of the word cassava—

1. A plant called also by the Brazilian name Mandico Manihot utilissima (N. O. Euphorbiaceae), two varieties (or species) of which are extensively cultivated in the West Indies and tropical America, as also in Africa, for their fleshy tuberous roots, which yield the greatest portion of the daily food of the natives of tropical America.
2. The nutritious starch or flour obtained from the roots of the Mandioc by grating them, and pressing out the juice; the bread made from this.

The use of cassava in this latter sense is as old as the year 1577. Hakluyt in 1600 calls cassava a 'kind of bread made of roots'. And Purchas in 1613, says 'bread of a great root called yuca, which they name cassavi'.

Mr. Moxsy has every right to use cassava for the plant, but he is wrong to question the right of others to use cassava for the product of the plant. I am, etc.,

F. CUNDALL.

1st November, 1921."

When the West Indies were first discovered, the Greater Antilles were inhabited by the Arawaks, a gentle and timid race of Indians. Conservative historians estimate their numbers at 3 millions (although Las Casas doubles that figure). Peter Martyr gives but 1,200,000 to Hispaniola, and taking this as a guide, there would probably have been about 600,000 in Jamaica, or about three-quarters of the island's population today. In the fifteen years following the discovery of the islands, the harsh treatment meted out to the natives by the Spaniards, in forcing them to work on plantations and in the mines of Cuba and Hispaniola, their numbers were reduced to 60,000 and when the English took possession of Jamaica in 1665, very few remained.

The Arawaks found in British Guiana today, are short in stature; red cinnamon in color, with thick, long, black, and very straight hair; their facial features are like those of the Chinese, and the expression is decidedly gentle. Physically, they are weak, and life hardly ever exceeds 50 years. Peter Martyr who heard the language spoken, said that it was "soft and not less liquid than the Latin," being "rich in vowels and pleasant to the ear."

Their houses were primitive, probably circular in shape, with walls of wattle work plastered with mud; and with a high pitched roof of palm leaves, under which their hammocks were hung. Their weapons consisted of darts and war clubs; apparently they did not possess bows and arrows, the use of which by the Caribs of the Lesser Antilles giving them a great advantage over their more peaceful foes. As in Hispaniola, the natives of Jamaica were ruled over by caciques or chieftains.

Up to 1895, but few remains had been discovered in Jamaica to testify to their existence, but in that and subsequent years, several collections of Indian remains were found, scattered throughout the island. The objects give evidence of no very high advance in civilization or the arts, and are considerably below those of Mexico and Peru.

A supply of the 1d stamp, from the corrected frame plate, was notified by the Crown Agents, in June, 1922, as being on order, and later (September, 1922), as having been dispatched. The first consignment consisted of 5,000 sheets of 160 stamps, a total of 800,000 stamps. The Gazette of November 23, 1922, announced it for appearance on December 5, 1922.

"Stamp Office, KINGSTON,
20th November, 1922.

The penny adhesive stamp with the script watermark will be available to the public on 5th December, 1922.

The stamp is as described in notice published in the Gazette of 29th September, 1921, but the words 'Postage & Revenue' have been substituted for the ornaments at the bottom of the stamp.

Signed, C. C. MANTON,
Deputy Stamp Commissioner."

The makeup of the sheet is as before, likewise the plate number markings and the perforation. The only change is that the Arawak ornamentation at the foot of the frame is omitted, and there is substituted in its place, a plain horizontal tablet inscribed "Postage & Revenue." The watermark is multiple Crown and script CA, sideways to the left.

CONSTANTINOPLE RUSSIAN POST.

Many collectors are prone to ignore the existence of a series of War stamps which should be regarded as one of the most interesting, as well as one of the rarest. We refer to the issue, or rather the issues—for there were two—of the Wrangel Army in Constantinople.

It is wrong to pretend that these issues were speculative. The information that we are privileged to publish here proves, on the contrary, that they met a real need. The Army of General Wrangel, which resisted to the last but was forced to give way before the Bolshevik forces and to evacuate the territory of the Crimea, came to Constantinople towards the end of November, 1920. The Russian refugees—about 200,000—were accommodated partly in camps in the environs of Constantinople; partly in Serbia, Bulgaria, Greece, and Roumania. The Army and the officials were assembled on Gallipoli, Lemnos, Chatalja, etc.

It was expressly forbidden to leave the camps and the refugees had no means of communicating with one another. Again, they needed money to pay for the transmission of letters and 95 per cent of these unfortunates who wished to correspond with their relatives in the other camps or Balkan States, had only Denekin bank notes at their disposal.

Thus it came about that, reviving the privilege enjoyed by Russia before the War under the Capitulations, and at the instance of General Wrangel's Government a Russian post was organised in all the concentration camps, such as the Isle of Princes, Bouyouk, Diré, Sélimie (Khaidar Pacha), Canrobert, and Lemnos (Masky-Key), Bernadotte (San Stefano), Tousla 1 and 2, Térapia, Chataldja, etc., as well as in the more distant centres like Gallipoli, Lemmos and Belgrade. This latter bureau maintained a postal service for the Russians throughout Serbia and forwarded correspondence to the care of the controllers of the Russian camps in the country.

The charges were based upon the Denekin roubles in circulation at that time, viz., postcards, 1,000 roubles; ordinary letters, 5,000 roubles; registered letters, 10,000 roubles.

What stamps did they use?

From the existing stocks in the post-offices of the region occupied by the Wrangel Army, viz., South Russia, Crimea, and part of the Ukraine, a great variety of stamps were brought together in Constantinople: stamps of Russia, Denekin, Russian Levant, Ukraine, which were surcharged with a new value—this to save the expense of a special issue.

General Wrangel being opposed to the use of stamps of the Ukraine or of Soviet Russia, the first issue consisted entirely of surcharged Russian stamps, Denekin, and Russian Levant.

This first issue appeared in December, 1920, pursuant to a Government decree dated the 1st of that month. It comprised about 300,000 stamps, surcharged with the words "Post of the Russian Army" and with a new value in Denekin roubles. (We have already stated that for the most part the refugees had nothing but Denekin bank notes.) For strangers or refugees who wished to pay in other money, the following rate of exchange was fixed:—10,000 roubles=10 piastres Turkish=1 French franc=2 dinars Serbian. The application of the surcharges was made with all necessary precautions in the presence of a representative of the Government, of the Controller, and of various other functionaries. Each evening the lithographic stones were put under seal until the morrow. When the work was completed the clichés were destroyed and an affidavit of that destruction was made.

To obviate speculation and, having regard to the limited numbers of the stamps, the Government wuold not allow their sale in quantity, the Postmaster himself affixing them to letters handed in for transmission.

These restrictions did not prevent a large number of these stamps finding their way into the hands of collectors and dealers. The stock being thus quickly exhausted, put the Government under the obligation of providing a new series.

The question of a definitive issue was again raised, but, again, for reasons of economy, recourse was had to the method of the first issue. However, since there was only a small number of Russian and Levant stamps remaining in stock, they were obliged this time to utilize the stamps of the Ukraine.

The overprint of the second issue was modified to "Russian Post" in lieu of "Post of the Russian Army," the Russian Army being no longer recognised as such by the Inter-Allied authorities. The rates of postage were also increased and fixed at: Postcards, 5,000 roubles; ordinary letters, 10,000 roubles; registered letters, 20,000 roubles; in consequence of the fall of the Denekin rouble and the new rates fixed by the Congress at Madrid. The measures of control and safeguard adopted for the first issue were again employed for the second and the clichés likewise destroyed after use.

The foregoing facts clearly demonstrate why many stamps of the second issue were printed in very restricted quantities (30, 50 or 100 copies). They constitute, therefore, great rarities. We do not know of one collection in twenty that is complete.

The stamps of the Wrangel Army enjoy a well-deserved popularity amongst collectors of War stamps. In April, 1921, the Ottoman Government protested against the existence of a Russian Post Office in Turkey as being contrary to the Treaty of Sévres. Russia is not yet admitted to the League of Nations, and seeing that the Treaty of Sévres has not been ratified by the Turks, the Allied High Commissioners supported the contention of the Government at Constantinople and the Russian Post was wound up towards the end of May, 1921.

The following are the numbers printed, according to official documents emanating from the Directorate of the Russian Post at Constantinople.

FIRST ISSUE (299,874 STAMPS).

The surcharge "1,000 roubles" was struck upon 36,300 copies of 3kop; 18,000 of 4kop; 18,500 of 5kop; 20,000 of 7kop; 6,400 of 10/7kop; 4,800 of 10kop; and a few sheets of 1 and 2kop.

The surcharge "5,000 roubles" was struck upon 88,500 copies of the 3kop; 8,100 of 15kop; 900 of 20kop; 3,600 of 25kop; 5,700 of 35kop; 4,600 of 50kop; 9,260 of 70kop; 3,900 of 5kop; 9,800 of 10kop; 2,800 of 15kop; 3,989 of 35kop and 10,900 of 70kop (the last five values are upon stamps of the General Denekin series), and some sheets of the 14kop and 14/20kop.

The surcharge "10,000 roubles" was struck upon 11,550 copies of the 1 rouble and 1,650 of the 3½ roubles of the issues 1911 and 1917; 6,600 of the 5kop and 6,600 of the 10kop Savings Bank, a few sheets of 3½, 5, 7, and 10 roubles of the issues 1909, 1911 and 1917, and a few sheets of the 1, 2, 3, 5, 7 and 10 roubles of the General Denekin issue and 1kop Savings Bank.

The surcharge of "20,000 roubles" was struck upon 9,940 copies of the 1 rouble; a few sheets of 3½, 5, 7 and 10 roubles of the series 1909, 1911 and 1917, and a few sheets of the 1, 2, 3, 5, 7 and 10 roubles of the General Denekin issue.

1c STAMP BRINGS $124 AT AUCTION.

A one-cent carrier stamp, of the United States issue of 1851, on its original cover and bearing a red star cancellation, was sold at auction yesterday, (June 15) at Klein's, No. 1318 Chestnut Street, for $124, or $24 more than catalogue price. This rare stamp attracted a great deal of attention among the collectors attending the sale. It was found within the last few months among some old correspondence in this city, and is in fine condition. The color and design, it was said, are as bright and as clear as on the day when the stamp was printed.

Another interesting sale was that of a horizontal strip of three 3-cent United States stamps of the issue of 1851, for $102.50. The strip bears a New York town cancellation, and the two end stamps show a crack in the plate from which they were printed. Ordinarily these three-cent reds singly do not catalogue for more than about 50 cents, but a strip of three unseparated stamps of this issue is so rare as greatly to enhance their value. A 10-cent green, of the 1851 issue, was sold for $115, or $15 more than catalogue price. This particular copy is of a rich green color, has its outer lines recut at top and bottom and bears a blue Cincinnati cancellation.

An envelope bearing a 10-cent gray-black of the general issue of 1847, which is catalogued at $75, was purchased for $81. The stamp shows double transfer in the X at the lower right hand and has a blue Philadelphia cancellation. A horizontal pair of bright blue one-cent stamps of 1851 were sold for $21, or $11 more than catalogue price. They are on their original cover and bear a black grid cancellation, with black Baltimore postmark to Wilmington, Del.

Among the curiosities sold was an envelope bearing the upper left half of a two-cent stamp together with a whole stamp, of the 1869 issue, for the payment of three cents postage. The stamps are penstroked. The cover bears no postmark, but it is known that the letter was sent from Tower City, Pa., to Pottsville. This lot is catalogued at $100. It sold for $26. An uncancelled 10-cent dark green, of the issue of August, 1861, was sold for $50, or half the catalogue price. It is slightly off centre, but is still in fine and fresh condition. The original gum remains. A cover of the Lehigh Valley Railroad on the three-cent rose of 1857-1861 issue was sold for $13.25, although it is catalogued at only $4.—Phila. Record.

THE ENTRY OF A. BRUN.

Some weeks ago we published for a short time an advertisement of A. Brun, 95 Galerie de Beaujolais, Paris, France. The returns were such that Mr. Brun will take space regularly hereafter and in the fall will open a strong advertising campaign. His advertisement will be found elsewhere in this issue, He has a large stock of rare and scarce stamps, and is able to meet the needs of the general collector or the specialist. In his letter just at hand he mentions the fact that several of the U. S. attendants at the London Exhibition had been in Paris and called upon him at his office. He has recently purchased a very large collection which cata something over $100,000. As one of leading Paris dealers Mr. Brun int to make a strong bid for Amer business.

POSTAGE STAMPS OF SOMALILAND.

By Bertram W. H. Poole.

Chapter I.

Introduction.

The country known as the Somaliland Protectorate is situated in the extreme northeast of the continent of Africa, with its coast line on the Gulf of Aden. Berbera, the chief town, is on the coast, and almost faces Aden on the other side of the gulf. For some years after Great Britain established a protectorate over this territory, the postal affairs of the country were under the administration of the Indian Government. Until 1903, Berbera was, I believe, the only town at which there was a regular post-office and this was, to all intents and purposes, treated as a unit of the Indian Postal Department.

During the period of the jurisdiction of the Indian Post Office the ordinary unsurcharged stamps of India then current were used, just as was at first the case with the protectorate established in Zanzibar. The stamps used in Somaliland can only be identified from the ordinary Indian stamps by the Berbera postmark, which consists of a large capital "B" in a circle of horizontal lines —two above, two below, and four on each side of the letter.

When the control of this territory was removed from the Indian to the Colonial Office in 1903 special stamps were deemed advisable, and, pending the preparation of a regular set, provisional issues were made by overprinting various Indian stamps with the words "BRITISH—SOMALILAND" in two lines in black, thus again following the precedent established in the case of Zanzibar.

Three distinct sets of these provisional stamps were issued in the twelve months preceding the appearance of the regular stamps. The latter were issued in 1904 and bore a portrait of King Edward VII. above the inscription "SOMALILAND PROTECTORATE". The anna values were of ordinary size and were printed on the Crown CA paper then in general use, while the rupee denominations, which were of larger format, were printed on paper watermarked Crown CC. In 1905 the anna values all appeared on the multiple Crown CA paper and in 1909 the colors of the two lowest values were changed. In 1912 some of the denominations appeared with King George's portrait, though the series was not completed until nearly seven years later. The next change occurred in 1921 when all values appeared with the new multiple Crown and script CA watermark, which had been recently introduced, and this completes the postal history of the Colony to date as regards its regular postage stamps.

The overprinted provisional stamps, like many others of a similar nature, are full of interest to the specialist owing to the number of minor varieties and errors that occur.

The whole of the overprinting was done at the Indian Government Printing Office in Calcutta, and a careful examination of the type employed shows that it is exactly the same as that used for overprinting the Indian stamps used in the Native States of Chamba, Jhind, Nabha, Patiala, etc. This fact at once accounts for the number of minor varieties, for the type employed was anything but new and the compositors were apparently not first class craftsmen. There is, I think, little doubt that all the varieties are purely accidental.

There are, as I have already pointed out, three distinct issues of these provisional stamps which will be dealt with in their proper chronological order. Before doing so, however, it will be necessary to make a few remarks regarding the two different types that are common to all the overprinted stamps of ordinary size—that is, the values from ½ anna to 1 rupee inclusive. Shortly after the stamps appeared many specialists noted that the positions of the two words "BRITISH" and "SOMALILAND" differed in relation to one another on various stamps but I believe Mr. H. W. Hawkins was the first to refer publicly to this fact in an article he contributed to the Monthly Journal in December, 1905. Mr. Hawkins wrote:—

"There are two principal varieties of the setting of this overprint differing in the spacing of the word BRITISH—(a) the word is 10mm. long, and the upright stroke of the B is over the left hand stroke of the M in SOMALI-

Now that the next Scott Catalogue will give major numbers to coils and imperfs. this handbook—the last word on specialism, will be in greater demand than ever. The work prices the varieties of the coils, of the imperfs., of imprints, etc., and is what might be called an elucidation of the Standard Catalogue's listings. Copious notes will be found explaining the different dies and so forth, and one of Scott's new folders with Illustrations of parts of U. S. stamps will be given, free, with the work. [tf

H. F. COLMAN 2ND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

LAND, and (b) the word is fully 10½ mm. long, and the B is over the space between OM"

I have carefully examined a large number of single stamps, pairs, blocks and sheets and am quite unable to agree with Mr. Hawkins' measurements or descriptions of the two types. I find that in type (a) the word BRITISH is only a bare 10mm. in length and sometimes it only just measures 9¾mm; while in type (b) it is quite exceptional to find this word a full 10½mm. long. There are, at the most, only three or four stamps in each sheet with this measurement; in the majority of type (b) the word BRITISH is exactly 10¼mm. long, while in some cases it is only a bare 10mm., and in others the merest trifle over this. The position of the letter "B" in type (b) is not always above the space between the letters "OM", as stated by Mr. Hawkins, for in some cases it is nearly above the centre of the letter "O" and in others it only just projects beyond the first vertical stroke of the "M".

The following would, perhaps, be a more accurate and simpler definition of the two types:—

Type 1.—The upright stroke of the "B" in the word "BRITISH" is exactly in line with, or a trifle to the right of, the first vertical stroke of the "M" of "SOMALILAND".

Type 2.—The upright stroke of the "B" is to the left of the first vertical stroke of the "M".

These two types are, I think, of general interest for they are quite constant in their positions on certain stamps in the sheets of each of the three overprinted issues.

The type employed for this overprint is not particularly uniform nor was the printing always done as carefully as could be wished, as I have already indicated, and it therefore seems hardly worth while for even the keenest specialist to take much note of such varieties as raised and dropped letters. Except in one or two striking instances, where a letter is very much above or below the level of the others, I fear most of these are more in the nature of optical illusions than anything else. Indeed, with the aid of a good magnifying glass and a little imagination it is surprising what a number of varieties of this class one can discover! Again, most of the so-called "short" and "small" letters are hardly worthy of serious notice, for their positions seem to vary almost from sheet to sheet, and they are anything but constant in their appearance. They are mostly due to the use of poor type and careless inking—a combination that could account for almost anything in the way of surcharge varieties— and in few (if any) cases are they the result of type from a wrong font having been used.

CHAPTER II.

The First Issue.

The first issue of stamps for the Somaliland Protectorate consisted of the following Queen Victoria stamps of India overprinted at the top with "BRITISH—SOMALILAND" in two lines in black, viz.:—

½ anna, pale green.
1 anna, carmine.
2 annas, violet.
2½ annas, ultramarine.
3 annas, brown orange.
4 annas, slate green.
6 annas, pale brown.
8 annas dull mauve.
12 annas, purple on red.
1 rupee, carmine and green.
2 rupees, yellow brown and carmine.
3 rupees, green and brown.
5 rupees, violet and blue.

The stamps are all perf. 14 and all except the 6 annas are watermarked with a large star. The 6 annas denomination has the elephant head watermark. All thirteen values were issued on June 1st, 1903, and on the same day the Somaliland Protectorate was admitted to the Universal Postal Union. Scott's catalogue erroneously lists this series under the date of 1902 but none of the values were placed on sale earlier than June 1st, 1903, as already stated.

All the values from the ½ anna to 1 rupee inclusive (with the exception of the 6 annas), were in large sheets of 240 stamps arranged in two panes of 120 stamps each in ten rows of twelve. The panes were placed one above the other and were separated by a narrow width of plain margin. Sufficient type was set to overprint an entire sheet of 240 stamps at one operation. The whole of the 120 stamps in the upper pane are Type 1 (as described in the preceding chapter), while in the lower pane the two types are distributed as follows:—

1	1	1	1	1	1	2	2	2	2	2	2
2	2	2	1	1	1	2	1	1	1	1	1
1	1	1	1	1	1	2	2	2	2	2	2

A little calculation will show, therefore, that on all the sheets of the ½, 1, 2, 2½, 3, 4, 8 and 12 annas and 1 rupee stamps there are 183 specimens of type 1 and 57 of type 2, roughly speaking a proportion of nearly three to one. Horizontal pairs showing the two types are scarce for, as can be determined from the above diagram, there are only seven of these in a sheet, while of vertical pairs showing the two varieties there are seventeen.

The sheets of the 6 annas stamps contained 320 specimens arranged in four panes of 80 each in ten rows of eight. The panes were arranged two above two and were divided vertically and horizontally by a strip of plain margin as follows:—

80 stamps	80 stamps
80 stamps	80 stamps

In overprinting this denominatic same type seems to have been use to fit the 6 annas sheets the four hand vertical rows of type were ren and two vertical panes could th overprinted at one operation. Thus sheet of the 6 annas value had under the printing press twice bef was completely overprinted. In ing the type to fit these sheets some was shifted a little, for the eighth in the bottom row of each on the panes is type 2 and the two type distributed in each of the lower pa follows:—

1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1
1	1	1	1	1	1	1	2
1	1	1	1	1	1	2	2
1	1	1	1	1	1	2	2
1	1	1	1	1	1	2	2
2	2	2	1	1	1	2	1
1	2	2	2	2	2	2	2
2	2	2	2	2	2	2	2

Thus it follows that in the case 6 annas denomination there are stamps of type 1 and 70 of type each sheet, a proportion of nearly to one. An inspection of the abov gram will show that there are horizontal and four vertical pai each of the lower panes which sho two types se-tenant, while in each upper panes one horizontal pair sh both varieties may be found.

The sheets of the 2, 3 and 5 stamps consist of 96 specimens arr

Miracle Grilles

An authority on U. S. Grilles in a monograph written on the subject some years ago referred to certain freak grilles as miracles. They do seem to partake of the miraculous when a double grille is so nearly perfect in alignment that it appears to show an entirely unknown grille size. An overlapping pair of 13 x 16 grilles may give a 16 x 16 or 16 x 20. The same thing in the 12 x 15 may result in an apparently perfect 18 x 15.

We have quite a number of oddities in the grilles of 1867, '69 and '70. Double grilles on the 2, 3, 10, 12 and 15c of 1867; on the 3, 6 and 15c of 1869, marginal and double grilles on several denominations of the 1870 issues.

There are also several fine pairs with grille; two or three of the 10c, a fine pair of the 90c 1867, a beautiful pair of the 30c 1870. We should be glad to submit these items to anyone specially interested. Trade references please.

J. O. MOORE, Inc., Hammondsport, N. Y.

in eight small panes of twelve stamps each in three rows of four. The panes are placed in four rows of two each divided both vertically and horizontally by a width of margin about the same size as the stamps themselves. The arrangement is as shown in the following diagram:—

12 stamps	12 stamps
12 stamps	12 stamps
12 stamps	12 stamps
12 stamps	12 stamps

I have not had the opportunity of examining entire sheets of either of these denominations but it is very probable that the full sheets of 96 stamps were overprinted at one operation. There must have been a fairly extensive rearrangement of the type to make it fit these larger stamps or entirely separate type was used for them. I am rather inclined to think the latter was the case for judging from the few singles, pairs and blocks I have seen the two types as shown on all the stamps of ordinary size do not exist. Occasional copies may be found which can possibly be classed as type 1 or type 2 but most of them appear to be indefinite. When the types can be identified on these values they are, therefore, not of the same degree of philatelic interest or importance as those on the smaller stamps.

The most interesting variety in this printing occurs on the eighteenth stamp of the upper pane on the ½, 1, 2 and 3 annas values, the second "I" of "BRITISH" being entirely omitted so that the word reads "BRIT SH". Occasionally other stamps may be found with one or both of the "I's" very faint, or only represented by a small dot, but as these are not constant and only due to defective inking of the type they are of little importance except as curiosities.

Another variety of general interest has a figure "1" instead of the first "I" in "BRITISH". This occurs on the fortieth stamp of the upper panes on all denominations except the 2, 3 and 5 rupees. Another collectible variety has a thick "D" in "SOMALILAND". This occurs on the eighth stamp in the bottom row of the upper pane and is found on all values from ½ anna to 1 rupee inclusive. Possibly it is due to a worn or damaged letter but it is easily identified and occurs constantly right through the printing.

There is, too, a prominent if minor variety having a pear-shaped dash about 1mm. long, level with the top of the "H" of "BRITISH" and exactly above the "D" of "SOMALILAND". This occurs in the top panes—I am not sure of its position—of all values from ½ anna to 1 rupee inclusive.

On the first stamp in the lower panes of the ½, 1, 2, 2½ and 3 annas values the "S" of "SOMALILAND" is generally considerably below the level of the other letters in that word, while on the eighth stamp of the bottom row of the same pane the "S" of "SOMALILAND" is so badly battered that it usually fails to print at all.

The above varieties are the only ones that seem to show with any regularity throughout the printing, but there are of course many others with short and small "I's", "A's", "N's" and "L's," dropped and raised letters, slightly wider spaced letters, broken letters, etc., which may appeal to some extreme specialists. These all appear to be due to defective press work and as they do not appear in the same positions on each sheet or on every sheet of any particular denomination, but are simply peculiar to an isolated sheet here and there, they are, I think, hardly of sufficient merit to warrant special listing.

Three errors are known in this issue, the 12 annas and 3 rupees both existing with inverted overprint and the 2 annas being known with double overprint.

According to Ewen's Weekly Stamp News the following are the total numbers issued of the stamps of this series:—

½ anna	200	sheets	or	48,000	stamps
1 "	200	"	"	48,000	"
2 annas	200	"	"	48,000	"
2½ "	200	"	"	48,000	"
3 "	200	"	"	48,000	"
4 "	200	"	"	48,000	"
6 "	100	"	"	32,000	"
8 "	100	"	"	24,000	"
12 "	100	"	"	24,000	"
1 rupee	100	"	"	24,000	"
2 rupees	50	"	"	4,800	"
3 "	50	"	"	4,800	"
5 "	50	"	"	4,800	"

If these numbers are correct and there is no reason to doubt their accuracy it would appear that present catalogue values of these stamps, especially the 2, 3 and 5 rupees, are ridiculously inadequate. As a matter of fact the actual numbers sold were less than these quantities as reference to the chapter dealing with the remainders will show.

BOOK REVIEW.

"The Stamp Collectors' Annual and Philatelic Year Book for 1923" is just at hand. It is published by the Philatelic Magazine, 87 Emmanuel Road, London S. W. 12, England. The price of the book postfree is 2sh 9d, and it may be obtained from the publishers. The book before us is published along the lines of the previous books of the series and gives a large amount of useful information suitable not only for the dealer but the collector as well. There is a directory of the philatelic societies of the English speaking world and a most useful philatelic literary index for 1921-22. A list of the discoveries of the year, the new stamps issued, and the new colonies recently born provide us with chapters of interest. The book is edited by Douglas B. Armstrong.

PHILATELY IN SWITZERLAND.

By Lowell J. Ragatz.

To write on stamp collecting in the country of the Alps without making liberal mention of the Szekula brothers, would be like staging Anna Christie without the central figure in the cast. Although they have been established in Switzerland for less than ten years, they have long since made Lucerne synonymous for stamps, and Switzerland one of the great sources of supply for things stampic.

There are four brothers, Bela, Geza, Eugen and Franz. Bela Szekula was a leading Hungarian dealer at the outbreak of the war, when he transferred his business to Lucerne. For some time he engaged chiefly in a wholesale business. More lately he has specialized in the sale of rarities and of large collections. He is absent from Lucerne most of the time, visiting philatelic centers. He is a frequent visitor to America, and many of the large collections offered by American stamp firms within the past few years have been purchased from him. One New York dealer alone purchased thirty such collections of him on a recent trip.

Mr. Geza Szekula and Mr. Eugen Szekula are now engaged in the stamp business on their own accounts. The youngest brother, Franz, has been in America for two years and has lately opened an office.

Both Messrs. Bela and Geza Szekula were out of town on business at the time of my visit to Lucerne. The latter's office was in charge of an efficient French manager. A number of lady assistants were engaged in making up approval selections.

I found Mr. Eugen Szekula at home in his picturesque villa far up in the hills overlooking the city and lake. It is reached by climbing a steep and narrow roadway leading through English gardens. Mr. Szekula is a distinguished looking gentleman in the prime of life. His home is most luxurious. He is himself a collector of art objects, and Italian Renaissance furniture, paintings, a choice library in de luxe bindings, porcelain and gold and silver statues, lace-work of exquisite design and a cabinet of medals, miniatures and ivory carvings garnered from the corners of Europe during extensive travels, reveal the good tastes of their owner.

Mr. Szekula is somewhat of a linguist. He was in New York at the time of the philatelic exposition and learned English then. We conversed in German for the most part, however. According to him, there are more collectors in little Switzerland than in the whole United States. There may not be so many outstanding great collections, but there are very many fine ones. Swiss collectors are not in the habit of spending large amounts at one time. but will buy 20 to 40 francs worth a sending, regularly, year in, year out.

On the whole, the stamp business in Switzerland is carried on by mail. The Swiss collectors are very honest—there is very seldom any trouble in regard to sendings. The European collectors know their stamps better than Americans do. Also, they seem to get more pleasure from them. This is probably due, thinks Mr. Szekula, to the fact that so many Americans regard collecting as a form of investment rather than as a hobby. There is nothing corresponding to the finding of several hundred 5c 1847 in one collection, for example.

The Swiss collectors prefer used to unused stamps, with the result that the latter are rather unsalable. Unless a stamp is cancelled, collectors suspect its genuineness, with the result that cancelled to order goods are a regular part of every dealer's stock. Collectors fail to realize that a postmark is not a sign of a stamp having done actual service, or that in the case of rare used items, the postmark can be easily faked by unscrupulous dealers.

Mr. Szekula says that the market in Europe is at present freer from counterfeits than it has been for some decades, but that never before was there such a flood of skilfully repaired stamps. Most of these seem to emanate from Germany, where dealers in general are refusing to sell their best wares. These repaired stamps are offered in every way, even in "old" collections, made up for the express purpose of working off seconds and thirds put into A1 condition. The work on these items is so well done that close examination only reveals their true nature. The honest European dealers are much concerned with this matter.

Mr. Szekula is of the opinion that American dealers do not devote as much time to their business as most European dealers do. He says that he is frequently at his desk at 7 in the morning, and certainly by 8, whereas he knows from personal experience and from the later reports of his brothers that American dealers can seldom be found in by 10.

A small dealer is located in the heart of the tourist quarter in Lucerne. His specialty is collections of Swiss stamps made up for visiting foreigners and sold at prices which exceed catalogue. Another practice of his is pricing stamps at Yvert's (in French francs) and marking the net price in Swiss francs, apparently big discount, but actua more than catalogue, exchange sidered. This same dealer offers value British colonials with black tax cancellations as postally used Similarly, he offers Egyptian and B high values with custom house and graph cancellations respectively postal cancellation prices.

Maison Moosmann, with a shop the American Express Company, o as such a set of fac-simile large U States Newspaper stamps that I never seen before. The 5c was in the 10c in yellow, and the 25c in and orange red. The price for t was but 3 francs, which is extr low as those who have tried to such items for reference or cur collections can testify.

"When you hear of Zurich, thi Edouard Locher". Readers of WEEKLY have become very familiar Mr. Locher's advertisements feat war stamps and the celebrated L war stamp catalogue. Arriving Zurich, therefore, my first objectiv his office. In vain did I look "Avenue de la Garre" in my Baed and in a city guide. There simpl no street bearing such a name. I set out for a walk, and leaving my turned into the first main thorough saw. I noticed the name, "Bah strasse". The mystery was solved, on the much-looked for Avenue Garre, bearing its name in the or German.

he WEEKLY is a fine paper, both the reading and advertising point iew. We have built up a large ican business through the use of lumns," he said.

Locher has what is without ques- he largest stock of war stamps in orld. He showed me a large cup- , safe and trunk filled with stacks eets.

is is only a small part of what ave," he said. "It is what we carry nd for the purpose of filling orders. ave 20,000 and 25,000 copies of varieties, and of course we carry of this as reserve stock. If we ll our stock here the place would cluttered up with piles of sheets we couldn't walk around. I'd have e to be 125 years old if I were to ny present stock myself. I guess ave to leave a lot to my children, ey'll have plenty to leave to theirs," id with a chuckle.

ong the items I noted were huge es of Belgien on Germany sur- es, Austria, Hungary, Poland, and enstein issues. One box contained each cancelled to order on cover f Poland on Germany and certain sian issue sets.

ile there are immense lots of cer- entral-European issues in existence, tamps as a whole, in Mr. Locher's n, are one of the best investments sle. There have been some un- ary issues and certain countries' ions are tainted by speculation, but by far of the war issues were is- to meet legitimate postal needs and unnecessary numbers. The com- stamps brighten boys' approval ions and enable them to form at- ve collections at small cost. Their is infinitely higher than that of Seebecks which most present-day tors once gloried in. As for the majority of war issues, there are no great reserve stocks of them and such as are being held are rapidly being absorbed. The great drop in the catalogue prices of many issues two years ago was due to the fact that supplies were long kept off the market artificially. Many issues are priced too low at present, and an upward trend has already begun. Stanley Gibbons' decision to catalogue late enemy issues has brought a flood of orders from English dealers.

METROPOLITAN STAMP CO., 7 West 42nd St., New York City.

Mr. Locher's business is largely a wholesale one. His connections are world-wide. The morning I called, orders from eight foreign countries were in the process of being filled. Mr. Locher is a member of the A.S.D.A. and is at present supplying a considerable number of America's largest dealers with their war stocks.

Mr. Locher characterized business conditions as "never being better." During the war, allied dealers resorted to Switzerland for their Neurope issues and vice versa. The stamp business boomed. Directly after Armistice Day came the flood of German wholesale offers which left many a dealer with drawers filled with unsolicited goods which had not been accompanied by return postage charges. For a time, Swiss dealers suffered from a period of depression, but between the clearing out of the greater part of German holdings and the adoption of the habit of quoting in dollar prices on the part of German sellers, the Swiss stocks remain the largest in existence and the prices are considerably below the German ones. The result has been a renewed boom.

There are few auctions in Switzerland, says Mr. Locher, because Swiss collectors distrust items sold in that way. The last sale was held two years ago, at the time of the international dealers' conference. That sale was largely a wholesale one, with the Zumstein Company which held it disposing of the German colonial issues remainders in lots up to 15,000 of a variety.

Mr. Locher remarked, also, on the great number of counterfeit Russian, Azerbaijan, and Batoum issues now being offered from Hamburg, where they are made for the trade. Sample lots have been sent him on numerous occasions, and he understood that considerable quantities had been placed in Paris, London, and New York. He spoke also of the greatly increased number of repaired stamps on the market. They seem to come from a common source, as the repair work is all of the same nature.

The E. Luder-Edelmann Company has offices on the same floor as Mr. Locher. A choice lot of rarities, especially early European issues, is generally carried on hand. At the time of my call, stock was rather low, as Mr. Luder had just returned from a nine-week business trip to America where he had left the greater part of the lot of choice goods he had crossed with, behind him.

Ernst Saner has two offices, one in Zurich and the other in Berne. I visited both. The former is a large front office overlooking Bahnhofstrasse and directly above the local American Express Company office. A specialty of this firm is Swiss stamps, wholesale and retail. The stock is highly specialized, and scores of unfamiliar varieties greeted my eyes. Perforation and paper differences which pass wholly unnoticed in the States are carefully considered, with the result that a complete collection of even the commoner varieties is a difficult one to form. At the Berne office, I saw cancelled sheets of the high franc values. These stamps are cancelled in that form and given as receipts at the time publishers pay for the mailing of papers or magazines. A large lot of the two series of League of Nations surcharges was being prepared for export. These items are procurable in Geneva, but foreign dealers have, in general, not known how to get them direct and have, therefore, relied upon Swiss wholesalers for their supplies.

Zumstein and Company are, probably, the largest Swiss stamp firm. Although their name is scarcely known to collectors across the Atlantic, this is due to the fact that they have done little foreign retail selling. As wholesalers, however, they are well known. Two years ago, they placed one of the largest lots of government remainders ever handled by a dealer, the Berlin stock of mint German colonials. Their European catalogue is the standard Swiss catalogue for those stamps, and their house-organ is one which might well be read with great profit by the American collector who is seeking superb copies of classics and is willing to pay the prices such goods command.

I have been instructed by the Canada Trust Company of London to place on the market at an average price of 50% of Scott's 1923 catalogue, the stock of the Prefect Stamp and Coin Company, and the private Collection of the late C. EDITORIAL.

The conventions at Washington are considered rightly the most important events of the current philatelic year and we are sure that the annual meetings of the largest dealers' association and of the greatest collectors' society will be conducive of better things for philately. The progress of the A. P. S. and the A. S. D. A. will be at an accelerated pace now that the last vestiges of provincialism that have been adhering to philately in this country are crumbling away. It is something of a privilege to have a hand in shaping philatelic legislation in America through the acts of the convention and no one who has a message that is at all in keeping with reason is turned away unheard. Washington, too, will furnish an entertainment that cannot be duplicated in certain of its significances, anywhere else. We are glad to ballyhoo for the conventions as they are our annual demonstrations of strength and stamina.

From Mr. J. B. Parker of Regina, Canada, we have received a copy of the Regina Daily Post for June 25th, in which mention is made of a forthcoming stamp for Canada of the denomination of one dollar. The post office bulletin issued from Ottawa says that the new stamp will be ready about the first of July. The stamp will be printed in red and will be of the same design of the other stamps of the current set. We notice in the Regina Daily Post of a few days before a happily conceived sketch of that loyal collector, Mr. J. B. Parker of Regina, whose birthday is that of the Prince of Wales, June 23rd; and with this sentimental basis, an appreciative biography is given of Mr. Parker, who indeed qualifies as a patriot and a pioneer while we all know of his sterling qualities as a philatelist.

For some weeks a clipping of two columns' length from a Kitchener, Canada, newspaper, has been lying on our desk and it is time that we made use of it, inasmuch as it tells of a valiant philatelic heart that showed its ruling passion, strong in death. There died recently in Kitchener a collector named Paul Pequegnat, who followed the trade of jeweler. His bedroom was papered with stamps chiefly of Canadian issues, to the number of about seventy thousand. However, the wall-paper was in the nature of a duplicate collection as Mr. Pequegnat had a good collection of stamps, including some of the more desirable issues, but what impresses us most is that when "during his fatal illness, his friends wished to move him to their homes or to the hospital, he insisted on staying with his stamps saying, that if death should come, he wanted to be with his stamps when it came." We are quite ready to believe that this account of extreme devotion to stamps is not stretching the truth as we could cite examples of similar depth of interest in stamps shown by collectors. Indeed, with all our experience to fall back on, we are astounded occasionally to see how strong the philatelic thrall is. Stamps engage the thoughts of a collector's waking hours and are the subject of his dreams at night; and he may be said to live for stamps. It is easily understood how such a collector would not care to be parted from his stamps in the hours of his impending dissolution.

We have received a number of proxies from members of the American Philatelic Society for use at the Washington convention; and one member asks that we bring before the convention the suggestion that the A. P. S. plan the basis for a history of philately in America. Twenty-five years ago we outlined how a history of the kind should be written and at times since then we have reverted to the subject. We do not think that the A. P. S. need give serious attention to this enterprise as there is work nearer at hand to engage its endeavors. So long as there is opportunity for practical work connected with the present to take advantage of, the national society may plead more pressing engagements. We think that the history when it comes will be a sort of inspirational work and that some one will arise to start the movement by dedicating himself to it. We think that the local societies in the larger cities might well devote themselves to the task of preserving local philatelic history by making it a matter of record, private or public.

The reference to the business card of Mason & Wells in the issue of June 30th, caught the eye of several old collectors who find it no feat to remember back over fifty years; and they are not grey-beards, either. The plastic mind of youth retains philatelic memories indelibly, especially when the impressions were received at a period when stamps were found only in covert places and not on the open road, as today. Mr. Mason of Mason & Wells published Mason's Monthly Coin and Stamp Collectors' Magazine, which existed from 1867 to 1871; the first two volumes were published by Mason and Wells and the subsequent volumes by Mason and Company. Mr. Mason of Philadelphia was more of a coin man than philatelist, but even so, it is not to be said that his liking for stamps was merely a mercantile one. He loaned a human quality to his editorship and for some time he was in quest of a stamp editor for his paper. In time, Mr. Mason secured the services of L. W. Durbin, who later became one of the best dealers of his day; and it was his large catalogue issued about 1888 that first listed watermarks in this country. Speaking of old philatelic business "cards" we might add that we have a sticker in a fourth edition Gray's c logue, 1866, that represents ano Philadelphia institution: "From A. Kline, Dealer in American and For Postage and Despatch Stamps, Coins Medals, and Continental Paper Mo 824 Walnut Street, Phil'a, Pa." K may have been Philadelphia's ear dealer.

Our correspondent was right in ing that the postal department cont plated the issue of a special deli envelope and he has sent us the offi reference to the subject. We certa cannot object to an accommodation of kind although as we have said we first place to the registered envelope special paper as a necessity. We with favor on the evident desire of postal administration to make its ser a superior one by furnishing all latest improvements for patrons.

ADMIRAL A. G. WINTERHALTER.

A portrait of the late Admiral Albert G. Winterhalter painted by Percy Ives was recently placed on exhibition at the Detroit Museum of Art. It will later be given by the family to the Winterhalter School, located at the corner of Broad St. and Cortland Av. Admiral Winterhalter was a native of Detroit and according to the Detroit Free Press attained a rank in the navy "equaled only by Admiral Dewey. He took part in the Spanish War, arranged the naval share of the transfer of Hawaiian sovereignty to the United States and was the only foreign naval representative at the accession of the Emperor of Japan".

Admiral Winterhalter was known as an ardent philatelist and died in 1920. His cut published herewith was obtained by courtesy of Herman W. Boers from the Detroit Abend Post.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Cards are out announcing the marriage of the well-known Washington dealer C. E. Nickles. The happy event took place June 27 at Washington, D. C. The congratulations of the WEEKLY are extended.

—The second annual convention of the Precancel Stamp Society will be held at Washington, D. C., the 17th and 18th of August.

—We have received a new advertising cancellation from Helena, Mont., reading "National Forests Are For Use". Thanks to A. A. Wasserscheid.

—Karl Hennig, the Weimar dealer, has sent us a commemorative medal just issued by Germany in the interests of the occupied Ruhr District. It is evidently being distributed for the purpose of raising funds for the benefit of the population. The portrait on the medal is that of the German minister, von Stein, who is well known for his connection with the German cause during the first French occupation following the French Revolution in 1793.

—We have received from M. Garcia of Dayton, Ohio, a letter expressing great satisfaction with the manner in which he has been treated by the Philatelic Stamp Agency at Washington.

—J. T.—Your stamp is a Mexican revenue. This late reply through the WEEKLY is due to your failure to enclose a stamped addressed envelope for personal reply.

—The WEEKLY makes it a practice to enclose a stamped addressed envelope whenever a letter is sent out that requests information. We consider this a common courtesy and collectors should not expect replies to communications unless they observe the proprieties in this direction.

—Harold H. Shepard has purchased the stamp business of E. T. Putnam of Amherst. Mr. Putnam is engaged in business in other directions and will not now be able to give attention to stamps. Mr. Shepard has built up quite a reputation for business integrity and we wish him all success in his future business operations.

—"Regarding the two articles which have appeared in MEKEEL'S lately about carbon tetrachloride. Here is my experience with procuring it and maybe it will help someone else from having to go to two or three stores before they get it. I went to two drug stores and they did not keep it in stock on account of its not keeping over thirty days and not having much demand for it; the third drug store had it under the trade name of "Carbona Cleaning Fluid" and the price was 30c for four ounces. I tried it out and it sure brought out the watermarks and the odor was not quite as bad as I was led to believe by Mr. Dietz's article."—P. SHORT.

COUNT THEM.

It will require 354,388,000 envelopes to enclose the mail of the government next year, and, as an indication of what these figures mean, the post-office department announced today that a contract had been let for 140,000,000 official envelopes for that department alone at a cost of $178,061. The purchase of envelopes for the government is centralized in the post-office department for purposes of economy.—Newspaper.

DR. TEDESCHE ON THE HONOR ROLL.

A five years' renewal of subscription has been received from Leon G. Tedesche, M. D., Cincinnati, O., and we take great pleasure in adding his name to our Five Year Honor Subscription Roll. We now have a goodly membership and consider it nearly time to organize. There is a certain qualification for official honors that will be indicated in due season. Who next?

HANDLE WITH CARE.

I wonder if your eagle eye discovered the following reference to our beloved hobby on page 485 of the May issue of the National Geographic Magazine under an article entitled "At the Tomb of Tutankhamen?" Here it is:

"On Monday, the day after the official opening, I entered the tomb, with the first small group of correspondents. It was a stamp collector in Beirut who made me understand the precautions taken by the excavators on the first day when the inner opening was revealed to the correspondents. I started to pick up one of his treasures in my bare hand and he almost cried with pain. He quickly passed me some delicate tweezers with which I could examine the stamp at leisure. He realized that I could not understand his case, but he forced me to be careful."

Every collector of stamps will appreciate the above situation. I dare say each of us has had a similar experience. The author of the story is Mr. Maynard Owen Williams and I consider his reference quite a compliment to the stamp collector. I have always maintained that aside from the educational value of stamp collecting, it teaches one to be careful, neat and systematic.

A Magnificent United States 20th Century Collection

I have recently purchased and offered for sale a very fine 20th century United States collection in unused condition gotten together by one who appreciated condition. It contains mint singles, pairs, strips and blocks, nothing cancelled.

I note the 1901 issue complete, the 1902 through the $2, the 1908 complete with two shades of the $1, the 1910 complete, the 1912 complete with both 50c and the $1, a perfection plate block of 12 of No. 388, the perf. 10 set through the 30c, both perforations of the Panama-Pacific complete, many imperforate blocks, Parcel Post complete; a wonderful lot of coils, including No. 370i, practically all except the rarities; most of the booklet panes; a mint block of the scarce type I 2c surface imperf. and others.

All neatly mounted in a loose leaf oriel type album, expertly hand lettered. Must be seen to be appreciated. Contains 791 stamps, face value $40.07, catalogues by Scott at $233.39, and is really an investment at the reasonable figure of $105.00. First check for $105.00 takes it. Returnable if not entirely satisfactory. Only one, and it could hardly be duplicated at twice the figure.

Are You Interested in Old U.S. Stamps?

So am I to the tune of about $25,000. I stayed off the foreign end of the game to give others a chance, but when it comes to good old U. So if you wish to add a few nice things to your album, let me talk to you, or rather, tell me what you would like to purchase. Satisfy me your credit is first class and let me send something interesting for you to look over.

I have quite a few thousand invested in B. N. A., too, just good American stamps, that are as sound as bonds, unless I am badly fooled, and I ought to know a little about stamps, having started my first collection in 1881. Write before you forget the address. It is—

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—The "Monthly Supplement" to the Postal Guide issued by the Post Office Department is fast becoming a regular magazine with its heart interest stories, jokes and the like.

> "When great King George ruled o'er this land,
> This land of you and me,
> Ben Franklin was our postmaster;
> A patriot was he.
> The mails were used to bear the word:
> 'We'll Freedom's standard rise.'
> The King got mad, but the folks were glad,
> In old Ben Franklin's days."

This, we are told, is a stanza of a popular song introduced by the American teachers in the Eskimo colony at Point Barrow, the jumping off place of farthest north Alaska, within the Arctic Circle. From this point mail is carried to the extreme northern points by Ned Nushunginya, who covers the six hundred and fifty miles of icy Arctic coast via dog team.

Another article is devoted to the philatelic exhibit of the United States Government made up for the International affair at London and this is illustrated by a photograph of the exhibit with Mr. Warren Irving Glover, Third Assistant Postmaster General, alongside.

Stamp collectors will also be interested in a very unusual story dealing with the American Mails in 1773 as taken from the diary of Hugh Finlay, Deputy Postmaster General of Canada.

On the morning of September 13, 1773, Finlay with a small party set out from Quebec to blaze a postal trail and make a survey of the established routes and post-offices of the thirteen American colonies. Finlay kept a daily journal of his entire trip from Quebec to Savannah and this, from which the Guide makes various quotations, presents a graphic picture of the postal service in America on the eve of the Revolution.

The old post route map used by Finlay, and said to be the earliest known map of the post roads in the United States, illustrates the article.

We are also told that Mr. Walter B. Wisely, the last American Expeditionary Force Postal Agent to leave Europe, is home and that he closed office No. 927 at Coblenz, Germany, when the American troops left. This was the last of ten American Post Offices on German soil.

Many other short notes of interest to the postal service in addition to new rules and regulations are to be found in the "Supplement" for June, 1923.

A special notice sent out by the department to the press states that for 62 years the Post Office Department has carried on its books a debit of nearly forty thousand dollars charged against four Southern cities—New Orleans, Savannah, Galveston and Little Rock. There seems to be no hope of wiping out these debts and they probably will be carried on indefinitely, or until Congress sees fit to charge them to profit and loss.

Every time a balance is struck and every time the Postmaster General issues his annual report the entries must be taken into consideration to make the account balance. So old has the account become and so accustomed have the post-office clerks become to taking it into consideration that it was difficult to find the proper explanation. At last one was discovered familiar with its history.

In 1861, he said, Confederate forces took possession of Federal postal funds at these four cities in the amounts detailed in the notice. In 1912 legislation was offered in Congress to have the accounts wiped from the books. An amendment, however, was accepted providing that the books should be kept open so that the money could be received in the event it was offered. The amendment had the effect of nullifying the bill so the accounts are still carried on the books. In other words, Congress tells the department to wipe it off the books and then tells them to still keep it open. I wonder what the thought in the mind of the Congressman who offered the amendment happened to be. Did he think that the Confederate government would some day have sufficient funds to pay the account?

We wish to thank Dr. George Hetrick, Mr. Leslie P. Bigelow and Mr. E. S. Ward for notes of interest.

BRITISH GUIANA.—We have received from Mr. R. Roberts a copy of the 72c on script watermarked paper.

CANADA.—Mr. A. A. Wasserscheid reports the 3c brown King George stamp has just been received in imperforate condition.

FIUME.—The Bulletin Mensuel reports the 60c carmine and the 2L blue in a new design of Special Delivery stamps. They are oblong in shape and have "Poste di Fiume" at the top with "Espresso" at the base. The stamps are perf. 11.

IRELAND.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us a copy of the 1sh, Sword of Light design, in blue. The watermark and perforation are as before.

IRAQ.—Two ladies, it appears, are responsible for the designs of the striking series of Iraq "definitives," i.e., Miss Edith Cheesman for the ½, 1, 4, 6 and 8 annas, and 2, 5 and 10 rupees, and Mrs. Colin C. Garbett for the 1½, 2 and 3 annas (the latter not yet issued) and the 1 rupee, "Serpents and Tree of Life." Miss Cheesman called at the offices of Stamp Collecting the other day. Mrs. Garbett is the wife of the political secretary to Sir Percy Cox (High Commissioner for Mesopotamia), and is related, we believe, to the Bishop of Southwark.

The 1 rupee was typographed and the others engraved and printed by Messrs. Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., Ltd.—Stamp Collecting.

KEDAH.—A Singapore subscriber, Mr. G. Armstrong, writes that he has the 50c on $2 (1919) with the "c" omitted and inserted by hand. This, he says, is very noticeable "because it is a bit lower than the other four letters in 'Cents'"; it apparently occurs once in a sheet, in the bottom row—5th stamp.—Stamp Coll ing.

LIECHTENSTEIN.—Although it is g erally held that issues other than th with portrait of "Prince" John are product of a commercial syndicate, Denton Hepworth has shown us a p ally used pair of the 20rp, purple black ("Fuerstentum, Liechtenstein —Stamp Collecting LUXEMBURG.—We are advised by Henry Hooreman that the new 3fr sta now in preparation promises to be more handsome than the 1, 2 and values. The shade is not yet decided but perhaps it will be a pale green will be made in Austria.

EVIEW OF TWO IMPORTANT HANDBOOKS.

ew material for Philatelic Libraries, ch was very much interferred with he World War, has during the last e years been making up for lost time, cially in separate works. Germany England are responsible for most of e.

he two books that I wish to draw tion to have just been published:

) "The Postage Stamps of Great ain 1840-1922. Illustrated." By Sid- A. R. Oliver, Hon. Secretary Tor- Philatelic Society, Member London p Club, etc., and F. Hugh Vallancey, ident London Stamp Club, Member cutive Committee, Philatelic Con- s of Great Britain, etc. Published he Office of Stamp Collecting, 89 ingdon Street, Ludgate Circus, Lon- E. C. 4. 1923. (All rights reserved.) pp., 8¾x5½ in., three editions: Regular Edition, bound brown , price ?; (2) Subscribers' ion, 100 copies printed, signed by Vallancey, bound in ½ morocco and (red), price 1/1/-; (3) Authors' leaved Edition, 10 copies printed, as Subscribers' Ed. with inter- s.

e first reference on all the stamps reat Britain was published in 1881; Postage and Telegraph Stamps of t Britain (with upwards of 100 trations)." By Frederick A. Phil- and William A. S. Westoby, is and ys will be a mine of information will always be of use in the com- g of articles on Great Britain ps to date of publication. The sec- work, "A History of the Adhesive ps of the British Isles Available for al and Telegraph Purposes (With ve Plates of Photo-Mezzotype trations and Twenty-six Plates of rams.)" Compiled from Official ces by Hastings E. Wright and A. reeke, Jr., published in 1899, by The telic Society, London (now The l Philatelic Society) is of course greatest authority. A Supplement ared in 1903. Besides these two s there are two others which are ast word upon the issues of which treat: "The Line-Engraved Post- Stamps of Great Britain Printed By ins Bacon & Co." By Edward y Bacon, in two volumes, published 920; and "Plating of the Penny Postage Stamp of Great Britain, With a description of each indi- l stamp, etc." By Charles Nissen d Bertram McGowan, 1922. Besides there are many smaller handbooks r the beginner or medium collector iled by Messrs. Fred. J. Melville, Vard, Stanley Phillips, etc.

is latest work besides being right up to date is unique in having bibliographical notes after each section and for that reason will always be a standard reference work. The ignoring of giving a bibliography of the works consulted in compilation of our greatest reference books has been a serious draw-back in the past, but I think that the future will tell a different story. The list of Contents in this new handbook on the stamps of Great Britain is by far the best review that can be given, so here it is:

Section I.—A Brief Outline of Postal History prior to 1840. Table of Inland Postal Charges, 1635 to 1922. Bibliography. The Mulready Envelopes and Letter Sheets. Bibliography.

Section II.—The Line Engraved Stamps. Evolution of the First Stamps. Postal Notices. The Line Engraved Issues. Bibliography.

Section III.—The Embossed Series of Stamps. Introduction. The Embossed Stamps. Check list. Bibliography.

(2) "Phantom Philately. A descriptive List of Stamps that are not what they seem." By Fred. J. Melville, President of the Junior Philatelic Society. London: MCMXXIII. The Philatelic Institute, 26 Plumstead High Street, London. 204 pp., 7-⅜x4-⅞in., bound in brown cloth, price, 8/0.

Mr. Melville has given us many handbooks on stamps but he has never published a more important work than this. Anyone who is familiar with the contents of Stamp Collectors' Magazine, of Bath (1863-74); Philatelist, of Brighton (1867-76); Timbre-Post, of Brussels (1863-1900); and many of the later magazines, find chronicled and illustrated many stamps which are not mentioned in the catalogues of today because they were altogether bogus or of official or private speculation. In almost all old time Collections are found some of these impostors. Also the best authorities have been deceived and certain of these stamps have been chronicled and catalogued. A few of these are: Bolivia Railway Issue, 1892; Bokhara, 1886; Brunei, 1894; Clipperton Island, 1895; Confederate States: Blockade Stamp, C. S. of A. Postage; Buck's Richmond Express, Richmond City-Post, Magic Letter Express (Richmond), Charleston P. O. (Fort Sumter), etc.; Counani 1887 & 1893; Formosa; Franz-Joseph Land 1874; Greenland 1905-16; Ireland; Labrador 1908; Moresnet 1867, 1886; Nova Potuca, 1893; Sedang 1889; Trinidad (Principality of) 1894. This book describes and illustrates many such stamps with bibliographic notes and will be found of the greatest benefit to all collectors. My advice is add it to your library at once.

COUNTRIES PLAN EXHIBITIONS.

Czechoslovakia and Austria Announce Events for This Summer.

American postage stamp collectors who did not win gold medals in the recent international exhibition at London will have an opportunity to try for honors in two other international exhibitions recently announced for European countries. The first will be held at Brunn, in Czechoslovakia, from Aug. 5 to 15, and the second in Vienna from Sept. 1 to 9. The Czechoslovakian philatelic exposition will be the first of the kind ever held in that country. Dr. T. G. Masaryk, President of the republic, who recently has been very ill, is one of the honorary officers of the exhibition, and an elaborate prospectus has been received by several dealers and collectors in this country.

The Vienna exhibition is attracting more attention from American philatelists, and to show their appreciation of the enterprise of the Austrian philatelists in attempting to hold an international stamp exhibition in view of the financial distress of the country, the Directors of the Collectors' Club of this city have offered a gold medal for one of the leading awards, and several members have subscribed a fund, which will soon be sent to the officials of the exhibition. The American Stamp Dealers' Association has also appropriated $100 toward the expenses.

An invitation has been extended to J. Murray Bartels to represent this country as a delegate, but he said yesterday that it was doubtful if he could attend. This will be the first international stamp exhibition held in Vienna since 1911, when a very successful event was held, to which several of the leading American collectors sent valuable exhibits. Among them were Charles Lathrop Pack, who won three gold medals; Mr. Bartels, who won a gold medal with his fine Philippines, including all of the early issues, and H. J. Crocker of California, who won a gold medal for his magnificent collection of early Hawaiian stamps. Mr. Pack won several medals in the late London exhibition, including a grand championship.

Vienna has always been one of the great stamp centres of Europe and before the war it boasted of a coterie of philatelists who not only had splendid collections but whose scientific study of stamps and postal history contributed materially to the literature of philately. The preliminary announcement of the September international exhibition shows that no less than sixty-eight sections for various countries and rarities have been provided for exhibits and awards.

Many of the best postage stamps sold last month in Paris at the seventh auction session of the Ferrary collection were purchased by American collectors and will soon be in this country. The highest price paid for a single specimen in the June sale was 128,075 francs, including the French auction tax, for a copy of the rare Hawaii 2 cents, 1851, type II, but slightly defective. The price is equivalent to about $8,200, and it is reported that Alfred F. Lichtenstein of this city, who was a medal winner in the recent London international exhibition, was the buyer.

A hitherto unknown Confederate States postmaster provision issue in the town of Unionville, S. C., was acquired for an American collector for $1,200. There were two of the stamps on the original envelope, very crudely printed, with a hand-stamped figure "5." The letter was addressed to Colonel William Gist at Centreville, Va. So far as known this is a unique specimen. An American philatelist paid $2,400 for a tetebeche pair of the 1 peso, Buenos Aires, 1858. Until discovered in the Ferrary collection it had never been known that such a variety existed.

Good prices were obtained for copies of the rare inverted 1869 United States issue. The 15-cent stamp, unused, brought $1,360 and the 30-cent stamp $2,300.

The sale was notable for the large number of fine old South Australians and many of the best specimens went to English collectors. The South Australia lot brought a total of $16,600. The entire sale realized about $110,000, bringing the total for the seven Ferrary sessions to more than $1,000,000. Another sale will be held in October or November, the feature of which will be the Great Britain collection.—N. Y. Times.

THE NEW ISSUE.

By F. J. P. Veale.

It is the highly commendable custom of the philatelists of B—— to hold monthly meetings during the winter. At these fraternal gatherings exchanges of duplicates can be arranged, catalogue prices criticised and new issues discussed.

Now it happened at one of our meetings, Tomkins, one of our most distinguished members, had waxed eloquent and wrathful about what he termed the universal decadence of the postage stamp.

"Compare," he said, "the current issue of the average European country and its issue in the 'eighties. Look at Hungary—could anything be more unsuitable for a postage stamp than a view of two peasants cutting corn? And why this mania for agricultural themes? Why must that ubiquitous 'sower' flaunt himself on half the new stamps in our albums? A State that adds to these 'sower' atrocities ought to be put under the ban of the League of Nations! Symbolism is all right, but it is out of place on a postage stamp, and anyway there is no room for it."

"But all new issues don't have this symbolic stuff," someone objected. "Look at the new issue of L—— for instance. They are plain enough—a pink square of paper with a plain black figure in the middle. What do you think of them?"

A general chorus of candid disapproval arose, until it was remembered that a citizen of this erring State was present, a Mr. Raymond, who was visiting our town on business, and, being an ardent philatelist, had accepted an invitation to our gathering.

He did not take our comments in ill-part however. "I know they are plain," he remarked in the tone of one used to making the admission.

"It is not that they are plain, sir," replied Tomkins. "It is that they are no design at all. Anyone with some red and black ink could forge one in two minutes."

"There is a story attached to that issue," M. Raymond remarked, "which if you would care to listen I will narrate to you. You know, of course, that my countrymen are admittedly a very artistic people. You can imagine, therefore, how severely the old issue, which was designed over forty years ago, was criticised by the advanced schools of art in the Capital. You can imagine also how keen was the interest when it was announced that there was to be a new issue, and that a public competition would be held for the new design."

"You went from the frying-pan into the fire," interrupted the reactionary Tomkins.

"It was announced also that a certain very illustrious personage had himself decided to judge the designs entered. Pretty well everybody who claimed to be anything in the artistic world, entered—even old Blanque. You have heard of him perhaps. Once he was a famous artist, but now he is looked upon as a mere relic of the past. And the reason for this is that when he paints a flock of sheep they represent sheep only, and the shepherd driving them does not represent 'Death' or 'Human Progress' or anything like that, but is just a shepherd. No wonder the Symbolists and Impressionists laughed at him. All he says is that he is too old to change, and that he can only paint things as they are. A few days before the exhibition he came to me looking pale and worried.

"'It is that infernal new postage stamp,' he replied, in answer to my questions. 'I lie awake at night and yet can think of no design. Cannot you think of something original?'

"'A Sower,' I suggested.

"He made a gesture of despair. 'Bruhl has thirty art students,' he said, 'and everyone of them is entering a "Sower" or a "Ploughman." I thought of entering the National Arms as a design.'

"'No good,' I said, 'it is not an original design—and besides it was on the old issue which everybody abuses so now.'

"Blanque with another despairing gesture, left me.

"At last the day of the exhibition arrived. The arrangement was that each competitor was to hand his design to the Illustrious Personage beforementioned, who, having admired it (or otherwise), would hand it to an attendant to hang up in public. When all were thus exhibited, he could stroll around and make up his mind which he liked best.

"I noticed that the Illustrious Person looked a little surprised and discomfited at sight of the multitude of the competitors. It was obvious at once that if he could get done without being late for dinner, it was the best he could hope for. He put on his glasses in a business-like way, and examined the first design submitted to him with care.

"'It is very good,' he remarked, 'but a trifle crowded. What is this derrick on the left?'

"'That is the Goddess of Prosperity holding out the Branch of Plenty over the Cities of Industry.'

"'My eyesight is evidently not very good. Still you haven't left much space for the Cities of Industry, have you? Very ingenious—when you can understand it. Next please. What is this? A star-fish?'

"'Certainly not,' said the indignant artist. 'It's a post-impression of an eagle.'

"'I should have another look at an eagle if I were you. Next! Ah, this is much better—but what is it supposed to be exactly?'

"'It represents,' explained the proud designer, 'the Tower of Human Happiness assailed by Unrest while Bolshevism looks on and laughs.'

"'What, all that on a postage stamp. I thought it was a pyramid in a thunderstorm. And where does Bolshevism come in?'

"The artist pointed out a small dot at the bottom of one corner.

"The Illustrious Person began to wax impatient. 'How can I or anybody else tell whether that little black speck is laughing or not?' he enquired indignantly. 'Who is next? Oh, much too large—a letter with your stamp on it would have no room for an address.'

"The Illustrious Personage had spent some bad half-hours during the course of his stormy political career, but he always looks back on this one with particular horror. His temper grew worse as he proceeded. He was floundering hopelessly through mazes of symbolism, amid nude figures breaking chains in every conceivable attitude; nude figures rising with the sun or flying recklessly over chimney-pots; nude figures scattering seeds sufficient and more than sufficient, for all the wheat fields of Canada. Try as he would he could make nothing of the significance of these designs, and he caused much amusement by confusing a 'Victory' congratulating himself with a 'Plenty' undergoing the process of being reborn.

"To one only did he seem at all favourable. It was the design of Gomez, the famous artist. It portrayed the nude figure of a man clutching the hilt of a sword.

"'This is better—much better. It is perhaps a little too bellicose—a man about to draw his sword. Our great and friendly neighbours might draw a hostile meaning into it.'

"Now it happened Gomez was a well-known Pacifist. 'Anyone with eyes can see he is sheathing his sword,' he snapped rudely. 'It represents the Human Race sheathing the Sword of War.'

"'How can I or anyone else tell whether it is War drawing a sword or Peace sheathing one?' demanded the Illustrious Person indignantly. 'It is impossible to show any such distinction on a postage stamp. Put that one with the others.' We all felt that Gomez had forfeited a good chance by his rudeness.

"'There are two points upon which I wish to remark,' announced the Illustrious Person. 'Firstly, I think all these designs are too ambitious. There is not room on a postage stamp. An acre of canvas is required to express these big ideas. And secondly—although far be it from me to undervalue our countrymen employed in agriculture—no one, in fact, values their votes more than I do—yet I cannot see that sowing and ploughing have anything to do with postage stamps. Therefore if any remaining competitor's design consists of a Sower or anything of that sort, I beg that he will not inflict it on me. I have received over fifty already, and I refuse to attempt the task of judging between their comparative lack of merit.'

"This, of course, cleared off a good number of entries, and at last there was only one left. It was my old friend Blanque. He came forward modestly, and handed his design to the Illustrious Personage.

"The latter examined it with surprise. 'What! A plain red stamp with a plain black numeral printed in the middle! And not even an ornamental border disfiguring it! And what does this "I" typify? Monotheism or National Unity?'

"'Neither,' replied Blanque with surprise. 'It means "one centavo," which is the value of the stamp.'

"'Splendid, marvellous, magnificent. You are a genius. There is no need for me to look again at the other designs. Yours is incomparably superior—and besides I am getting late for supper. I formally award the prize to you, and I select your most ingenious design for the new issue.'

"And that, gentlemen, is the story attached to the new issue of my country about which you all expressed yourselves so freely. Without expressing my own views, I contend that old Blanque thoroughly deserved his triumph. You say that anyone could have designed these stamps? So anyone could have made Columbus' egg stand on end—when he had shown them the way to do it."—Gibbons Monthly Circular.

C. C. C.

By Edward E. Goodchild.

Never was the hunt more keen or the chase more exciting than that for a choice C. C. C.

From Atlantic to Pacific, in every town and hamlet, are the lynx eyed huntsmen keen on the scent of the elusive C. C. C.

A few huntsmen of the old school had reported a year or two ago having seen most extraordinary and rare specimens of the C. C. C., but little or no attention was taken of their timely warning and advice to chase after the beautiful and varied hued tribe of the C. C. C. whilst they were plentiful.

The day, however, arrived, when in a neighboring country, a far sighted leader of the Philatelic Tribe decided to place a value on all the varied C. C. found in that country, with the result that large sums of money were netted to those who were fortunate enough to seek out and sell to persons requiring specimens of the C. C. of that country.

It also happened that one Fred Jarrett having made a study of the many and varied members of the C. C. C. which he had from time to time seen, decided that he too would publish, for the benefit of the members of the Philatelic Hunting Clubs in his native country, and those of other countries who cared to join the country wide chase, a list of same.

Hot grew the chase, and warmer yet will it become. Prices for the various specimens bagged, have risen simply because they were superb specimens of the C. C. C. or Choice Canadian Cancellations of the early Victorian period.

STAMP TAXES AND THE DRUG TRADE.

METHODS USED BY A NUMBER OF WIDELY KNOWN PROPRIETARY MANUFACTURERS YEARS AGO REVEALED BY STAMP COLLECTIONS

By Franklin S. Smith.

To examine closely a good collection of old time proprietary stamps—in the days when they bore the name and trade-mark of the manufacturer—is to look back into the early history of the patent medicine business of America. Mr. Smith, who is a well-known soap manufacturer, has what is considered one of the best collections of old proprietary stamps in existence and is an authority on the stamp tax and its history in relation to the American drug trade.

During the past sixty years the drug trade has borne its own share of taxation, and this has been collected in stamps attached to the packages of proprietary articles. At the time of the Civil War, Congress, realizing that nearly everyone uses medicines, perfumes, cosmetics and playing cards, etc., laid a stamp-tax upon them, which of course was passed on to the consumer, and therefore fairly shared.

To the drug trade the stamps they were obliged to use as part of taxes, were looked upon as an irritant rather than a future asset. Little did Chas. Osgood & Co. think when they used the six cent proprietary stamps for their $1.50 preparations, that in a few years their value to the stamp collector would go from $2.00 in 1877 to $60.00 at the present time. When Starkey & Palen used the 50c green and black stamp on their "Compound Oxygen," they never imagined it would be worth twenty or twenty-five dollars; and as to the $5.00 stamp of the same issue which was used on casks of bay-rum, the present value of from $250 to $350 would compare favorably with a bootlegger's price for "the real stuff."

The Second Session of the 37th Congress passed on July 1, 1862, "An Act to provide Internal Revenue to support the Government and to pay Interest on the Public Debt." This Act provided for a Commissioner of Internal Revenue with authority to provide stamps and dies for denoting the several stamp-duties, to alter and renew such stamps from time to time. The Act required that all stamps used should have the initials of the user and the date upon which the same was used, so that it might not be used again. A penalty of fifty dollars was laid upon any person who fraudulently made use of such a stamp without so effectually cancelling it. A provision was also made that any proprietor of articles subject to stamp-duty might have the privilege of furnishing without expense to the United States his or their own dies or designs for stamps, subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, which should remain in his possession and not to be duplicated for any one else.

"In all cases where such a stamp is used, instead of his or their writing his or their initials and the date thereon, the said stamp shall be so affixed on the box, bottle or package that in opening the same, or in using the contents thereof, the said stamp shall be effectually destroyed, and in default thereof shall be liable to the same penalty imposed for neglect to affix such stamp as hereinbefore prescribed by this act." Counterfeiting, and the use of counterfeits were forbidden and penalties declared. "And be it further enacted:—That on and after the first day of August, 1862, no person or persons, firms, companies or corporations shall make, prepare, and sell, or remove for consumption or sale, drugs, medicines, preparations, compositions, articles or things, including perfumery, cosmetics, and playing cards, upon which a duty is imposed by this act, as enumerated and mentioned in Schedule C, without affixing thereto an adhesive stamp or label denoting the duty before mentioned, and in default thereof shall incur a penalty of ten dollars. Provided:—That nothing in this act contained shall apply to any uncompounded medicine drug or chemical, nor to any medicine compounded according to the United States or any other national pharmacopoeia, nor of which the full and proper formula is published in either of the dispensatories, formularies or textbooks in common use among physicians and apothecaries, including homeopathic and eclectic, or in any pharmaceutical journal now used by any incorporated college or pharmacy, and not sold or offered for sale, or advertised under any other name, form or guise, than that under which they may be severally denominated and laid down in said pharmacopoeias, dispensatories, text-books or journals as aforesaid, nor to medicines sold to or for the use of any person which may be mixed and compounded specially for said persons, according to the written receipe or prescription of any physician or surgeon."

Schedule C was as follows, and is identical in wording with that of Schedule B of the Act of Congress June 13, 1898, providing ways and means for war expenditures and the support of the Government. "Medicinal proprietary articles and preparations: For and upon every box, packet, bottle, pot or phial, or other inclosure, containing any pills, powders, tinctures, troches, lozenges, sirups, cordials, bitters, anodynes, tonics, plasters, liniments, salves, ointments, pastes, drops, waters, essences, spirits, oils, and all medicinal preparations or compositions whatever, wherein the person making or preparing the same has or claims to have any private formula, secret, or occult art for the making or preparing the same, or has or claims to have any exclusive right or title to the making or preparing the same, or which are prepared, uttered, vended, or exposed for sale under any letters patent or trade-mark, or which, if prepared by any formula, published or unpublished, are held out or recommended to the public by the makers, venders, or proprietors thereof as proprietary medicines, or medicinal proprietary articles or preparations, or as remedies or specifics for any disease, diseases, or affection whatever affecting the human or animal body, as follows:

"Where such packet, box, pot, phial or other inclosure with its contents, shall not exceed at the retail price or value, the sum of twenty-five cents, one cent." (Between twenty-five and fifty cents, two cents; between fifty and seventy-five cents, three cents; between seventy-five cents and one dollar, four cents; for each additional fifty cents or fractional part thereof in excess of one dollar, two cents.) Perfumery and cosmetics and other similar articles were taxable to the same amounts for the same values. Butler & Carpenter of Philadelphia held the contract for the engraving and printing of this class of stamps, from August, 1862, to September, 1875.

CANCELLATION WITH PEN AND INK.

While many of the stamps were cancelled as required with pen and ink, the greater majority of them were cancelled by hand-stamps bearing the initials of the proprietors and the dates used, and some of them were cancelled in quantities on a printing press. Many of these vary from the mere initials and dates, and some are quite unique and of artistic design. "Benton's Pine Tree Tar Troches" cancellation is a framed rectangle with a pine-tree in the center with the name, title, and date grouped around the tree symmetrically. Another has a druggist's mortar and pestle with a three-line inscription on the side of it, "Poland's Magic Powder."

A story is told of a hospital patient who had been kept on a restricted diet for some time, and finally the doctor said he was well enough to have some solid food. Visions of a plate of corned-beef and cabbage, a cup of coffee, and a wedge of pie came to him, but the nurse gave him only a small piece of buttered toast, and a few spoonfuls of broth. As she turned away she asked him if there was anything else he wanted, and he asked for a postage-stamp so he could do a little reading. She might have brought him one with the following inscription: "Walker & Taylor, Proprietors. W. B. Sloan's Condition Powders, Horse Ointment, Family Ointment, Instant Relief, P. & B.'s Magic Oil. Irving's Pain Curer, 1866."

This first issue was followed by a two-color design in 1871 with the same portrait, but black with an ornamental frame in green, of the same sizes and values with the addition of a fifty cent, one dollar, and five dollar stamps very much larger. Very few of these high values were used and are therefore valued at twenty-five, one hundred and fifty, and three hundred and fifty dollars respectively. As is not unusual among two-colored stamps the first four values are found with inverted centers, and valued at from sixty to two hundred dollars each. Two shades of paper were used, greenish and violet, both sensitive to cleaning agents to prevent them from being used a second time after cancellation. Many interesting cancellations are found on these stamps.

The next series of various denominations was issued in 1875, the design being a profile bust of Washington after that of Houdon, to left, with the frame in the same color. A green paper was used for this issue similar to that of the black and green with the addition of watermarked paper which was to prevent imitation and counterfeiting. The one cent Proprietary of the first issue was counterfeited, but the chief inclination was to clean the stamps from the cancelling ink. So-called "chemical paper," the use of machines which perforated or cut into the stamps and heavy printed cancellations were used to prevent fraudulent use.

USE OF PRIVATE STAMPS.

The stamps printed from the private dies are of great variety; finely engraved and many of considerable value among collectors. One hundred and thirty-four proprietors used the "medicine," and ten the "perfumery" stamps. Pills, plasters, patent-medicines of many sorts, and "bitters" which consisted largely of alcohol in various forms, all required the stamp-tax. Many of the stamps were long narrow labels put over the top and extending down the sides of the wrapper to insure destruction when opening the package, others were several inches square but most of them the size of the regular issues they replaced. Three hundred varieties are catalogued and a complete collection would be worth several thousand dollars. That of Clarence H.

who died lately was the most com- and has been sold and scattered g different collectors. Nearly all ortraits of the proprietors which ap- d on these private dies are adorned beards of varying length.

rch 3, 1883, an act was passed to e internal revenue taxation and re- d "on and after the first day of 1883, the stamp-tax on bank checks, s, orders, and vouchers, and the tax atches, perfumery, medical prepara- and other articles." The war with in 1898 called for "Ways and s to Meet War Expenditures and Other Purposes," and an act was d June 13, 1898, requiring a tax on ticles as given in the Act of July 1, but in less amount, as follows: e the retail price is five cents, one h of one cent, and for every addi- five cents, an eighth of one cent up cents, and for each additional y-five cents or fraction thereof five- hs of one cent. Twelve values were with numerous shades, ranging ⅛c to 5c.

e same privilege of furnishing their designs for stamps was given proprietors, and fourteen took advantage of it resulting in twenty-nine varieties of private dies with two kinds of perforation. The cancellations on the regular issue are far more numerous than their predecessors, one reason being that collectors of stamps are more numerous and the number of proprietors greater, so that more of them have been preserved. The total number of regular stamps issued from ⅛c to 5c was 1,707,992,644. They were precancelled in part-sheets by various means.

Live and Learn ---- Fine U. S. at 50%

Until by accident we ran for several weeks an advertisement offering to pay full catalog for really fine U. S. stamps we supposed most collectors called a stamp fine when it was a fine and wholly desirable item.

From almost every state in the Union we have had offerings of "fine" stamps. If the majority of the offerings represent what the general run of collectors regard as fine we feel perfectly safe in offering to supply "fine" U. S. from 1847 to 1890 at half catalog price. "Good", sound copies we call them, perhaps a trace soiled, a perf or two nibbed, a little off center, undesirable cancellations, etc. Our stock of U. S. general issues is the most nearly complete we have seen and though we cater particularly for those seeking superb and unusual items at investment prices we can supply stamps in ordinarily "fine" condition as cheap as anyone.

If you are looking for mid-summer bargains, your want-list and usual commercial references will bring you a pleasant surprise. Please note change of address.

J. O. MOORE, Inc., Hammondsport, N. Y.

ST. LOUIS HAD TROUBLE WITH LAW.

As the law requiring stamps went into effect July 1, 1898, and a number of proprietors found difficulty in obtaining them, a number of interesting and now valuable provisionals were issued by various firms. St. Louis particularly seemed to be in trouble, for six or more firms printed labels all worded similarly, to the effect that "Stamps not being obtainable at time of sale and shipment of this package, tax will be paid on sworn returns thereof to Collector of Internal Revenue, First District of Mo." The Antikamnia Co., two; Lambert Pharmacal Co., one; Meyer Brothers, ten; Jno. T. Milliken & Co., one; Phenique Chemical Co., one; Van Dyke Bitters Co., one. Another scheme was tried with rather disastrous results. The Dr. Kilmer & Co., having a large stock of preparations ready for the market, and knowing that the one cent and two cent postage stamps were being surcharged with a large I. R. for use on bank checks, express receipts, and documents generally, bought a stock of one, two, and three cent stamps and had them cancelled in a similar manner, but with initials and dates as required by the law. The stamps on the packages in the hands of druggists and jobbers had to be replaced, because the stamps being purchased from the post office, that department was receiving the benefit instead of the Internal Revenue, the officially surcharged stamps being transferred to that department at Washington. There are 120 varieties of them, valued by collectors today at from one to ten dollars each.

The Antikamnia Co., and J. Ellwood Lee Co. had monogram cancellations that are more or less popular among the collectors of U. S. Revenues. There are over three hundred and fifty distinct varieties of the AK and thirty-six of J. E. Lee. Of the dates on the private dies of the Emerson Drug Co., printed in "cipher" there are two hundred varieties. The only other private dies bearing printed cancellations are the three of Lanman & Kemp, sixty-two in all beside hand-stamped cancellations on the regular and private dies.

The majority of the 4c stamps were used by the makers of chewing gum who affixed the stamps to the large packages sold to the dealers. The ⅛c T.B.CO. was used on "Sen Sen Gum," and the 2c in pairs bear that name in a typewritten cancellation. The R.C.Co. cancellations were used on "Ripan's Tablets," the letters being the initials of the ingredients used: Rhubarb, Ipecac, Peppermint, Aloes, Nux Vomica, Soda.

The largest number of varieties made by any one firm is that of Keasbey & Mattison Co. Seventy-eight dates numbering over one thousand distinct varieties, including inverts and doubles, besides two hundred or more minor varieties such as misplaced and omitted periods and commas, and typographical errors. There are over one hundred hand-stamped varieties.

It is interesting to note that cancellations on many of the previous issues are found on this 1898 issue, and forty-four of those who had their private dies during the Civil War period of taxation used this later issue. All the owners of the private dies of 1898 used them. Among the cancellations found on all the regular issues of Proprietary stamps are those of E. Fougera & Co., Hall & Ruckel, Humphrey's Homeopathic Medicine Co., Lanman & Kemp, McKesson & Robbins, Chas. Osgood, The Pond's Extract Co., Radway & Co., Tarrant & Co., S. R. Van Duzer, and others.—Drug & Chemical Markets.

DEATH OF A. E. LAWRENCE.

By A. S. DAVENPORT, Yonkers, N. Y.

It is with a great deal of sorrow that I have to advise you of the death of Mr. Albert E. Lawrence of this city on June 22, 1923. A sad case, one of the old time collectors and member of many of the stamp societies, a collector in every sense of the word and a truly fine man. His collection of foreign revenues was known the world over, not to mention his U. S. tin foil revenues and no doubt you will recall his U. S. and Mexican postage collection sold some years ago, worth a young fortune if kept intact till today, and quite a respectable precancelled collection.

CLARENCE J. WEST JOINS THE CLUB.

Our five-year subscription club is growing apace. The latest recruit to its membership list is Clarence J. West of Washington, D. C., chairman of the committee on Bibliography of the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry. Mr. West writes us that he "naturally reads Ward's chronicle of U. S. issues first". When that has been concluded he begins at the front and goes clean through, the advertisements being a most valuable and interesting feature. Mr. West's letter breathes a warm feeling of appreciation and it is substantiated by his remittance of $5 for five years' renewal.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF BELGIUM.

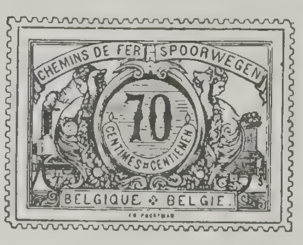
By Bertram W. H. Poole.

PART IV.—THE PARCEL POST STAMPS.

Chapter III.

The Third Issue.

In 1895 it was decided that the inscriptions on the parcels post stamps should be in French and Flemish, a plan which had already been adopted some years previously in the case of the regular postage stamps. The same design was retained, the ribbon scroll at top now being inscribed "CHEMINS DE FER—SPOORWEGEN", while across the bottom is "BELGIQUE—BELGIE" on a long narrow tablet. The numerals for the centimes value were printed in black at a second operation and in the central disc the words "CENTIMES—CENTIMEN" are curved around the lower part. In the 1 and 2 franc values the numerals formed an integral part of the design. These small modifications were the work of Mr. Fr. Poortman, of Malines, and his name appears in small letters in place of that of Mr. Wiener who originated the design.



Stamps in the new type were not all issued together but the respective values made their appearance as supplies of corresponding denominations in the old type were exhausted. The 20 centimes was the first to appear, this being issued on February 10th, 1895. The 50 and 80 centimes values appeared five days later and in the same month the 10 centimes was also placed in circulation. The 15 centimes was issued some time during October, 1895, and on the 15th of November the 25 centimes and 1 franc denominations were placed on sale. The new 2 francs was not required until February 10th, 1897, and some months prior to its appearance a new 60 centime value was issued. This was needed owing to some revision of the parcel rates and the value was authorised by a decree dated December 15th, 1895. For some reason or other delivery of this new denomination was slow and in June, 1896, a special circular was published announcing that, until the new 60c stamps were ready, 50 and 10 centimes stamp might be used to make the rate. The first printing was made in June so it is highly probable the stamps were on sale that month or early in July.

In 1901 further revisions were made in the scale of charges for parcels with a view to securing more uniformity, and a special service order explaining these rates also announced the issue of several new stamps, viz.:—"New railway parcel stamps of frs. 0.30, 0.40, 0.70, 0.90 and 3.00 will be issued shortly so that there may be a sufficient variety of stamps to permit of almost every possible rate being made up by the use of not more than two stamps". Another special order, dated February 24, 1902, stated that "the 30c, 40c, 70c and 90c adhesive stamps have already been issued, and the issue of the 3 francs stamps, which will be of a new design, has been postponed".

Owing to the fact that the numerals were printed at a second operation one plate served for all the centime values, though special plates had to be made for each of the franc denominations. These plates consisted of 100 impressions, as before, and the stamps were printed on white wove paper, some supplies of which were plain while others were watermarked twice in each sheet with one or other of the devices described in our last chapter. The perforation was like that of the preceding issue gauging 15½ at top and bottom and 14½ at the sides of the stamps.

Of some values there was only one printing while of others there were several. Mr. de Bont gives a detailed list of these from which we glean the following salient facts:—

	Printings.	No. of stamps.
10 centimes,	3	934,200
15 "	2	174,300
20 "	4	1,078,000
25 "	4	405,000
30 "	1	294,000
40 "	1	297,800
50 "	9	5,308,400
60 "	4	2,873,400
70 "	1	694,600
80 "	4	2,473,300
90 "	2	297,900
1 franc,	5	831,000
2 francs,	4	508,000

In spite of the fact that there were several printings of some values the stamps of this issue show few variations of tint of any special moment. Even the 50 centimes, of which no less than nine printings were made, shows but few gradations of shade between rose and carmine.

The printing of the numerals of value at a second operation resulted in the figures on some sheets being a little out of place but these varieties are of scant interest. In some cases, too, the numerals differ in thickness, particularly in connection with the 25, 50 and 60 centimes values. Mr. de Bont reports a variety of the 80 centimes in which the "8" of the value is placed considerably higher than the "0", but we must confess we hardly see how such a variety could possibly have occurred as the duty plates were, presumably, one solid form and not separate printer's type.

Mr. de Bont describes an interesting error of the 70 centimes as follows:—

"There is an error of this particular value which is really extremely rare. When the figures of value were being printed upon one sheet, a portion of it curled up owing to the heat of the press, and was partially printed on the back. Certain stamps on the sheet even escaped having a figure on the back, and in others there was a figure '0' or '7' instead of '70'. One copy has been seen in which a '0' only was printed on the face. There cannot have been more than twenty or twenty-two such errors, and it should be noted that the error was noticed by the officials of the office to which this particular sheet was sent, and that they, acting on instructions received, returned the sheet to the Stamp Office, where it was destroyed before a committee at the end of 1902. Only very few copies escaped destruction, hence their rarity."

But if the entire sheet was returned and destroyed we would like to know how even a few copies escaped destruction!

Another description of the error appeared in the Monthly Journal for vember, 1903, viz.:—

"La Cote Reelle reports that a of the 70c Parcel Post stamp, dark with figures in black, having the fi printed on the back instead of o face, was issued some twelve m ago; that only ten copies got into ci tion, and that the rest of the sheet returned to the department and stroyed. This variety therefore bec one of the great rarities."

Whether this account and descri of the error is more correct than M Bont's story we cannot say. All we is that an error exists and that Scott and Gibbons catalogue i "numerals omitted" and state no whatsoever about there being num on the back.

NETHERLANDS AND ITS COLONIES.

By T. C. Gray.

I know I am only one of a large body of philatelists who derive great satisfaction from the separation of hard-to-detect varieties from each other, and their proper classification, and I venture to analyse some of the more interesting examples in the hope that, although to the experienced class of collector they are well-known, they may encourage some junior aspirants, who are possibly without a catalogue, to search diligently among duplicates and on sheets for stamps that may, on account of some subtle difference such as I propose to explain, be worth a good deal more than their ordinary prototype. And, further, there is always the excitement of the possibility of discovering a hitherto unchronicled variety. Therefore I strongly advise all juniors to carefully inspect their "spares," as well as the copies resting in their albums, and cannot do better than suggest the following variation of a well-known French maxim as their motto: "Cherchez le timbre."

In my humble opinion these varieties fall under seven distinct headings, viz.:—(a) design, (b) overprint or surcharge, (c) perf., (d) watermark, (e) shade, (f) paper, and (g) method of production.

It will be seen that the first three are capable of detection by the naked eye, or under the magnifying glass and by perf-gauge; the fourth is not always easily discernible, and may call in the aid of benzine; the fifth is often distinct and sometimes arbitrary; while the last two though in many cases easily "feelable," involve at times some points of a technical nature.

Enough of preamble, however; let me commence with a very interesting section, the Netherlands; Holland and Belgium, and their colonies.

Beginning with the first-named, the "horn-on-forehead" of the 10c type 1 (here let me state that Stanley Gibbons' 1922-3 types and numbers are invariably quoted) is our first variety; then follows a very intricate series of die-differences (visible in the figures of value) of type 4 (king facing left, perf.), the 5c the downstroke and ball of the numeral (wide and narrow respectively); in the 10c the serif of the 1 (small and large) with curves or angles at foot of same; in the 15c, as in the 5c; in the 20c, large curve and wide foot to 2 (smaller and narrower respectively in die II); in the 25c, as in the 5c; and in the 50c wide and narrow O. There are also the following perfs. to be looked for: 12½ x 12, 10½ x 10 (die II only), 14 (die II in white and bluish papers), 13, 13½ x 14 die II in both papers). Type 5 (crown over arms) appeared on thick paper (1869-71 perf. 14), and on thinner paper (white and bluish, perf. 13, 13½ small holes, 1870-71), and finally in 1875-76 on bluish thin paper, same perf. but large holes. These large and small holes and white and bluish papers are rather a fine distinction, and easily condensed, but the indentations and texture of paper provide material for at least two distinct sets.

The succeeding king's head type (1872-91) presents 3 clear sets of perforations 13, 13½ (large holes), 12½ x 12, and 12½ (both the latter in large and small holes), with odd stamps in "out sizes." Then comes the interesting numeral (8) type of 1876-93, of which 3 series of perforations similar to the preceding set can be arranged (with odd perfs. as before), but the ½c rose in all three perfs. has two types—thick fraction bar of 8 to 8½ m/m in Type A, and a thinner one of fully 9 m/m in type B—while in the 12½ gauge a fine range of shades can be marshalled, added to which a variety in the 1c (broken ornament in frame under right-hand 1) occurs once in every sheet. Examples imperf. and on laid paper are known, but uncommon.

A very long set of the youthful Queen Wilhelmina (1891), facing right, presents 2 or more shades in all "cent" values. The following numeral type 11, oblong we may "grade for shade" (though S. G. does not), and the maturer Queen (facing left), 1898-1910, also gives full scope to the colour-discriminator. The 1 gulden (blue green) of this series affords quite a study in itself; to begin with S. G. catalogues 2 distinct varieties (the large 1 at foot showing this) of the 11½ x 11 perf., and these two perfs. occur singly and compound in the B variety. I fancy, too, that there were two plates of this latter, as I have found the 11½ x 11 measuring 20¾ m/m and 21½ m/m across, rather too great a difference, I fancy, for paper shrinkage only.

Postage Dues.—Here is a feast for the close student of types and perfs. Boiled down we can arrange the sets as follows: Types I, II, and III, (34, 33 and 32 loops respectively) in 13, 13½ (1881) 12½ x 12 (1882) and 12½ (1885), and type IV, (37 loops), much scarcer, in the first 2 perfs. also sporadic instances of all four types in 11½ x 12 (all scarce). The foregoing are all in pale blue and black.

In 1895 came a deep blue and black, in 12½ gauge, types I and III only. Look out for the 1½c and 2½c with fraction bar longer than normal, easily distinguishable by its projection above the numerals.

From 1902-10 some extra values in this perf. and type I only appeared, of which the 7½c can be found with longer fraction-bar.

Dutch Colonies.—A somewhat parallel series of varieties is to be seen in these, viz.: in Curacoa, Dutch Indies and Surinam we get the 14, 13½, 13, and 12½ x 12, or 12½ perfs., in the early issues, and some shades in the Queen's heads; and the postage dues as follows: (a) in green and black for Curacoa. types I, II, and III, in 12½ perf. two varieties (without and with "cent"); (b) in bright rose-red and black for Dutch Indies in all four types in 13½ and 12½ x 12 type I, II, and III, for 12½ (without and with "cent" and a paler shade of rose-red in type I. only (with "cent" perf. 12½); and (c) in mauve and black for Surinam (without "cent") types I, II, and III, perf., 12½ x 12, and with "cent" in same three types perf. 12½.

The following should also be looked for, in Dutch Indies two varieties of the 1c slate green (type 2) the words of value of which are 5½ m/m long in some perfs. and 7½ m/m in others. Also in the Queen Series (type II.) there are two varieties of the 15c, one chocolate and another dull brown, the latter with 2 bars across the head, to distinguish it from the somewhat similarly-coloured 50c. In Surinam the type-set 2½c of 1892 (type 5) was issued in orange and yellow, with Roman and Gothic F in the inscription which appears as a sort of background to this stamp.—Australian Stamp Journal.

EDITORIAL.

At the forthcoming convention of the American Philatelic Society beginning August 14th, there will be a good attendance we are informed and we are pleased that such will be the case as from the agenda at hand it is seen that in a legislative sense, the convention will be an important one, while socially entertainment of a kind afforded only by the nation's capital will be a feature. We do not attempt to publish this year any formal list of those who expect to attend the convention, but the reason for omitting it is not because there is any lack of names. A large attendance is stimulating and makes the business sessions of interest and we are told that it is well that there will be a representative gathering as important measures are slated for adoption.

The growth of the national philatelic organization during the past year has been such as to fill us with rosy dreams of the future. It is during a period of philatelic prosperity that the American Philatelic Society increases its membership list most noticeably and it is patent to all who follow the progress of the A. P. S. that stamp collecting must be in its heyday just now. It seems that the moment is right psychologically for the waving of the philatelic flag before the eyes of the multitude who regard it with a degree of interest that has not heretofore developed to the present one. With no organized attempt at publicity by stamp collectors themselves, their pursuit has been taken up by others who are performing the work for them. We trust that these benign conditions will last for some time and it is possible that they will, but it takes no seer to say that the time will come when philatelic society must do some proselyting for itself, if it is to make itself heard in the clamor of voices begging for public notice.

Here we are nearing midsummer and we have heard little talk about the periodical slump. It is our opinion that there is a strong interest shown in stamps even in the hottest weather but it must be granted that there is a curtailment in actual transactions involving the handling of stamps. The halt is physical rather than mental and one factor that does much to sustain the swing of philately at this time of year is the convention which quickens the pulse of the stamp body. Without the convention on the tapis the summer months would not have the snap that they now do.

We are in receipt of a letter from "a very old new collector" who says that he was a philatelist when grills and watermarks were unknown. It is particularly gratifying to welcome the old Nestors of philately back into the fold and as a rule their reminiscences of pioneer days make good reading. However, with no desire to quibble but merely as an excuse to say something, we may correct our correspondent to the extent that he does not remember the time when watermarks were not taken into account. He says that he collected at the time of the Philadelphia centennial celebration in 1876, but watermarks were in the thoughts of serious collectors long before that period. Not a few of the stamp papers of the '60's described the watermark in their chronicles of new issues and noticed changes in watermarks. At that time there was a considerable number of advanced collectors who had a "microscopic eye" and closely studied their stamps, according to the tenets of the so-called French school of collectors. Philatelists of the present day should not rest under the delusion that they introduced the intensive study of stamps for the old volumes of the stamp journals that were famous decades ago show that the present-day collector has merely added to the foundation that was already laid.

The recollection of a statement once made by J. W. Scott remains with us. Over fifty years ago, he said that he began to collect stamps in 1858. While he was acquainted with many stamp collectors he was forced to confess with regret that they were simply collectors and cared nothing for the history of stamps and their connotations. He said that they wished merely to fill the spaces in their Lallier albums or if they used a blank book, "generally purchased only pretty specimens—a Costa Rica stamp having a greater value in their eyes than an 1854 Luzon." While vast changes have been made in collecting methods, yet philatelic human nature pursues a course that has not varied with the years as much as one would expect it would.

Some years before his death, J. W. Scott promised us that he would start to write a history of philately in this country or failing that, he would write his reminiscences with due attention to detail. It is unfortunate that Mr. Scott did not preserve in printed form for the stamp world, the recital of his experiences from first to last and his sage observations and interpolations would make such a sketch readable as well as of historical interest and value. We remember that in speaking of the relative scarcity of blocks of the early issues of the United States in comparison to strips of the stamps, Mr. Scott once said that large firms used to cut the imperforate stamps and divide the perforated stamps, when bought in quantity, into strips; and the occasional heavy letter of the ordinary citizen was prepaid by the stamps in row, as a rule. He agreed with our opinion that the postmasters in retailing the imperforate stamps scissored them off in strips in order to properly "dress" the sheet and that it was exceptional for the P. M.'s to adopt the block formation. Is there any one among our readers who may say truthfully that he actually saw with his own eyes the patient postr slowly cutting off stamps from the to satisfy his patrons? If there should like to see him rise and t about the scene which has so lit common with the auto-aero-radi of today.

The inevitable train of newspape other printed comment that follow event that attracts much publicity th its distinctive or unusual characte attached itself to the recent interna philatelic exhibition at London. is no lack of complimentary refe to the great display but it is now that there is a dash of bitter wit sweet. In fact there seems to be thing of a chorus of dissent from who profess to see a wicked was money and time in the pursuit of p ely. It is characteristic of men of tation as writers who run a-tilti philately that they lose all sense c perspective when they begin to philately. They attack it because sooth some collector has paid say thousand dollars for a postage when there is so much want and n in the world and because the beauty postage stamp cannot compare wit of the arts which get only poor pic at the rich men's table. The criti of philately have become hackneye they have been replied to time and by defenders who have made out case for collecting. It is no use to beat philately down with a c and it is just as well that the mirt men who have a weakness to try to it to the ground have not the s grace of humor. When some who thrusts against stamp collecting shafts of wit is at his best, he score we do not pretend to say that philat sacrosanct and not vulnerable to timed humor but the unsmiling usually flings a boomerang when he at stamp collecting.

THE SEVENTH FERRARY SALE.

British Buyers Get a Look In.—With the exchange rate at rather more than 72 francs to the £1 British collectors and dealers got most of the things they set out for at the seventh of the Ferrary sales in Paris on June 13th, 14th, and 15th.

The three days' sale comprised 614 lots, yielding 1,498,740 francs, or with the 17½ per cent. tax, 1,761,019, equal to £24,460 in English money. It is one of the curiosities in exchange that for this three days' sale the English total is the smallest for the series, being less than the one day's sale with which the series opened in June, 1921. The total in francs is nearly 400,000 higher than the first sale.

Exchange Rates.—The exchange, by the way, was 47 in June, 1921, and was practically the same for the first three sales, dropping to 50 at the fourth sale; 63.30, fifth sale; 68.50, sixth sale; and 72.20, seventh sale; giving an average for the seven sales of 56.44.

Total to Date.—The total realised to date at the seven sales is 11,821,877 francs, without tax, or, calculated in English money, with tax, at the rate of exchange prevailing at each sale, £256,458.

Spectators Numerous, Buyers Few.—The excitement of the early sales seems to have evaporated. Although well attended, there was none of the crowding that has been experienced at the previous sales. A score or so of well-known philatelists sat in the auctioneer's enclosure, and the other side of the long table was occupied by a front line of attack, whence most of the bidding came. Out of perhaps an attendance rarely under 130 persons, including casuals drifting in and out, the buyers were probably not more than a score altogether.

Prices.—Prices on the lesser rarities were high, but on the greater rarities there was comparatively little competition. Several factors contributed to this latter circumstance. In the first place the big buyers like MM. Champion, Burrus, and Hind have secured examples of such outstanding rarity as the 2 cents Hawaiian Missionary, and the one sold on this occasion, a good specimen as "Missionaries" go, started weakly at 80,000 francs and closed in a few seconds at 109,000 francs, the buyer being Dr. Lefort.

How the Great Moguls Get Bargains.—But a more potent factor in the absence of competition was the reluctance of bidders to run up prices where they could see that they were up against a determined big buyer. For example, there were several in the room who would have paid more than £314 for the superb unused copy of the 4d blue South Australia without surcharge, but they realised at once on the starting bid of 14,000 francs that it was being bought for Mr. Hind, and what was the use of creating an artificial price? The consequence was that Mr. Hind secured a bargain. So did Mr. Burrus, who bought the used copy, a fine one, at £67.

Thus, to those that have, the bargains shall be given.

Notabilia at the Sale.—Among the collectors and dealers I noted at the sale were Messrs. T. Allen, C. Nissen, R. Roberts, F. B. Smith, F. Penney, A. H. Caspary, F. J. Peplow, Th. Champion, Th. Lemaire, M. Burrus, Rachitoff, M. Galvez, W. Houtzamer, Van Schooren, Santa Cruz, Colin, Palmer, Fisson, Delmont, Reece, Visconte, Philippe.

Of the total 1,498,700 francs, Mr. T. Allen secured lots for British clients to the tune of over a quarter of a million francs, without tax. Mr. R. Roberts, Mr. F. B. Smith, and Mr. Palmer were also purchasers to considerable amounts.

Some Interesting Lots and Prices.—Five hundred and thirty-six thousand four hundred and five francs (without tax) represented the first day's total, June 13, 1923. The lots commenced with Alsace Lorraine, and a dozen lots of these fetched good prices, there being extensive specialism in those stamps in France. M. Burrus, who comes from Alsace, was in on a number of these.

The 4c grey variety, misplaced figure —the numeral being side-tracked—in pair with normal, and a 2c brown, all used on a Strasbourg letter, fetched 2,100 francs.

	Francs
20c blue, displaced figures (unused)	5,600
5c green, inverted network, unused	2,600
4c grey, inverted network, displaced figure	3,000

Argentines followed, and the rare inverted centres of 1899-1903 went cheaply.

	Francs
1 peso blue and black, used	1,450
5 peso orange and black, unused	2,600

Germans and German Post Offices and Colonies came next, the only startling item being the provisional overprints of Tientsin, 3, 5, 10, 20, 25, 30, 40, 50 and 80 pfennig, 2m. and 3m., mostly very fine, with gum — 11 stamps — fetched 10,500 francs. These are the atrocities which are discussed on pp. 415-416 of the green Gibbons.

South Australians, comprising about 70 lots, fetched an aggregate of £3,600 (with tax). I have already mentioned the 4d blue errors without surcharge, and other most notable item was a beautiful pair of the 1/- violet (S. G. No. 5), which fetched 10,300 francs. The set of thirteen, 2/6 to £20 of 1882-87, unused and "all guaranteed" unused and unwashed, etc., with gum, brought 15,100 francs. Lots 126, 127, and 128 were, for some unexplained reason, lumped together, comprising 607 stamps, including 182 departmentals, and brought 30,500 francs.

An Unique Tête-Bêche Variety.—Bergedorfs and Brazils provided no striking items, but there was a fine lot of Buenos Aires steamships. An unused 5 pesos bright orange went to M. Burrus for 10,000 francs, and the 1p+1p blue tête-bêche pair was bought for Mr. A. F. Lichtenstein at 32,000 francs (£522 with tax). This is probably unique and has not hitherto been known to collectors, although the possibility of such a tête-bêche pair being in existence has been known through a copy of the 1p blue with large margins in the collection of the late Senor Marco del Pont. This copy showed a portion of the adjoining stamp in such wise as to prove that the neighbouring stamp was inverted.

The Republic of Colombia, whose stamps have been for the most part left to the general collector, and have not yet found their quota of specialist students, was represented in about fifty lots, some of the prices of which are well worth recording:

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—A communication from one of our valued correspondents asks for information regarding the old 3c green issue with advertisement printed on the back, similar to the New Zealand stamps of previous years. This brings to mind the fact that I have not seen these varieties mentioned for many days, and it is possible that a great many of our present collectors are not aware of the fact that the ungrilled 3c National issue were distributed with advertisements printed in black ink on the back. The few that I have seen had been printed so deeply that they looked as if this work was done previous to the gumming of the stamps, which is no doubt the case.

I have never seen any Government order or regulation authorizing these, but the bank note company must have had permission to do this. I have seen but two varieties and know of a third variety, but as far as I can learn no others appeared. The three known varieties have the following advertisements on the back, and the specimens which I have seen have been cancelled:

(1) Printed in four lines "TRY CHOATE'S ODONTO For the Teeth."

(2) "Read the New York LEDGER" in three lines.

(3) "DEVLIN The Clothier" in three lines.

Other varieties may exist and if any of our readers know of them I would certainly be pleased to have the information. Luff's wonderful work on the stamps of the United States makes no mention of these items.

Official information sent out by the Post Office Department under date of July 6th calls attention to the fact that two special pouches of mail matter will be made up in Washington for despatch to the President, where it is expected to reach him on the evening of July 26th at Vancouver on his return from Alaska. These are expected to leave Washington at 10.20 P. M. July 22nd and 2.30 P. M. July 23rd. Both pouches will be despatched by special hydroplane from Seattle to Vancouver, while the second pouch will travel between Chicago and Cheyenne on the regular air mail ship. This means that mail will travel from coast to coast in three days which we believe will be a record for full pouches.

Mr. C. C. Donaldson sends for inspection a current registered cover mailed from Buckhannon, W. Va., wherein the Postmaster cancelled the stamps with a small capital R. This is an unusual cancellation and of course is not in accordance with the postal regulation—the R being in magenta. Only recently the postal bulletin called attention of Postmasters to the fact that stamps should be cancelled with the special black ink furnished by the Department for the purpose, and that this ink should only be used in connection with the metal cancellers and not with the rubber stamp cancellers as the ingredients of the ink readily destroys the latter.

We wish to thank Mr. John T. Matzen and Mr. Michael Miller for notes of interest.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.—Of the new set with the portrait of Gen. Jose San Martin the Economist Stamp Co. submit the following values: ½c lilac, 1c buff, 3c green, 4c brown violet, 10c dark green, 12c blue, 24c brown, 30c claret.

BRITISH SOLOMON ISLANDS.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the appearance of the 2d from a new plate on the script watermarked paper. Also the 3d of the same description but on old Crown CA watermark.

COLOMBIAN REPUBLIC.—We have received from Mr. F. D. Fuller the following new issues: 3c blue, Scott's A118, 10c blue, Scott's A112 and A121. Also the 2c Retardo, No. 519, with the small "r". Mr. Fuller also notes the following varieties: No. 365 in a very dark violet shade and No. 351 with the surcharge reading down.

MONACO.—We have received from Mr. R. Roberts the following new items from this country: 30c vermilion (Museum), 60c grey (Rock), 1fr black on yellow (Rock) and 2fr vermilion (Rock).

NICARAGUA.—The Economist Stamp Co. call attention to the 3c in the type of A24, which is now appearing in an olive brown shade.

The Economist Stamp Co. also advise of the 5c blue of the 1921 type with the overprint "R de C. Vale un centavo de cordoba" in four lines in black.

ST. THOMAS.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the following stamps with the added overprint "Dez centavos": Nos. 215, 216, 217, 218 and 219. The surcharge is in blue with the exception of the 115r on 200r and the 130r on 300r, which are in red.

SARAWAK.—The Economist Stamp Co. report the 10c in the 1918 type in grey.

URUGUAY.—The following new values of the current set have been shown us by the Economist Stamp Co.: 5m grey, 1c violet and 5c brown.

REMINISCENCES.

I was greatly interested in Edward Knapp's article on stamps and collecto of years ago. Like him, I commenc as a boy, not in the nineties but in 18 have dropped and taken up many tim in the sixty years. My first good albu was published by William H. Hill & S Cornhill, Boston, and was copyrighted 1868. A very good book, nice paper a lined off in red, was given to me as Christmas present in 1870. All stam in those days were stuck tight on t pages and often on the back of san Envelopes were cut round. Can y imagine such a condition today?

My collection is an old fashioned o seldom going into shades, perforation blocks. Canada, Nova Scotia and Ne Brunswick first issues were very co mon, a few cents buying any of the but we did not have the cents to pu chase, when we did have enough to se for a 25c package, it was sent to S. All Taylor or W. H. Trifet in Bosto When same were received our hea were filled with joy and happiness. T countries I collect are virtually comple from my standpoint, or as near as th ever will be. When I decide to comple another country I go to the old book, c out a page and start over again, a with as much joy as though I were still kid.

I wish I could impress on the young collectors of today how necessary it for them to keep at it, never stoppin just plug right along, taking what the can get, improve and add to later on a they may have a chance, during all th time always gaining in knowledge. Ho many are there in or around Portlan today who knew and have seen the won derful collection of those days of my ol friends Charles Cross, Sam Stevens Billy Howe, Fred Conant, Charlie Bank and many others I do not recall at th time, nearly all of the above have passe away and suppose their collections have too. Not a week goes by but some a added or poor copies are replaced wit better ones to my collection.

EDWARDIAN POSTAGE STAMPS.

By DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG.

NATAL.

The Edwardian postage stamps of Natal constitute one of the most effective series issued during the last reign. Incidentally they include the rarest stamp of the Edwardian era. The pleasing and unconventional designs are understood to have been the work of a Pietermaritzburg artist, although the engraving of the actual dies were carried out by Messrs. De La Rue's engravers. It was also found necessary to modify the colour scheme originally projected owing to the impossibility of obtaining suitable inks of the desired shades.

The stamps were to have been ready for issue to the public on New Year's Day, 1902, but as the printers were at that time working night and day upon new postage stamp issues for almost all of the British dominions beyond the seas, they were unable to deliver them by that date, and it was not until August 4th of that year that the first values were placed on sale. The remaining denominations followed at intervals during 1902-03, as stocks of corresponding values of the previous issue became exhausted.

With the advent of the new issue the postage, telegraph and revenue stamps of the colonies were amalgamated in a single series, which accordingly bore the inscription "POSTAGE" and "REVENUE" and was available equally for any of the three services.

The higher values were, of course, chiefly required for fiscal and telegraphic use and in explanation of the comparative plentifulness of used copies it is stated that an official enquiry, held in the colony in 1905, elicited the fact that large numbers of high value stamps had been surreptitiously removed from out-of-date telegraphic forms by clerks entrusted with their destruction. Rigorous action was taken to prevent a recurrence of this abuse.

The Edwardian stamps were surface-printed by De La Rue & Co. in London in sheets of 240 as regards the values up to and including the 4sh sub-divided into four panes of 60, surrounded by continuous marginal lines and with Plate number "1" in all four corners of the sheet. The high values in larger format were in single panes of 60 (5x12) and were printed upon the old Crown C.C watermarked paper.

SUMMARY.

1902-03. Twenty values. Head of King Edward VII. Bi-coloured. Surface-printed by De La Rue & Co., London. Wmk. Crown C.A. (single). Perf. 14. Inscribed "Postage—Revenue".

5s blue and carmine	26/6/03
10s carmine and chocolate	26/6/03
£1 grey-black on ultramarine	?/12/02
30s green and violet	26/6/03
£5 mauve and black	26/6/03
£10 green and orange	26/6/03
£20 carmine and green	26/6/03

A small printing of the 1d value was made early in December, 1904, from Plate 2 with co-extensive marginal lines upon Single C.A. watermarked paper.

The 5d value is known with inverted watermark.

Between September, 1904, and December, 1908, eight values of the above-listed series were printed on paper having the new Multiple form of Crown C.A. watermark, but otherwise as before.

SUMMARY.

1904-08. Eight values. Design, etc., as before. Wmk. Multiple Crown C.A. Perf. 14.

Value. Colours.	Date of Issue.
½d dull green	?/11/04
(a) dark green
1d carmine	?/9/04
(a) deep carmine
(b) ruby-red
2d red and olive-green	?/12/08
4d carmine and cinnamon	?/6/05
5d black and orange	19/12/08
1s carmine and pale blue	30/9/05
2s dull green and violet	10/3/06
2s 6d purple	7/12/04

The ruby-red shade of the 1d is scarce. It is said to have formed part of a small supply sent out to post offices in single panes of 60 as an experiment, for convenience in handling, but was withdrawn at the request of the post office officials. It having come to the notice of the authorities that fiscally-used stamps were being fraudulently cleaned and used over again, instructions were given for the use of doubly fugitive ink in connection with the printing of the higher values. Accordingly, the 30/- made its appearance in April, 1908, in new colours and upon chalk-surfaced, Multiple C.A. watermarked paper.

SUMMARY.

1908, April. New colours. Design, etc., as before. Wmk. Multiple Crown C.A. Perf. 14. Chalk-surfaced paper. 30s orange and lilac.

Ultimately it was decided to revert to a separate series of stamps for Revenue purposes, and on November 30, 1908, all combined "Postage and Revenue" stamps from 6d to £1 were withdrawn from circulation and the remainders officially destroyed. A Notice published in the Natal Mercury for Dec. 10, 1908, provided that until such times as the new "Postage" duties of 6d, 1s and 10s should be on sale "the combined 'Postage and Revenue' stamps of these values will be available at the public counters at Maritzburg and Durban for telegrams and cablegrams only, and for no other purpose."

Subsequently, the 30/- "Postage and Revenue" stamp was withdrawn from issue about June, 1909. Owing to its short period of currency, coupled with the fact that it was in little demand for postal purposes, this stamp has become the greatest rarity of the Edwardian era. Unused, it is worth today about £20 in the market, but in postally-used condition it is excessively rare.

On December 1, 1908, were placed on sale the first values of a new series of stamps from 6d to £1 face value, uniformly inscribed "Postage — Postage", but in other respects similar to those of the preceding issue. They remained current until the federation of Natal in the Union of South Africa, when distinctive postage stamps ceased to be issued by the component States.

SUMMARY.

1908-09. Seven values. New colours. Inscribed "Postage—Postage". Otherwise as before. Wmk. Multiple Crown C.A. Perf. 14.

Value. Colours.	Date of Issue.
6d purple	2/4/09
1s black on green	2/4/09
2s purple and blue on blue	1/12/08
2s 6d black and red on blue	2/4/09
5s green and carmine on yellow	1/12/08
10s green and red on green	2/4/09
£1 purple and black on red	1/12/08

The new colours, be it noted, conformed to the Universal colour scheme formulated by the Crown Agents and adopted by the Natal Government in 1908.

As from June, 1911, the current postage stamps of Natal became interchangeable with those of the other States of the Union of South Africa and could be used indiscriminately throughout South Africa, until the introduction of the general stamp issue for the Union in 1913. No fresh printings were made, however, subsequent to 1910.

OFFICIAL STAMPS.

In the early days of 1905 the Government of Natal experimented in the provision of specially overprinted stamps for use upon Departmental correspondence, in lieu of the franking system hitherto in vogue. By this means it was hoped to ascertain the actual postal expenditure of each of the different Government offices. The correspondence of certain high officials, Cabinet Ministers, etc., continued to pass free under frank as before.

WAR PROVS. OF SPANISH MOROCCO.

By Francis P. Renaut, F. R. P. S. L.

As a rule War Provisionals owe their existence to War conditions: either military operations or blockade prevent the coming of supplies of stamps, or the occupation of enemy territory compels the use of national stamps or the overprinting of the enemy's own stock. The Provisionals of Spanish Morocco present the very special feature of being only incidentally War Provisionals; nevertheless, without the war against the Riffan tribes and Caid Raissouli, the Spanish Protectorate would never have thought of issuing provisional stamps.

Let us solve the puzzle and say that these stamps are War Provisionals for two reasons: a financial one and a military one. The war against the Riffans was adding a new and not negligible burden to the Spanish Exchequer, and in order to meet the extraordinary expenses from the War and Navy Departments, it was thought a reliable and fruitful idea to increase the postal revenues. To realize this view two means were put in use: (1) to increase the different fees for postage, registration, etc.; (2) to enlarge the number of contributors to this branch of the Exchequer.

Two kinds of people were, in fact, enjoying in Spain the privilege of free mail: the Members of Parliament and the officers and soldiers of the Army and Navy. If the first class comprised hardly more than four or five hundred persons, the second, on the contrary, was extremely numerous owing to the mobilization.

The Spanish Government, when obtaining the vote of the new postal law during the spring of 1920, forgot to take the necessary measures in order to meet the demand for new postage stamps, especially for 15 centimos stamps (rate for inland letters) and 1 or 2 centimos stamps (rate for printed matter). On the other hand, it omitted to ensure a large supply of stamps for the needs of the troops, and so it came about that shortly after the introduction of the new postal rates, the stock of new stamps was running low. The Mint (Casa de Moneda) was extremely busy producing the 1, 2, 15, and 20c stamps in order to supply them to all the post offices of the kingdom. After a few months the crisis was definitely avoided and the lack of new or low denominations was not felt in the peninsula.

But it was very different in the Protectorate. In peace-time inhabitants who make extensive use of the mails are but few, and the garrisons were not too numerous. Owing to the War there was a considerable expeditionary force in all the presidios, with all the Army services connected with a long campaign. As a consequence of the suppression of the right of free mail for officers and soldiers (which was put in force in May, 1920) it soon became difficult to supply stamps in sufficient quantities for franking the important mails coming from the African front. Nearly 50,000 men were concentrated around Melilla and the adjoining places. Soon the stock of 5, 10 and 15 centimos stamps was totally exhausted, and so it became necessary to issue provisionals. Had the Government maintained for the troops in action the privilege of free mail, these provisionals would never have existed, and had there been no war in the Protectorate the result would have been the same.

The Casa de Moneda was too busy supplying the metropolitan post offices to print stamps for the Protectorate, and it was only during the summer of 1920 that it produced stamps which arrived in Morocco at the beginning of October. So between June and October the Spanish Protectorate had to use extraordinary means for franking correspondence; so the five issues of provisionals are entirely justified.

First Issue. Provisionals on Postage Stamps.

As soldiers and officers usually sent but cards and letters, it was necessary to replace only 10 and 15c stamps. It was thought proper to use the existing stock of unexhausted stamps of the preceding issue, that of 1915, with the overprint "PROTECTORADO ESPANOL EN MARRUECOS." Accordingly the 20 and 30c values were to be overprinted twice, 10 and 15 centimos, and the original stamps perforated horizontally in the middle (perforation 11¼, that of the stamps being 13¼).

These stamps being already overprinted in their central part, the new value was placed at the top and the bottom. As to the colour of the second overprint, there was a trial with black ink on the 30c, but it was thought that the value-figures were rather illegible, and a dark red ink appeared more suited to the purpose and was finally used. The stock of available stamps being none too large, the sheet of 30c, already overprinted 15 centimos in black, was again overprinted in red, so that a whole sheet of 100 stamps presents a clear double overprint, an intentional double overprint without the least tinge of speculation in it!

On the contrary, the numerous varieties which appear in this issue and the following are by no means intentional. The printing was hurriedly conducted, and a certain number of errors were afterwards detected, either in the placing of the overprint or in the spelling of words and values. If these errors were detected on the spot, it seems probable that the lack of stamps was so great that the defective stamps were issued to serve as regular stamps; but it is more probable that in the hurry the numerous errors slipped by unseen or were considered as unimportant.

Of the 20c green, 108 sheets of 100 stamps were overprinted, giving 10,800 original stamps or 21,600 bisected stamps. These sheets were numbered on the back from 270 to 304, and from 628 to 700. Of the 30c green the number of sheets was as high as 271, giving 54,200 bisected stamps of 15c; the control numbers range from 226 to 260 and from 425 to 660. The existence of these numbers prevents the making of bogus provisionals.

With reference to the check list of varieties, it is necessary to point out the fact that two kinds of varieties exist, the one belonging to the provisional overprint and the other to the original overprint: "PROTECTORADO ESPANOL EN MARRUECOS." Of these last, we can only suppose their existence without giving an accurate number of the copies as in some printing these errors were corrected and we do not know to which printing the overprinted sheets belong.

All these varieties, except those due to the shifting of the sheet, may exist with the double overprint, red and black, on the 30c. On the other hand, it is highly improbable that any of these provisionals contained the error "PROTECTORADO" with inverted "R." an error which was corrected after the first printing.

Second Issue. Provisionals on Express Stamps.

Though Express stamps had been introduced in the Protectorate in 1914 they were of little use, and a large bulk of them was to be found at the post offices. It was resolved to use them as postage stamps of 10c after having them properly overprinted and bisected.

This issue is one of the most complicated, for, in order to avoid waste of time, these Express stamps were overprinted in two different places with two different overprints. The Spanish Express stamps being of a horizontal rectangular shape were to be perforated vertically in the middle, and being red were to be overprinted in black. Therefore the Delegacion de Fomento de Tetuan applied on them vertically the overprint 10 centimos, reading upwards, which adorned the 20c postage stamps. But the Papelera Africana was to overprint also a part of the supply, and it used a horizontal overprint 10 cts. on each side of the vertical perforation. Finally, it was found that this last kind of overprint was not easy to read, and a good number of sheets bearing the horizontal overprint were sent to the Delegacion de Fomento and receiv second overprint, reading downwards time.

On the other hand, the proportio errors is greater than in any other pr sional issue, and less than a third of sheet presents a correct overprint.

The total number of Express sta overprinted vertically 10 cént amounts to 282 sheets or 28,200 pa the control numbers being 120 to 200 281 to 480. As for the stamps overp ed horizontally their number is unkn but must have been very small as number of the same stamps with do overprint (vertical and horizontal) not exceed 51 sheets or 5,100 pairs.

Of course on No. 4 appear the s varieties with capital C, small and l O, and the combination with the er of the original overprint "PROTECTORA . . . But the Express stamp with the horizontal overprint was issued ing a short time, and perhaps through extreme shortage of stamps this type of overprint was rejected.

Third Issue. Special Stamps Used Postage.

With the third issue we come to a type of provisionals. The military civil authorities of the Protectorate expected the stamp famine to be temporary, and were ready to meet lack of stamps with temporary me hence the use of bisected postage sta But these were exhausted after a weeks, and it remained as the only source to admit telegraph stamps postal-order stamps for the frankin letters and cards.

Of these two kinds, the 5 and 10c the most employed, as well as the telegraph stamp. But of the last the stock existing in the Protect was insufficient to meet the strong mand, and it became necessary to use 30c perforated in the middle without special overprint.

The stamps for postal orders had put in use in the Protectorate in 191 year after the telegraph stamps. T were authorized for postage in the s mer of 1920.

Fourth Issue. Fiscal Stamps O printed for Postal Use.

Even the telegraph and postal-o stamps could not last long enough to low the Casa de Moneda to send f supplies of postage stamps to the P tectorate. Nearly all kinds of sta had been used on the mails . . . exhausted. There remained only fi stamps, and at last they were overpri for use as postage stamps.

These fiscal stamps were those ployed for the payment of Justice F long vertical stamps representing in ornamented frame Justice holding sword and a pair of scales; below the scription "TRIBUNALES ESPANOLES MARRUECOS" and the value. They w perforated horizontally in the mid and each half received the overp "CORREOS" (POST) and the new va 5, 10, or 15 centimos. The ink was red for the 5 and 10c (blue or gr stamps), and black for the 15c stamps).

Fifth Issue. Bisected Postage Sta Without Overprint.

Two postage stamps were bisected use at half their value without any ov print: the 30c green with the "PRO TORADO" overprint was perforated eit diagonally or horizontally for use as

Postage stamps of the Edwardian series, ranging in value from ½d to 1s and bearing the distinguishing overprint "OFFICIAL", were distributed to the Departments concerned on January 1, 1905, but they did not come into general use until February 15th of that year.

After a few months, they were withdrawn from all save the Government Railways Dept., which had throughout made use of the largest quantities, chiefly in the ½d, 1d and 3d denominations. The remaining supply of 6d and 1s Official stamps, which were no longer in demand, were officially destroyed at Pietermaritzburg, in January, 1906. Six months later all overprinted Official stamps were recalled from circulation and destroyed.

GEORGIA AND ITS POSTAGE STAMPS.

The Transcaucasian Republic of Georgia, embracing the erstwhile Russian Governments of Tiflis and Kutais proclaimed its independence on May 26, 1918, commencing to issue its own postage stamps twelve months later. In ancient history the country passed under the name of Iberia, but in the Middle Ages it received the title of Grugia or Georgia. Under the reign of Queen Tamara, who ascended the throne in 1184, Georgia rose to the height of its power. In 1738, however, King Irakli II. was forced to place his territories under the protection of Russia, and twenty years after Georgia was finally annexed to the Russian Empire. The national aspirations of the Georgian people received recognition at the hands of the Supreme Council in Paris in 1919. The Republic, however, was of short duration, for in February, 1921, the Red Armies overran the country, as a result of which a Soviet Government was set up at Tiflis, the capital, under whose control Georgia remains at the present time.

The first postage stamps to be utilised under the new regime were four values of the contemporary Russian Arms series, the sheets of which, for greater convenience in handling, were rouletted between the rows of stamps, in which form they were sold at Tiflis in May, 1918. The total issue is said to have comprised 200 copies of the 2 kopecs green, 100 of the 3 kopecs red, 400 of the 5 kopecs lilac, and 100 of the 1 rouble orange and brown.

Thenceforward until May, 1919, Russian stamps in imperforate state, as issued, continued to circulate in Georgia, supplemented by 1, 5, and 10 kopecs Savings Bank stamps, which served at first as Postage Due stamps, but from March to May, 1919, were used in prepayment of postage owing to the exhaustion of the regular postage stamps. Russian stamps used in Georgia during this period are, of course, only recognisable in used condition by means of the local postmarks.

On the anniversary of the proclamation of the Republic (May 26, 1919) the first values of a set of distinctive postage stamps, lithographed at Tiflis, were placed on sale. The design was the work of M. Chevarnadzé, a native artist, and included in a frame of intricate design, the curious device of the National Arms reproduced from an ancient hieroglyphic drawing and representing St. George crossing the Black Mountains. The patron saint is depicted on horseback surrounded by the Sun, Moon and Stars. The stamps were inscribed "La Georgie," with values in Arabic numerals.

The first printings were upon thin paper commandeered from the Imperial Government stores at Tiflis and were devoid of perforation. The sheets were composed of 238 stamps, and, in the case of the 40 kopecs value, twelve of the stamps were inverted, i. e., the four last specimens in the third, fourth, and fifth rows, thus producing eight tête-bêche pairs in each sheet of this one value only.

Four values constituted the initial issue as follows:—

40 kopecs, scarlet.
60 kopecs, carmine.
70 kopecs, lilac.
1 rouble, brown-orange.

About July of the same year these four stamps, together with new values of 10 and 50 kopecs respectively appeared with the added convenience of perforation, applied by means of a single-line machine gauging 11½. Later printings of the 40 and 70 kopecs and 1 rouble denominations were on new and thicker paper.

A new design, representing the famous Czarina Tamara of Georgia seated with one hand grasping a lance and the other resting upon a shield emblazoned with the National Arms, was adopted for three additional high values, which were incorporated in the series in February, 1920:—

February, 1920. New design. Perf. 11½.

2r brown orange.
3r blue.
5r yellow.

A variety of the 2 roubles value exists imperforate.

During the course of 1920-21 new printings of all the Georgian postage stamps from 10 kopecs to 5 roubles appeared in new shades, and imperforate, as under:—

New Shades. Imperforate. Thick Paper.

10k blue.
40k orange-red.
50k deep green.
70k brown-lilac
1r orange-brown.
2r red-brown.

5r orange.

Many fanciful varieties of this issue are known, such as 10k printed sideways instead of upright; 40k with figure of St. George omitted; 1 rouble, centre inverted; 2 roubles with inscription inverted, etc., etc.; but their philatelic status is doubtful.

On December 12, 1920, the full series of Georgian postage stamps was sold for thrice its face value with the addition of a diagonal inscription in Georgian characters signifying "Day of the National Guard, 12.xii.1920," the proceeds being devoted to the equipment of the military force of the Republic:—

50k moss-green.
60k carmine.
70k deep lilac.
1r brown-orange.
2r red-brown.
3r blue.

To signalise the formal recognition of the independence of Georgia by the League of Nations, another commemorative overprint was applied to the national postage stamps (excepting the 1 rouble) again consisting of the date and a native inscription signifying "Recognition of the Independence of Georgia." The overprint was struck at the State Printing Office upon a limited number of sets only.

Two days later the Bolsheviks entered Tiflis, and the Republican Government retired to Batoum, taking with it the greater part of the stock of stamps. Those that remained, amounting to some 9,000 sets, were impressed with the Soviet Arms (Star, Hammer, and Sickle), together with the date 19 25/11 21 in red, covering a block of four stamps and re-issued under the Soviet administration.

About July, 1921, the face values of the Georgian postage stamps, from 10 kopecs to 1 rouble, were uniformly increased to 5 roubles by means of a handstamped surcharge, consisting of a large figure "5" beneath a single line inscription in Georgian characters:—

July, 1921. Prov. issue. Handstamped.

5 roubles on
    10k blue
    40k scarlet.
    50k moss-green.
    60k carmine.
    70k deep lilac.
    1r brown-orange.

Between July and December, 1921, Russian stamps in the Arms type, both perforate and imperforate, circulated in Georgia under Soviet rule. New stamps in the denominations of 100 roubles brown and 5,000 roubles deep green have, however, lately been placed on sale, the former showing a figure of St. George and the latter types of Georgian women:—

Soviet. Pictorial designs. Imperf.

100r brown (St. George).
5,000r deep green (Georgian woman).

A postal agency was opened in the Georgian Consulate at Constantinople on January 15, 1921, when the contemporary postage stamps of that State were provided, bearing a distinguishing imprint, consisting of the word "CONSTANTINOPLE" in English and Georgian, together with local values in Turkish currency, the whole enclosed in a rectangular frame, and flanked by printers' stock ornaments. The overprint was applied in red, black, or blue, and the issue was composed as follows, the figures in parenthesis indicating the total quantities overprinted:—

Georgian P. O. in Turkey. Overprinted CONSTANTINOPLE.

4p on 40k vermilion (1,670).
5p on 50k green (1,840).
6p on 60k carmine (1,185).
7p on 70k purple (1,280).
10p on 1r brown-orange (650).
20p on 2r brown (570).
30p on 3r blue (520).
50p on 5r yellow (610).

A few of the imperforate varieties were included, but the bulk of the issue belonged to the perforated series.

Owing to the overthrow of the home Government by the Bolsheviks, the Georgian Consulate at Constantinople ceased to function on February 26, 1921, when the overprinted stamps accordingly became obsolete.—West-End Philatelist.

A STAMP FLURRY.

Postage stamps may not be listed on the stock exchange, but they have their flurries and their bullish and bearish movements. The Chilean government recently put out a new issue of stamps to commemorate the fifth Pan-American conference. It was bought up by excited philatelists within one week of its appearance.

Some of the buying was done by bona fide collectors who wanted the stamps for the joy of having them. Other buying was purely speculative, purchasers standing in line to get whole sheets of the stamps, hoping to sell them to collectors later at a goodly profit.

The Chilean government was glad to get money represented by the prompt sale of its souvenir stamps, but it feared that some stigma might attach to itself as a result of their rapid absorption. So it proceeded to authorize a second issue of the same amount.

Collectors and speculators are now wondering just where they stand and just how valuable—beyond its face va

BARBUDA 1923.

By Harry E. Huber.

In January last three values of the overprinted Leeward Islands series, issued July 13, 1922, exhausted, and as the new series in a distinctive design has not yet been sanctioned by the Colonial Office, a small further printing of the ½d, 2½d and 3d was requisitioned. These stamps were received in April, 1923, and are practically identical with the first lot, being from plate 10, die 2, and in the same colors as before. The blue of the 2½d, however, is not so brilliant, and the value tablet is in a very faded ultramarine; the yellow of the 3d is more brilliant, and on all three values the black of the "Barbuda" overprint is in dull black instead of glossy black of the first printing.

It had been expected that the 2½d and 3d would be in changed colors, in view of the increased postal rates effective 1st February, 1922. At that time the foreign letter rate was made 3d and according to the regulations of the Postal Union, that value should be printed in blue. Not only did the colors remain unchanged for both values, but yellow paper with the old multiple Crown CA watermark was used for the 3d. This is surprising as several stamps of the British West Indies have appeared recently on yellow paper, script watermarked—the 2½d and 4d of Turks & Caicos Islands, "Crown type" series, were issued so far back as November 20, 1922.

The 1d deep violet is the only color change in the Leeward Island series, and this stamp was issued at St. Kitts in August, 1922, but other values have been printed on script paper, i.e., ¼d, ½d, 1d red, 2d, 5d, 2s, 3s and 4s. The 2½d blue and 6d dull violet and red violet overprinted for Barbuda are of course on script watermarked paper.

Only a slight semblance of uniformity exists in the color scheme used for those values of the Presidency issues affected by the postal rate changes, and at this writing Antigua and the British Virgins have made no color changes at all. But in the other three Presidencies changes have been made. In the St. Kitts-Nevis double medallion series, there is the 1d deep violet, 2½d brown and 3d blue, and in the Tercentenary series issued January 2, 1923, the same colors were used for the borders of these three values, with the addition of red for the 1½d. In February, 1923, a new series appeared for Dominica, in double medallion type. The medallions in each value are printed in black, the borders appearing in color: violet (1d), red (1½d), gray (2d), orange (2½d), blue (3d) and brown (4d). On April 5, 1923, Montserrat issued 1d violet, 1½d red, 2½d orange, and 3d blue, all script watermarked.

In February, 1923, a new postal marking came into use in Barbuda for registered letters. It is a rubber stamp, applied in purple or red, in form being a horizontal rectangle, 50x18mm, with a large "R" at the left, to the right of which is "BARBUDA, B. W. I.—No. . . . ." in two lines.

The outbreak of alastrim in Antigua became so serious in January last, that the Barbuda authorities held a meeting and placed that island in quarantine. As mails from the outer world are received via Antigua, the mailboat from Barbuda had to lie in St. John's harbour, and receive mails, supplies, etc., from a shore boat which came out in charge of a port officer. The Barbuda crew much to its chagrin was not permitted to land and indulge in the delights of that gay (?) metropolis!

A census was taken in Barbuda in 1921, when the resident population was found to number 902 (males 342 and females 560. However, as a considerable number of young men and women are abroad in the U. S. A., and as this system of emigration has only existed in recent years, the comparison between the census of 1911 (871; 351 males and 520 females) and 1921 does not show the actual increase of population during the decade. It is a matter of considerable surprise that while in most of the Leeward Islands the bulk of the native population is Roman Catholic, in Barbuda it is entirely Protestant.

The taking over of Barbuda by the Crown was effected by an act entitled "An Act to extend the Operation of the Laws of Antigua to the Island of Barbuda" passed in September, 1858, and confirmed under 22 and 23 Victoria, Cap.

DOLLAR COVER BUNDLES

Hundreds of these bundles of United States original covers have been sold by me in the past year. My extensive buying constantly gives me a change of stock—to-day I get covers from California and tomorrow from Maine.

I cannot say just what these bundles will contain, as hardly any two are the same—but I do guarantee each bundle to contain at least ten covers—all containing United States stamps used in the period of their issue and mostly prior to 1890.

Your Money Back If Unsatisfactory is my definite guarantee. "Dollar Cover Bundles" are an advertising "lead" with me and I make them up so as to prove satisfactory in each instance, giving more than one hundred cents in value for the dollar.

Shanghai on U. S. Surcharged Errors

Our correspondent in Shanghai has sent us for sale some very rare items of the surcharges on U. S., among which are a single used copy on cover of the $2 on $1 with double overprint, and a superb mint block of four, all with the same error of overprint.

Our advices are that only one pane of this error exists, twenty copies having been used on package mail, and many of the remaining eighty having been absorbed by English collectors. This is the only known error in the entire series, and should not be confused with the rubber stamp fakes recently chronicled in "Scott's Journal."

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By WARNER BATES,
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers who send in specimens for examination will enclose postage for the return of their stamps. —Ed.)

Here is some more interesting copy from W. S. Boggs, No. 2 Hillside Avenue, Summit, N. J., Mr. Boggs says: "In reply to Major Bonesteel's inquiry concerning the varieties of the 2 cent, 1883, No. 210, Mr. Luff in his work mentions the supposed varieties of this stamp and (page 151) says, 'It has been claimed that there are two varieties of the two cent stamp, distinguishable by the presence or absence of a shadow below the shield, but these differences are entirely due to the amount of ink applied and to the condition of the plates.' The same is true of the Garfield stamps with or without cross hatching.

Another thing which I would like to call attention to is the two varieties of Continental papers. The first is a hard crisp paper which I believe was used during the first contract, April, 1873, to April, 1877, and the second was used from April, 1877, to February, 1879. It is a much more porous paper and lacks the snap of the first paper. It feels like the American soft paper but it isn't so thick and it is whiter. Also when viewed by transmitted light the mesh in it is not as plain as that of the American soft paper.

In your article in MEKEEL'S for November 11, 1922, you mention the straw paper but I do not find any reference to the American printing on hard, crisp, horizontally ribbed paper. Mr. Wiley in his booklet on the 3 cent green mentioned it as the 'Two-in-one' ribbed, but puts it under the Continental Company's product. Mr. Stevenson found a copy with the Amercian imprint and I have been fortunate enough to locate another with part of the imprint showing.

I meant to say concerning the Continental 'Soft Paper' that I have the 1c, 2c vermilion, 3c, 5c, 6c and 10c on this paper.

I don't know whether I have added anything new to your information, but if I have you're entirely welcome to it."

Thank you, Mr. Boggs. You have thrown some interesting light on an interesting subject that I intend to discuss in some detail in a number of future issues of this department as it is a big subject and worthy of the thorough consideration of every specialist. Would appreciate from members of this little fraternity all the information they can give on the subject of papers of the National, Continental and American printings.

Henry Merlo of Buskirk, N. Y., mentions several minor varieties on the 3 cent 1851-57-61-71 and 73 that sound interesting and, if he will send the specimens for my inspection I will be glad to describe any that seem worthy.

I have a damaged duplicate of the most complete shift I have ever seen, the all-over shift on the one-cent, 1879, showing misplaced lines all over the stamp, which was described in the first issue of this department, that I will send for inspection to anyone interested enough to enclose postage for registration and who will return it the same way.

Have just located a large, colorless "22" in black block with extra line at top. Has anyone located any higher colorless figures than this? Mine is on the 2c vermilion, soft paper. Also, what is the highest colorless letter to be found?

Just found what seems to me to be an odd cancellation on the three cent National, ungrilled. It looks like a pitchfork with four tines but instead of having a handle it has a hatchet-like proposition at the base of the tines. Someone please identify.

Recently located three or four cancellations on three cent green Continental and American which are similar to the New York figures and letters in a circle with horizontal or vertical bars above and below, only the circles are blank—there is no trace of figure or letter or anything else within the circle. Is this common? Think I have seen it on the two cent 1883, which I do not collect, but do not remember ever finding it on the three cent green before.

Another cancellation I have found for the first time is a printed "X" about 11 millimeters high but a plain letter without serifs. Pen cancelled specimens are often found with a couple of heavy penstrokes crossing to form an "X" which look about like this of mine, excepting that mine is printed.

Another recent cancellation arrival is the two cent green, 1887, with what looks like a perfect figure of an elephant, trunk and all, standing. Has this variety been listed? Think I remember that it was listed by Ritchie.

GOVERNMENTAL AUSPICES.

The Post Office exhibit at the recent "Palace of Progress" as advertised on Philadelphia postmarks for some few weeks consisted of a small booth where correctly and incorrectly wrapped parcel post packages were shown. There was also a cancelling machine, a frame showing how illegible addresses had been deciphered and another frame displaying all values of the new series of stamps in blocks of 9—some with straight edges and rather poorly mounted with narrow strips of transparent adhesive tape at an angle across the four corners.

They had current stamps for sale, the only one of the new issue being the 2 cent, but used no special postmark other than that used at the central office as per sample enclosed. It was a appointing display from a phil standpoint. They did distribute the closed circular however.

If you have not already had a c some of the contents may prove inte ing to WEEKLY readers.

HON. SIR HEATON RHODES, F.R.P.S.L.

By R. F. Joyce.

It was in 1913 that Sir Heaton Rhodes, the then Postmaster-General, of New Zealand, asked me to remount his schooldays' collection of stamps. It was an interesting accumulation of priceless gems and forgeries securely gummed to both sides of the leaves of an old album. Being a bit of a philatelist I wanted to discard a number of torn and damaged specimens, but a copy had to be terribly mutilated before Sir Heaton would allow it to be excluded.

The collection found itself spread over three Acme albums, one of which being devoted to N. Z. This soon grew apace and had again to be remounted, but with its growth came interest and study on the part of its owner. I have had many pupils in the School of Philately but none so apt as Sir Heaton. The mysteries of a perforation gauge or finding a difficult stamp in the catalogue were soon overcome by his remarkably good eyesight, retentive memory for details, and the keen intelligence which the hobby demanded and received from him.

Then came the period of filling in blanks. Mr. Phipson, who at the time had one of the best collections in Wellington received some fine approvals from London and others came from a well known Sydney house (J. H. S. Ltd.), and Sir Heaton dipped freely. Having early acquired the habit of only buying stamps in fine condition he seldom or never made a bad investment.

In less than twelve months he was plating retouches and at the same time set about considering a new issue of stamps for New Zealand. The Edwardian stamps, so late in coming out as to be almost a posthumous issue were in need of replacement and Sir Heaton as the first philatelic Postmaster-General wished to turn out a creditable issue.

Taking the design of his favourite issue "the full faces" he had inserted a portrait of His Majesty in coronation robes, in the circle of the old New Zealand stamps. The work was very neatly done by the Govt. photographer but alack and alas, the result was a failure. The young Queen having occupied the frame so long, an optical delusion set in, and "Georgius Quintus, Rex," appeared no king at all. The effect was too effeminate and had to be discarded. Sir Heaton was not to be beaten however in his attempt to rejuvenate the early classics, and in his schoolboy collection there was a much-prized penny black of 1840. This with a few slight alterations supplied the groundwork of our present issue.

The war in 1914 saw Sir Heaton resigning his portfolio in the ministry, being a Colonel in the Canterbury Regiment, with past services in South Africa, so one next hears from him in Egypt and Gallipoli. At this time he was unable to pay much atttention to stamps but picked up a little Arabic as may be seen from the weird hieroglyphics he inscribes on his stamp hinges which tell him where a stamp came from, and perhaps the price paid for it. Being very modest he would hardly like these things to appear in plain English.

I next saw Sir Heaton in London. in 1918 on my return from France, and tried to persuade him to secure a fine collection of New Zealand belonging to a German who was interned at that time. Sir Heaton, who could have bought the collection for "a song" was not the man to take a mean advantage of even a "Fritzie" and it was not until after the war that the collection was submitted to him and the price now ran into thousands. This was one of the few good things Sir Heaton missed.

It was in London and mostly after the Armistice that Sir Heaton's philatelic education received its polishing. His office as Chairman of the N. Z. Red Cross and Patriotic Fund was situated within a few minutes' walk of the philatelic auction rooms, and many London dealers. I think he visited them all.

Apropos of the former I hope I shall be forgiven for telling tales out of school but one little incident was too good to forget. Our usual custom was to view auction lots a day before the sale and mark the limits of our bids in the catalogue, then if Sir Heaton could not get away I used to attend and do the buying. One day Sir Heaton went by himself and on his return I asked him what luck he had.

"I bought them all . . . but not at your prices though."

"What do you mean?" I asked, "those prices were the limit you had to go."

"Yes, but the other chap kept going higher, and I could not let him have them, could I? He was only a parson . . ."

One day we visited Mr. G. H. Dannatt, the founder and Secretary of the "Otterdale," the famous British stamp exchange club, and saw his magnificent collection of Chili. Sir Heaton was at once struck with the similarity of the early Chilians to the New Zealand and his collection now contains a few Chilians for comparison.

Mr. Dannatt speedily got Sir Heaton elected a member of the Royal Philatelic Society and I think he was an honoured guest at one of their meetings when Mr. Goodfellow shewed some hundreds of New Zealand 1855 London prints to prove his theories as to which were on blued papers and white.

Another afternoon was spent "up stairs" at Stanley Gibbons where Mr. Mann's fine collection was inspected. A visit was also paid to Frank Godden Ltd., where he saw a collection being written up by that artist, Mr. W. H. Hiscox, who has probably no equal in the world.

Returning to N. Z. in 1919 Sir Heaton found himself again in the Cabinet as Minister of Defence and Pensions, though if he had been P.M.G. we should have had some reason to be proud of our Victory stamps, and the Post Office staff would not have joined the Red Fed's Union.

Though New Zealand occupies the first place in his collecting it must not be thought he has no interest in other countries. He has a fine little collection of Sydney Views, some imperf. Queenslands and at least two pairs of No. 1 Tasmania on dated originals, and he hopes one day to visit Australia again to pick up a little more knowledge and additions to these collections. Then there are two small volumes of "Swans" and a highly specialised collection of G. R. I. Samoans which in some parts at any rate is without equal.

Another feature of his collection is a fine sense of Balance, a feature ignored altogether by many accumulators of stamps. I mean the type of collection which shews pages and pages of one catalogue number, while many others are conspicuous only by their complete absence.

Sir Heaton does not like parting with a stamp, but as soon as that stamp is proportionately represented he does not acquire unnecessary additions. A little while ago some one tried to press on him a strip of 12 No. 10, mint. Very fine, but Sir Heaton is not collecting N. Z. in mint strips of 12 and would prefer a pair of No. 1, especially as the strip contained nothing of special philatelic interest except perhaps as a monstrosity. Had they been "Sydney Views" or retouches he would have jumped at them.

In the short space of ten years, most of which time has been taken up in War work, and holding state offices, it can hardly be expected that Sir Heaton has had much time for philatelic research. Yet he identified the "Charles Skipper and East" wmk. on the '55 blue papers, and has done a great deal towards assisting other philatelic writers. When he retires from politics in the next year or two, what will be a loss to the New Zealand Government will be a world-gain to philatelists.

REV. E. A. BUTLER,
St. George's, Newfoundland

Regarding his collection itself, I should enjoy the pleasure of supplying some notes on another occasion if permitted. One could not do justice to it in this article, sufficient to say that the only blanks I know of are the two bisected "shillings," and perhaps one or two of the un-official perforations.

His collection of entires and proofs alone is worth a few chapters; the collection is not yet mounted to his satisfaction and this work he is going to undertake himself. He possesses a highly developed artistic sense and very neat caligraphy, combined with the amazing store of knowledge he has picked up, which should make the collection the finest in New Zealand.

And what of the collector?

Sir Heaton is probably not far past the sunny side of 50. Son of one of the earliest pioneers, educated at home and on the continent, graduating at Brasenose, Oxford, he is a keen sportsman—fishing, shooting, and golf, being among his present day pursuits.

He is the owner of the finest country residence "Otahuna" in New Zealand, which has a magnificent garden containing many native and exotic trees and shrubs, and fields of narcissi in season. Horticulture was his hobby before taking up stamps, and many of the finest present day daffodils and jonquils had their origin at Otahuna. In the Hall are stag's heads with more pointers than one sees nowadays, while the surrounding station is the Stud farm which supplies the pure bred Polies and Romneys to the surrounding dairy and sheep farms. Impressed as one may be with the excellence of everything at "Otahuna" it is nothing to the charm of its owner.

Sir Heaton has that rare gift of making the shyest of strangers feel perfectly at home in his presence, and one goes away wondering if they have ever met a more perfect gentleman. Sharing his home and equally charming is Lady Rhodes, who though she is not a stamp collector takes such a keen interest in her husband's hobbies that if those Arabic characters on the stamp hinges were deciphered many of the gems would be found to have come from her.

"Out of the mouths of Babes and Butchers" . . . I have forgotten the rest, but a butcher from the local freezing works summed Sir Heaton up in rather glowing terms when the Ellesmere results were going up at the recent election.

"Rhodes, Oh! he will get in all right, he's been a politician for 20 years and no one has ever been able to sling any mud at 'im." He got in with a large majority.—Australian Stamp Journal.

THE NEW NEWFOUNDLAND SET.

CONDITION, NEATNESS, ETC.

By Leonard A. Gibbens.

Perhaps this little article will not appeal to medium or advanced collectors, and they will consequently pass on to something more useful and interesting with some such remark as "Queen Anne stuff—doesn't interest me." Nevertheless, philately is a big lesson and there will always be newcomers into the class—the stamp magazines, etc.—to learn all they can about the hobby, so we will tender our apologies to the advanced collectors for thrusting an old story before them and proceed with a little chat to beginners and those kind readers who are willing to give us a hearing.

The recent Exhibition has taught many a collector a lesson as to neatness, arrangement, and the study of stamps, and has shown that the mere accumulation of stamps can never make the accumulator a philatelist.

A collection must be of a pretty high order to stand a chance of gaining an award, and competition was keen, which is nothing to wonder at, considering that amongst the exhibitors were many philatelists whose collections are the main theme of interest in life—both time and money being lavished upon them—and you may take it for granted that most of them thought twice before entering their collections, because as no doubt you are aware, the main points the judges have in mind when examining exhibits are, to jot them down in any order:—

1. Condition of the stamps.
2. Arrangement.
3. General neatness.
4. Method of writing-up and display.
5. Evidence of philatelic study.
6. Completeness.

and unless all these points were as near perfection as possible, no matter how complete the collection chanced to be, it would stand a small chance of gaining an award unless the remaining five points were well covered.

Money goes a long way towards success in stamp collecting, but money alone will never make a philatelist of an album space filler, an accumulator or a hoarder of stamp. And a very good job too.

The first point—condition—is without any difficulty, as it is quite a simple matter for every collector to pay due regard to this important point. Whether condition is studied with regard to securing an award, appearance of the collection or collecting stamps as an investment, it is equally important.

The novice is easily persuaded into buying so-called rarities, which are stated to be "almost given away," but how is the beginner, who knows nothing about condition and its effect upon values, to know that these so-called rarities (actually rare stamps, but torn, repaired, etc.,) are only offered at give-away prices because they are virtually rubbish, and as rubbish only fit to be burned? At some later date he is informed that the stamp he was so proud of and acquired so cheaply is not worth the amount in pence he put upon it in pounds, and the effect of "eye-openers" like this is very bad for our hobby.

But let me proceed. Unused stamps should be collected in the same state as when they left the printers, i.e., their colours must be bright and not rubbed, full gum, no perforation teeth missing, or, if imperf., with nice margins on all sides. The stamps must also be well centered and in every way perfect. With regard to the former, some stamps it is practically impossible to get with the design exactly in the centre of the perforated edges and with a nice white border between the design and the perforations — Nova Scotia 1860-63, for instance—but I maintain that so long as the perforations do not touch the design the stamp may be correctly termed well centered. But, let me reiterate — and mark you—this only in the case of stamps known to have been carelessly perforated, or when the plates have been laid down with very narrow gutters between the designs. Nearly all stamps issued within the last twenty years can easily be found with that "nice white border" all round the design and between the perforated sides.

As to being perfect, by that I imply stamps not torn, thinned, stained, etc., or creased in any way. The same thing applies, of course, to used stamps, but with a little more stress on the fact that the copies must be clean.

A superb lightly postmarked copy of a postage stamp is a fascinating item—something to linger over and gloat over. Personally I am in favour of unused and look upon used stamps as spoilt, also the many different positions of the postmark tend to lead one's attention from the design of the stamp. At any rate it is not my intention here to debate upon the merits of used v. unused and vice versa. A postally used stamp has justified its issue. An unused stamp has not, and most of them owned by sta collectors never will. One's own opini on this burning topic must necessarily arbitrary, but as a "mint" favourite, must add that unused stamps are ge rally worth face value and cannot held without the interest accruing them being added, and over a period years that mounts up, whereas used a in a sense demonetised and, general will be available for goodness kno how long.

Now, as regards arrangement a neatness. The former can only matt when a blank, loose or fixed leaf albu is used, in which event a good catalog some philatelic knowledge, and / or a d cent working library, are all that a necessary to obtain a pleasing and sa isfactory result. As regards neatnes most collectors can acquire that. Ev printed and spaced out album may me an eyesore in the hands of an ndy collector, certainly without neat- e no collection can be worth looking t, and nothing is more disappointing eart-breaking to a true stamp lover to have to inspect a good collection tamps, but whose beauty has been ed on account of it being arranged mounted anyhow in any sort of an lbm.

owever, most philatelists are neat ar as their collections go, and be- ers soon acquire the habit of order- s, as this is a part of philately's aing.

riting-up calls for a good amount of nvledge and one must know—or rely ne's store of common sense—as to to include and what to ignore; in I am of the opinion that writing-up art in itself, that is to do it well. the same time it is just another of tely's teachings, but harder to ner than that of say, neatness.

mpleteness—no collection can be lete without rarities (worse luck ywe of the slender purse) and rari- come in a different department. , you can learn a lot about them, but have to be bought. Rarities are of alue and not of much use (except rong hands) unless in A1 condition. are also expensive, running away a lot of cash—a big lot, too, some- . They should be purchased only some reliable firm, unless the pur- r is something of an expert. Even it is as well to be pessimistic as ds one's idea of expert philatelic ledge—an expert is years in the ng.

e collector who cannot afford to give es a place in his collection, must ltogether ignore them, and in this a fair proportion of judicious writ- p, emphasised by some good illus- ns from a catalogue—auction cata- s are best, as they give photographs e actual stamps—will serve very in place of the real article. This d of representing rarities in a col- n is, I think, very much better than w of third rate copies of the actual p, which only serve to bring for- to the onlooker the extent of your ance in the matter of condition, t the same time they serve to point hat you command a slender purse, what perhaps is worse, they spoil ppearance of all the other stamps e same page.

ore replacing the cap on my pen let ndulge in a few "Don'ts." Don't your money on poor copies of ystamp, and if you have any dirty, nged, or heavily postmarked stamps, give them to somebody's little boy. over the carpet and put them at ack of the fire. When about to me writing-up, put all the stamps f harm's way before uncorking the t of Indian ink, and above all things fall into the space-filler's rut, wait opportunity, and select your speci- and—collect.—Stamp Collectors' ightly.

POSTAGE STAMPS OF SOMALILAND.

BY BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

CHAPTER III.

The Second Issue.

Late in 1903 a second issue of several of the values of the Queen's head type was made with the overprint "BRITISH SOMALILAND" at the bottom instead of at the top of the stamps. The following is a list of the denominations so treated:—

2½ annas ultramarine.
6 annas pale brown.
12 annas purple on red.
1 rupee carmine and green.
2 rupees yellow brown and carmine.
3 rupees green and brown.
5 rupees violet and ultramarine.

The 6 annas is on paper watermarked elephant's head while all the others are on the star watermarked paper. The 2½a, 12a and 1r stamps were printed in sheets of 240 and the 6a in sheets of 320 as explained in the last chapter and in all four values the two types appear though the arrangement differs slightly from that of the first setting.

As before the 240 subject sheets were overprinted at one operation and in this setting all the stamps in the upper pane, with the sole exception of the ninth stamp on the third row (No. 33), are type 1. In the lower pane the two types are distributed as follows:—

1	1	1	1	1	1	1	2	1	1	1	1
1	1	1	2	1	1	2	2	2	2	2	2
2	2	2	1	1	1	2	2	1	1	1	1

There are thus in each sheet 182 stamps of type 1 and 58 of type 2, while eleven horizontal and thirteen vertical pairs may be obtained showing the two types se-tenant.

For overprinting the 6 annas value the same procedure was followed as in the case of the first issue—the four right hand vertical rows of type being removed and the stamps overprinted two vertical panes at a time. In this value, therefore, all the stamps in the two upper panes are type 1, while in the lower panes the types were arranged as follows:—

1	1	1	1	1	1	1	2
1	1	1	2	1	1	2	2
1	1	1	1	1	1	2	2
1	1	1	1	1	1	2	2
2	2	2	1	1	1	2	2
1	1	1	1	1	2	2	2

In this denomination there are, thus, 256 stamps of type 1 and only 64 of type 2, while eight horizontal and six vertical pairs may be found showing the two types.

As in the case of the first issue the types are not constant on the large stamps—2, 3 and 5 rupees.

The variety with thick "D" in "SOMALILAND" occurs on the 2½a, 12a and 1 rupee stamps in the tenth stamp in the bottom row of the upper pane. It is also known in connection with the 6 annas value but I am unable to state its position in the setting. The first stamp on one of the rows is so badly battered that the "S" of "SOMALILAND" looks more like the figure "8" than a letter.

These appear to be the only varieties that appear with any regularity, though short, small, raised, dropped and widely spaced letters appear in great profusion. Sometimes, too, one of the letters "I" prints very very faintly or is merely represented by a dot but none of these appear with constancy and as they are due to a combination of poor type and poor workmanship they are consequently of little philatelic interest.

Specimens of the 3 rupees stamps may be found with the overprint distinctly curved, the letters at the ends of the words being higher than those in the middle. This variety is of some slight interest and was probably caused by the form containing the type not being locked tightly enough to keep the type from moving.

EDITORIAL.

Collectors have been aware that there is something astir in connection with the development of the air mail service and no doubt, some of them have been anticipating stamp news involving the issue of special stamps as a result of the improvements that are to be adopted. The papers have been explaining that innovations were to be made and that, for instance, special night flying mail service from New York to San Francisco is to be established on August 1st. Recently, the Chicago American interviewed John H. Bartlett, first assistant postmaster general, who with W. Irving Glover stopped off at Chicago on his return from the recent convention of postal clerks in San Francisco, who said: "Special airplane stamps in the dominations of 10-12 cents, 12-18 cents, 18 to 26 cents are in the process of making. The cost of the stamp varies with the distance the piece of mail must go. Mail bearing these stamps is immediately assigned to the airplane service, assuring its delivery in the speediest way possible." Particulars will soon be forthcoming and collectors will be pleased to know that special stamps will again represent this advanced branch of the service.

From the Madrid Filatelico for May, 1923, we learn that Le Figaro and Le Gaulois, two Great French newspapers have established a philatelic section in their columns that has been appearing twice a week since the first of February. In connection with a prize contest held by the two periodicals, over 11,000 solutions were received. New contests are announced by the papers, with rewards of a trip to Burdeos and of vacation jaunts. We learn that a philatelic exhibition was scheduled for Burdeos in Spain, for June 15 to June 24, 1923. The collections of the state and of the city of Burdeos were shown out of competition and on the jury, we find the name of Stalins, delegate for Europe of the American Bank Note Company.

At the meeting of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, held on May 10, 1923, Mr. A. F. Lichtenstein of New York displayed his superb collection of the issues of Canada and we read in the minutes that Mr. Lichtenstein "described the varieties in their chronological order without notes." This great collection of Canadian issues is a source of pride to all of us and Mr. Lichtenstein is a foremost student of the interesting stamps. A cordial vote of thanks was given to Mr. Lichtenstein.

The editors of the Smart Set are running for president and vice-president on a rip-snorting platform whose planks are somewhat full of splinters. One of the promises made by the candidates is: they "promise on their sacred words of honor to leave the postage stamps alone and not to have the faces on them changed constantly, as at present." Here is where these babes in the political wood sit in the poison ivy. They alienate the philatelic vote and sign a testimonial to their own ignorance, by the same motion. Need we say that the faces on the stamps are not changed often and that from first to last, excepting a few special occasions, the countenance of the benign Benjamin has shone from the one cent. We do not change our postage stamps oftener than advisable and our record in comparison with that of many other countries is favorable. Stamp collectors recognize the desirability of new issues in moderation and are unanimous for an orderly sequence of newcomers and it is useless for any candidates to court the philatelic vote who offend collectors at the outset. The philatelic vote is no myth as it is, and as we wax in strength, the time will come when candidates will use all their blandishments in winning the support of us and hesitate to run counter to our ideas. We do not hesitate to say that the Smart Set ticket has throttled its chances for success by its absurd locution on the stamp question.

Within the month past, the postal authorities have issued an order regarding stamp cancellation, in which it is said that many postmasters "are using red ink for canceling postage stamps. In most cases this occurs where rubber canceling stamps are used." This practice is discountenanced by the department and postmasters are "cautioned to use only black canceling ink furnished by the department and to see that all stamps are fully and completely canceled." The ink intended for the steel cancelers should not be used on the rubber stamps as it will soon spoil the rubber, and black ink for use in canceling with rubber stamps is furnished on requisition.

From Mr. William Jerrems, of Kansas City, Mo., we have received a copy of the Telephone Review, of June, 1923, in which there appears a remarkable article by Mr. A. W. Deas, "Answers to Questionnaire Found on Postage Stamps." A sub-head reads: "Get the Stamp Hobby and Learn About the World." Mr. Deas is pictured busily engaged with his stamp albums and the good example set by this officer of the telephone company is a good one. Mr. Deas submits ten questions, embracing history, geography, politics, coinage and natural history, all of which are to be answered by the study of stamps. One of the questions is: "What does a mud-puppy look like?" Mr. Deas' article runs at a merry clip and is easily a winner.

From Burt B. Hyde of Afton, New York, we have received a clipping telling of the death of Congressman Mott at Oswego, on July 10, 1923. Luther Mott was forty-nine years of age since 1910 he had represented the th second district in New York. He Chairman of the New York cong sional delegation and his profession that of banker; and he had serve president of the New York State B ers' Association. We regret the unti death of Mr. Mott, whose brilliant tainments were evident in his you days when he was enthusiastic a stamp collector. We have enjoye personal acquaintance with Mr. since 1893, when he attended the vention of the old P. S. of A. at Chic He was present at the convention Niagara Falls in 1894 and was ele treasurer of the P. S. of A. for second time on this occasion. A banquet at Niagara Falls he mad sparkling speech in which he rel some of his humorous experiences treasurer. Eight years ago, at the nati republican convention in Chicago, Mott told of the pleasure that he derived from his stamps and how hoped to take them up again. One his daughters was collecting at that t The election of Mr. Mott to cong at an early age is a tribute to his ab and we feel that no eulogy is neces here of our old-time collector. Hyde who sent the news of the de of Mr. Mott was present at the conventions.

We have received a newspaper clip telling of the interest in philately the Honorable Roy G. Fitzgerald, represents the third Ohio district congress. We quote: "He has the lar collection of the stamps of the Un States and other nations, in Dayton, perhaps in Ohio. He is one am many members of congress intereste the philatelic art." Mr. Fitzgerald an intimate friend to the Hon. Ernest Ackerman of New Jersey. In the terview, Mr. Fitzgerald is quoted saying: "The historic value of the sign on American postage stamps is haps the most highly developed of others." He tells of the range of p traiture on our stamps and shows the themes of the stamps embrace many subjects that one becomes pressed by the variety of them.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP 510 W. 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

W. E. HENRY & CO.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

Although this factory was one of those which began to use private die stamps at the later end of the revenue stamp tax period, and there must be a number of people still living in the vicinity of Stroudsburg where the factory was located, the writer has been able to obtain only the most meagre information regarding it. The most definite information obtained so far is that the factory was in operation for a comparatively short time and burned down.

Within a very few miles of the factory is some of the most beautiful secenery in the eastern part of the United States. Stroudsburg and the adjoining town of East Stroudsburg are close to the Delaware River just above the famous Delaware Water Gap and at the foot of the eastern slope of the Pocono Mountains. However, none of the grandeur and charm of the surrounding country is portrayed on the match stamps. The Henry stamp takes front rank with the least attractive of the Bureau productions and although to the enthusiastic stamp collector it may be a joy forever, in no sense can it be considered a thing of beauty.

The design is in the form of an upright rectangle of the standard 1c size. The central portion contains what is evidently intended to be a heavy wall of masonry pierced by an equally heavy arch, the keystone of which bears a small colorless letter K and strongly suggests the gloomy appearance of the Traitor's Gate which leads from the Thames River into the Tower of London, and where it is said only those condemned to death were permitted to enter. The space below the arch is occupied by rising (or setting) sun with two keys crossed and in tiny colored letters, paralleling the curve of the arch, "East Stroudsburg, Pa." A marginal label at the top of the stamp reads, "W. E. Henry & Co." and two curved labels just below "Keystone Match—Manufacturers." Near the bottom of the stamp below the arch is a ribbon engraved "U. S. Inter. Rev.," a marginal label at the bottom reads "One Cent." In each lower corner is a slanting oval bearing the numeral 1.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

> First issued, Nov. 18, 1880.
> Last issued, Oct. 21, 1882.
> 210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
> 4,956,000 issued, all printed by the Bureau at Washington on watermarked paper.

The stamp was printed in red and in black and probably there was only one plate, but the writer cannot definitely state which color was printed first or how many stamps were printed in each color. The total issue was 23,600 sheets which, at $2.00 per sheet, would represent a tax of $47,200.00.

Possibly the Henry die was the first private die engraved at the Bureau, as the date of first issue is only a few weeks later than the date when the Bureau took over the production of private die stamps. The imprint reads "Engraved & Printed at the Bureau of Engraving & Printing" which the writer identifies as the third Bureau imprint. It occurs on all four sides of the sheet. Unlike many of the plates engraved at the Bureau the evidence available indicates that the pane lines are not continuous across the plate but extend inwards only an inch or two from the outer edge of the outer row of stamps. A marginal strip of three from the lower right corner of a sheet printed in black has been noted which bears the reversed italic imprint, which on the plate itself reads "Henry, W. E. & Co. No. 214."

The writer has also noted a single copy in red bearing manuscript cancellation "Oct — 80." If genuine this cancellation indicates that the stamp was from the first printing and was antedated. The red color varies somewhat in shade and there may have been more than one printing. The cancelled copy mentioned inclines more toward vermilion, whereas other specimens are usually a duller or else a darker red.

Evidently there were remainders of these stamps, or else a supply of unused specimens was purchased from the firm by dealers or collectors while they were current, because a few pairs and blocks both in red and in black are known.

The catalog prices for the past thirty-five years reflect the relative scarcity of the two colors. Although during short periods they have been considered of about equal scarcity, the red stamp has usually been rated about 50% higher than the black one. The red stamp gradually rose from 20c in the '80s and early '90s to 40c in 1901 and has been quoted at 50c since 1906. The black stamp varied from 10c to 25c until 1901, when the present quotation of 30c was established. There are many good copies in existence and neither color is apt to be very scarce for many years to come.

LOUISIANA PURCHASE STAMPS.

By CHARLES G. WILSON.

In 1904, the United States issued a series of five stamps to commemorate the centenary of the Louisiana Purchase.

The next most important event in the history of the United States after the framing and adoption of the Constitution was this great land purchase. To Thomas Jefferson we owe the acquisition of this great tract which exceeds over one million miles and which cost in all only $28.000,000 without one drop of blood being spilt.

Jefferson knew the need of territorial expansion westward which was made possible by the easy navigability of the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, and he bent his efforts towards acquiring Louisiana from France. He wrote Robert R. Livingston, American Minister at Paris, to press this matter with the French Court, and in 1803 sent James Monroe over as Minister Plenipotentiary to cooperate with Livingston. The Senate placed $2 000,000 at their disposal.

England and France were again at war—as usual. Napoleon, pressed by the need of money with which to carry on war, and realizing the impossibility of being able to hold Louisiana on account of England's invincibility on the sea, determined to sell the province to the United States, and the sale took place April 30, 1803.

The territory ceded to us embraces the area of fourteen of our present states.

Jefferson, Livingston and Monroe have been commemorated on the stamps issued in 1904, but Lewis and Clark, the two men who explored this vast unknown area during the two years following its purchase, who went up the Missouri and down the Snake, over mountains, through forests, across deserts, encountering savage beasts and men, who in the face of inconceivable hardship brought back to civilization the information about the new land that started a steady flood of migration into the territory, have found no place on the series of stamps.

I have about that sum invested in the good old 5c and 10c of 1847, and I am proud of it. What I am leading up to is this, if you have any exceptional items in this issue, I would be interested in them; if you desire to buy some of this issue, I will part with some of the varieties of which I have duplicates as to shades, cancellations, covers, pairs, etc.

If you need anything in old U. S., bear in mind I have one of finest lots in the country. First class reference necessary if you wish approval selections. I am taking no chances on these goods. Address as usual

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—In my Chronicle for July 7th mention was made of the wonderful mint strip of seven of the 10c Confederate with outlines that changed hands at the last Ferrari Sale. An unknown correspondent in the South now sends for inspection an illustration of a very fine used strip of five with two extra stamps that no doubt were part of the strip. The cancellation cannot be seen clearly from the illustration but it seems to be Milledgeville, Ga. I have written to the firm whose imprint appeared on the envelope inclosing the information and I am in hopes of learning more about this piece which is possibly a new find.

Under date of July 14th the Post Office Department sends out information regarding the performance of the Air Mail Service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923. It seems that during these twelve months the service was 96.73 per cent perfect which proves that aeroplanes are eligible to enter the same classification as railroad trains. Planes flying totaled 1,589,389 miles shuttling back and forth over the continent between New York and San Francisco. The performance record fulfilled the hope of the Air Mail Service for improvement of last year's record which was 95.52%. These figures are based on the number of miles travelled with mail against the number of miles scheduled.

Mr. R. H. Mason sends for inspection an unlisted variety of the 2c on 3c provisional envelope with the type III Chicago overprint. This is the first colored envelope that has come to my attention with this surcharge and the variety in question was used by a firm located in Valley City, No. Dakota.

1920-22, 2c on 3c Provisional Envelope.
Chicago (Ill.) Overprint.
Die A on blue, Size 5, Wmk. 19, L. B.

Mr. H. W. Porter also reports that he has located a copy of the current circular die 2c carmine envelope with a distinct triple impression. The same envelope is known with a double impression and I have also had the 1c green and 2c carmine impressed on the same envelope in addition to the 2c and 3c on the same cover. The latter is somewhat rare.

We have previously listed a number of South Carolina "Business Licence Tax" stamps printed by the American Bank Note Company and running in value from 21/64c to 30c. Mr. F. E. Heydon now reports that the same state has issued "Documentary" stamps printed by the same company in green. He has seen the 2, 5, 8, 10, 25 and 50c and understands that the higher values range from $1 to $30.

NORTH WEST PACIFIC ISLANDS.

By DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG.

Not a few War stamp collectors find difficulty in differentiating correctly the five settings of the distinguishing overprint applied to the Commonwealth postage stamps supplied for use in the former German territory of New Britain and adjacent islands, administered by the Australian Government under the general designation of the "North-West Pacific Islands." This is not altogether to be wondered at since the majority of catalogue lists are inaccurate and confusing, whilst information published in the contemporary philatelic press has been frequently of a diverse and contradictory nature.

A really comprehensive and authentic record of the various printings and consignments, recently compiled by that eminent Australian philatelist, Mr. E. D. E. Van Weenen, has at last provided a sound basis for the classification of these interesting issues. In attempting a simplified reconstruction of the history of the North-West Pacific Islands stamps to date the studies of Mr. Van Weenen and others have been freely drawn upon with a view to making this somewhat intricate subject easily understood by the people.

FIRST SETTING (24/11/14).

It was early in November, 1914, that Mr. J. B. Cooke, the Federal Stamp Printer, was instructed to supply a certain number of 1d and 2½d stamps of the Commonwealth, bearing the imprint, "N. W. Pacific Islands," for use in the occupied ex-German possessions. These stamps were to be taken to Rabaul, New Britain, by the newly-appointed Australian Commissioner for the Pacific (Colonel S. A. Pethbridge, C.M.G.). As it was a rush order the overprint was set up in five vertical rows of 8-point De Vinne Roman capitals, and a matrix impression taken in wax from which six replicas were cast to form an electrotype plate of 30 subjects. Three very distinct varieties of the word "Islands" occurred through the use of differently formed "S," viz.:—

Type a. Both "S" alike with uniform curves.
Type b. First "S" with bottom curve flattened out.
Type c. Both "S" with flattened bottom curve.

The first setting was composed as follows:—

a a a a a a
a a a a a a b b b b b b c c c c c c
c c c c c c
1st Setting.

This setting is only found upon the 1d carmine rose and 2½d indigo, forming a consignment despatched from Melbourne on November 24, 1914, consisting of 10,080 of the One Penny, and 8,160 of the Twopence Halfpenny in all. In this printing the margins were left

COLLECTIONS SUPERB!

We feel that any statements we might make regarding the extraordinary and unusually fine value of our packets and collections would be consid- e extravagant, for in order to do full justice to them, our descriptive matter would have to be of the superlative degree. We will, therefore, content elves with reproducing the letters of commendation received from a few of our customers who have purchased "Harrisco" packets, and which we ve will present the most true and convincing testimonials as to the big value of our offerings:

at orders are what count:

On your recommendation, we recently purchased, as an experiment, a 4,000 variety nted) packet for resale purposes. The packet was priced up and sent to one of ustomers, who made purchases of $21.00 net at half catalogue. We have found that ases our customers greatly to receive such a large assortment, and as this system ite a "time-saver" for us, we expect to use other mounted packets from time to in conjunction with our approval department. Meanwhile, please book our order ve more of the four thousands." Fenway Stamp Co., Boston, Mass.

a big collector:

My collection numbered 27,220 varieties at the time I ordered the 1,500 Portuguese ial collection from you at $67.50. I want to say that in all my dealings I have made a purchase which was so thoroughly appreciated. The stamps were not good in quality, but also in character, and I added to my large collection 695 ps, to the value of $248.07, and have 805 varieties with which to make up exchange I am indeed pleased!" Sen. F. A. Godcharles, Harrisburg, Pa.

s a larger one:

The 12,000 variety packet (mounted) was most certainly a wonder and we expect y a larger one shortly. We have confined our patronage entirely to your firm as we found your prices and treatment unequalled by any dealer with whom we have in contact during the last seventeen years." H. W. Myers & Co., Richmond, Calif.

each month:

The 10,000 variety collection arrived and we are greatly pleased with it. We don't how you do it, but if your supply holds out we can surely use plenty of them. e book our order for one each month and forward another at once." Pikes Peak Co., Colorado Springs, Colo.

20,000 Varieties Mounted For Only $895.00

Words cannot do justice to the aristocratic and thoroughbred appear- of this excellent assembling, nor to the fineness and quality of the ps contained therein. It is easy enough to get together 20,000 stamps kind, including a lot of unlisted varieties, but it's a different matter tain a collection of the same number of standard and major varieties all in the pink of condition, and containing a large number of the er stamps cataloguing up to $10 or more each. We will back the ty of this collection against all competition, and the best proof of our rity is the fact that we are at any time willing to submit the collection proval to any responsible party who will make a substantial cash de- or submit high class references.

The collection is mounted by countries in twenty ruled books and is for immediate transferring into your albums. All countries of the are represented, 20th century and new issues are quite strong, but der issues are by no means neglected. All in all, a wonderful buy for an who has the money to spare if he is assured that the investment and are there!

SPECIAL NET PRICE ONLY $895.00

3,000 Varieties Mounted at Low Price of $2250.00

We really do not know how to describe on paper a collection of such gificent proportions and extraordinary value. There are very few col- s, indeed, who are ever able to boast of possessing 30,000 different s, and those who do will tell you that it was the work of years and st eight or ten thousand stamps so "hard to find" that they were often ed to give up in despair.

he description of this "wonder collection" will conform to the one of 00 varieties listed above, except that there are 10,000 additional stamps such stamps they are!! Hundreds of unused, mint, British, French ortuguese Colonies, in many cases running right through to the high- lues; scarce 19th century galore; New Europe and occupation stamps t complete, including many of the rarities cataloguing up to $50.00 thousands of the popular South and Central American issues; good old States, including the 5c and 10c '47, 1869 issue complete, Trans- sippi and Columbians complete—we could use up pages telling of the to be found.

he assembling of this collection was the work of months and, needless we have only one in stock. The price is much too low, but we desire an immediate purchaser so we'll let it go for ONLY $2,250.00

0 Portuguese Colonies Mounted or Unmounted For $6.00

n excellent little collection containing a wide variety of stamps cata- g up to 25c each, all in perfect condition and mostly unused. Quite Vasco da Gama and other commemoratives, charity stamps, Nyassa, ionals and other popular sellers. Includes such out-of-the-way col- as Angra, Congo, Guinea, Horta, Inhambane, Quelimane, Tete, Zam- etc. Catalogue value about $40.00.

A "Harrisco Special" at Only $6.00

50 Portuguese Colonies Mounted in Three Books For $67.50

his is the collection which has been praised far and wide, both by col- and dealers, as the most remarkable offering made in years. Scores ased testimonials are on file, most of them expressing not only the deepest satisfaction, but also wonderment as to "how we can do it." The collection is mounted in three blank books by countries. Most of the stamps are unused and condition is perfect throughout. Every stamp has been especially selected for quality and is guaranteed genuine. Vasco da Gama issues, scarce provisionals, and hard-to-get varieties cataloguing up to several dollars each are scattered profusely throughout. A number of the colonies are practically complete. Catalogue value will total about $350.00. This is positively the most exceptional offer we have ever been able to make!

Special Price (while stock lasts) Only $67.50

1000 French Colonies Mounted For $20.50

This is the same packet which is advertised by many other concerns at prices ranging from $27.50 to $40.00 net and only the fortunate cash purchase of a large number enables us to pass on to our customers the advantage of such an extraordinarily low price. Nearly all of the stamps are in mint sets and every colony is represented, among them being such isolated countries as Cameroons, Canton, Diego Suarez, Grande Comore, Upper Volta, Tanger, Niger Territory, New Hebrides, Ubangui, Rouad, Sudan, Tchad, etc., etc. After our present supply of these packets is exhausted, we shall probably be obliged to advance prices, as the present quotation is entirely too low, taking into consideration the excellent quality.

Present Price Special Only $20.50

3000 Different France, Occupation Issues, and Colonies Mounted For $235.00

This is probably the largest collection of its kind which has ever been carried by any concern, either here or abroad, and they are so difficult to assemble that we are unable to offer more than two or three each year. The mere number, "three thousand", does not appear very startling, but when it precedes the words, "France and Colonies"—scarce, much undercatalogued, and everywhere in great demand—then will incredulous exclamations be forthcoming from every collector. For how many members of the Great Hobby are able to point with pride to well-filled pages of these hard-to-get Colonials? How many more have glanced ruefully at the many empty and unfilled spaces and very near despaired of ever filling them? We feel not only happy, but also very proud, to be able to present such an effective and altogether satisfactory solution to the great difficulty. We are positive that the future patronage of every pleased and delighted buyer will more than repay us for our meritorious efforts and inconsequential monetary profit in offering such a truly magnificent collection at an unusually low price which is well within the reach of any collector of moderate means.

We cannot undertake a detailed description of a collection of this size. It would take pages to do so. We can state, however, that everything is in fine condition and that the collection will fill, at one fell swoop, practically all of those annoying blank spaces with the medium-priced French Colonies you have been unable to obtain. Early issues, new issues, red cross and charity stamps; occupation and provisional issues; hundreds of stamps in complete sets, including the scarce values; thousands of superb, handsome and hard-to-get stamps, most of them in mint condition.—That's the story in a few words, and any purchaser who is not more than pleased after a thorough examination may return the collection for a full refund, plus postage expenses! We make this seemingly liberal offer, secure in the knowledge that the collection is so extraordinarily fine that no one will ever think of taking advantage of it!

Special Price Until Sold Only $235.00

1,500 Different British Colonies Mounted at $42.50

This collection is of such exceptional value that it ought to interest any progressive dealer, collector or exchanger. There are certain outstanding points of quality which put the collection in a class of its own:

(1) British Colonies only—absolutely no Great Britain.
(2) Every stamp is distinctly different; no watermark, perforation, or other minor varieties. With the thousands of changed watermarks now appearing, this point alone means an increased value of from 25% to 40% in the collection as a whole.
(3) Picked copies only; to our knowledge there is not a damaged specimen in the entire collection.
(4) About 20% of the stamps are unused, mint, and small, out-of-the-way countries such as Turks Islands, Virgin Islands, Antigua, Zanzibar, Maldives, Cyprus, Dominica, Lagos, Montserrat, Sarawak, Togo, Papua, etc., are extraordinarily well represented.
(5) The collection is neatly hinged in a large, blank approval book and can be easily classified and remounted into the collector's albums, or the dealer's approval sheets.

Only a very few of these super-collections have been assembled, so an early order is advisable.

Special "Harrisco" Price Only $42.50

4,000 British Colonies Mounted in Album For $575.00

The completion of this collection represented an undertaking of considerable size, but we are highly gratified at the result of our labors, and are willing to guarantee that the lucky purchaser will feel that he has indeed obtained "the bargain of a life-time". The difficulties encountered in assembling this collection may be doubly appreciated when we state that it contains only major varieties; in other words, absolutely no watermark, perforation or other minor differences. Practically all of the colonies are well represented and many of the stamps will catalogue up to several dollars each. The condition is practically perfect throughout. We have only one collection in stock, so an early order will be necessary to avoid disappointment.

adhering to the outer edges of the quarter sheets. Complete blocks of 30 with margins attached are extremely scarce.

The stamps were issued at Rabaul during the first days of January, 1915.

SECOND SETTING (15/3/15).

Additional denominations of ½d, 2d and 3d (Kangaroo), and 4d, 5d, 6d, 9d and 1s, were included in a second consignment of "N. W. Pacific Islands" stamps despatched from the Federal Printing Office, Melbourne, on March 15, 1915.

The overprint was from a new setting with mixed types in the sixth row occasioned by the replacement of damaged stereos as follows:—

a a a a a a
a a a a a a b b b b b b
c c c c c c
a c c c b c

2nd Setting.

The impression was in purple-black (showing through at the back) on the ½d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 9d and 1s values, and in black on the remaining denominations.

Shades and quantities of the ten stamps included in this second printing were: ½d bright green, pale green (48,000), 1d carmine-rose, deep rose (24,000), 2d grey (12,000), 2½d indigo (14,400), 3d olive, green-olive (8,040), 4d yellow-orange, light orange-yellow (6,000), 5d light brown (4,800), 6d bright ultramarine (4,080), 9d violet (2,760), and 1s green (2,040).

Varieties exist of the 2½d on thin paper and the 3d without stop after "W" in the top row.

THIRD SETTING (OCTOBER, 1915).

This setting is very rare and was only used for a part of the supply of ½d stamps sent out in October, 1915. Only two sheets have been discovered so far. The first five horizontal rows are identical with the first and second settings, but the penultimate stamp in the sixth row is type "b," thus:—

c c c c b c

3rd Setting, 6th Row.

FOURTH SETTING (1/6/15—1/6/18).

The fourth setting differs from the third solely in the space between the horizontal lines, which measures 19mm. between the first and second and second and third rows, instead of 18mm., and 19½mm. instead of 18½mm. between the third and fourth and fourth and fifth rows.

All printings despatched between June, 1915, and June, 1918, appear to have been made from this fourth setting, with the exception of the 5d, which did not appear in the fourth setting until the printing of March 3, 1916.

It is impossible to give a summary of the totals of the consignments during the three years that this setting was in use, as no records are available subsequent to August 18, 1916.

The most prominent varieties of the fourth setting are: (1) large stop after "W"; (2) outline stops after "ISLANDS."

The 5s value with watermark rounded Crown and wide "A" is considered by Mr. Van Weenen to be the rarest of all "N. W. Pacific Islands" stamps, and it is believed that only 120 in all were printed.

FIFTH SETTING (1/6/18).

The fifth setting, distinguished by the fact that the "S" is uniform throughout, appears to have been brought into use in June, 1918, the earliest recorded date of use at Rabaul being July 5th of that year. It is still in use, and figures on the 1d violet and 4d ultramarine lately to hand. In all probability no further printings of North-West Pacific Islands stamps will be made, as a definitive issue of special design is in preparation and will be printed as soon as pressure of work at the Federal Printing Office permits.

French Colonies

We believe we hold the finest stock of these stamps in America, and we can assure you they are scarce. The average collector would know it if we could show the difficulty we have had in getting our stock together. We consider these stamps have as good a future as any class in the catalog, and many collectors are beginning to realize this, taking the few there are out of the market. We have a splendid line of these listing under $3 each and will be pleased to see lists of wants.

NEWFOUNDLAND PICTORIALS, 1923.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

As a representation of "The Fighting Newfoundlander" appears on the 3c value it was suggested to the Department that it would be most fitting if this denomination, if not the whole of the new pictorial series, could be issued on July 1, 1923, the 7th anniversary of the battle of Beaimont Hamel, where the Newfoundland Regiment suffered more heavily in proportion to numbers engaged than any other branch of the British Army. This day is now observed as Commemoration Day throughout the Colony, with appropriate religious and civic ceremonies.

But the stamps, coming not by a direct steamer but via New York, did not reach St. John's until the following Friday, the 6th, and then only 12 values, 1c to 15c, were included in the lot. The St. John's papers of the 7th announced their issue for Monday morning the 9th.

"Royal Arms.
General Post Office.
New Postage Stamp Issue.

The new issue of Postage Stamps will be issued by the Post Office on Monday next the 9th. One of each denomination from 1c to 15c will cost 86 cents.

Signed, THOMAS BONIA, Minister, Posts & Telegraphs.

July 7. 1-insertion."

The designs of the 1c, 2c, 6c, 8c, 9c, 11c and 12c are treated in a horizontal rectangle (22x18mm), and the 3c, 4c, 5c, 10c and 15c vertically (18x22mm.).

The stamps are printed from line engraved plates, on unwatermarked paper, in sheets of 100 (10x10), with plain margins, except for a cross mark for quartering purposes in all four margins. The 1c, 2c, 5c and 12c are perforated single line 14, while the others are comb perforated—14x13½ for the horizontal designs, and 13½x14mm. for the vertical ones.

The photograph used for the vignette of the 1c was taken by Mr. E. Gaze; all others are by Newfoundland's foremost photographer, Prof. Holloway, who supplied the photographs used for the 3c (Cape Bonavista) and 24c (Salmon Fishing) stamps of the Cabot series, issued June 24, 1897.

The frame designs are for the most part very pleasing, those for the 2c and 8c being identical, as also those for the 6c and 11c. The position of the lettering (colorless) varies but little in the different values—"Newfoundland" at the top, the value in words at the bottom, with numerals in both lower corners. On the 5c and 15c however, the positions are reversed ("Newfoundland" at the bottom, value in words at the top, and numerals in the two upper corners), while on the 12c the value is expressed at the bottom as "Twelve (12) Cents." A descriptive title appears under each vignette in minute colored letters. As many of the values are used for fiscal as well as postage purposes, "Postage" is omitted from the designs.

The 3c value, "The Fighting Newfoundlander," is the only one of the series which does not show "water" in some form or other. This statue stands on a commanding site in Bowring Park, looking down the Waterford Valley, and on its pedestal is the inscription "The Fighting — Newfoundlander—Presented to the City—of St. John's by the Hon.—Sir Edgar R. Bowring." The statue which is of bronze is the work of Capt. Basil Gotto who knew the Newfoundland Regiment very well at Winchester, and the figure is modeled after a member of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, Corp. Thomas Pittman, D.C.M., M.M., who went across with Company "C." It has sometimes been called "The Bomber," which is not really correct, as the donor explained in his speech of presentation. "Even though the figure is in the act of throwing a bomb, that in itself does not make him a bomber, for in the early days of the war, men fought with rifles and often carried bombs as well."

The designs are, in general, very attractive, and while some of the colors could be improved upon (notably those for the 6c and 9c), the 5c, 10c, 12c and 15c are especially attractive, as to both design and color. The colors and designs of the new series are reminiscent of the Guy series of 1910-11, supplied by the same printers. Brown and orange were selected by the Department for the 10c and 12c values but the issued stamps appear in violet and magenta, respectively.

The color of the 6c (slate) does not conform to the regulations of the Postal Union, which requires that the stamp

The Fifth Edition of XX Century U. S. Handbook

The 1922 edition of this standard work is out of print and is now going to be revised and a new edition printed. Now that the next Scott Catalogue will give major numbers to coils and imperfs. this handbook—the last word on specialism, will be in greater demand than ever. The work prices the varieties of the coils, of the imperfs., of imprints, etc., and is what might be called an elucidation of the Standard Catalogue's listings. Copious notes will be found explaining the different dies and so forth, and one of Scott's new folders with Illustrations of parts of U. S. stamps will be given, free, with the work. [tf

DE LUXE COVER BUNDLES

I have on several occasions been asked why I did not make up a better lot of covers than the "Dollar Cover Bundles" advertised last week. I have hesitated to do this through the lack of proper material. Now I have the material and I'll try a new combination.

15 to 30 original covers—selected for unusual condition, odd and colored cancellations and the like—such as 3c 1851, 3c 1857 with "Paid", 1c 1861, 2c Jackson, etc.—all better grade varieties than in my "Dollar Cover Bundles"—every cover used prior to 1890.

Price $5.00 Postpaid

Cash refunded if covers are returned promptly, but I doubt if anyone will return one of these lots after he has seen it.

representing the foreign letter rate shall be printed in blue. Letters passing within the Municipal limits of St. John's are charged at 2c; for other parts of the island and Labrador, 3c; for Great Britian, the Empire, and U. S. A., 4c, and to all other foreign countries, 6c.

Photographs by Doyle and Holloway are being used for the vignettes of the 20c and 24c stamps, respectively—and these two values, with the air mail stamps (10c and 15c) are expected to be in issue by the middle of August.

The air mail stamps are to be bicolored—the 10c green and black, and the 15c brown and black. For the former is being used the design of an essay sent out in Dr. Robinson's time, a view of the town and harbour of St. John's (looking out towards the Narrows), with an airplane in flight; while a representation of the Vickers Vimy machine at Quidi Vidi, just before Alcock and Brown started on their successful Trans-Atlantic flight, June 14, 1919, will appear on the 15c.

Stamps of the new series arrived just in time, for stock of several of the low values of the Caribou series was running low. On June 23rd but 55,000 2c stamps were in the vaults of the G. P. O., and at the beginning of July the 1c was being supplied instead, and the 2c reserved for use on receipts, etc. Had receipt of the new stamps been delayed for a month, it is quite probable that provisionals would have been necessary, for the 2c at least.

In April, 1923, Mr. Halfyard was appointed Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and on June 5th, Capt. Thomas Bonia, who had been acting as Minister of Finances, was sworn in as Minister of Posts & Telegraphs. Mr. G. W. LeMessurier still continues as Deputy Minister of the Department.

July 9, 1923. Pictorial series, engraved and printed by Whitehead, Morris & Co., Ltd., London, on white paper unwatermarked. Perforated single line 14, 1c, 2c, 5c and 12c. Perforated comb 13½x14, 3c, 4c, 10c, 15c. Perforated comb 14x13½, 6c, 8c, 9c, 11c.

OUR REVIEW.

The 1923 edition of the old National Stamp Album, dedicated to the issues of the United States is a work of significant interest, as it illustrates the stamps of our country under the restrictions of the law recently passed. The cuts of the postmaster and semi-official stamps, shown, heretofore with impunity now are "defaced" with a line through each one of them but the thin white line does no damage and has the appearance of a crease in the paper. The big departure in this edition is the picturing of the minor differences in U. S. stamps with enough of the stamps as a background to make identification easy; and of the major varieties, the section shown easily gives the clue to the stamp. For example, five types of the one cent, two each of the three cent, five cent and ten cent of the 1851 design are shown while all the regular types down to April, 1923, are pictured in part.

The cuts of the perplexing dies of the U. S. envelope stamps are a boon; and now that the differences between the Reay and the Plimpton issues, for instance, may be understood at a glance, almost, we look for a spurt of interest in these issues that have been so long under a handicap. The advantage of the partial illustration of revenue stamps is apparent and we notice that the narcotic stamps in their irregular sizes are fitted to spaces. The illustrations of watermarks, surcharges and the like have their appeal and the names of the engravers of the different issues are in place. It is seen that the later imperforates are given space in single form when we should think that place for a pair would be more in keeping with modern ideas; and the three cent Victory stamp has its space in the album wrong end up.

It was about 1912, we think, when the previous edition of the National Stamp Album appeared; and that the present album is much in advance of the old one is not to be gainsaid. In fact, this new edition is an important factor in collecting the stamps of the U. S., in that it will encourage the collector who likes our stamps to give them semi-scientific attention, at least; and thus a step in the right direction is made. The edition of the album before us sells for $5; and the book is a presentable one in every respect. We welcome it as a fit home for the stamps of the United States. Scott Stamp & Coin Company, publishers: 33 West 44th Street, New York City.

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By WARNER BATES,
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Nathan R. Stiles, Proprietor of the West Coast Hobby House, 410 West Third Street, Long Beach, Cal., writes: "I wish to compliment your department in the WEEKLY and to offer you my full co-operation at all times." Please accept our appreciation, Mr. Stiles.

Mr. Stiles sends copies of the three cent green for examination, among which are the following varieties:

Vertical shift showing plainest in doubling of the top border line. In fact, that is about the only indication of a shift that can be found and, were it not for the fact that the variety runs constant through a number of such shifts in the writer's possession, he would be inclined to think it due to a smudging in the printing, paper shifting, or something of the sort. But the stamp does not show smudged elsewhere and I am inclined to believe this a shift. It comes on the three cent 1879, usually in a light green shade, and is not especially rare.

A stamp showing a number of diagonal lines running upward from right to left, superimposed over the slightly-curved diagonal lines that form the shading of the white waistcoat of Washington, over the 3 and the C of Cents. This is on the re-engraved three cent but I have seen similar lines on the three cent, 1870, and, I think, on others.

Another three cent, 1879, on which the right serif of the T in Cents is cut away from the rest of the letter by a line of color.

A double transfer on the three cent 1879 in which there is an added line of color in the U of U. S. at the upper left and a short double line in the shading of the shield, extreme upper right hand corner.

There are a number of others in Mr. Stiles' lot but those given are the most interesting. Incidently, there are a couple of nice cancellations in the lot submitted. One is in blue, showing the figure 3 (small) in a white space in a solid blue triangle, on either side of which are two bars, (1873). The other is a red (orange shade) New York—Apr. 1—on a pair of three cent, 1873.

Mr. Stiles mentions a couple of copies of the three cent which he once owned but which left his possession during a period when he temporarily lost interest in the hobby, one a pair of the National ungrilled showing double print, the two impressions being almost equally heavy and about one-half millimeter apart and the other a shift showing a straight horizontal line through the nts of Cents and the r of Three, with other shifts in the horizontal lines of the background. He considers the shift described by Major Bonesteel as very rare, having gone over hundreds of thousands of three centers without ever having seen it.

Frequently requests come to me for names of collectors who are interested in specialization in particular stamps. Also, certain other requests for various kinds of information. As a matter of fact, I cannot well spend the time to answer many letters and it should not be necessary. Any important requests for information will be taken up in this department and, as the names and addresses of specialists who furnish information of importance or make requests for specific information are given, anyone who follows this department regularly can easily get in touch with those interested in his specialty. In fact, this department seems to be forming a sort of a fraternity among those who specialize in the low values of early U. S. that may in time grow into some sort of a helpful organization. Personally, it seems to me it would be a mighty fine thing if a Specialists' Subdivision of the A. P. S. were to be formed. About all that this would involve would be a special grouping of names in the membership lists, giving more full descriptions than at present of the specialties indulged in.

Just one other thing: Many letters come to me that do not include return postage when there are enclosures. Return postage and registration fee should always be enclosed when specimens are submitted for examination.

ABYSSINIA.

By CHARLES G. WILSON.

There are no more picturesque stamps in the catalogue than those of the issue of 1919 of the Kingdom of Abyssinia. They are somewhat crude in execution but even a cursory examination of them, with their images of strange men and beasts cannot but excite the imagination and awaken interest in the land from whence they came.

Abyssinia, the modern descendant of the ancient Kingdom of Ethiopia, situated between the Red Sea and the British Soudan, is for the most part a plateau region 7,000 feet above the sea with bleak mountains rising from it. It is a land peopled by a warlike race of blacks, whose religion is a perverted form of Christianity with a Coptic rite older than that of Moscow and Rome. They live in their houses together with their cattle and chickens and a large assortment of bugs. They never wash and at an Abyssinian banquet the "piece de resistance" is raw beef, warm from the creature.

The world knew very little of Abyssinia until in 1884 the King Theodore, an adventurer who had seized the crown, threw into the royal jail Mr. Cameron, the British Consul. Sir Robert Napier invaded the country with a punitive force and captured Magdala, the stronghold of Theodore, who committed suicide rather than fall into the hands of the English.

The Abyssinians owe their independence to the inaccessibility of their territory to invaders as well as their own warlike qualities. Italy for long flirted with Abyssinia with a view to acquiring her lands. In 1889 she claimed a protectorate which Menelik, the Negus Negusti, or King of Kings, and the greatest ruler the country ever had, would not recognize. In 1895 Menelik opened hostilities with the Italians who were encroaching on him and he defeated them with great slaughter at the battle of Adowa and forced Italy to recognize the independence of Abyssinia.

The chief imports of the country are cotton, silk and weapons. The chief exports, coffee, gold, ivory and skins.

THE PRECANCEL DEPARTMENT.

Edited by FREDERICK W. ALLEN, 521 So. 4 St., Grand Forks, N. D.

The Washington Convention—Precancel fans will be interested in knowing that the Precancel Stamp Society will hold its second annual convention in conjunction with the A. P. S. at Washington, August 16-18. Collectors who are interested in this sideline will find much of interest. Mr. V. W. Rotnem, leading light of the precancel field, will attend, also many prominent collectors, including Mr. D. D. Berolzheimer from New York and Mr. H. S. Wheeler from Boston, possessor of the most complete collection of Aeroplane, Victory and Pilgrim precancels in existence. Mr. Ernest Smith of Topeka, Kas., will be present. Other precancel fans, whether or not a member of the clubs, will please inform me if they will be in attendance.

At this time it will be decided whether or not the I. P. C. and P. S. S. shall unite under the name "The Precanceled Stamp Society." This decision shall be left to the memberships of both organizations and will be made by written ballot. The results will be announced at the convention.

First P. S. S. Branch—The interest in precancels is becoming so intense that collectors are beginning to wake up to the feasibility of organizing branch societies. On July 7th, in Minneapolis, Minn., a number of enthusiasts met and organized "The Twin City Precancel Club." Mr. F. A. Smith was elected President for the coming year and P. J. Hojrup, Sec-Treasurer. Meetings will take place every two weeks throughout the year. Auctions will be held regularly. This club will petition to the P. S. S. to be recognized as the first P. S. S. branch. There is such subject matter in precancel collecting that the meetings are bound to bubble over with "pep," and therefore find a warm place in the hearts of Twin City philatelists. Any collectors in St. Paul and Minneapolis wishing for particulars of the society are urged to write Mr. P. J. Hojurp, 651 Huron Street S. E. Minneapolis, Minn., at once.

PRECANCEL REVIEW OF THE NEW SERIES.

To properly write a review of the new U. S. stamps a person needs a new dictionary and a new supply of adjectives; because the plain English language is too tame to cover such a beautiful set. To start with, the one-cent Franklin (which is now precanceled with a new type by New York, N. Y., and Chicago, Ill.), this picture compares favorably with the 1c U. S. of 1851; in other words it's the "showiest" 1c U. S. stamp we've had in a long time.

The 2c Washington is quite an improvement over that old 2c that we've had ever since "Heck" was a pup; still, I never did care much about a 2c stamp 'cause it was too darn plain looking.

The 3c Lincoln I could go into raptures over and to say that it's a fine picture of Lincoln doesn't half express it; I predict that this stamp will be specialized by the precancel fans as well as ordinary collectors. The 3c Fremont, Nebraska, is out and shows up beautifully.

Now to hand a bouquet to the ladies (or rather to one of them i.e., Martha Washington), as she appears in matronly brown on the 4c stamp. I know lots of folks will try to corner Martha, especially precanceled, because Martha Washington is a beautiful example of the engraver's art.

The 5c Roosevelt needs no boost, because it's destined to be a popular stamp, for he still stands as the biggest figure of the 20th century. "Roosevelt" the American. I expect to have a special precanceled collection of the Roosevelt stamp as he has never been on a stamp before. Just suppose a 5c Oyster Bay would come out. It would be some popular precancel.

The 6c Garfield is a wonderful improvement over the previous 6c stamps and 6c stamps never have been common. Newark, N. J., was the first town to use this stamp.

The 7c McKinley stamp will be a good stamp too, as McKinley was a much loved president. I well remember hearing both he and Roosevelt speak here in their presidential campaigns. The stamp is fittingly printed in black—a black beauty.

President Grant always impressed me very much, perhaps because of his heavy whiskers, so I presume the 8c will be characteristic of him, and if so it will be a showy stamp.

The 9c Jefferson I know I'm going to like as I always admired the 5c U. S. Jefferson of 1861 to 65; and Jefferson has always been accorded a high place in American history. Jefferson, Ohio, will look well on the 9c!

The 10c Monroe is the first 10c stamp that you could call pretty, that we've had in a long time. I never cared a great deal about our ordinary 10c stamp, perhaps it was too common.

The 11c Hayes is simply a dandy, it's such a pleasing color that I know it will be a favorite and then 11 is a lucky number anyway. Fremont, Ohio, has used this issue already.

The 12c Cleveland, I haven't seen; but 12c stamps have always been popular, so I'm sure this one will prove no exception to the rule. Cleveland, Ohio, 12c stamps will be of unusual interest.

The 14c Indian is a Jim Dandy. It will no doubt take the place of our 13c and I venture to say that there will be thousands of collectors chasing Indians before the year is over. I herewith catalog it at 50c each for rare ones, and double face for those not common and face for the common ones. Wait for an "Old Indian Reservation, Oklahoma" precancel on the 14c. Oh, boy!

The 15c Statue of Liberty will light up the collector's eyes with joy, as Mr. Ordinary Collector has been long tired of our plain old 15c stamp. New York City 15c will carry a local interest.

The 20c Golden Gate is a pleasing change from our current old 20c U. S. I have stood on the hill overlooking the bay at San Francisco and have seen the ships coming into the harbor and have seen them disappearing across the sunset's glow and it is a picture that painter would love to paint, and would go into raptures over the bea color contrasts and over the ships w seem so picturesque and wonderful on the ocean blue (and this is al this stamp). Oh, for this 20c wi pretty Frisco cancel.

The 25c Niagara Falls is unus nifty, being a pretty green, and pre celed it is a crackerjack. You k we've never had but one other 25c st and that was the parcel post issu predict a long life and a happy one this beautiful scenic display of Nat Wonders. Niagara Falls, N. Y., wi a choice item on this 25c.

The 30c Buffalo will be the one boy collectors will all like; anyt with an animal on pleases a boy. on the Q. T. I'm strong for an stamps myself. I don't care where are from either (but don't tell body). To many a western city t will be a direct connection when town's name appears over the buffal Old haunts depicted!

The 50c Arlington Amphitheatre is deed a fitting memorial stamp in rem brance of our soldier lads, and it indeed prove to be another link in m ory's chain of remembrance. Wash ton, D. C., will be especially fine on count of the sentiment linked with memorial.

The $1.00 Lincoln Memorial stam still another beautiful tribute of res to one of our greatest presidents.

The $2.00 is the Capitol Building, I wish it could have been placed o lower denomination stamp so e American boy could see it and un stand better what it is and where it Endicott, N. Y., is apt to be the user.

The $5.00 "America" stamp is g to be a much prized piece of paper, of course, like all high value stamps, average collector will have to save his pennies for a long time to bu copy. Precanceled $5.00 are going to rare—the only cities using the old se at present are Cleveland and Boston.

ORONO MATCH CO.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

Of the two designs for match stamps used in the State of Maine the die which at first bore the inscription, Orono Match Co., is by far the prettier and well deserves the high place it has always held in the affections of collectors. It would be difficult indeed to find a more suitable design and perhaps that is one reason for the long continued popularity of the stamps produced from it.

The frame of the design is very similar to that of the Henry Stanton stamp of Syracuse, which was approved and issued a month later than the Orono stamp and there can be little doubt both stamps were designed by the same artist. An upright rectangle of the standard 1c size with irregularly curved edges encloses a central oval which bears an evergreen tree, presumably this is intended to represent one of the white pines with which the State of Maine abounds, and whose wood was so extensively used in the manufacture of match sticks. The upper part of the oval is inscribed "Orono" at the left and "Maine" at the right, while above and below the oval are two curved panels, the upper of which reads "Orono Match Co." and the lower "U. S. Inter. Revenue." In each upper corner is a slanting numeral 1 and in the lower corners are found "One" and "Cent" respectively. A shaded pearl fills out each corner of the design.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, Apr. 9, 1866.
First issued, June, 1866.
Last issued, Aug., 1885.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
6,992,140 issued on old paper.
5,360,360 issued on silk paper.

"This die was registered and all correspondence carried on in the name of Anson Allen. It was also subsequently used by the firm of Allen & Powers."

Probably there was only one plate which was made by Butler & Carpenter of Philadelphia and all the stamps on both old and silk paper were printed by them. The shade varies from a dull greenish blue, commonly found in Philadelphia printings, to a darker blue and occasionally copies may be found in the lighter shade on very thin paper. The stamp also exists in the bright blue characteristic of what may be an experimental printing on thick paper made about 1870. Quite possibly it also occurs on the experimental silk paper, although the writer has not noted such a variety. There are also several attractive shades on the silk paper ranging from a bright medium blue to a darker blue than has been noted on any printing on the old paper. Pairs and blocks of this stamp are anything but common and it is not known to have been used in multiple.

Neither of the Orono Match Co. stamps in the usual shades are scarce but copies on the old paper are rather more difficult to find in nice condition. Very fine copies are well worth the present catalog quotations which have not been changed since 1901.

The true ultramarine printing of 1869 on old paper is indeed a rare stamp and it seems doubtful to the writer if as many as half a dozen different specimens could be found. For ten years the stamp was listed at $12.50, which seems liberal indeed for a shade variety, yet there are so few opportunities to acquire a specimen in even ordinary condition that the quotation hardly reflects the price which anyone fortunate enough to own a copy, and cognizant of its rarity, would be satisfied to accept.

ALLEN & POWERS.

This firm is the successor "of record" to the Orono Match Co., and it is believed to have operated the same factory in the town of Orono, which is on the Penobscot River, a few miles north of the City of Bangor, Maine. The firm of Allen & Powers appears to have been in existence as early as 1865, and it is not unlikely that the Orono Match Co. was merely the name under which the firm of Allen & Powers operated their match factory for a time.

The data in the Boston Book indicates that this firm used the Orono Match Co. stamps before the die was altered to bear their name. The firm of Allen & Powers is listed in the Maine Registry as match manufacturers at Orono from 1872 down to 1884, inclusive. The following three years this firm is not listed in the Directory but the name of H. C. Powers, match manufacturer, does appear in 1888; the name of Allen & Powers appears again and continues down to and including the 1895 Directory. It does not appear after 1895. During the '80's many match firms were apparently doing business in Orono.

The design remains the same as that of the Orono Match Co. stamp excepting that the upper curved label now reads "Allen & Powers."

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, Jan. 13, 1876.
First issued, Feb. 3, 1876.
Last issued, Oct. 4, 1882.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
6,401,510 issued on silk, pink and watermarked paper.

The Allen & Powers stamps probably were all printed from a new plate made by the National Bank Note Company of New York. This plate bears the first National imprint, the N. B. N. Co. monogram and the number, viz., "No. 27." All the stamps on silk and pink paper, and some of those on watermarked paper are National prints. The stamps on watermarked paper may be either National, American or Bureau prints and with our present knowledge very few of them can be definitely classified. The National prints on silk and pink paper, however, are usually about as dark as the darkest shade of the Orono stamp on silk paper, whereas the only copy which the writer can positively identify as a Bureau print is in a lighter and duller blue. As the American Bank Note Co. may have placed no distinguishing imprint on the plate while they were using it, about all that can be said regarding the watermarked stamps is that the darker specimens are probably Bank Note printings, while the lighter duller color is a Bureau printing.

The Allen & Powers stamp is occasionally seen in blocks on silk and pink paper, but no multiples have been noted by the writer on watermarked paper.

The stamps are not scarce and unused copies with full gum are to be found. The pink paper variety is from two to four times as scarce as either of the stamps on white paper, and was quoted at from 25c to 50c up to 1900, since that year it has held firmly at $1.00.

EDITORIAL.

The news of the issue of new air mail service stamps has been followed by an inundation of clippings on the subject of the air mail and incidentally, the forth-coming stamps, whose information in the aggregate would account for any and all issues of the special stamps in question. It is patent, however, that the stamps are almost ready for distribution and if they appear by August first, the date announced for them, readers will have the stamps at hand before this copy of the paper.

We cannot make the practical side of the advancement of philately, in print, as attractive as the theoretical. Every philatelist recognizes that it is necessary for the well-being of the pursuit to recruit the boys and girls to its standard and probably would place this consideration first in the scale of importance to philately's future. Yet we do not see as much discussion of this topic as we should, even though it is granted that it is difficult to say anything new about ways and means to accomplish the end. It is one thing to say that something constructive in this way should be done and another thing to do it. Some of us encourage the young collector when it is convenient for us to do so but we are not likely to go to the length of sacrificing time and effort to lead the young idea to stamp collecting. We think that if we give away a few stamps to prospects and answer the questions of the beginner, we are doing our full duty. This is something to be credited with but when we see what men such as the Reverend E. M. Gearhart have been doing, we rejoice to know that while they go about their work unostentatiously, their results are certainly noticeable. Each philatelic adult should resolve to do his bit for philately by giving of his time and duplicates under the direction of men whose vision is large, for the planting of philatelic seed.

The writer, Holworthy Hall, in a recent article, "The Place Pig-Alley," in the Saturday Evening Post for July 7th, uses philately as a simile or something. Judge for yourself: "When he was twelve his neighborhood had rocked with excitement at the rumor that there was a man somewhere who paid a hundred dollars for a barrel of canceled postage stamps." The consequence was that every boy thereabouts with the exception of Martin had begun to collect. "Well, the mystery of woman was just like that." The mystery and the barrel were rumors founded on fancy. "When you got through collecting, you came to life. So that Martin wasn't a collector." We are just as well satisfied that Martin isn't a collector; he would be a hard man to get the better of in a stamp trade.

One of the members of the Adventurers' Club of Chicago is Major George F. Lee, ex-city-jailer, who was one of the officers of our troops in the China invasion at the time of the Boxer rebellion. His account of the postal operations of the American army that gave being to the special U. S. China postmark confirms, substantially, data previously given in this paper, particularly by General C. A. Coolidge. From Major Lee we heard a remark that we pass along as combining a bit of sentiment with a touch of fact: "The sight of the common American stamps by a wanderer far away from home and absent from his country for many months gives a sensation that is almost too divine for words. This is especially so if the travels of the man are fraught with momentary danger so as to make it an open question whether he will return with a whole skin. On letters from home, the stamps share that spirit of joy that the receipt of the letters give; and the stamps typify the essence of the American home and business or in other words, the sense of things at home as we wish to remember them."

As for us, we cannot conceive of any other avocation, pursuit or institution that can match the number of loyal adherents to philately; and we take a bit of pride in their unyielding devotion to stamp collecting that is such as to throw them off their balance when their pursuit is attacked by a clumsy or by a clever critic. When derogatory remarks appear in print, we are almost certain to receive the clippings from readers, who ask that we cudgel the writers on general principles. This is all very well and we recognize the spirit of the collectors who do not like to have their favorite traduced or even insinuated against; but we must be reasonable in this particular. As philately becomes more of a dominant factor in the every-day concerns of the world, it will be subjected to more criticism in the way that a successful man attracts criticism that would pass him by as an unknown. We must keep in mind the admission that philately is not invincible to the extent that it can escape the shafts of wit, irony or what you will; and it must expect to receive a thrust now and then that will jar its sense of self-sufficiency; and for that reason we do not feel that it is wise to excite ourselves over the fulminations of the ignorant or the stupid, whose influence is negligible, after all. We make this explanation to account for our failure to belabor the author of the casual criticism of philately, although as a rule we have something to say whenever there is any relatively formidable attack on philately. We are always alert to repel boarders on the philatelic ship when their designs are dangerous but the crassly curious or the blustering boors need no rougher treatment than the soothing impact of the winging marlin-spike.

We have had some interesting lett from readers who are abroad and it somewhat singular to notice that wi

United States stamps say that it almost impossible to find anything superb United States on the accep collector must constantly be alert not

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF BELGIUM.

By Bertram W. H. Poole.

PART IV.—THE PARCEL POST STAMPS.

Chapter IV.

The Fourth Issue.

In 1902 it was decided to issue an entirely new series of parcels post stamps a special order announcing their issue being circulated from Brussels under date of July 25th, as follows:—

"A new set of Railway Parcel Stamps have just been issued; they are of a new design and are printed in two colors. The set consists of all the values now in use, as well as a 3frs, the issue of which was postponed.

The new stamps may not be made use of to frank packages weighing 60 kilograms, or under, nor mixed consignments, nor parcels, until the 1st October next. Requisitions for stamps sent in accordance to regulations on the 15th June last, will be executed by the Stamp Office, in part with stamps of the old design, according to the estimated requirements during the months of July, August and September, and in part with new stamps according to the estimated requirements during October to 31st December.

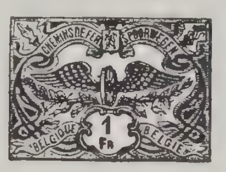
The new stamps may, however, be sold to the public on demand provided that a notice is affixed in close proximity to the counter to the effect that parcels accompanied by despatch notes bearing the new stamps will not be accepted for transmission previous to the 1st October.

It should be understood that after October 1st stamps of the old design should be used concurrently with those of the new until any remaining stock of the former is exhausted.

By order of the Director-General.
The Administrator,
(Signed) Garnie."

These stamps were all ready for sale on July 24th, the day before the above notice was published, and though the stamps were sold to the public if asked for, they were not good for postage until October 1st, 1902. The design for the centimes values, replacing those of corresponding denominations in the previous set, is exactly the same as the 1895 design except that the central disc containing the numerals of value and "CENTIMES—CENTIMEN" is now in one piece and is printed in a color distinct from that of the rest of the design. Mr. Fr. Poortman, of Malines, was responsible for the necessary modifications in the engraving though his name is no longer shown on the stamps.

An entirely new design was adopted for the 1, 2 and 3 francs stamps. In the centre is a winged wheel with branches of oak and laurel intertwined below, and, lower still, are numerals denoting the value above "FR". The surrounding frame is of a somewhat elaborate character and shows at the top "CHEMINS DE FER" and "SPOORWEGEN" on curved scrolls, divided by a small shield, containing the Belgian lion, surmounted by a Royal Crown. In the upper angles a hand is shown at left and a lion at right, while from each side of the ornamental frame containing the numerals of value a ribbon scroll projects, that at left being inscribed "BELGIQUE" and that at right containing "BELGIE". The wheel and value are printed in an entirely different color from that used for the frame.



On January 1, 1906, a new value, 1 franc 10 centimes, was issued, this being of exactly the same design as the previously issued franc stamps. In 1912 a 35 centimes value was added to the series; in 1913, 4, 5 and 10 franc stamps appeared; and, finally, in February, 1914, a 55 centimes stamp was placed in circulation. These are all similar in designs to the other centimes and franc stamps of the series.

One plate served for the frames for all thirteen of the centimes values and similarly one frame plate was used for all seven of the franc values though separate duty plates had to be constructed for each of the twenty different denominations.

The stamps were all surface printed on white wove unwatermarked paper and like the stamps of the two preceding series were perforated 15½ by 14½.

Of the values in greatest demand there were a great many printings. Thus of the 10 centimes there were eight printings between 1902 and 1909 and probably many more later, of the 50c and 60c there were ten printings by 1909, of the 70c, 80c and 1fr there were nine printings up to the same time, and so on. Consequently most of the values of this set provide more or less striking differences of shade both as regards the frames and central portions.

Gibbons' catalogue gives the 30c, 50c and 90c values as existing with double impression (presumably of the frame) and also records the 80 centimes as "double, one inverted" this also, we presume, referring to the impression of the frame. Mr. de Bont adds the 30c, 50c, 80c and 1.10fr entirely imperforate, the 50c part-perforate, and the 15 centimes doubly printed on the back.

The stamps of this issue are very plentiful in unused condition due to the fact that when the Huns overran Belgium large quantities were looted and sent into Germany.

Chapter V.

The Fifth Issue.

On June 22, 1914, a provisional issue of parcels post stamps was issued to replace the last issue which was demonetised on account of the large stocks looted by the Germans. The provisionals were issued at Adinkerke (France) and were in use for only about five weeks. Very few were prepared and they were used almost exclusively on official packages, while the small number of remainders were destroyed at Havre in October.

These provisionals consisted of certain values of the regular postage stamps of 1912-13 overprinted with a winged wheel and the inscriptions "CHEMINS DE FER" and "SPOORWEGEN" in sans serifs capitals at the sides, the first named reading upwards and the latter of a steel hand-stamp and all varieties downwards. They were struck by means are quite scarce.

All values from 5 centimes to 5 francs inclusive were overprinted, the 10c, 20c, 25c and 40c being the variety with larger portrait, and of these the three first named values exist with and without the engraver's name.

Shanghai Local Overprints

During June of 1922 the U. S. Postal Agent at Shanghai ran short of 1 and 2c stamps and cabled to Washington for permission to overprint, which permission was granted. Only 20,000 of the 1c and of the 2c were surcharged, and most of these were sold for actual use at the time, for collectors did not learn of them until long after the supply was exhausted.

Through the American representative of a large Pittsburgh Industrial concern, I have obtained a few of these varieties, which have been selling as high as $4.00 a stamp. I offer a single copy of each, that is, two stamps, at $1.25, or will furnish a block of each, that is, the two blocks, for $5.00. Can furnish a top or side plate block of six at $20.00 for the two blocks. These will never be offered for less and when the small supply is gone they will bring fancy figures. Straight edge copies at 50% reduction.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Be sure and read this Chronicle next week, for there will be some very important and interesting information announced which will come as a great surprise.

The first two sections of the advanced sheets of the 1924 Scott's Catalogue were distributed on July 20th just about ten days earlier than the date that similar sheets were issued last year. The catalogue this year will show for the first time border cuts of all of the U. S. stamps enabling the amateur to readily classify his varieties. We also find that from 1902 on the stamps are entirely renumbered for the imperforated varieties and the coil stamps are now rightly listed as main varieties and are given numbers accordingly.

In the case of price changes we find that only here and there is a change made in the early issues, but from 1870 on practically everything moves forward and from 1894 on there is hardly an unused stamp that has not increased in price. We have always advocated twentieth century United States stamps as a "gilt edge" investment and the fact that most of the stamps which increased last year have again gone up, shows that we are somewhat of a prophet.

With the exception of the shade varieties the 1847 issue stands still. The commoner varieties of the 1851 issue advanced slightly, the biggest change being in the 12c which now goes to $9.00. In the 1857 series one or two stamps make slight increases, the 30c unused going to $20.00 while the 90c goes to $35.00, only slight changes occur in the 1861 issue. Quite a few of the grill varieties increased whereas in the case of special prints of all issues, practically every stamp takes a fair increase. The 6c 1869 goes to $8.00 unused and $3.00 used while the 15c type 1 goes to $25.00 and $7.00. There are slight changes in the higher varieties unused, the 90c going to $70.00 while it is priced $30.00 used. Practically every unused National Grill advances while several of the ungrilled increase. There are a few changes in the Continental issue, whereas practically every American print goes to a new figure. Almost the entire 1890 series increases without exception while the Columbian issue from the 15c on does the same. The 4c error now is priced at $125.00. With the exception of one or two of the cheaper varieties, every stamp in the 1894-1895-1898 issues including the Omahas advance and some of the advances are substantial. All of the Pan American series increase slightly with the 1c error going to $80.00. All of the 1902 to 1907 issues take fair increases, the 5c imperf. now being priced at $7.50. There is not a single unused stamp of the 1908 issue that does not go forward and in the case of the coil stamps some of the increases are very substantial, and we might state, rightly so. All of the blue papers through the 8c advance as does the 1910 series immediately following. The 15c which has always been a scarce stamp is now priced at $1.25. All of the Panama Pacific has been increased and the 10c perf. 10 which has been a difficult stamp to obtain goes to $1.00. From 1912 on it is difficult to find a stamp that has not been jumped and some of the advances have been fully 50 to 100%. The 5c error perf. 10 now goes to $12.00 while the perf. 11 reaches $7.00. Those who have filled up their twentieth century spaces can certainly be happy.

As for the Departments the changes have been slight for practically all of these advanced last year. I note the Executives with the exception of the 10c all increase. Several of the Interior take advances while the 90c Navy goes to $22.50. The hard paper low value War stamps all increase and most of them are doubled in price. Scott has realized that the 2c Postal Saving with the single line watermark is the rarer, and has consequently increased this price and reduced the quotation on the double line.

There has been quite a few changes in the Carriers as well as the Special Deliveries. In the case of the envelopes I note one or two increases, particularly the 2c on 2c errors of the 1920 issue going from $2.00 each to $4.00 each. The Shanghai local surcharges are priced at $1.00 each. A hurried glance over the revenues show changes here and there and it is particularly noted that all of the inverted centers which have always been popular take very substantial increases.

As a whole the new prices show the upward tend of fine U. S. and reflect current values as shown by auction sales and private transactions of the last year. The partial illustrations will no doubt add a greater interest among the younger element and will increase the collecting activities in the case of our issues.

SCOUTS AND STAMPS.

Thinking you might be interested in a stamp club which is flourishing in the city of Erie, Pa., I am writing you concerning it. I shall be very glad to give particulars to any group of Boy Scouts who may desire to organize along the same lines.

While serving a parish in Indiana, Pa., the idea of a Boy Scout Stamp Club gradually grew in my mind until I tried it out. In every way it was a success and so when I came to Erie and found a large number of men who had been stamp collectors, I determined to try it again.

About six months ago I issued a call for all Boy Scouts of the city who were interested in stamp collecting to meet me at Scout headquarters. Eight responded and we organized under the name "The Erie Boy Scout Stamp Club." That membership of eight has grown t and we now have quite a numbe boys who are not scouts asking for m

We have fixed our meeting nigh
Friday evening of every week excep months of July and August when

By asking our friends thru the Ro
Kiwanis, and Lions Clubs to save stamps for us and having boys call them once a week, we accumulate a large stock of stamps and these all mixed in a large box and at meeting every boy present receives

At the meetings we hold regular ro

TAGE STAMPS OF BELGIUM.

Chapter VI.

The Sixth Issue.

December, 1915, a permanent series issued, these, like the regular post- stamps and postage due stamps of mporary date, being engraved and ied in London, by Messrs. Water- Bros. and Layton. The centimes ps are all of similar design and in the centre a winged wheel and ches of oak and laurel in wreath , the tips of the wings partly ob- ting the wreath. Above is "CHEM- DE FER" and "SPOORWEGEN" wo scrolls; curved at the sides are LGIQUE," at left, and "BELGIE," ight; while at bottom is "CEN- ES—CENTIMEN" divided by a shield containing the Belgian lion. he upper angles are small shields, at left containing a hand and that ght a lion, while in the lower cor- are numerals to denote the required s. The franc values show a loco- ve as the centerpiece and while the es contain the same inscriptions and dic details as the lower values they uite differently drawn and arranged. e stamps were printed on white paper of a somewhat porous e. Field's catalogue says they were s printed, which is certainly in- ct; other authorities say they were ce printed but it appears to us more ble that they were printed by lithog- y. Their perforation is another r on which the catalogues are not erfect unison—Scott and Gibbons t state the perforation is 13½, e says the gauge is 14, while the few mens we have available at the mo- of writing all measure exactly 12!

Chapter VII.

The Seventh Issue.

One of the first things the Belgians did after the Armistice was to issue new stamps and while the first supplies had to be printed in Holland it was not long before our gallant allies had their own printing establishment in Malines working again. As soon as the Stamp Printing Works were in a position to produce them a new series of Parcels Post stamps was issued to replace the London set.

The design for the centimes value is something like that of the London stamps but with the numerals of value in bold figures above the centre of the design as well as in the lower corners. The values are all shown as "0 FR 10" etc., the letters "FR" being in small capitals with a large period below. Owing to this extra designation of value the inscriptions "CHEMIN DE FER—SPOORWEGEN" have had to be removed and they are now shown on either side of the wreath.

The stamps were all printed on white wove unwatermarked paper and are perforated 14.

Chapter VIII.

The Eighth Issue.

In June, 1920, some of the values of the preceding type were issued in new colors and with the designs re-drawn. In the case of the centimes values there is no shading between the wreath and inscriptions and very little between the wreath and wheel. The wings are entirely different in shape, the crown above the shield at bottom is quite different and the scrolls at each side are hardly shaded at all. Many other small differences will be found and the design as a whole is vastly inferior to that of the last issue.

The design for the franc values was also entirely re-drawn, the letters of the inscriptions are smaller, the numerals are smaller, and there are two thin parallel lines under "FR" instead of a thick line and dot, to mention only the most prominent differences. As in the case of the design for the lower values the re-drawing instead of being an improvement is distinctly poorer in conception and execution.

Not only are the designs inferior but the method of production is on a much lower plane and possibly the plates were made by a different process. The paper is of different quality showing less weave than before and is apparently of cheaper grade, and different gum is used.

The perforation is 14 as before and even this was carelessly done, nearly every sheet providing stamps which are not fully perforated so that it is impossible to separate them without damage unless recourse is had to scissors. It is usually the marginal stamps that show this imperfect perforation.

The 90 centimes and 10 francs stamps were printed in a pale yellow color and after being in circulation for a short time there were so many complaints as to their illegibility and the frequent cases of confusion between them that they were withdrawn and re-issued in claret and dark brown respectively.

PORTUGUESE COLONIAL COLLECTION!

WE OFFER AT AN EXCEPTIONALLY LOW PRICE ONE OF THE BEST AND MOST COMPLETE COLLECTIONS OF PORTUGUESE COLONIES WHICH HAS EVER PASSED THROUGH OUR HANDS.

This collection was included in the stock of a large foreign dealer recently purchased by us. We are not retail dealers, and it is our desire to offer the collection intact at a price low enough to draw an immediate purchaser. It is impossible to do full justice in describing this offering, and we shall endeavor only to give the most important details:

The collection contains exactly 3,075 different stamps—every one a distinct major variety. 20th century issues are practically complete FOR ALL OF THE COLONIES. Among the gems are Angola Nos. 116, 134-151, Cape Verde 136 & 8, Mozambique 164a, 184-8, Congo 119, 119a, 122a, 123, Portuguese India 262-396, St. Thomas 116-166, and the scarce No. 129b in superb condition. Unused stamps are in the majority, but used copies are lightly cancelled in most cases. Condition throughout is practically perfect, great care having been taken by the former owner in the selection of fine copies.

The Catalogue Value is Approximately $2,750.00

Prices on Portuguese Colonies have been settled and stabilized for many years and there are not the market fluctuations often found in New European issues and other stamps of that class. At the recent sale of a large Boston auction firm, scarce colonials averaged over 40% of catalogue with sharp and active bidding. Collectors and dealers all over the country are beginning to realize the great popularity and value of these stamps, and many of the rarities, now underpriced, will increase in value with the passing of time.

We do not believe our collection could be replaced—stamp for stamp—at less than $1,500.00. As a straight dyed-in-the-wool investment for collector or dealer, it has our highest recommendation. For immediate clearance we offer the collection intact for

SOME "DONT'S" FOR ADVERTISERS.

Don't build up the catalog value of a packet with such trash as punched Philippines stamps or Ecuador revenues. A satisfied customer is better than a single sale.

Don't advertise a stamp with fiscal cancellation and quote catalog price for a postally used copy. Let alone the moral aspect, from a business standpoint, honesty is the best policy.

Don't advertise a stamp at the catalog quotation when the revised prices mark it down to a fraction of the original amount.

Don't wait until Wednesday to mail ad copy. Have it in our office Wednesdays.

THE PHILATELIC PEPYS.

Transcribed by ALDEN M. WHEELER.

23 March—This day received lot of adhesives from Master Henry of Los Angeles, in an auction he did hold and very fine, North West Pacific Islands, Kangaroo surcharges, 1, 5 and 10 shilling and 1 pound all mint and splendid, an old Bermuda, 3 fine Antiguas, one copy a bit frayed, this the only one not good, and five fine Bechuanaland all mint and Edwardian high values. Fool that I am, in these later, thru negligence, I do find the same stamp in two separate lots, and I do bid twice on it and as luck goes do receive both of these lots. A murrain on me for a dunce. The lot do cost me 3 pounds, 17 shillings, 7½ pence, and I do post my cheque without delay, and pleased and happy to have received so good a lot and my wife too pleased, and I thank God she be so, as I think always how bad twould be were she to be a hussy who would upbraid my extravagance in these matters and not understand and appreciate it and how much solace and joy such beauties do bring me, but happily, she is a merry lass, who do enjoy their possession and so was she ever, liking what I like, making joyful over ball games, the Playhouse, and all else that I do make merry over and so always are we in concord. All day at my tasks and reading in Mekeel's at my tasks and reading in MEKEEL'S Journal until sleep.

24 March—All morning at my tasks, and comes a post from Master Egner of Philadelphia, the wholesaler and from Master Roessler of Newark a pamphlet crying his bargains. Master Egner do submit me a list of wares for our shoppe and pleased me withal with his most courteous letter which come along with it. A most sweet thought this and I do marvel that in our business, so many do overlook the kindly feeling that such spirit prompts. The tendency is to be blunt and strike your wares at the buyer as one does fell an oxen with a mallet. So does the bustle and rush of our fast century affect our manners. After luncheon, which was most marvellous poor, in our Buick coach to Santa Barbara, some 78 leagues away, my wife driving, and I comparing Master Egner's list with catalogue of Scott and exclaiming with my wife over all that pleased us and decrying such items that do appear too high or the quality of which do seem to be slow moving goods. Come to the town we do walk about and do go to the post-office but cannot secure what we do seek, the 13 cent stamps all being gone. To the beach, while my wife do go about the town to seek women's finery, and seeing a great crowd going in a grounds, I do give the keeper two shillings and do go in, thinking to see a ball game, and very pleased and happy at the thought, but on getting in do find it to be a high school running and jumping contest, a sport that I did ever detest. I did see a half mile run and a 100 yard dash and when the speed of this was announced as 11 seconds, I did leave the place and part with my two shillings. This will teach me to ask another time and not follow like a very sheep and go with the crowd. To meet my wife after to the hairdresser where I did have my hair trimmed and shaven. He maladroited in fastening the apron around my neck, do stick a pin in my neck, making me mad. To the grille, where we do have oysters and crabbe, and so to the Playhouse, where did see Mistress Elsie Ferguson in a speaking play The Wheel of Life, at which we not pleased, altho she very good to look upon. And so a long drive home and to bed at two in the morning of a cold foggy night and very glad to have shelter and a home and thanks be to God for his manifold blessings he do shower on us.

25th March—Lord's Day—Lay late abed, and do loll about all morning. In the afternoon do play and we do beat the Santa Maria team, 4-3 in ten innings. I do score the winning run and this do in measure please me. At night to town and do see at the Playhouse a poor picture, which I will not dignify by naming. To bed and reading in MEKEEL'S, a good sound journal and one that I do love mightily, and so to bed.

26th March—Up betimes and to my office, where laboring all morning at my tasks and writing to this one and that and making great business and all of a rush of a Monday, what with the Lord's Day making two days in one and extra effort and diligence on our part must repair it. In the afternoon, comes the post bringing me messages from Master Harris of Boston Town, Master McLain of the same place and the Nassau Stamp Company, these latter of Gotham. All do offer me wares of varying value and so at night, my wife do help me and I do go over their selections and do pick out what items I do feel will please and tickle the palates of my customers and cause them to reward me for giving them good value and aiding them to build up their collections at slender cost for sound goods. I do not think one can prosper otherwise, altho many do think they can charge vast prices and do and do prosper for a time, but as time goes on, they fade and wither as a rose of yesteryear, and die. Only in the path of good value, and honest service lies lasting dealing life. And so till late working with my wife, poor wretch, who at last do make so much pother and fall so a-yawning and a-gaping that I fain do call a halt. The poor soul do weary me also with her simulations of weariness and so to bed, reading MEKEEL'S, and much joy do I take in Master Severn's screeds, which do contain much humor and much meat and very pretty and quaint and pleasant are they. Also the philatelic scholar, Bertram W. H. Poole, do thrall me. And so to putting out my taper and to sleep.

27 March—This a bright, fair day, with the sun a-shining and the birds caroling their lays as I go to my office and do labor all day at my tasks, very diligent and painstaking and making ready for the first of the coming month, when I do have great business, making my accompts for the past month and great to-do and much making of castings up of figures. At 4 of the clock do to the fields and play at ball, and in a practice game, I do please myself mightily, striking the ball once for a three-base blow, and twice again for single base blows. The other time, I do retire to the bench, by the umpire's bad eyesight, he do call three strikes upon me when the ball was delivered high over my head. This day I do send fair orders to Master Harris of Boston and Master Egner of Philadelphia, and would have given The Nassau Company of Gotham, one too, save they did give me only Roumania adhesives to choose from and I have plenty of this nation at this time. I think this an error to quote a man but one country, when he do a general line. I do grieve at not sending them an order, as they did indite me a fair speaking letter and did endear themselves to me with their courteous words. Lay long in my bath, and then to bed to read. I have almost finished the obsolete numbers of MEKEEL'S that a kind friend, Master J. Jones of Santa Maria, did loan me, and I do grieve to think that soon I will have none to pass my nights, a-chortling over. And so to sleep at ten of the clock.

28th March—All day at my labors and at night in our Buick coach to the town, where do dine on a lobster, which dish I did once inordinately love, but now, neither my wife nor I do care aught for it and so away from the Inn, disappointed and not too easy from the lobster. To Master J. Jones house, where I do look again at his collection, which he has been pricing for this week that I might see if I desired it. It an old one and containing some cheap but hard to get adhesives which I think will enhance my approvals and please my clients. Also he do have a great quantity of duplicates and many other loose in a box. He do now save only United States and I view his gathering of these last and they very beautiful and costly, at a rough estimate full 250 pounds. Very pretty. I do finally give him 8 pounds for his foreign varieties and he and I both well pleased. So home and until midnight, looking over what I did buy and cannot make great profitt

POSTAGE STAMPS AND PROGRESS.

By Walker C. Smith.

In Denver nearly a dozen years ago Phil Engle declared that there was nothing under the sun which could not be used as a topic for a lecture on social revolution. He proceeded to prove his point by speaking for several successive nights using a different Mother Goose rhyme as the basis for each talk. Excellent indeed was his lecture on the evil effects of the unemployment existing at the social extremes, an admirable extension of the jingle—

Hark! Hark! The dogs do bark;
The beggars are coming to town,
Some in rags and some in tags
And some in velvet gown.

Equally edifying was his arraignment of the capitalist crime of "over-production" with the soup-kitchen and breadlines that rise as a complement to glutted markets, or—

"There was an old woman who lived in a shoe
She had so many children she didn't know what to do."

Our old friend Humpty Dumpty was used to demonstrate the fallacies of those political charlatans who would "bust the trusts" and restore individual competitive business in the large scale industries for when he once had fallen "All the King's horses and all the King's men couldn't put Humpty Dumpty together again." And so it went night after night.

Phil proved his point. I hope to prove mine, which is that philately—the technical name given to the collection and study of postage stamps—furnishes the best possible means by which to fix in one's mind the economic and political changes that are taking place with almost bewildering rapidity throughout the world. I don't write this as an apology for being a stamp collector (the pleasure I get from my collection is sufficient justification for myself and I care little for the opinions of others) but I set it down as a matter of general information.

"Marx and Engels on postage stamps," methinks I hear some one sneer. Even so, my friend, and not on the stamps of Russia either. Caricatures rather than likenesses, perhaps, but Marx and Engels impressed into the postal service on the stamps of Hungary during the brief regime of Bela Kun, nevertheless.

The stamps of Russia mirror some of the changes that have taken place in that country within the past five years. The Imperial double-eagle and portraits of the Romanoffs were abandoned in 1918 for stamps showing a huge hand cleaving a chain with a sword, while in 1921 there appeared a series on which is shown the soviet emblem of hammer and sickle and the letters R. S. F. S. R. in Russian to show that the stamps eminated from the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic. On these last stamps one finds agricultural implements, sheaves of grain, anvil and sledge hammers, and on the 250 ruble stamp a harp, an open book, and a retort, to symbolize music, literature and science. Depreciation of Russian currency is forcibly brought to mind by another significant stamp issued in 1922 in three denominations, 5,000 rubles, 10,000 rubles and 22,500 rubles. The design of this stamp is a gnarled fist grasping a great hammer, the background being filled with smoke-belching factory chimneys, and on a curved ribband the Russian inscription "Proletarians of all countries, unite!" Attention is vividly called to the devastating Russian famine by stamps issued in 1921, proceeds from the sale of which were applied to relief purposes. One design shows boats on the Volga River transporting supplies to the famine district, while food is being dispensed to the starving from a storehouse in the foreground. Short-lived and almost entirely unused issues of stamps mark the passing of several of the counter-revolutionary military regimes in different Russian districts.

Poland, to commemorate the signing of a treaty of peace with Soviet Russia in 1921, issued three denominations of a stamp design showing a worker resuming the sowing of his fields after thrusting his sword deep into the ground, a rainbow in the background sending forth its promise of a better future. A later stamp shows a construction worker with a pick flung across his shoulder.

The economic note is being stressed more and more on the stamps of European countries, be they soviet, republic, or ostensibly monarchist. Roumania, for instance, has a stamp on which appears a plowman whose furrows are being directed by an angel of plenty. North Ingermanland has scenes of harvesting, reaping, plowing and milking, on its bicolored stamps. Ukrainia has a stamp, 1918 issue, of 20 schagiv value—whatever that may be—showing a worker bearing a scythe. Lithuania portrays a man sowing grain from a basket slung around his neck. Central Lithuania puts forth a peasant girl scattering grain and also a worker with his family standing beside an anvil in the foreground of an industrial district. Bulgaria has a peasant woman carrying a shock of wheat, while Luxembourg furnishes a factory scene.

In 1920 Bavaria dropped the old royal coat-of-arms and the royal portrait for stamps of three designs; one is a farm worker at the plow, another a planter, and the third a mechanic standing amidst cogs and wheels.

The German Republic, from the time when the National Assembly was convoked, discontinued the use of Germania— the helmeted and war-like female figure—and symbolized the reconstruction by means of a nude worker with trowel in hand laying the brick of a new edifice. Since then there has been a design with three workers beside an anvil, another of three miners at work in a shaft, a third with three farm laborers at their tasks, and a fourth with a plowman tilling the soil. Changes in stamps also show how complete was Germany's loss of colonies due to the world war.

With its issue of 1921 the stamps of Armenia began to display the hammer and sickle as part of the design to show that the soviet form of government had been adopted, and this also is true of the Republic Azerbaijan in 1922, whose 150 and 500 ruble stamps not only have the soviet emblem, but also shows two sturdy workers toiling with hammers at an anvil.

A powerfully muscled workingman with broken chains dangling from his wrists stands erect and defiant on the stamps of Jugo-Slavia, while the stamps of Czecho-Slovakia depict a woman who has broken the chains binding her arms; as yet neither of these countries has featured industry as have so many other countries in which changes in economic status and in the form of government have taken place.

Esthonia reaches far back into the past with stamps showing an ancient galley propelled by oars, and then by way of contrast issues a triangular stamp bearing an aeroplane. Nearly all European countries, by the way, are to be found issuing special stamps for use in payment for delivery of mail matter by their extensive and increasing aerial post service. Esthonian stamps also show a girl weaving at a loom and a man toiling at a forge.

easily be seen from its stamps which show miners toiling underground with their picks, mine tipples in operation, coal barges on the rivers, and aerial trams for carrying coal across streams.

The awakening of China is shown by a stamp on which an aeroplane is seen flying above a medieval castle, by the disuse of the Imperial dragon, and by the issuance of a series of stamps showing a trading junk or else a worker in the rice fields. By their stamps many countries in Asia, Africa and Oceania show signs of breaking away from the glorification of royalists, militarists and politicians and an awakening to the fact that production is the main thing in society after all is said and done.

Coming to the Western Hemisphere we find in the more recently issued stamps of Brazil a herald of the changing world. These stamps show the importance of railway transportation, aviation, navigation, mechanical pursuits, and instruction or education. Argentine shows the farmer gazing across his plowed fields, French Guiana a picturesque native at his daily tasks, and Guatemala one of its great wireless stations. Even more typical are the stamps of Newfoundland which show mining by an actual underground scene, logging by a three ox team in a forest, fishing by a boating scene, and fur-gathering by a band of seals on a rocky headland.

But when we reach these United States and examine the issue of stamps which even now are replacing the old familiar Franklin and Washington series the result is disheartening. Think of Teddy Roosevelt on a five cent stamp! Others whose faces appear on the 21 new stamps are Martha Washington, McKinley, Garfield, Grant, Cleveland and Hayes. Just why Carrie Nation, Anthony Comstock and J. P. Morgan have been omitted from this gallery of second rate citizens is a matter for conjecture. The only sign of progress is in replacing the bicyle with a motorcycle on the new special delivery stamp, and at that it's a safe bet that delivery will be no more speedy than before. Even Austria has shown more of the spirit of the times by putting the royal eagle and the portrait of Franz Josef in the discard and coming to the front with a well engraved series of seven stamps in honor of the famous musicians, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Bruckner, Strauss and Wolf.

Great Britain, the first country to introduce officially the adhesive postage stamp, has made but few alterations since its first stamp of 1840, save to replace Victoria's face with that of Edward, and Edward's with that of George; but taken all in all the stamps of the various countries do mirror the changes in methods of production and social relationships with great fidelity. Archaeologists declare that from a broken bit of pottery they can build up a historically correct account of the customs and institutions of its period; a well informed philatelist can come near to performing the same feat from an examination of the postage stamps of a country.

The history of the world war might easily be reconstructed with nothing more as a guide than the stamps of the combatant countries, with their various over-prints showing the course of armies of occupation, with the disintegration of some states and the merging of others as shown by the bits of adhesive paper, by the plebiscite issues, the war tax issues, the charity and Red Cross issues, and last but not least by the extensive counterfeiting of German stamps practiced by the British government.

Economic determinism shown by a nation's postage stamps; Karl Marx and Frederick Engels stuck onto a love missive or a letter ordering the shipment of twelve gross of clothes pins; yes, even more than that—why, do you know, fellow workers, that there is a One Big Union postage stamp? On the 1893 stamps of Shanghai municipality, which until recently has had its affairs jointly mismanaged by nearly every nation but China, there appears a Latin motto which means all joined in one—"In Uno Omnia Juncta"—in ONE BIG UNION.

THE BERMUDA PEROT.

The Perot Stamp ranks in rarity with some of the Postmasters Stamps of the United States, only seven or eight copies being known. Two copies of these stamps—one red, dated 1854, and one black, dated 1849—were sold at the last (5th) Ferrari Sale in Paris on November 15, 1917. The former used on entire, realized 30,000 fcs. plus tax (£540) and the latter 15,500 fcs. plus tax (£280); when one considers the rarity of these Postmasters, it is a matter of surprise that they realized such low figures. The history of these stamps is little known and the following details given by Sir R. Grey will be of interest:

In the year 1848 the late W. B. Perot, then the owner of the Par-la-Ville property, was the Postmaster at Hamilton and used as the Post Office a portion of the ground floor of the building on Queen Street, now the little Green Shop. In addition to his salary he received the prepaid postage on the Inland letters posted at his office at the rate of one penny per ounce, in cash, no postage stamps being printed, the same practice existing with reference to the other Postmasters and Assistant Postmasters, who were required to make an annual return of the amounts received by them for postage.

Letters posted in Hamilton were stamped with a circular postmark having "Hamilton" in the upper part of the circle and "Bermuda" in the lower part, both in capital letters, and within the circle the date in two lines.

"Postmaster stamps," so called, were issued by some Postmasters in the United States, on their own authority, in the years 1845, 1846 and 1847, and possibly Mr. Perot became aware of this and decided to try the experiment in Bermuda, but, not having any local means of having a die prepared to make stamps from, he utilized the current postmark. Strange to say, it was not until about the year 1900 that the philatelic world first became aware of the existence of the Perot stamp, and when this transpired a younger contemporary of Mr Perot, whose place of business then adjoined the post office, and who sometimes assisted the Postmaster, said that he well remembered the preparation and issue of these stamps, and that they were stamped by Mr. Perot on sheets of paper, a dozen on each sheet, and sold for one shilling per sheet, the purchaser cutting them out singly and affixing them on the letters, instead of paying the postage.

The stamps were prepared by removing the movable parts of the postmark die containing the month and the day of the month; and by Mr. Perot writing on each impression of the stamp "One penny" above the year, and his signature, "WBPerot," below the year.

It is believed that only two specimens of this stamp are known in England, one in black and the other in red. There does not appear to be any authentic information as to the number of these stamps now in Bermuda, but there is one at least, and it is quite possible that others may come to light in future.

Any persons who are in possession of old letters written in Hamilton in 1848 or 1849 would do well to make a careful search among them for a Perot stamp, and anyone lucky enough to find one should be careful not to remove it from the envelope or letter sheet to which it is affixed, and not to dispose of it out expert advice as to its possible

The first copy of this stamp chronicled was one found about Another was acquired by the late M W. Warhurst soon afterwards, and is surmised to be the black copy i Ferrari collection.

The specimen illustrated above found some years ago with about others among some old business c spondence, which belonged to an retired merchant, who carried on ness at St. Georges, the old Ber capital.

We are informed that the four c referred to above have been recently in England. They were in poor c tion and only fetched a small price

THE OFFICIAL POSTAGE STAMPS OF GREAT BRITAIN.

A SUPPLEMENT TO "POSTAGE STAMPS OF GREAT BRITAIN."

By W. WARD.

Educational Departments.

Towards the end of the Nineteenth Century the old local school board authorities were taken over by a new Ministerial Department known as the Board of Education. It was not until the beginning of 1902 that overprinted stamps were brought into use for the voluminous correspondence necessary throughout the kingdom with the thousands of scholastic authorities. Five values first made their appearance in February, 1902, the ½d, 1d and 2½d of the new King Edward VII type, and the 5d of 1887, and 1sh of 1900 Queen Victoria type. The latter stamp had a very short life being replaced in December of the same year by the King Edward stamp, while in February, 1904, the 5d King Edward appeared for a few weeks before the whole of the series was withdrawn and destroyed. While neither the ½d and 1d values are by no means common, the other three values are veritable rarities.

Navy Departments.

It is said that the British Navy abhors, like Nature, radical changes. The same terms of speech, orders, and forms of discipline are used in the Navy today as during Queen Elizabeth's and Nelson s time, so the wonder really is that in the short space of seven years after the sister service began to use official stamps that the Lords of the Admiralty condescended to follow suit. But they did so, and what is more surprising had twice as long a set as the Army, and two different overprints!

The first overprint brought out in March, 1903, showed the words "Admiralty Official" with a broad M on six values, ½, 1, 1½, 2, 2½ and 3d. In May of the same year the overprint was altered to a thicker type showing a very narrow M without the downstrokes coming to the base. All six values appeared during the same year, and had only a short life of a few months.

Revenue Departments.

The first proper general issue of British Official Stamps, the Inland Revenue authorities made the overprint originally for the use of local Surveyors or Collectors of Taxes, in order to properly check the periodical repayments for postage expenses on their official correspondence, which was naturally very large, affecting every adult person almost in the Kingdom.

The stamps were overprinted "I.R. Official" and three values (the ½d, 1d and 6d) made their appearance in the autumn of 1882. Two and a half years afterwards a 2½d and 1sh, 5sh, 10sh and 20sh stamps were added to the set, while the ½d was also affected by the change of color, as again five years

ORIGINAL COVERS

In historical value and in real beauty nothing can exceed some old United States stamps on the original envelopes upon which they were used years ago.

I am urging my clients to buy original covers and I offer three propositions to those who will take my "tip" that covers will prove fine investments also.

No. 1—A STARTER—"DOLLAR COVER BUNDLE"—10 to 20 nice covers mostly prior to 1890 for $1.00. One of the best selling combinations ever offered.

No. 2—THEN TRY—"DE LUXE COVER BUNDLE"—15 to 30 better covers, selected for condition, cancellations, etc.—wonderful value for $5.00.

No. 3—FINALLY—COVERS ON APPROVAL for those beyond the "bundle" stage. State the extent of your collection and your price limit per cover and don't forget reference (two stamp dealers).

later the 20sh stamp was philatelically altered by watermark.

Curiously all these stamps, different to the contemporary officials, could be purchased on application, in unused condition, at Somerset House, in the Strand, London. Doubtless this was not generally known as the shilling and pound values are among the rarest of British stamps.

There were three types of overprint used, a condensed thin type on the values to 1sh up to about 1894, when a heavier faced type was used, and a wide spaced thick heavy large type was used for the 5sh, 10sh and 20sh stamps. Defective L's occur, and the £1 green is known with a missing stop on the stamp lettered BB—BB, in the four corners.

It is said that large quantities of the 6d grey of the first issue were on hand right away until 1901, when the demonetising of all stamps was brought about by a Post Office Act in that year—but which was, however, repealed by Mr. Austen Chamberlain, the then Postmaster General in 1903, but again brought into action during the Great War, when all stamps prior to 1902 were demonetised.

All control letters are known on the ½d and 1d Queen Victoria issue with the exception of the O over N control of 1892.

Royal Households.

The management of the Royal Households, which are kept separately from the King's Privy Purse, are such State establishments as Tower of London, Buckingham and St. James Palaces (London), Windsor, Osborne (Isle of Wight), Holyrood (Edinburgh), Balmoral (Aberdeenshire), and until 1922, Dublin Castle. The control of the Royal Households are under the Lord Chamberlain, and are again sub-divided into offices under the Lords-in-Waiting, who always prepare for and accompany the King on his various movements of State; the Lord Steward, who is responsible for the various residences apart from the King's private estates, Treasurer, Comptroller, Master of the Horse, Captain of the Gentlemen at Arms, and the Captain of the Yeomen of the Guard. Thus it will be seen that there would be every need for a large postage account to be kept, though quite a modest official issue of two stamps was only made in 1902!

Ministry of Commerce.
(Board of Trade.)

While this department never issued an overprinted stamp, from 1882 until May, 1904, when all official stamps were withdrawn, it issued no less than 38 different varieties by officially perforating its stamps with a Royal Crown and the letters B. T.

Naturally due to broken or worn teeth of the perforating machines, many of the stamps show varieties of the punctured official "Control." All are very scarce and in unused condition are practically unknown.

Early U. S. = 5c and 10c 1847

5c 1847, fine copies at .... $6.00 each

From several sources we have picked up a number of very nice copies (most collectors would call them very fine copies) of the 5c 1847, which we can offer while they last at $6.00 each.

To specialists in this issue we can offer most of the things that are hard to find. The 5c Orange, 5c Brown Orange, very often confused with the ordinary Orange Brown. We also have a few copies of the first issue also called Orange Brown but differing very decidedly in character from the Orange Brown of later printings. Among the plate varieties, the dot in "S", both on and off cover, some fine examples of the worn plate and several copies of the well known shifts, the double line at top and the double line top and bottom; pairs on or off cover, ranging from the ordinary commercial variety at $15.00 to superb items at $35.00.

The 10c '47 we can offer at $20.00 for a fine copy with big margins, pen cancelled, a very nice copy of the big shift at $75.00, a number of minor plate varieties, including short transfers, badly re-cut side lines, open corners, extra lines, et cetera.

We are glad to send selections on approval against satisfactory trade references.

BRITISH HONDURAS POSTAGE DUES.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

When the Crown Agents, in September, 1922, announced that "supplies of 2c and 4c Postage Due stamps are being printed on white script CA watermarked paper" for British Honduras, only three British territories in the Western Hemisphere were using special stamps for the collection of postage deficiency. Trinidad was the first to adopt their use, and on 1st January, 1885, issued a series of 9 values, ½d to 1s inclusive; Grenada followed on April 18, 1892, with three values, 1d, 2d and 3d, adding a fourth, 1½d, on December 15, 1922; and Canada, on July 1, 1906, brought out special stamps of 1c, 2c and 5c values, for this purpose.

The stamps were received at Belize in early November, and on November 8, 1922, regulations were made governing their issue and use.

"POSTAGE DUE STAMPS.

Regulations, governing the issue and use of Postage Due Stamps, made by the Governor in Council under sub-section 1 of Section 5 of Chapter 130 of the Consolidated Laws (Revised Edition).

1. Deficiency in postage on letters and postal articles shall be collected by means of postage due stamps.

2. Postage due stamps shall be of such design and value as the Governor in Council shall decide..

3. Postage due stamps shall be issued to such postal officers as the Colonial Postmaster shall decide.

4. Postage due stamps shall not, under any circumstance, be issued to the public uncancelled.

5. Postage due stamps and taxed postal matter shall be kept in a place of security always.

6. Insufficiently stamped postal matter shall immediately on receipt be taxed by affixing thereto postage due stamps to the extent of double the deficiency of the original postage. The fewest possible stamps shall be placed on each article and promptly cancelled with the office date stamp.

7. Postage due stamps are not to be affixed to insufficiently stamped letters and other articles posted in the Colony for places outside the Colony. Such articles shall be impressed with the "T" stamp to indicate that they should be taxed at the office of destination.

8. Addressees, and in the case of returned letters, etc., the senders of taxed postal matter shall be notified as soon as possible of the receipt of such matter in the form of schedule "A" hereto annexed.

9. Postal officers entrusted with the custody of postage due stamps and taxed postal matter shall keep and render to the Colonial Postmaster a monthly account thereof in the form of schedule "B" hereto annexed.

10. Accounting officers shall debit themselves with the total value of unused postage due stamps received and take credit for such stamps affixed to taxed postal matter.

11. Under column 5 shall be entered the amounts representing the tax on postal matter received from other offices.

12. The amount of taxed postal matter dispatched to other offices for delivery and returned to Headquarters as undeliverable shall be entered under column 13 and the amounts collected and paid in under column 15.

13. Postage due collected at the General Post Office, Belize, and at the District Post Offices in the out-stations where there is a Sub-Treasury, shall be paid to the Treasurer and District Commissioner respectively.

14. In the case of payments at a District Treasury the receipts shall be forwarded to the Colonial Postmaster by the District Postmaster.

15. Collections at other District Offices shall be remitted to the Colonial Postmaster with the monthly accounts by means of unused postage stamps.

16. The Colonial Postmaster shall support by his initials the value of taxed postal matter returned to other administrations.

17. A special account of postage due stamps on dead letters, etc., that originated in the Colony, shall be kept at the General Post Office and credit taken for the value of such stamps destroyed in the presence of the Postmaster and an Audit Officer.

Made by the Governor in Council this eighth day of November, 1922.

Signed, E. A. BABER,
Clerk of the Executive Council."

These special stamps were brought into use on January 2, 1923, and since that date have been affixed to all short paid matter passing within the Colony. They are printed in black, in sheets of 60 (5x 12), and watermarked multiple Crown and script CA. There is no plate number, the marginal line is broken at the line of perforation, and the perforation is comb 14.

The design resembles that of Grenada's Postage Due stamps of the 1921 series, except that the central circle is slightly smaller (14½mm instead of 16mm), which allows the colorless line surrounding it to be continuous and not broken at the top and bottom. "British Honduras" and "Postage Due" in colorless sans serif capitals occupy straight labels at the top and bottom, respectively, and in the central circle is a large block numeral followed by "C." The usual conventional floriate ornamentation fills the four spandrels.

In Trinidad there is no restriction against the sale of "surcharge postage" stamps, but in Canada sale to the public is prohibited. For many years Grenada allowed their sale only in cancelled state, but this restriction was removed early in 1921.

Section 4 of the British Honduras Order in Council of November 8th, it will be noted, rules that "Postage due stamps shall not under any circumstances, be issued to the public uncancelled." But this was amended on February 21, 1923, to permit of their sale in mint condition to stamp collectors and dealers.

"POSTAGE DUE STAMPS.

Regulations, governing the issue and use of Postage Due Stamps, made by the Governor in Council under sub-section 1 of section 5 of Chapter 130 of the Consolidated Laws (Revised Edition).

Regulation No. 4 of the Regulations made by the Governor in Council on the 8th day of November, 1922, under subsection 1 of section 5 of Chapter 130 of the Consolidated Laws (Revised Edition) is hereby cancelled and the following substituted therefor:—

4. Postage due stamps shall not, under any circumstance, be sold to the public uncancelled across the counter. Their issue uncancelled will be made to philatelists by the Colonial Postmaster only on written application accompanied by their face value plus postage and registration when necessary.

Made by the Governor in Council this twenty-first day of February, 1923.

Signed, E. M. TIBBITT,
Acting Clerk of the Executive Council."

Jan. 2, 1923.—Postage Due Stamps. Typographically printed by De La Rue & Co., Ltd. "British Honduras" at top, "Postage Due" at bottom, and large block numeral in central circle. Watermarked multiple Crown and script CA. Perf. comb 14.

POSTAGE STAMPS OF SOMALILAND.

By Bertram W. H. Poole.

Chapter IV.

The Third Issue.

At the same time that the Queen's head stamps with overprint at the bottom appeared the following values bearing portrait of King Edward VII were similarly overprinted:—

½ anna pale green.
1 anna carmine rose.
2 annas purple.
3 annas orange brown.
4 annas olive green.
8 annas magenta.

These stamps are, properly speaking, part of the preceding emission but owing to the difference in design they are usually treated as a separate set. Exactly the same setting of the type was used as for the 2½a, 12a and 1 rupee stamps of the Queen's head design and as all these King Edward stamps were in sheets of 240 the two types are shown on all denominations in the same arrangement, viz.:—all the stamps in the upper panes are type 1 except the ninth stamp on the third row, while in the lower panes the two types are distributed as follows:—

1	1	1	1	1	1	1	2	1	1	1	1
1	1	1	2	1	1	2	2	2	2	2	2
2	2	2	1	1	1	2	2	1	1	1	1

In each sheet of all six values, therefore, there are 182 stamps of type 1 and 58 of type 2, while eleven horizontal and thirteen vertical pairs may be found showing both types together.

The error "BRIT SH" is found on the 1 anna value occurring on the twelfth stamp in the seventh row (No. 84) of the top pane. Occasionally the ½ anna is found with only the faintest of faint dots in place of the second "I" of "BRITISH" but I have never seen a copy with the "I" absolutely missing.

In the ½a and 1a values there are interesting varieties on the seventh stamp in the sixth row (No. 67) and the fifth stamp in the seventh row (No. 79) of the lower pane in most sheets. In these there is a period in place of the letter "I" in "SOMALILAND."

In some sheets of the 1 anna the "I" of "SOMALILAND" is entirely omitted in connection with No. 79 mentioned above.

The variety with thick "D" occurs on all six denominations and may be found three times in the upper panes, viz.:—on the twelfth stamp in the eighth row (No. 96), and the eighth and twelfth stamps in the tenth row (No. 116 and No. 120 respectively).

Several varieties with broken type are known and one of these is perhaps worthy of special mention as it is constant and occurs in connection with all six values. This has the top of the "O" in the second word of the overprint cut away so that the name appears as "SUMALILAND." It occurs on the ninth stamp in the second row of the upper pane (No. 21).

The variety with battered "S" looking like a badly formed "8" also occurs, and there is the usual complement of short, small, raised and dropped letters, though none of them are of any particular importance.

Chapter V.

The Fourth Issue.

The overprinted provisional stamps described in the preceding chapters were replaced in 1904 by a set in a permanent type bearing a portrait of King Edward VII. There are two designs, one for the anna values and another for the rupee denominations and both are exactly similar to those for East Africa and Uganda and for British Central Africa (with the exception of the name and value tablets), which were first issued a year previously.

The set comprised the following denominations:—

½ anna green and grey green.
1 anna carmine and black.
2 annas purple and dull violet.
2½ annas ultramarine.
3 annas green and chocolate.
4 annas black and green.
6 annas violet and green.
8 annas pale blue and black.
12 annas orange yellow and black.
1 rupee green.
2 rupees purple and dull lilac.
3 rupees black and green.
4 rupees carmine and black.

The values up to and including the 12 annas are of ordinary size and show a profile portrait of the King, with head to left, on an oval of solid color in the centre. On the left and right of the portrait are sprays of laurel and oak leaves respectively, and above the head is an Imperial crown. At the base is "SOMALILAND—PROTECTORATE" in two lines, and in the upper angles are tablets showing the values. The rupee values are of extra large size and are similar in design to the smaller stamps except that the oval containing the portrait is partly lined, and a scroll, showing the denomination in words, is added at the top above the crown, the ends connecting the two tablets of value.

The stamps were engraved and printed by Messrs. De La Rue & Co., Ltd. of London. They are all perforated 14, the lower values being printed on paper watermarked with a Crown over the letters "CA," while the larger stamps show a watermark consisting of a Crown over the letters "CC." The stamps are all bicolored, the portrait being printed in the second of the two colors named in the above list.

The smaller stamps were printed in sheets of 120, arranged in two panes of sixty stamps (ten horizontal rows of six), placed side by side. There is a ju line around each pane and the plate n ber "1" is shown above the se stamps from each end of the top and below the corresponding stamp the bottom row. The jubilee lines not continuous, but are cut into len exactly corresponding to the height width of the stamps.

The rupee values were printed sheets of sixty stamps, arranged in horizontal rows of twelve, and t also had broken jubilee lines aro The plate number—"1" in each case- in the side margins opposite the ce of the first and twelfth stamps in top and bottom rows.

A separate "duty" plate had to made for each denomination but "head" plates served for the w series—one for the anna values and other for the rupee denominations.

The 1 and 2 rupee stamps are kn on toned paper but whether this distinct variety or one caused by clin conditions I am unable to say.

Chapter VI.

The Fifth Issue.

About June, 1905, all the anna va of the King Edward series describe the last chapter were issued on the p with multiple Crown and CA waterm No alteration was made in the co and the same plates were employed the only difference between this and previous issue lies in the watermark.

For the first printing ordinary p was used but in July, 1906, the 1 a appeared on chalk surfaced paper during the next few years all val except the ½ anna and 2½ annas w issued on this chalk surfaced paper.

The rupee values of the King Edw series were never issued with the tiple watermark.

Chapter VII.

The Sixth Issue.

In 1909 the 1 anna stamp of the K Edward design was printed entirely carmine, instead of carmine and bl to conform more accurately to Po Union requirements and at the same t a slight change was made in the colo the ½ anna, the new printing being blue green.

Both values, though in single col were printed from the old head and d plates necessitating two printings in e case.

The Eighth Issue.

This new water- is also of the multiple type but wn is larger and more accurately ns to the design known as “Imperial” while the letters “C A” are in script type.

The Somaliland Protectorate sent an order for all values to the Crown Agents for the Colonies in the early part of 1921 and as the new paper had just come into use all these stamps show the new variety of watermark. The stamps of this Protectorate are the only example we can recall in which the entire series on the new watermarked paper was issued at once. In the case of most of the Colonies the sets have been issued piecemeal as new supplies of different values were requisitioned.

These stamps are exactly the same in design and color as those of the preceding issue, the only difference being that of the watermarked design in the paper.

The same plates were employed and all thirteen denominations were printed at two operations.

The advent of this issue completes the philatelic history of the stamps of the Somaliland Protectorate to date.

CHAPTER X.

The First Issue of Official Stamps.

When the first issue of provisional stamps for the Somaliland Protectorate appeared, those overprinted upon the Queen Victoria stamps of India, a series of five values was also issued for use upon official correspondence. These were the ½a, 1a, 2a, 8a and 1r Queen's head stamps of India overprinted “On H. M. S.” further overprinted with the name “BRITISH—SOMALILAND” in two lines. The two words of the latter overprint were so placed that they did not overlap the original overprint with the result that the two additions read “BRITISH On SOMALILAND H. M. S.!”

These five official stamps, like the labels for ordinary use of the same date, were overprinted in entire sheets of 240 stamps at one operation and a number of interesting minor varieties occur.

As regards the “On H. M. S.” overprint the only variety of note appears on the stamp in the bottom right hand corner of the sheet (No. 240), and is, of course, common to all the Indian official stamps of this series. On this stamp the serif on the right foot of the “M” is extended and joined to the period. It occurs on all five values though on some of the sheets of the 8 annas the serif is normal and the period is omitted altogether. It would thus seem that an attempt was made to remove the superfluous part of the serif, and the period was accidentally cut away during the operation.

All the other varities occur in the “BRITISH SOMALILAND” overprint. As I have already stated this overprint was applied to entire sheets of 240 stamps at a time and, it is interesting to note, the two types referred to in connection with the regular stamps are also found in these official stamps, notwithstanding the difference in the spacing between the two words. The upper pane consists entirely of type 1 while in the lower pane the two types were distributed as follows:—

1	1	1	1	1	1	2	1	1	2	2	2
2	2	2	1	1	1	2	1	1	1	1	1
1	1	1	o	1	1	1	1	1	o	1	1
1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	2
1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	2	1	1	1

There are thus in each entire sheet 217 stamps of type 1 and only 21 of type 2. Ten horizontal and seven vertical pairs showing both types together may be found.

THE STAMP ILLUSTRATIONS.

In our issue of June 9, 1923, we printed the long article from the Collectors Club Philatelist on the subject that has for some time been engrossing the attention of collectors, the recent legislation that allows certain concessions in the illustrating of United States stamps, in comparison with the restrictions that heretofore surrounded the reproduction of any postal certificate. The article was one that told of the sequence of events in relation to the enactment as voted finally and was given in order that readers might have a compact history of the case. However, it has been brought to our notice that the article does a manifest injustice to Dr. Carroll Chase, who, as president of the American Philatelic Society issued a letter opposing the first bill, and in order that reparation may be made and at the same time, fuller opinion heard, we take the following editorial from the American Philatelist, which in its way is about as good an expression of editorial views as we have seen for a number of philatelic moons.

What a sorry mess this matter of stamp illustration has become! The first broad and constructive action for the benefit of all collectors and dealers has, through lack of harmony and vision, precipitated a seemingly endless controversy that is nullifying the slight advantages gained to Philately in the passage of the new law. A difference of opinion between friends is often a good thing—an active, even heated discussion of principles tends to clarify thought and leads to a firmer mutuality—but no such end is gained through personal abuse and unfair statement of facts. Ours is a sincere regret that at this late day, after all that has been said and done, that so prominent a local organization as the New York Collectors Club should permit the pages of its official Journal to bear such a warped and biased version of the “inside” history of the law, as appeared in the April issue of the Collectors Club Philatelist. The writer of that article would have it appear that the opposition of the A. P. S. to the original bill “misguided” collectors and if it hadn't been for the efforts of the “Collectors Club” the action of Dr. Chase “might have proved disastrous!” The inside “story of intense interest that is worthy of preservation in the annals of philately” resolves itself into a bit of horn tooting that supposedly derives its “intense interest” in belittling a man who unselfishly has given philately in this country the fruit of his exacting studies of U. S. issues and time ill spared from his professional duties to serve for two years as President of the A. P. S.

Quite a bit of indignation has been aroused over this article and we have been requested to give the true “inside” story in reply. We do not believe this either necessary or advisable, the record of the A. P. S. Convention at Springfield and the record of the last Congress are sufficient answer. The efforts of the A. P. S. officers and membership killed the original bill deader than a door nail, and the amended Bill, including the right to illustrate U. S., was directly due to the efforts of the A. P. S. Lookout Committee. Now why all this argument over the allocation of the “glory?” Collectors, dealers and publishers are everywhere questioning whether anything worth while has really been accomplished and are wondering the why of all this fuss. While we agree that the direct benefits are small, we do feel that a big thing was done in securing the recognition by Congress of Philately and it is farthest from our purpose to give the impression that this was accomplished solely by the A. P. S. or any of its officers. A great number of men contributed to the passage of the new law and while nearly, if not all, were members of the A. P. S., the greater number acted as individuals and not as officers of the Society. Solely by reason of a difference of opinion over the question whether or not it was advisable to press the demand for the right to illustrate U. S. stamps as well as foreign, these men did not join hands in a common fight but even pulled in opposite directions. Over that one difference of opinion arises all this turmoil which is doubly unfortunate because it was due to that difference of opinion that the preparation of the new law was hasty and without the thoughtful consideration usually given by a body of men working to one end and now it is still before us, constantly agitated for purposes secondary to the good of the hobby and leading to a weakening of the friendships so necessary to true co-operation. For our part, we believe, and would have our readers believe, that the principals, the men that worked to get a satisfactory illustration Bill before Congress, greatly deplore this aftermath of controversy and would much prefer instead of the paeans of glory sung in different keys a harmonious call for mutual co-operation to secure an improvement of the law. Some very slight changes would make it as satisfactory as anyone could fairly ask for and we believe these can be had if collectors, dealers and publishers act in friendly co-operation.

We hope olive branches will be in evidence at Washington in August and we look forward, our own olive branch in hand, to a renewal of the old friendly status.

EDITORIAL.

We are told that one of the big questions that will be discussed at the Washington convention is that of an international stamp exhibition in this country. It is all right to discuss so momentous a topic as this thoroughly in a preliminary way but it must not be forgotten that there is a philatelic exhibition society in New York that has been preparing ever since the date of the New York exhibition of a good many years ago, for the next one. Those who may sponsor the exhibition idea at Washington should be ready to tell just what the recommendation of the New York society is as it is certain that any action taken will be based upon the expectation of the New York society. We want to remind our young friends who seem to be so enthusiastic about wanting to put more pep into philately that "starting things" is easy in comparision with "seeing them through."

No definite stamp information about the special issue for air mail service has come to us even though the first of August has arrived, but we shall not have to wait much longer for news as Washington is now in the hands of the philatelists, who will be sure to get the latest slant on any stamp developments.

* * *

This coming fall there is to be an important exhibition at Toronto where a postal exhibit will be a feature of the occasion. As Mr. Edward E. Goodchild says, the stamp exhibit will be under the direct patronage of the postmaster general; and various designs made up of stamps will be shown. The various stages in the manufacture of stamps will be shown by pictures, and picked copies of well-centered specimens in singles, pairs and blocks will be placed on sale for the benefit of collectors who may visit the exhibition. From Mr. Goodchild we hear that there is a likelihood that Canada will have a complete new issue this year; and that the color of the current three cents has been changed to carmine.

We quote from a letter that has come from a large foreign trade development company: "One of our advertisers, ———, Berne, Switzerland, who are stamp dealers, have a number of outstanding accounts in the United States, in small cities in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois,—places that we do not reach personally. It seems that this concern have in the past sent out consignments of their stamps without first receiving payment for same and in a great number of cases, the parties receiving the stamps have failed to make either sufficient remittance or no remittance at all." Our letter could not be said to have held out any hope of successful action but in all probability something will be said about the claims of foreign dealers against American dealers at the dealers' convention at Washington on August 13th.

Our composure has been rudely disturbed by an editorial in the Chicago Herald-Examiner of July 27th, entitled "Stamp Magic." We have read many an attack on and libel of philately uttered by men who ranged in the intellectual scale from dolt to savant; and have been compelled to defend our doctrine when aspersions have been cast upon it, clothed in whatever habiliments they might have been. Usually, the case presents some angle that allows us to get a finger-hold on it and at least throw it back into the traducer's yard, but now we have an instance that transcends all understanding. As the Spanish proverb has it, truth and roses have thorns but by the same token the fictional is without hurt. We must laugh, however, to keep from crying, as the French philosopher has said, when we contemplate this unbelievably strange editorial in a paper that is usually alert, and say, poor flounder. Too, we are amused at the state of excitement into which the editorial has thrown some of our devoted correspondents and we dare not print some of their vehement protests. The writer of the editorial of fewer than two hundred words begins by saying that the old order changeth and that the youthful interests of a recent day are passé, having been exchanged for others. Stamp collecting is then lauded as the ideal indoor sport as "it had everything" and "above all, it was romance and developed the imagination." The mystic suggestions of the names of far-away countries are mentioned and the stamps said to present a panorama of the world. The writer is almost poetical in his tribute to stamp collecting and we cannot believe that one of his feeling and intelligence could be so out of step with reality as to say: "All gone now? Nobody thinks of stamps except as official receipts for postage? We can't believe it; but if it is true, it is a pity." Here, a writer who appreciates the charms of stamps, asks in a medium widely read if stamps as objects of collection are not now non est. The editorialist has no excuse to ask this preposterous question when a turn of the head almost would have shown him that philately was still extant. Stamp collecting is very much alive and we have never seen a summer before when the seasonal decline in interest was as slight as it is at present. With a sympathy for philately, a writer does harm to stamp collecting by his lack of everyday knowledge and his good intentions do not excuse the public parade of his ignorance. A friend who hands us one of the "Stamp Magic" clippings asks, in that confidence-inspiring tone that intimates that the worst tidings will be safe in his keeping, if told him, if it is not true that stamp collecting was on the skids. Our answer was that just now it was at its highest point in popularity and that the prospects of future growth were n better.

Correspondents in China have sen particulars of the error, $2. on one lar Shanghai surcharged on U States, which came to light last Oct We give as follows, the letter rece by Mr. E. Busch of Shanghai from stamp agent on the subject of this sta "Post Office Department, United S Postal Agency, Shanghai, China, 14th, 1923. Mr. E. Busch, Archi and Entrepreneur, 60, Kiangse R Shanghai, China. Dear Sir:—In to your inquiry of June 13th, I car form you that as far as I know, one sheet of one hundred stamps charged to $2, Mexican, with double pression was sold. You should obs however, that an accident of this kin the manufacture of stamps is not al a matter of official record or cogniz and as the interest is solely tha stamp collectors, they sometimes more accurate data than do post- officials. Sincerely yours, (Signed) C S. Ford, Postal Agent." As Mr. B points out, this letter may be sai authenticate the double surcharge question; and Mr. Busch has sen photographs of the double surcharg blocks of different sizes. A dec error has been added to the list of a able stamps of the kind.

From Mr. J. F. Duhamel, Washing we have received a sample of a little vice that seems simple and effec and we believe readers will get correct idea of how to make the tector. Mr. Duhamel says: "One your recent correspondents refers means for protecting stamps ag rubbing in the abum. I am enclosi sample and sketch of a simple effectual means consisting of a stri thin celluloid or gelatin as high as stamp and an eighth-inch wider at side. Bend back these one-eighth sides into wings to embrace the st and attach the hinge in the usual This protector may be slid over stamp or the wings lifted and the st dropped in. The pressure of the le will ensure the functioning of wings." A sketch is sent with the but so clearly does Mr. Duhamel vey his ideas that the drawing is necessary. Our friend is considera sharing his plan for stamp prote with others and some of our readers adopt the suggestion.

V. R. POWELL.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

This concern appears in the New York State Business Directory as early as 1859 as a manufacturer of telegraph friction matches at 162 N. 4th Street, Troy, and is listed in the Troy or other Directories at the same address as late as 1868. Van Renselaer Powell died October 7, 1892.

The ownership of the match factory changed from Van Renselaer Powell to Bogardus & Griswold in 1869, and then to J. M. Bogardus in 1870, and to the Atlantic Match Co. in 1875.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, Sept. 26, 1864.
First issued, Oct., 1864.
Last issued, July, 1875.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
9,571,590 issued on old paper.
3,195,010 issued on silk paper.

"Mr. Powell's die was transferred to Bogardus & Griswold, and by them to M. C. Miller, both of Troy, N. Y., but no change in the die was made."

Probably the Atlantic Match Co. was the name under which Mr. Miller did business, while he was operating the factory.

The first plate, and probably the only one, was engraved by Butler & Carpenter of Philadelphia and all the stamps were printed in that city. The design is one of the most pleasing of all the match stamps and fortunately it is common enough so that every collector can own at least one specimen.

A central oval contains a profile of Washington facing left which is evidently taken from the Houdon bust and is very similar to the portrait on the 3c postage stamps of the 1851-60 series. The same portrait appears on two of the Fleming Bros. medicine stamps and on the large Jamaica ginger stamp used by Frederick Brown in Philadelphia. The Fleming Bros. stamps were issued early in 1863. It appears that the Portrait on the Powell stamp was taken from the die or transfer previously used for the Fleming stamps. A curved band surrounding the central oval is inscribed "V. R. Powell's Telegraph Matches. Troy, N. Y." The upper corners each contain the numeral 1 on a trifoliate panel enclosed in a circular disk and connected by a narrow label inscribed "One Cent." Acanthus scrolls at the lower sides enclose U at left and S at right and a curved ribbon at the bottom of the stamp reads "Internal Rev." The delicate acanthus ornamentation and graduated pearls outside the upper corners complete the design, which is in the form of an upright rectangle of the standard 1c size.

The stamps on old paper vary from pale to deep blue and one of the shades occurs on the thick paper of 1870. The true ultramarine shade printed in 1869 is very rare. The printings on silk paper are usually in dark blue, perhaps a trifle darker than the darkest shade on the old paper, but the silk paper variety is also found in a much lighter blue, which has a suggestion of ultramarine; the latter shade is not at all common.

Although the number issued on old paper was three times as great as the number on silk paper, the silk paper is nearly twice as common as the old paper and strictly fine copies on the old paper are apt to lead one a merry chase. The stamp on old paper is not known to have been used in multiple and no pairs or blocks have been noted; a few blocks are known to exist on silk paper.

In regard to the wrapper stamp used by V. R. Powell, the Boston Book states:—

"The stamp is printed on manilla tissue paper and is a wretchedly blotched piece of work * * * * It is also found upon a thicker whitish tissue paper and it is barely possible that this variety was used as an adhesive, although we very much doubt such being the case. It was, in all probability, printed by the American Phototype Co."

The present writer inclines to the opinion that the copies of the American Phototype Company's stamp printed on the thick white paper (Scott No. 5248b) were, in fact, used as adhesive stamps and chiefly for the following reasons.

The die proof of the black Powell was approved by Commissioner Joseph J. Lewis, May 6, 1865; the die of the large Macklin Shanghai rooster adhesive (Scott No. 5227) was approved May 8, 1865; the die of the large black Byam, Carlton & Co. adhesive (Scott No. 5146a) was approved in 1865 in all probability within a short time of the approval of the two other dies. Both the large Byam, Carlton stamp and the Macklin stamp were used as adhesives for several months, probably about a year, and the Macklin is known to exist on a thick whitish paper very similar to the Powell stamp under consideration. The black Powell on thin yellow tissue paper is more frequently found cut to shape, but a few copies, perhaps half a dozen, exist entire, whereas none of those printed on the thick white paper are known to exist with more than small margins.

For reasons which will be considered in the article on the Powell wrapper it seems more than probable that very few wrappers were used by Powell, and it may be that some of the black Powell stamps on the thin yellow tissue paper were also used as adhesives. The weak point in the above argument lies in the fact that whereas neither Byam, Carlton & Co. nor Macklin had any other private die adhesives at the time they were using the American Phototype productions, the small Powell blue Butler & Carpenter adhesive had been in use nearly a year and a half before the die of the wrapper was approved, and in all probability Powell was receiving the small blue adhesive stamps (Scott No. 5247) during the period when the wrappers were in use, and therefore had no apparent need of using the wrapper stamp as an adhesive. However, the difficulty in arriving at a definite conclusion when the stamps under consideration are so rare that only a very few copies can be found for study purposes is obvious. The writer knows of only five different copies of the large black Powell on white paper.

The old records of the American Phototype Co. would throw much light upon this question, but as the Company went out of business many years ago, it is hardly possible that any of their records are now in existence.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—From Mr. A. S. Davenport, Yonkers, N. Y., we have received the notice: "I am sorry to have to report the death of Albert Lawrence of this city on July 24, 1923. He was one of our old-time general collectors and was an enthusiastic collector of precanceled while his collection of revenue stamps was widely known. We younger collectors are very sorry to be deprived of Mr. Lawrence's company."

—"Weko," the collectors' correspondence club, we are informed by Adolph Gunesch, Chicago, vice-president, has a membership of over four hundred in this country while the world membership is eight thousand.

—A "flying mail train" on which the clerks will sort letters while dashing through space, night or day, is the latest improvement in airplane service according to the London Daily Chronicle.

—A man sentenced in Michigan for counterfeiting Canadian "excise" stamps was sentenced to five years in Leavenworth. Upon a review of his case, the court granted a writ of habeas corpus "on the ground that the offense for which he was committed did not constitute a violation of any law of the United States." That oiseau did not bother to use that fine thin line at that.

—Speaking of the death of Congressman Mott, our old friend W. C. Stone of Springfield, Mass., writes that he was a member of the American Philatelic Society in the early days of the association and that he resigned in 1896.

—Passing through Chicago on his return from the London exhibition, Mr. B. W. H. Poole of Los Angeles says that the big occasion seemed to be thoroughly enjoyed by all the Americans there in particular.

—N. B. Paulson of Chicago will leave for a trip to Europe after the conventions at Washington have been disposed of.

—The Wide World contributes a fine picture of the Stamp Bourse at Paris to the rotogravure sections of the newspapers using its service. The details of the photograph stand forth clearly and with a bit of imagination one may sense the atmosphere of the place.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—A piece of news that will come as a great surprise to our many readers is the fact that the Post Office Department is about to issue a new series of airplane stamps consisting of three denominations, each in different design. Through the courtesy of Messrs. Henderson, Glover and Eidsness I am furnished with this advance information, in view of the fact our readers do not receive this news until two weeks after being written, differing from the releases to the daily press which publishes the information on the same day.

The lowest denomination will be an 8c, a new airplane value, printed in olive green to correspond with the current series. The stamp will be similar in size to the current issue with the long dimension horizontal as the case of the higher values of the present series. Across the top we find "UNITED STATES POSTAGE" and at the bottom "8 CENTS 8," the two figures appearing in the lower corners. In the center we have a radiator of an airplane with propeller attached.

There will be a 16c in bank note black similar to our 7c. The lettering will be the same as the 8c with new values in corner and this stamp will bear the official insignia of the Air Mail Service, that is a design with sort of wings bordering on an oval bearing the inscription "Air Mail."

The third denomination will be a 24c brown, possibly darker than the current 4c Martha Washington. This will show an airplane in flight, the subject being a reproduction of a photograph of one of the latest models of the Air Mail Service planes.

These stamps will be printed in sheets of four hundred which will be perforated 11 and distributed in post-office panes of one hundred, and will be printed upon unwatermarked paper. The colors mentioned have not been officially approved at the time I write these notes so there is a possiblity of a change although it is thought at this time that those mentioned above will be selected. It is hoped to have the series available for sale on or about August 20, 1923, however, the date cannot be given at this time as final plans for night flying have not been fully determined. It is expected that some of these new stamps will be available for inspection during the meeting of the American Philatelic Society at Washington the week of August 13th.

Through the courtesy of Mr. L. A. Hill, Director of the Bureau of Engraving & Printing I am able to bring our list of plate numbers up to and including July 15, 1923.

The two plates 14634 and 14635 are used in connection with the rotary presses for precancelling the sheets of 1c stamps produced by this machine. As explained in a previous article this precancelling is done on the press at the same time the stamp is engraved and previous to the gumming and perforating.

It will also be noted in the above list that we have our first of the new design 3c sidewise coils, plates 14720 and 14721.

Mr. D. K. Dunbar writes and informs me that the State of South Carolina has now issued a further lot of documentary stamps consisting of seven values for cigars, fifteen values for smoking tobacco, five values for cigarettes, one for little cigars, two for ammunition and fifteen for candy, making a total of thirty-two denominations.

Your editor, because of his efforts in writing this chronicle has been elected an honorary member of the Erie Boy Scout Stamp Club and can assure you that the honor is appreciated.

AUSTRALIA.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the 1sh rose and pale yellow green postage due stamp, perf. 14, on old Victoria paper double lined A and Crown.

BELGIUM.—M. P. Massez writes that the seventy-fifth anniversary of the issue of the first Belgium postage stamp will be taken as the opportunity for the issue of a new series of stamps, which it is hoped to have on sale in time for the opening of the International Philatelic Exhibition in Brussels next year. The design will include portraits of Leopold I (after the original die by J. Wiener), and of the present King, and the printing will be limited, doubtless giving rise to fresh scandals, as in case of the "tin-hat" series.

AN OLD FRIEND RETURNS

We have much pleasure in announcing that we are now in a position to re-commence the publication of which was suspended on the outbreak of war in 1914.

The first number of the new series will be published on October 1st, 1923, and, while we shall endeavour to publish articles of first-rate philatelic importance, such as made the journal famous in its old form, we shall also include all the popular features (Catalogue Supplements, articles on modern issues, etc.) which have made Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular the most widely-read stamp journal of the day. The new Monthly Journal will be supplied at the low subscription of

60 CENTS PER ANNUM

(Specimen Free)

and all current subscriptions to the now defunct Monthly Circular will be transferred. [03 let; 1903 type: new values, 50c lilac, 9c blue and 90c brown.

RANS-JORDANIA.—On May 25th, 240 se of Palestine stamps were overprinted in three lines with an Arabic inscription signifying "Arabic Government of the East, Commemoration of Independence, May 25, 1923." The stamps are of the 1918 issue, watermark Royal Cipher, and of the 240 sets overprinted, 21 were distributed amongst Government officials. We think we have said enough to show that these stamps have no interest for collectors and are unworthy of catalogue rank.—Philatelic Bulletin.

PPER SILESIA.—Mr. J. L. Riedel reports that on May 1st all the stamps for the Polish territory were withdrawn and from the above date only the Polish stamps will be used. In April a new value, 300m light blue, in the miner type was issued but had a very short sale.

RUGUAY.—The Metropolitan Stamp Co. have submitted for notice a set of stamps showing a native bird of the country in the centre. The values and shades are 5m grey, 1c yellow, 2c purple, c grey green, 5c light blue, 8c red, 12c blue 20c yellow brown, 36c green, 50c light gold, 1p rose red and 2p green.

OUBLE SURCHARGE SHANGHAI.

By E. Busch.

These stamps slipped through the U. Shanghai Postoffice in October last and with the exception of a few, all are in one hand. Taking myself a keen interest in China stamps, I went for information and got the following:

Only one sheet of a hundred has been given out, while about 30 stamps of this same sheet show no sign or very little of the double impression. Of the other 70, some show the double impression very distinctly, while some others show it not quite so well. As I saw only part of the sheet, I could not come to conclusion, how the sheet went through the plate. From the enclosed photo, you may understand and find it out yourself. The blocks shown on the photo belong to different parties, block 1 to the first man.

Of the 70, some of the ones which show no sign or very little of the double impression, had been used before the error was discovered; less than 20 have been canceled to order and the rest were left mint. The greatest part of these stamps is already in the hands of collectors. A few were sold at Tls. 15,—but the price raised quickly on account of the demand, to Tls. 30, and later to 75 Tls. I know that Tls. 90 has been paid recently for one mint and that the holder asks easily 125 Tls. now for the canceled Tls. 120 for mint.

Office of Works.

(Government Buildings.)

Another large department responsible for the many buildings belonging to the Nation, Crown parks, and in time of war and National Emergency the Railway lands, buildings, dockyards, etc., for repairs other than come under the parview of the military and naval authorities. This department also in 1882 checked the use of its postal accounts by perforating them with letters, a Royal Crown and the initials O. W. or the initials H. M. O. W.

In 1896, however, it followed the example of the Army and Revenue authorities and overprinted its stamps O. W. Official. All are scarce and difficult to obtain.

Official Parcel Stamps.

(H. M. Stationery Office.)

The issue of special official parcel stamps was for two reasons, primarily because of a check on the departmental postal expenditure, and secondly that in many cases the parcels of official stationery would be conveyed from the various depots in England, Scotland and Ireland by Railway and other companies under contract.

The information procurable regarding the different postal rates for parcels varies. One authority states that the 9d stamp was used for parcels under 3 lbs. weight in order to escape a percentage charged on parcels by the carrying Railway Company, while another states that 9d was for a contract rate for ordinary printed "dead rate" stationery, carried at a reduced rate, whereon the 1sh value was for ordinary postage on such items as registered valuable documents, and post-office stamped stationery. In any case for nearly two years these two values appeared to suffice for requirements, the registration fee of 2d on the necessary parcels of stamps being represented by the blue embossed circular stamp printed on the flap of the large brown cartridge official envelopes used for that purpose by the British Post Office.

The 1d lilac and 1sh green and carmine exist with inverted overprints. All "Govt. Parcels" stamps are hard to find in fine used condition on account of the large heavy rubber stamp used to besmear parcels, a metal cancellation being seldom used on account of likely damage to a parcel. Like the Army Officials they were generally obtainable "by ways and means" in unused condition.

An important prosecution took place early in the century over the sale by Government servants of the unused stamps, whereby in order to obtain them unused ordinary stamps were substituted for the official stamps. This was one of the main causes of the discontinuance of special adhesives, though at the conclusion of their "life" the authorities permitted them to be dealt in by stamp dealers. All remaining stocks were ordered to be returned on May 14, 1904, and they were officially burnt, hence probably the rarity of many of the values.

STAMPS OF SOMALILAND.

The two stamps marked "o" in the above diagram belong to neither type due to erroneous spacing of the letters in the word "BRITISH." In the first of these, No. 88 in the lower pane, the letters "SH" are so widely spaced that the word measures a full 11½mm in length; while in the other, No. 94 on the same pane, the letters "IT" are too widely spaced and the word measures 11mm in length.

On the eighth stamp in the bottom row of the upper pane (No. 116) there is a thick "D" in "SOMALILAND" on all five values. There is a figure "1" in place of the first "I" of "BRITISH" on the fourth stamp in the sixth row of the top pane (No. 64) in all values, and on the second stamp in the ninth row of the same pane (No. 98) there is a comma instead of an "I" in "SOMALILAND."

On the 2 annas, the twelfth stamp in the seventh row of the upper pane (No. 84) has a period instead of the second "I" in "BRIT.SH," but in the other four denominations this letter is more or less distinct. These are the most noteworthy varieties but there are many others of less importance, such as broken "O" like an inverted "C" in "SOMALILAND," small and short-footed "L's," broken, dropped and raised letters.

According to Ewen's Weekly Stamp News the total number of these stamps issued was:—

½ anna 30 sheets or 7,200 stamps.
1 anna 30 sheets or 7,200 stamps.
2 annas 20 sheets or 4,800 stamps.
8 annas 10 sheets or 2,400 stamps.
1 rupee 10 sheets or 2,400 stamps.

It would therefore seem that the catalogue quotations for these stamps are not only ridiculously low but entirely disproportionate. All values are exceedingly scarce in genuinely used condition and I question if any are to be had at the prices quoted by our generous catalogue friends.

There seems to have been little need for these stamps according to a paragraph in the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain for April, 1905, which we quote below:—

"According to an officer who has lately returned from active service in Somaliland, these specially overprinted official stamps are more or less a farce, for they are only allowed to be used by one or two people and not on general official correspondence. He tells us that the Queen's head stamps surcharged "On H. M. S." were only used by four persons, while all other departmental correspondence went unstamped."

VACATION DAYS

¶ There seem to be none this year.
¶ At any rate, July was as busy a month as any four weeks last winter.
¶ The wise collector has not put aside his collection during the summer.
¶ Now is the time to buy—before the new catalogue appears and prices go a-soaring.

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By WARNER BATES,
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers who send in specimens for examination will enclose postage for the return of their stamps. —Ed.)

A correspondent mentions the following-described shift in the two cent brown, 1883, No. 210: "Shows all letters of TWO CENTS and the figure 2 shifted, many of the letters of the top label shifted, a strong line like a recut running along the whole length of the tiny horizontal lines which form the edge of the frame at the right, this being supposed to be the right hand edge of the shield shifted over. The appearance of a double line is very noticeable." This is probably the double transfer mentioned by Mr. Flierl recently. Has anyone found this same shift on the two cent green, 1887?

"What is the value of a vertical pair of the three cent green, 1873, showing a red town, dated and a fine red star?" asks a correspondent. Well, here is an interesting question. The question of values is always interesting and, since the issue of Scott's Specialized United States the question of multiple values is ofttimes perplexing. Mr. Costales says in his foreword that prices are for the commonest stamp in each group and that odd designs, such as stars, numerals, animals, etc., are worth premiums, depending on the scarcity and clearness of the design. Prices quoted are for specimens in good condition. Very fine or superb specimens in most cases command higher prices. Taking this as a guide, let's reason out the correspondent's question.

Scott lists the three cent green, 1873, single copy with red cancellation, at $1 a pair, both stamps showing the red cancellation obviously would be worth $2, for you could separate the pair into two stamps and have $2 worth. However, pairs are much scarcer than singles in these issues and vertical pairs are scarcer than horizontal pairs, so it would seem that something should be added for this fact. In the opinion of this writer, 25 to 50 cents would be a fair valuation to add for the vertical pair. The catalogue lists the average copy of this stamp at two cents and a town cancellation at five cents or one and one-half times as much. But a red town! If the town cancellation shows sufficiently so that the name and state can be deciphered then it would seem that it would be fair to add one and one-half the value of a single red cancellation, or $1.50, making our present valuation say $2.75. But something should be added for the fact that this specimen is dated, for dated copies are much sought after and rare on these issues. Just to be reasonable we will add a very moderate amount for the date (provided, of course, that it is a year date), say 50 cents, making $3.25 in all. In my opinion nothing should be added for the red star cancellation as stars seem to be about the commonest cancellations in red and magenta. Some readers may disagree with this. If this pair happened to be one of the scarcer shades, this should add something to the value as given. Also, if the copies are in perfect or superb condition, perfectly centered, bright color of the stamp, clear impression and bright red color of the cancellation, etc., and with the cancellations so falling on the stamps that they do not obscure important portions of the design, and further with all or almost all of the cancellations showing on the stamps then the value should be boosted considerably, say for an absolutely unique specimen to $4 or $4.50.

But, then, after having arrived at the theoretical value of the specimen the reader should make certain reductions, taking demand into consideration. Practically all specialists collect colored cancellations but not all of them are keen about adding pairs, strips and blocks to their collections. In fact, some would reject a specimen on this account. Some cancellation collectors are not so fussy about condition either, so that the market for a superb specimen would not be relatively so much greater than the demand for ordinary ones. Color of the stamp and location of the cancellation would not make so much difference with the great body of collectors. Neither would the importance of the combination of a town, date and star mean so much to all collectors. Therefore, we must make an arbitrary reduction from our theoretical value to get somewhere near the real market value of such a piece. Personally I feel that such a piece should be worth from $3 to $4.50, depending on conditions of the sale and the requirements of the buyer. That is to say, if the collector wants to make a hasty sale he should expect to get about $3 of almost any collector but if he wants to spend the time to find a buyer who really needs the piece for his collection he might get the higher price.

There, that should start something. Collectors who are interested, send in your opinions on this subject.

MAILS FOR NEWFOUNDLAND INCLUDING LABRADOR.

WASHINGTON, July 17, 1923.

Owing to the many complaints received concerning irregularities observed in the mails dispatched from the United States to Newfoundland, postmasters will give the widest publicity possible to the fact that the postal service of Newfoundland, including Labrador, is separate and distinct from that of Canada, and with the exception of the 2 cents an ounce rate applicable to letters, articles in the regular mails for Newfoundland, including Labrador, are subject to the international Postal Union rates and conditions.

Parcel-post packages for Newfoundland, including Labrador, are subject to the special prohibitions and restrictions set forth under the item "Newfoundland (including Labrador)" on page 201 of the July, 1922, Postal Guide and may not be insured, but may be registered.

PAUL HENDERSON,
Second Assistant Postmaster-General.

FLY NIGHT AND DAY.

With the establishment of night flying it will be possible to send a letter direct from San Francisco to Chicago or New York, or the reverse. Letters which were marked "via air mail" were formerly given preference in the air mail advancing system, but there was no guarantee that the letter would make its entire journey by plane.

Since the post-office department is anticipating a considerable use of this fast service by the public, it is regarded as probable that the establishment of through service from coast to coast will be accompanied by the announcement of the use of a special airplane stamp.

Such a stamp would be sold at a price which would compensate for the fast service, and would guarantee transportation by plane.

Two purposes will be served by the establishment of through transcontinental air mail service. The public will receive the fastest mail service known to man over extensive distances, and, secondly, another step will be made in the United States' pioneer work in the field of aviation, a task which is one of the chief reasons for the establishment of air mail service.

Last year the air mail personnel won recognition for the greatest achievement in American aviation by flying 2,000,000 miles on the transcontinental route for an entire year without a fatal accident.

Night flying, if it is successful, will be another feather in the cap of the post-office department air service. Even though every precaution is being taken to safeguard the fliers whose duty it will be to travel at night, the hazards of this work are not to be minimized.

A loyal group of fliers, whose courage has been steeled by many an exploit, will undertake the experiment, and if it can be done by man they will do it.—Chicago Herald-Examiner.

COMMUNICATIONS.

(Under this heading, opinions and observations submitted by readers may be printed, but the WEEKLY assumes no responsibility for the utterances of the correspondents whose letters are given space.)

TO THE EDITOR:—

Every now and then we are offered by "salesmen" from Europe, wholesale stamps of Armenia. In a case, very recently there was offered to our concern a very large lot of Armenian stamps. Looking it over, we find in this lot (not less and not more) 750 copies of 100r surcharged on 5r (Scott's No. 232) of which have been issued only 100 copies; my information is based on the official letter of the Ministry of Post and Telegraph, indicating the number of issue of different Armenian stamps. This letter is the answer to my inquiry, when in Armenia in 1920, I purchased a few copies unused and have been successful to "find" some 3 covers with this particular stamp on. When back in U. S. from Armenia, I sold in 1921 seven copies to Mr. John Klemann. To no other dealer I have ever sold this item in U. S. nor in the whole world. I wonder where and by whom the 750 copies were fabricated and I wonder more as today I learn that some one bought the whole lot for $45.00 (sic). I sincerely hope that the party who bought the lot will be able to recover his money and invest it rather in the Brooklyn Bridge, which everybody in New York knows can be bought for a ten dollar bill. A few more words about Russian pre-revolution stamp reissued by the Soviet Government of Russia, especially the issue of 1909-18, and which are offered on the market at from ⅕ to 1/10 catalogue value. These reissues are printed from the original plates; they can be easily recognized by the following signs, which were the secret of the process of printing by the Tzar Government, issued before the revolution of 1917:

The lozenges which are seen on the face of the stamps, have been applied directly on paper, Before the printing from the plate, whereas on the stamps of reissue the lozenges (which is a secret solution) have been applied After the printing.

To the reader I leave to decide, what the difference is between a surcharged stamp when the surcharge appears under the cancellation, and when the surcharge appears on the cancellation.

Respectfully yours,
SOUREN YOHANNESSIANTZ.
NEW YORK CITY.

TO THE EDITOR:—

The First Assistant Postmaster-General is the Hon. John H. Bartlett of Portsmouth, N. H., former governor of New Hampshire. While he was Governor one of his staff officers was Major Robert P. Johnston of Concord, N. H., and the Major is also a stamp collector of long standing. At a gathering of a few kindred spirits who happened to meet in the lobby of the hotel at Concord the First Assistant Postmaster-General was mentioned, and Major Johnston ventured the opinion that the Hon. Bartlett was well enough known to have his mail reach him with no address on it except his picture. So a letter was written and a cut of the First Assistant pasted on it together with a stamp. There was no address at all on the envelope. True to form the postal service ran, and within a few days a reply came back that the letter reached Mr. Bartlett with no delay whatever. A good ad for the Post Office Department as well as for Mr. Bartlett.

ROBT. P. JOHNSTON.
CONCORD, N. H.

The following resolution was offered the Washington Philatelic Society.

Be it resolved: That the Washington Philatelic Society hereby recommends to the American Philatelic Society that a permanent jury or committee of five members be appointed by the president each year whose duty it shall be to carefully inspect and consider each new or old issue of postage stamps of any and all countries to determine if the same is necessary or a fraudulent or deceptive issue for pecuniary gain only and not for actual needs.

And that said jury or committee forthwith recommend that any and all such unnecessary, fraudulent and deceptive issues be branded as such and ignored by American collectors and eliminated from reliable catalogues and albums, and that this brand of fraud on those stamps be announced by all American dealers in making sales of stamps so designated and condemned by said jury.

And that the above resolution be presented to the American Philatelic Society by one of our members with recommendations deploring the disgrace of these unnecessary issues are imposing upon philately and the danger of associting these fraudulent issues with legitimate financial interests and the swindling of youthful collectors.

The above resolution is under consideration in the Washington Philatelic Society and speaks for itself. The committee will be empowered to determine if the Postal Convention is the supreme authority in deciding what is what.

FIVE MILLION.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Night air mail service will be realized by August 1, John H. Bartlett, first assistant postmaster-general, here to attend a state convention of postal officials, said Monday.

That transcontinental all air mail routes, with a night flying program made possible by the developments in lighting and other features of night aviation, would soon be in effect was seen in the department's order for 5,000,000 special air mail stamps. Mr. Bartlett said the stamps will go into the hands of the engravers in a few days and the first may be issued by August 1. The stamps will be in three denominations. Cost experts are now working out the exact amounts to be charged for the service. The lowest denomination of stamps will be between 10 and 12 cents; the second between 14 and 18 cents, and the third between 22 and 28 cents, he said.

The night air mail service will be put in effect between New York and San Francisco, the postal officials said.—Indianapolis News.

CANADIAN CANCELLATIONS.

By EDWARD E. GOODCHILD.

Probably at no previous period has the question of cancellations and stamp collecting in general received greater attention or been more discussed than at the present time. Persons, who heretofore felt restrained from commenting on these subjects are now freely offering suggestions and plans which they believe to be in the best interest of Philately in general. All this is good for the pursuit and must have a beneficial effect.

Take the subject of cancellations on the Canadian issues. Collectors appear to be all at sea in regard to their scarcity and value. Many will tell you they can easily be forged and ask, why collect cancellations? Yet, the very same collector will invest money and willingly pay $2.50, say for a Nova Scotia No. 11 used, which he can obtain for $1.00 mint and still he runs the risk of the smudge or cancellation being forged.

After a very careful study of Canadian issues and having regard to the fact that the various values of the early Canadians, or for that matter, all Canadian issues, corresponding with like values and periods, as those used in the U. S. A. were, and are used in far smaller numbers, one is forced to the conclusion that the collector of Canadian cancellations will be placing a very conservative valuation on his specialized cancellations, if he applies the quotation of the U. S. A. cancellations.

The cancellations of the small Queen Canadian issues of 1869-72 are without doubt the most sought after at the moment and at present within the reach of the average collector, I therefore, for the purposes of denomstrating my point, take the 3c Scotts No. 34 catalogued at 15c. This stamp undoubtedly shows more varieties, etc., of cancellations than probably any other Canadian stamp. I feel I am justified in stating the collector will be safe in taking the following values as a basis for exchange or other purposes. These being approximately the same prices as quoted for the coloured cancellations appearing on the 3c U. S. A. of 1870.

Quotations are for specimens on or off the cover. If on the cover cancellations may show on the stamp alone, or partly on the stamp and cover. Needless to say it is far more difficult to get any cancellation complete on the stamp alone. This to my mind, is one of the main reasons for the special values placed on cancellations.

One should take particular care in going over this issue not to confuse it with the 1882 issue whilst to the experienced eye the difference can be readily seen, to the novice the later stamp which can be obtained for a dollar or so a hundred is often confused with this stamp.

Whilst, I do not claim the following to be absolutely correct, I give for the benefit of fellow collectors my observations as to how I have found special cancellations to exist, all showing on stamps. The rarest, the Crown and registration cancellations. In order named: Dead letter office, Paid, Wayletter, Full Figures of Year, Senate Crown, Towns in Colour, Maple Leaf, Floral Designs and Colours.

In conclusion it will be interesting to read what Scott's specialized catalogue says on the subject of cancellations. Prices, it states, "are for the commonest types in each group. For instance, a red cancellation on the 3c (U. S. A.) 1861 issue priced at $1.25 would be for the commonest red cancellation that could be found on this stamp, which, in this case would be the cork or block type. Odd designs such as stars, numerals, animals, birds, etc., are worth premiums depending on the scarcity and clearness of the design."

METERS AND THINGS.

Have you a little postage meter in your home? It is the very latest thing in the way of a modern convenience, and one without which, soon, no home will be considered complete, judging from the signs of the times. Electrically driven machines for postage meter mail, which seal the envelope and mark the requisite postage in one operation, have recently been approved by the Postmaster-General at Ottawa, and if this device proves as popular as it promises, there is every indication that the time will come when the lowly Canadian stamp will be feverishly sought by collectors of antiques and when found will be placed in the museum along with the dinosaur and the Tut-ankh-amen relics.

Several of the new meters are already in operation throughout the country, Ottawa and Toronto being among the first cities to take up the idea. The device has been under consideration by the Postmaster-General's department at Ottawa for about three months, and it is just recently that the seal of approval has been set on the machine by the authorities. The machines already in operation are said to be assisting wonderfully in the dispatch of mail, and with their general use it is expected that there will result a saving of thousands of dollars annually in the making and dispatching of postage stamps.

Each machine is furnished with a permit number and the operation of the meter is under the direct control of the department. In addition to cutting down expense and labor, the device should prove a great factor in rendering homes happier. Wives who previously were obliged to depend upon their husbands to stamp and mail their letters with the result that they generally reached their destination anywhere from two weeks to a month behind time may now install a postage meter, slip the letter into the proper place and frisk gaily around the corner to the box without having to part with a cent of the house-money; for the postage meter is run on the same principle as the gas or electric light meter and bills in connection therewith are settled in a similar manner.

Since the establishment of the Philatelic Agency at Ottawa the department has been inundated with orders from all parts of the world for the new one dollar postage stamp; and with the introduction of the meter system, many more thousands of such orders are anticipated, as there seems to be no doubt that many stamp collectors will wish to retain copies as a souvenir of the first, and possibly the last Canadian stamp of this denomination to bear the effigy of the King. E. E. Goodchild, well-known philatelist of Montreal, who has just returned from a trip to Ottawa, and who made known here the action of the postal department in connection with the postage meter, has himself received letters from many points, including England and Egypt, commenting upon the establishment of the Canadian Government stamp agency.

Mr. Goodchild stated yesterday that the plan inaugurated some months ago in the postal department at Ottaw having all members of the staff change views as to the betterment o service in the interests of the p is meeting with great success, and eral original and practical plans are der consideration at the present tim the Postmaster-General, which if into operation, are expected to materially in reducing the cour deficit, by saving thousands of do —Montreal Gazette.

BYAM, CARLTON & CO.

By Christopher West.

Less than a hundred years ago friction matches were unknown. The invention of matches that would light by percussion, or friction, precedes the invention of adhesive postage stamps by only half a dozen years. Under the title "Invention of Matches" the Century Book of Facts states:

"Previous to 1829 the matches in use consisted of a slender stick with a pointed end, which had been dipped in sulphur; and they were lighted by touching them to a spark struck into tinder by flint and steel. In that year, however, what was known as the 'Instantaneous Light-Box' was invented. It consisted of a small tin box containing a bottle, in which was placed some sulphuric acid, with sufficient fibrous asbestos to soak it up and prevent its spilling out of the bottle and a supply of properly prepared matches. These consisted of small splints of wood about two inches long, one end of which was coated with a chemical mixture prepared by mixing chlorate of potash, powdered loaf-sugar and powdered gum arabic, the whole colored with a little vermilion and made into a thin paste with water. The splints were readily inflamed by dipping the prepared ends into the sulphuric acid. These were succeeded by the lucifer, or loco-foco match, which was ignited by friction; and that, in turn by the Congreve, which was similar to the sulphur matches now in use; and this, shortly afterwards, by the present parlor match."

The story of the invention of matches and the beginning of the manufacture of friction matches in America is well set forth in an article that appeared in the Boston Sunday Globe, about 1910, during President Taft's administration.

"Probably No More Sulphur Matches They May Be Taxed Out Of Existence.

The recommendation by President Taft in his recent message in which he advises that phosphorus no longer be used in the manufacture of the common match means ultimately the passing of the old sulphur match which was first made in this country in Chicopee, then Springfield, in 1834.

In accordance with the President's recommendation the bill now in the hands of the committee on ways and means provides for a tax upon all manufacturers of white phosphorus matches of $1,000 a year and a further tax of 1 per cent upon every 100 white phosphorus matches which must be put up in special packages bearing internal revenue stamps. The objectionable match will thus be taxed out of existence.

However, while it is true that now because of the careless methods in vogue in many of the large match factories of the country employes are exposed to phosphorus poisoning this in no way reflects upon the value of the invention and the value of the sulphur match originally, and D. Monroe Chapin of Chicopee St., descendant of old Deacon Chapin, one of the founders of Springfield, who in 1834 discovered how to make a match that would light, must be classed as one of the greatest benefactors of mankind.

Miss Chapin, of Holyoke, a niece of D. Monroe Chapin, and a daughter of Bryant Chapin who was associated with Monroe in the business, says the invention was entirely accidental, as Miss Chapin has heard her uncle relate.

One day, while experimenting for the fun of the thing, he accidentally discovered that he could make a fire by putting a little white sulphur on the end of a stick and striking the stick on a hard substance. He commenced to make a few of these sulphur pointed sticks which he disposed of to his neighbors who were tired of using the old tinder box apparatus.

He did not take out any patent and the discovery was open to all, consequently he did not make the fortune that he might have made, although he came to do a big business and took in a lot of money.

The business was really started by Frederick Chapin, the father of D. Monroe and Bryant Chapin, who furnished the capital and built for his sons the two small buildings on Chicopee St. where the manufacture of matches was carried on. The two buildings were built close together and the doors on the side faced each other and were not more than a yard apart, and with a small brick wall connecting, making it easy to carry across the matches.

While engaged in boating wood down the Connecticut river to Hartford a year or two before the match business was begun D. Monroe Chapin became acquainted with Alonzo Phillips of East Hartford, and engaged him to work for him. Later Phillips went into partnership with Mr. Chapin, but he had nothing to do with the invention of the matches.

H. F. COLMAN 2ND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

The firm name was Chapin & Phillips, and their 'loco-foco matches,' named presumably because they were manufactured in loco-foco times, became celebrated throughout the country. With commendable energy the firm soon began running wagons all over New England. These wagons were covered and shut up like a box in which the matches could be compactly and safely packed.

Two large two-horse wagons were constantly on the road, and Miss Chapin recalls that her father, Bryant Chapin, once told her that on one of his trips to Providence and Newport he cleared from his matches the sum of $700. The business was certainly a profitable one for Chicopee, and at one time 16 girls from Chicopee and four men, besides the proprietors, worked in the factory. Constant improvements were made in the machinery in order to keep up with the increasing demand for the matches. The crude machinery for sawing the wood in cards ready for the dip was improved and perfected by the late L. C. Allen, for so many years connected with the Springfield armory.

The wood sawing was first done at Chicopee, but pine wood growing scarce a branch sawmill was established at South Hadley on the farm of the late Abner B. Abbe, the chemical preparation of processes still being located in Chicopee St.

As it was not considered safe for the matches to come into contact with each other they were made in cards or combs in the following manner: First, straight-grained two-inch pine plank, after being smoothly planed by hand, were sawed into lengths of five inches. Then by a single-blade circular saw they were sliced up into cards, a scant eighth of an inch thick. Then by a gang of 11 finely adjusted saws the ends of the cards, in question, a dozen or so at a time, were slit into the form of a comb with 12 teeth each, about 12 inches in length. Then the cards were sawed into in the center, leaving a half inch back to each comb. Then the combs, a dozen at a time, were dipped into a melted brimstone and afterward each separately into the phosphorus composition.

In the packing a long strip of paper three inches wide was placed upon the packing table, one card of 12 matches was placed on this paper and a turn made; then another card and so on until 12 cards or 144 matches were included in the package. Carefully folding down the ends the package called a bunch was inclosed in a printed wrapper. The matches sold at various prices and a single bunch of 144 matches would often bring the price of a shilling."

[Note: The "shilling" referred to was probably the New England shilling which was not a coin but was a monetary expression. Six of these shillings made one dollar. The expression was common to manufacturing towns throughout New England and was a very convenient way of reckoning the wages of labor. The wage was reckoned in shillings per day but was paid in dollars per week. A workman earning five shillings per day was paid at the rate of five dollars for each full week of six days. The actual value of this non-existent coin was 16⅔ cents.—C. W.]

"Chapin & Phillips finally sold their machinery and business to the firm of Byam & Carlton of Boston, who for several years kept up the manufacture and sale of these matches as the Chapin & Phillips match, finally dropping the name for what was known as the Boston match, in universal use for years, which retailed everywhere for a pennv a bunch. The only difference between the Chapin & Phillips match and the Boston match was that the cards of the latter were separated instead of being connected at the base, that a less amount of lumber was used in their manufacture, and that for a penny the consumer was given only half as many in a bunch as in the days of old."

Ezekiel Byam is listed in the Boston Directory of April, 1848, and in the rear of that Directory, on page 38, he advertises, "Card, Block and all kinds of Round Wood & Paper Box Matches." In 1856, the firms of Byam, Pearson, Carlton & Co. and Byam & Pearson are mentioned. In 1861, the firm appears as Byam, Carlton & Co., manufacturers of patent friction matches at 116 Union and 580 Commercial Streets. From and after October 1, 1863, the address was 96-100 Friend Street, this factory being an important part of the Diamond Match Company and the Boston Directory for 1881 lists the Diamond Match Company as manufacturers of Byam, Carlton & Co. matches at the Friend Street address.

The first adhesive stamp used by this concern was printed by the American Phototype Company of New York, but was not listed as an adhesive in the Scott catalog until 1902, although it was recognized by Sterling as an adhesive as early as 1888, and is so listed in his catalog of that year. Its true character was not generally recognized until after the publication of the Boston Book in 1899.

The design forms a large upright rectangle measuring about 41x75mm and was adapted from the central portion of the first (or second) of the Byam, Carlton wrappers. These also were American Phototype Co. productions. The central disk bears the portraits of Messrs. Byam and Carlton facing left, and is surrounded by a circular band inscribed "U. S. Internal Revenue" above and "Proprietary" below. This band in turn is surrounded by a circle composed of sixteen pointed sections. Each section contains the figure of a man holding a match. The curved line in the upper part of the stamp reads "Manufactured by Byam, Carlton & Co." and similarly below is "96 Friend Street, Boston." In each upper corner is a large numeral 1. The lower left corner contains "One" and the lower right corner "Cent." The corners are filled out with scroll work and flourishes. This part of the design is nearly square and is surrounded by a fine frame line. Above the mdle rectangle and forming the top of he stamp is a rectangular block with a anting numeral 1 in each upper corner ar inscribed in two lines in curved catals "U. S. Internal Revenue—P prietary." A narrow panel at the ha of the block reads "One" and "Cent." W hin this block and outside the ends o it the design is filled in with scroll wk. Another block below the central reangle forms the bottom of the stamp ar is inscribed in four lines "Manufaurers of—Wax Tapers, WaterPof, Card,—Block, Wood, & PaperB—MATCHES." Matches is in large Rnan capitals. A fine line of color enches the central rectangle and the two bks, completing the design.

he Boston Book gives the following la:—

e approved, 1865.
rst issued, 1865.
st issued, Apr. 2, 1866.
tal number issued, 8,400,000.

The following extract from a letter to Butler & Carpenter from Byam, Caleton & Co., dated April 2, 1866, and re rring to their small, steel-engraved stap, which was then being prepared, is rong proof that this stamp was used as n adhesive only.

t is to take the place of the small-sid made by the Am. Phototype Co., wh you told Mr. C(arleton) they had no right to make under your contract.' * * *

The weight of the above lies in the statement that Butler & Carpenter claimed that the Phototype Co. had no right to make this stamp. They everywhere admit that they had made arrangements with the Phototype Co. authorizing them to print 'stamped paper,' but they are equally decided in asserting that no one but themselves was authorized to print any kind of an adhesive stamp. (See correspondence over the John J. Macklin Stamp.)

The above, in our opinion, is prima facie evidence of the manner in which this stamp was used and classes it with the adhesives without the shadow of a doubt."

The stamp is phototyped in black upon white tissue paper and evidently was made so large in order that it could be fastened around a package of matches. In January, 1918, a New England collector wrote to Mr. W. O. Wylie of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY and sent him part of one of these stamps, stating:

"The enclosed is the central rectangle of the Byam, Carlton & Co. match stamp (Scott No. 5146A). Examining the back you will find by the paper adhering to it that it was used as an adhesive upon a wrapper of manilla paper in which the matches were enclosed. This is the stamp which has been variously classed as an adhesive and wrapper, and which the Boston Revenue Book states was used as an adhesive on boxes of matches."

Probably the chief reason for the rarity of this stamp is its large size. There is nothing beautiful about it and the thin tissue paper upon which it was printed would make it difficult to remove without tearing and it is quite evident that few were saved as curiosities. The writer has been able to trace about a dozen different copies.

The Sterling quotation of $10.00 in 1888 was quite moderate for such a rarity. Previous to 1902 the Scott quotations were $8.00 to $15.00, if one can be certain that the wrapper stamp on white tissue paper referred to was really the adhesive under discussion. The present quotation of $75.00 was established in 1902 and the few copies which have changed hands since that time have usually brought a goodly proportion of this price.

1c Black.

(Engraved by Butler & Carpenter.)

This adhesive is an upright rectangle of the standard 1c size. In the center is a circular disk containing the portraits of Messrs. Byam and Carlton, facing to the right, and surrounded by a circular band inscribed "Manufactured by Byam, Carlton & Co." above and "96 Friend St., Boston," below. A small colorless panel at the top of the stamp is inscribed "Matches" and the upper corners are occupied by colorless characters on a heavy shaded ground, "U. S." at left and "1 Ct." at right. Triangle spaces below this inscription are occupied by small foliate ornaments. A curved ribbon at the bottom of the stamp is inscribed "Inter. Rev. One Cent" and above the ends of this ribbon are "U" at the left and "S" at the right.

From the artistic standpoint this is one of the least meritorious of the Philadelphia productions. Being the only match stamp (except the large American Phototype stamp used by the same firm) upon which two portraits appear, it is indeed a unique design, but there is little else to recommend it.

Although the quantities issued were quite large the stamp was used to only a comparatively limited extent, because only a small portion of the matches made by this concern (about 10%) were taxed by the use of adhesive stamps.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, May 17, 1866.
First issued, May, 1866.
Last issued, Dec. 4, 1882.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
13,445,070 issued on old paper.
8,325,333 issued on silk paper.
8,211,000 issued on watermarked paper.

The first plate was made by Butler & Carpenter and all the stamps on old paper, as well as part of those on silk paper, were printed in Philadelphia. Probably there were two more plates, of which the first may also have been made in Philadelphia. The third plate was probably made either by the American Bank Note Company or by the Bureau and in all probability was used only for the watermarked paper. The later printings on silk paper and the early printings on watermarked paper were made by the National Bank Note Company of New York. Printings between the early part of 1879 and October, 1880, were made by the American Bank Note Company, but there is yet no method by which these can be distinguished from National or Bureau printings. Copies bearing pane lines or Bureau imprints were printed by the Bureau, but most of the copies on watermarked paper do not bear any such distinguishing marks. The greater part of the Bureau printings were used by the Diamond Match Company after the Byam, Carlton firm had been acquired.

None of these 1c stamps are known to have been used in multiple and pairs are scarce. A few pairs and strips in part perforated condition are known to exist. These are imperforate horizontally and are believed to be Bureau prints. Whether they were connected to facilitate the use of several 1c stamps in multiple, or were merely an error of perforating is not known. The Standard catalog has listed the part perforate variety since 1902 but no price has been quoted. The variety is scarce enough, however, to command a few dollars per pair.

Fine copies on old paper are rather difficult to find. Sterling quoted 50c for this variety in 1888, while the Scott prices were 75c from 1894 to 1898 and 60c from 1900 to 1904. The present quotation of $1.00 was established in 1906 and is quite reasonable for a well centered copy without defects. The silk paper has been quoted at 10c almost constantly since the late 1880's, but so few fine copies have been obtainable at this price that for a dozen years or more it has certainly been too low, and the 1922 quotation of 30c is far more reasonable. Watermarked paper is quite common and was quoted at 5c until 1900. That year the prices of many stamps were stiffly cut, but this quite common variety was increased to 8c and in 1901 it was jumped to 15c, which too liberal quotation was maintained until 1922, when the price was cut to 10c. To quote the watermarked paper at 15c while the silk paper, which is several times as scarce, was quoted at only 10c was absurd.

CANADIAN ENTERPRISE.

In response to requests sent out from the department at Ottawa for suggestions from employees as to ways and means of creating a greater demand for postage stamps, novel and varied ideas have been received. From an Ontario way-station comes the suggestion that if the Postmaster-General really desires to create a demand for postage stamps other than for domestic postal purposes, that the gum on the 1c values be flavored with aniseed for the children, and that on the 50c and $1 issues flavored with what was termed "a little hard stuff." The man responsible for this original suggestion expressed the conviction in presenting it that the result of such an innovation would be that the department would be unable to cope with the demand in Ontario alone for the "hard" flavored varieties.

Another suggestion offered was that Canadian scenery which can be reached by travelling on the Canadian Northern or Government-owned railways, be depicted on postage stamps, the view taken being that in this way a state-owned paying proposition could be made to help out a state-owned non-paying proposition.—Montreal Gazette.

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By WARNER BATES,
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers who send in specimens for examination will enclose postage for the return of their stamps. —Ed.)

In connection with this discussion of the science or art of specializing in low values of United States stamps before 1890, it may be well in this department to set down some of the laws passed by congress and rulings made by the post-office department affecting the postal rates. The laws and rulings to be mentioned in these preliminary articles are all in print in various philatelic works and in old numbers of the philatelic press and their treatment in this department will be more in the nature of a brief review for the benefit of the newcomers to the game who have not had a chance as yet to search out for themselves all the information of this kind essential to a thorough understanding of postal usage. A secondary object is to assemble in this department for ready reference information that is now scattered through various works. These reviews of postal laws and rulings will be printed from time to time, as is convenient, and readers are asked to forward at any time additional information of this kind for publication, together with their own comments on the results of such laws and rulings on the use of low value stamps of these days.

Following the use of the five and ten cent stamps of 1847, Congress approved on March 3, 1851 an act reducing and modifying the postage rates, effective on June 30, 1851. By this act, all manuscript, that is written, letters took a three cent stamp if prepaid and a five cent stamp if not prepaid, for a distance not exceeding 3,000 miles within the United States, and for any distance exceeding 3,000 miles, double these rates. Rates for letters conveyed wholly or in part by sea, or to or from any foreign country, for any distance under 2,500 miles, were ten cents for a single letter and twenty cents for more than 2,500 miles, excepting where such rates had been otherwise adjusted by postal treaties or conventions with such foreign countries. The above rates were for letters or parcels (parcels containing written information or asking for it) not exceeding half an ounce in weight. The same rates in addition were charged for each additional half ounce. However, it is not clear to the writer whether these rates went upward in the same ratio for letters exceeding two ounces in weight, and he would appreciate it if some expert on postal rates would clear up this question for this department.

Drop letters, or letters for city delivery, were charged at the rate of one cent each and letters advertised as remaining over or uncalled for in any post-office were charged an additional cent. The rate on newspapers, handbills, engravings, pamphlets, etc., coming from the publishers, which were not paid for by stamps, cost one cent an ounce under 500 miles and one cent for each additional ounce between 500 and 1,500 miles, with double rates beyond this latter distance.

It is interesting to note that the three cent pieces, which were occasionally used for cancelling stamps, were coined to facilitate the payment of these rates.

To meet these rates, the one and three cent stamps of 1851 were printed. Likewise, the twelve, but that does not fall within the scope of this chronicle of low values before 1890.

In 1855 it was enacted that the rate on single letters, or per half ounce, should be ten cents for distances beyond 3,000 miles. This made the rate from the east to California ten cents for half an ounce.

At the same time it was provided that letters might be registered, the registration fee being five cents, on each letter or packet.

On March 3, 1861, an act became effective requiring the payment of ten cents postage on letters mailed from any point in the United States east of the Rocky Mountains to any state or territory on the Pacific, and vice versa.

March 3, 1863, Congress approved a law making the rate for drop letters two cents, without a carrier's fee. It also limited the registration fee to 20 cents. It was at this time that the two cent Black Jack was first issued.

In transcribing the above, which is abbreviated from the formal language of the acts of Congress, the writer realizes that he is putting himself open to the charge of errors. Also, that the information contained will be A B C stuff to the advanced specialist. Therefore, he craves corrections on the one hand and indulgence on the other. As has been frequently emphasized, this department is not so much for the advanced specialist as for the amateur specialist, the newcomer, and also to arouse interest of general collectors in specialization in the lower and cheaper values of the issues before 1890.

Beginners frequently say: "Where can I find quantities of these old stamps to go over?" Quantities of these stamps, or at least of some of them, are easy to get but unpicked thousand lots of most of them are scarce. However, they are to be found and what is required more than anything else is patience and a little ingenuity on the part of the searcher.

Here is one tip. Try the small and more or less unknown dealer. These dealers advertise in MEKEEL's and other stamp magazines, but they usually advertise late issues, or the classes of old stamps collected by the general collector, knowing nothing or little of cancellations or minor varieties.

Write some of these small dealers and ask them if they will send you any quantities they may have of your favorite stamps for you to go over, taking your pick at so much for every stamp you find. Ask them to set the price per stamp. In this way you will be able to pick up many fine specimens for the specialized collection at from one to five and ten cents each, that is, speaking of the cheaper varieties.

If a dealer puts a reasonable price on his stamps the collector will take more copies than he otherwise would. It is up to the dealer to use his best ju ment as to the price to be fixed. example, taking a lot of five thousa three cent greens. Say the dealer p the price at five cents each. The coll tor might, if it were a good lot, fi 100 copies that he would pay a nic each for. The dealer would get $5. two cents each, the collector might eas take 500 out of the same lot and t dealer would get $10, for then the c lector could afford to take many stam that he did not need for his collecti but which he would use for traders a duplicates to sell later. It is altogeth a matter of judgment for the dealer set his price at either a reasonable or prohibitive figure.

Personally, I feel that when the pr is reasonable the collector can afford accumulate large numbers of duplicat as any nice copies of minor variety cancellation interest are good trade and will have a market value that w be constantly increasing as the years on and as subsequent issues of Scott specialized catalogue are enlarged scope. Also, the buying of large qua tities from such lots encourages th dealers to send further lots and one ca never tell in this game when the gre rarities are going to be picked up. is comparitively easy to accumula good value at low prices from such lot especially if the collector is not advers to accumulating duplicates. For ex ample, in the past two or three week I have picked the following stamps th I can remember without reference to th stamps themselves from approximatel 10,000 stamps in six or seven differe lots:

Stitch watermarks on two cent Brow Jacks, 1870 and 1873, three cent 1870 an 1882, one cent 1870 and 1873. Severa fine shifts on the one cent 1870 grille and ungrilled and the one cent 1873, an on the three cent of various issues; strip of three one cent blue 1873 show ing a fine shift on one stamp; two fin blue shields, one on the one cent blu and the other on the three cent gree two or three black shields. Don't, U/S M on one cent blue, probably a dozen ab solutely superb copies of ribbed paper various values, etc., etc., etc. The marke value of just the stamps mentioned her is far greater than all I have paid for th

JAMAICAN 8d PICTORIAL.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

On April 1, 1922, the inland parcel rate was raised from 3d to 4d for each pound, the limit of weight being 11 pounds, or 1,000 cu. inches, 3 feet in length and 1 foot in width or depth. The demand for 4d stamps was so great that by the end of April, not only had the remainder stock on the old CAM. paper (issued January 21, 1921) exhausted, but also that on script watermarked paper (issued December 5, 1921), and the 2d in multiples had to be used almost exclusively. The 1s was similarly affected, and until November, 1922, no 4d or 1s stamps were to be had.

There being found a very pressing need for a stamp of the 8d value, for parcels of 2 lbs. weight, steps were taken almost immediately to secure such a stamp, and in September the Crown Agents advised that "a design for a new 8d stamp is being prepared." The stamps were received in the island in March, 1923, but to date have been withheld from issue for some unknown reason.

The stamp is from line engraved plates, in keeping with other values of the pictorial series (excepting the ½d and 1d which are typographed), and has for its central design a representation of the War Memorial Cross, in Memorial Square, Kingston (with the eastern block of the Public Buildings in the background), which was unveiled and dedicated on Armistice Day (November 11th), 1922.

The cross is of stone rising from a base and steps of the same material, and placed in the center of a square paved enclosure surrounded by dwarf walls which have openings on all four sides, and paths leading up to them. The total height from the pavement to the top of the cross is 29 feet, and the bottom step is 16 feet square. The second step bears in low relief the words "Their name liveth for evermore." The octagonal base which is 10 ft. 6 inches in height, has a wreath carved on the eastern face, and on the carved ribbon above is cut the dates "1914-1918." The upper portion of the base has eight panels, in four of which are inserted marble slabs, and on that facing the east is the inscription "In Memory of the men of Jamaica who fell in the Great War."

The stone and marble are from quarries in the parishes of St. James and St. Thomas, respectively, and £3000 was expended on the memorial and laying out the square.

An attempt was made at the same time by the Postmaster for Jamaica (Ellis Wolfe), to increase the rates on other postal matter, and in the Gazette of March 16, 1922, the following notice appeared:—

"NOTICE

From and after 1st. April, 1922, the following important changes in the postage rates on letters and post cards addressed to places abroad will come into effect:—

1.—The letter rate for the British Empire will be two pence (2d) for the first ounce, and penny-halfpenny (1½d) for each additional ounce.
2.—The letter rate for all Foreign Countries (except the United States) will be threepence (3d) for the first ounce, and penny-halfpenny (1½d) for each additional ounce.
3.—The letter rate for the United States (not including possessions of the U. S.) will remain as it now is, namely, 2½d for the first ounce, and 1½d for each additional ounce.
4.—The post card rate for all places abroad (irrespective of address) will be penny-halfpenny (1½d) for each single card, and threepence (3d) for each reply paid card.

The local rates of postage remain unchanged.

Signed, ELLIS WOLFE,
Postmaster for Jamaica.
16th March, 1922."

The Legislative Council was in session at the time this notice appeared, and the increases were immediately challenged by the elected members, they claiming that the Government had no power to increase the postage rates, as that meant additional taxation—and the proposed new rates were never made effective.

The political constitution of Jamaica consists of a Governor (Sir Leslie Probyn, K. C. M. G., 1923), a Privy Council, and a Legislative Council. In the latter are the Governor, who sits as President; five ex-officio members; ten nominated (or Government) members, and fourteen elected members (one for each parish in the island). Financial matters are controlled by the elected members, and if nine of them vote against any financial measure, it is automatically thrown out. The members on the Government side (nominated members) cannot vote.

Ever since 1914, the United States Post Office Department has been endeavoring to secure reciprocal 2c letter postage with Jamaica and other countries of the Western Hemisphere, but Jamaica still finds it impossible to agree to the proposal. However, when the Department suggested late in 1921 that letters from the States be accepted at 2c per ounce, though those from the island continue to be charged at 2½d, Jamaica raised no objection, and on December 27, 1921, the following announcement was made from Washington:—

"WASHINGTON, December 27, 1921.

Effective January 1, 1922, the domestic postage rate of 2 cents an ounce, or fraction thereof, will apply to letters mailed in the United States destined for Argentina, Brazil, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Jamaica and Martinique.

Section 19 on page 120 of the annual Postal Guide for 1921 is modified accordingly.

Signed, E. H. SHAUGHNESSY,
Second Asst. Postmaster-General."

Jamaica, with Bermuda, and far-off Falklands, are now the only British territories in the Western Hemisphere charging a higher rate on letters to the United States than to Great Britain and British possessions.

EDITORIAL.

We reprint the following lines that were written by Mr. F. G. Browne of Oak Park, Illinois, a philatelist of many years' standing and whose literary antecedents will be understood when we mention that his distinguished father founded the Dial in Chicago, many years ago. The tribute appeared in Tantalus' column in the Chicago Tribune.

"THAT'S GOOD! GO ON!"
(HARDING'S LAST WORDS.)

"That's good! Go on!"
The Angel's flaming sword
Struck, and the weary soul, released,
Winged a swift way to Heaven's portals.
Celestial wardens awaited its approach—
No challenge at the gates, but welcoming arms outstretched,
And kindly greeting:
"You fought the fight; you kept the faith:
That's good! Pass on!"

A reader has sent the following question: "When was the first stamp club started in this country? I should like to refer to the date in a talk that I am to use before a Sunday school club." The receipt of this inquiry brought the realization home that we had no information in mind on the subject. After searching through files of old stamp papers, we conclude that the first organization of stamp collectors, on a serious plane, was effected on March 21, 1867, in New York City, when eight collectors met and formed the New York Philatelic Society. It was voted to hold meetings on the third Saturday of each month "to exchange views in relation to all matters pertaining to the welfare of members and to bring before them anything of interest that may have happened ad interim concerning or in any way relating to their benefit. The necessary articles of association being drawn up, and duly signed, the meeting then adjourned." The dues were two dollars and fifty cents a year and life memberships twenty-five dollars. If any real society antedated this one, we beg to be corrected.

From Mr. H. C. Barr, of Vogue, New York, we have received the following line from F. P. A.'s column in a New York paper: "No, Perilla, the new issue of air mail stamps is not made of fly paper." Mr. Barr adds: "To think that the lay press should have carved this out ahead of our own WEEKLY."

We are reminded by this that we have had no direct notice concerning the new stamps other than has been already given, although we understand that important developments may be looked for at any moment.

Dr. Carroll Chase who was among the first to introduce the three cent of 1851 to fame and who succeeded in plating the stamp is now dividing the molecule into atoms, as he intends to concern himself with a single shade of the three cent. Dr. Chase tells us: "I am making a serious attempt to gather additional material in the form of pairs, strips and blocks of the three cent, 1851, in the orange brown shade only, so that I may complete several plates which are almost done. If you have any such, might I borrow them with the understanding that I will take good care of them, return them promptly (paying postage and registration both ways) and give you such information as I can about them? Any help that you can give me will be very greatly appreciated." Dr. Chase's address is: 1170 Dean St., Brooklyn, New York.

Readers of the WEEKLY who are in Europe are writing to tell of their experiences abroad; and from a letter sent by Mr. Henry A. Meyer, we quote: "Prices in Switzerland and Italy average a little cheaper than in America. In Germany, the prices are ridiculously low if you can pass your self off for a native. Old covers are to be had occasionally but they are rather high. Common opinion notwithstanding, I bought more advantageously in Hamburg than anywhere else. I bought a certain classic rarity cataloguing $100 for one million marks which represented on that day about $8.25; the copy is superb." Mr. Meyer tells of the accommodating post-office clerks who respond nicely to the requests of collectors for blocks, sets, postage dues, etc. "At one Italian town after I had made my wants known by motions, the young man said, 'Ah! por la coleccion!'" Our correspondent adds that he saw more counterfeits in one day in Florence than in all the rest of the twenty years he has collected.

A beginner who confesses that he is nearly sixty years of age writes to ask why the Omaha stamps in blocks are so scarce, in comparison to the Columbian issue which came five years before. The Columbian stamps were speculated in by many collectors and entire sheets of the stamps were laid away to await the day of greatly advanced prices. As a rule, the holders wearied of the wait and the stamps came on the market in a procession that covered a good many years. The Omaha issue came at a time when the speculators did not feel encouraged to invest heavily in the stamps and as a consequence, the set in plate-number strips met the ambitions of the buyers. It must be remembered that in 1898, the collecting of blocks of four was not as common as latterly and the collector who asked for blocks of four, of the dollar value, Omaha, was the exception. Plate-number collecting absorbed the energy of those who had to have a specialistic fling and the subsequent popularity of blocks of four was only shadowed in 1898. Here and there, h ever, there were collectors who wa blocks at that time and to them we indebted for the supply, limited as it of these blocks; and we knew of collector who got a block of the dollar because the design of this bl stamp was so striking.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF BELGIUM.

By Bertram W. H. Poole.

PART IV.—THE PARCEL POST STAMPS.

Chapter IX.

The 1921 Issue.

In August, 1921, a new value, 55 centimes, was added to the current series the design being similar to that of the other centime denominations. Shortly afterwards a demand for a higher value than 10 francs led to the issue of 15 and 20 franc stamps, the design being similar to that of the other franc stamps then in use.

Finally, for no reason that we have been able to discover, the colors of the 1fr and 5fr values were changed. The 1fr which had hitherto been printed in buff was issued in red-brown and the color of the 5fr was changed from violet to pale rose.

Reference List.

1921. Same types as before. No wmk. Perf. 14.

55c yellow.
1fr red-brown.
5fr pale rose.
15fr deep rose.
20fr dark blue.

Chapter X.

The Engraved Issue.

In its issue dated February 26, 1922, Derniere Heure announced that a new series of parcel post stamps would shortly be issued to be printed in taille-douce and comprising the values 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 10, 15 and 20 francs. It was further stated that these would be issued to the various Belgian railway station offices just as soon as supplies of the current issue were used up.

The first values to appear were the 2 and 3 francs which were issued in May, 1922. The central design shows an uncolored upright oval containing the Belgian lion on a shield surmounted by the royal crown. This is flanked by the familiar flying wheels of the parcel post stamps which, with the shield device, form a transverse oval. This center part is reminiscent of the first issue. At the top is "CHEMINS DE FER," at the bottom "SPOORWEGEN," at the left "BELGIQUE" and at the right "BELGIE," all these inscriptions being in uncolored letters on ornate labels. In the four angles are circular discs of color on which numerals denoting the value are engraved at left and the letters "Fr." at right. These stamps are all recess printed, quite a new departure for the parcel post issues, on unwatermarked paper and are perf. 11½.

The 2 and 3fr were the first to be issued, as already stated, and these were followed by the 20 francs on June 20th and the 4 and 5 francs in August. The 10 and 15fr values had not appeared at the time of writing but will probably be issued before long.

We are not told where these stamps were produced but judging by the paper and perforation they were apparently manufactured at Haarlem, Holland, by Messrs. Enchedé & Sons.

Before concluding this chapter it is interesting to note that about the time these stamps were issued the Belgian Government announced that three fully equipped printing machines had been installed at the Government Printing Works in Malines to replace those destroyed in the bombardment of that city early in the war and that they would be used forthwith for the production of the low values stamps, from 1c to 40c inclusive, of the regular postage series.

Reference List.

Chapter XI.

Cancellations.

In 1891 the Belgian Administration was much concerned owing to the fact "that certain persons have endeavored to make use of cancelled postage stamps, after having removed the cancellation marks by means of chemicals." To obviate any second use of parcels post stamps a lengthy circular was published in November, 1891, instructing that the stamps be cancelled "carefully and fully, using a greasy ink." The parcel post stamps were not stuck directly on the packages but on a despatch note and when the packages were delivered this despatch note was retained. It would therefore seem that if the stamps were carefully obliterated in greasy ink and the tags retained by the government there was little chance of fraudulent re-use. But to make doubly sure employés were also instructed that before delivering a package to its intended recipient the despatch note should have a corner torn off "in such a manner as to tear away one corner of the stamp." Furthermore even the contingency that several stamps might be on the same despatch note was covered and in that event employés were told they must fold the despatch note in such a manner "that the fold may pass down the middle of each stamp, and a small portion should then be torn off." Some time later the practice of tearing the stamps was discontinued.

Nearly all the parcel post stamps are quite plentiful in used condition and this is accounted for by the fact that the despatch notes to which the stamps are affixed are retained by the government for a certain time after which they are sold as waste paper. The paper dealers who purchase this waste see to it that the stamps are all carefully cut from the despatch notes and these are sold by weight to dealers. Consequently most of the stamps used eventually find their way into the philatelic market.

Several sorts of cancellations are found on these stamps of which the most desirable are the ordinary circular cancellations used in the regular post-offices. Other sorts are described by Mr. de Bont as follows:—

"Then there are octagonal cancellations, which are really used for telegrams; on parcels such cancellations are applied in composite offices where postal, telegraphic and railway business is transacted.

Stamps cancelled at railway stations have also various obliterations. Up to 1900 a hexagonal stamp was used. Later on this obliteration was superseded by one which was rectangular in shape, and of a size approximately the same as that of the stamps.

During the past twelve months (this article was published in 1909) a new cancellation has been used at railway stations; it is also rectangular but is smaller in size, and the two lower corners are cut away. It was made by order of the Administration, in order to prevent the fraudulent use of cleaned stamps.

Different railway companies also use different obliterating stamps. The largest company, the Nord Belge, used a three lined stamp inscribed 'NORD BELGE,' the date, and the station where posted.

The Termonde-St. Nicholas Company, which has now been bought up by the Belgian State Railways, used a stamp consisting of the name of the station where posted only.

The remaining companies use a rectangular stamp, which is sometimes with and sometimes without a frame."

The End.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—I have official information from the Post Office Department stating that the tentative colors first selected for the three new aeroplane stamps are not the final colors, and that the new emissions which will be issued around August 20th will be in the following colors: The 8c will be printed in the green of the 25c current series; the 16c in the blue of the 14c Indian Head, while the 24c will be in the carmine of the 20c Golden Gate. It is expected that the night service of the aereoplane mail will start during the week of the 20th and the stamps will be issued at that time.

Through the courtesy of Messrs. Henry Hammelman and H. W. Porter we are in a position to advise that the new 1c and 4c coils, for which plates were made per our list of several weeks back, have been placed on sale. The 1c stamp is the design of Franklin similar to the regular flat plate variety, while the 4c is made from the same die as the flat plate with illustration of Martha Washington. The stamps are printed in the same colors and have been issued in sidewise rolls of five hundred stamps. These are perforated 10 vertically, imperforated horizontally and are printed on unwatermarked paper.

4c brown, Martha Washington.

In looking over a number of the 6c Columbians of the issue of 1893 I discovered a very distinct and sharp double transfer which occurs on the 62nd stamp of the lower pane from plate 104. Almost the entire upper portion of the stamp is double and this is one of the finest examples that we have of the double transfer variety.

A number of months back a find of an old correspondence was made in Kansas City and the lot contained quite a number of split varieties, that is stamps cut in half and used for half of their values. As a responsible party was present when the find was made which by the way was addressed to Leavenworth, Kans., it had all the earmarks of being an entirely legitimate virgin find. I however, have recently learned through the handling of a couple of these covers that they were evidently made and planted by someone in order that the fakes might be given a good name. I understand that one of the covers that was found and which was in one of the large collections sold some few months back, consisted of a half of the 12c black, issue of 1861 used as 6c. Other covers which turned out to be fakes consisted of a 2c black Jackson with vertical half cancelled in what looks to be "Orrion, Mo." on March 11th. There was also a single copy with left vertical half attached of the the 2c, 1869, cancelled "New York"—"Feb. 17—6 P. M."

There was also a piece of cover which came from another source which was probably traceable to this find containing the upper right diagonal half of the 2c black Jackson cancelled on a small piece of orange cover "New—York Aug. 21" within two concentric circles. The cancellations in all cases were in black.

Philippines.—Mr. John H. Vale sends for inspection a copy of the 12c orange with portrait of Lincoln, perf. 11 on unwatermarked paper. This value has recently been placed on sale, the perforated 10 stock having been exhausted.

BRAZIL.—We learn that a 200 reis stamp, printed—perhaps appropriately—in carmine, has been, or is about to be, issued to commemorate the centenary of the entry of the Brazilian army into Bahia (July 2nd, 1823), which subject will be depicted—cavalry, infantry, etc., passing under a triumphal arch—on the stamp.—Stamp Collecting.

BRITISH HONDURAS.—The Economist Stamp Co. inform us that the 2c and 4c postage due stamps on script watermarked paper have appeared. Both are in black.

CYPRUS.—Mr. R. Roberts advises of the 18pia same colors as before but with script watermarked.

DANZIG.—The Economist Stamp Co. advise of the appearance of a 200mk orange and 500mk grey and red of the new design. Both values have been overprinted "D M" in black.

GERMANY.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 50mk stamp of the Miner type in a blue green shade. Also a 300mk of the design with figures in the centre in a dark yellow green.

HOLLAND.—Our Amsterdam correspondent, Mr. K. Beelenkamp, informs us that, according to an official decree, the 1 cent (red) and 1½c values are about to be surcharged as 2c provisionals, and the 3c, 5c (red), 12½c, 17½c, 22½c as 10c provisionals. The post-offices have been instructed to sell these only in small quantities.—Stamp Collecting.

INDIA.—Mr. R. Roberts has shown us the 3a in blue.

LEEWARD ISLANDS.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the following new items of this colony; 6d lilac on white, 1sh emerald through, 2s6d on blue and 5sh on new yellow paper, all script watermarked.

MONACO.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the appearance of a new 50c stamp in blue. It is somewhat larger than usual and shows the front likeness of one of the nobility. Below is a view of one of the government buildings. The stamp is engraved and in sheets of 25.

L'Echo de la Timbrologie says:—"A correspondent writes us under date June 29, 1923: 'In the three post-offices of the principality there is only one 25c stamp with the portrait of Prince Louis. The Monagasques have a few of them, for which they want 1fr 50 each! Nevertheless, there is no doubt that this has been printed in great quantit a fresh stock is a foregone concl It is time an end were put to these speculations, and the postal would be well advised not to stamps on sale until there is a suf supply to meet all requirement Stamp Collecting.

CHINA'S AERIAL ADVENTURE

A correspondent in China who is informed on the subject writes us b to tell of the seemingly inglorious of China's attempted conquest of th for postal communication. He

"The Chinese Post Office inaugu an aerial service about two years ag issued a special set of stamps in co tion with same as every collector k but after one flight it was disconti owing to the objection of some s army official in Tientsin who feared the airplanes would prove to be a easy means of using bombs against

If, as stated by the N. C. Dly. N this service is not very successful lectors would be well advised to se a set of the Chinese airplane stamp fore they are again (this time doub permanently) withdrawn from sale.

The North China Daily News of 7, 1923, speaks of the "aerial breakd of China," as follows:

"The extravagant plans of the a nautical bureau in the Chinese Gov ment have practically vanished in air, the immense sums of money spe airplanes, spare parts and equip have been wasted and the bureau has become the plaything of the lord, Tsao Kun, according to Capt H. AUSTRIA, THE 1923 CHARITY SET.

By Otto C. Reymann.

When the Austrian Government announced two years ago its intention to issue each year a special series of postage stamps for the benefit of its welfare work, collectors all over the world were delighted with this news. They knew that Austria true to its tradition would produce stamps of beauty and artistic value that would be a welcome ornament to every collector's album. How well these hopes and wishes were realized, the first Charity set presenting seven of the most famous Austrian Musicians, issued in 1922, has shown us. This set was liked by all collectors fortunate enough to obtain it and now we have before us the second 1923 Charity set, surpassing easily in beauty of design, colours and execution all the stamps that have come out of so-called Neurope during the last few years. It was a happy thought to depict scenes of beauty and historical interest from the different provinces which constitute the Austria of today. Undoubtedly this new series was suggested by the popularity and great demand of the magnificent landscape set issued for Bosnia and Herzegowina in 1906 and reissued in 1910 with slight additions as the birthday set. As no doubt the new stamps will be in great demand by collectors all over the world, it is hoped that a few notes bearing on this issue with a short description of the scenes depicted will be of interest, the more so as some are of world-wide fame and others are probably shown to the public at large for the first time.

The issue consists of 9 values, 100, 120. 160, 180, 200, 240, 400, 600 and 1000 Krone with a face and franking value of 3000 Austrian crowns. This corresponds to the present rate of the postage required for a single weight letter destined for foreign lands including the registration fee. The price at which these stamps were sold by the post-office is six times their face value or 18,000 crowns per set. This equals at the present rate of exchange about 25c in U. S. currency. The difference of 15,000 crowns is the amount devoted to welfare work by the Austrian Government. It will be noted that the cost to the collector will be very small, therefore making it possible even for the man of modest means to call a set of these beautiful stamps his own.

The stamps were placed on sale on May 22nd, 1923, and the last day on which they were obtainable at the post-office was June 23rd, 1923. They had franking value only during this time and could be used for internal as well as external mail. It appears from press notices issued by the Government that this charity set was not on sale at all post-offices, but only at the main offices in each capital of the nine provinces represented on the stamps and at that a special room was designated in each post-office building, generally on the second floor away from the stamp windows where the public is used to making its purchases of ordinary stamps. The Postal Department let it be known through announcement in the daily press that mail franked with these Charity stamps should not be deposited in letter boxes on the streets, but preferably be delivered at the receiving windows in the post-offices themselves. This request was made in order to insure light postmarking, and careful handling during transit.

The special issue printed on Japanese paper and bound in suitable folders was withdrawn from sale when it was found that the orders accumulated in advance of the date of placing the issue on sale were so great in number that the available supply was greatly exceeded. It was decided to effect their distribution by drawing of numbers among all the applicants. According to official information only 3 special sets went to Upper Austria and 7 to Carinthia. The post-office price of each special set was 250,000 K ($3.60) and orders had to be booked from April 23rd to May 3rd. The stamps were designed by Dr. Rudolph Junk and engraved on steel by Professor Ferdinand Schirnbock, the same artists who produced the Musicians' set last year. The scenes depicted on the 9 stamps may be described as follows:

100 K. stamp, dark green, inscribed Bregenz. This city is the capital of the province of Vorarlberg, situated at the eastern end of the Bodensee or Lake Constance. The picture shows a general view of this very old town, the Brigantia of Strabon and Ptolemae. In the distance the lake is shown with a chain of snow-covered Alps located beyond it in Switzerland.

120 K. stamp, dark blue, bears the inscription Salzburg, the capital of the province of Salzburg. It shows the beautiful garden belonging to the Mirabell castle located in the City itself, the Juvavum of the Romans and the city which was Mozart's home, whose portrait we find on the 5K. value of the 1922 Charity set. The castle itself is visible with a fountain in the front. The mountain rising in the back is crowned by another castle, called Hohensalzburg, serving at present as quarters for the garrison. It was built during the ninth century.

160 K. stamp, dark violet, marked Eisenstadt. This is the chief city of the Burgenland, which formerly belonged to Hungary and only recently was awarded to Austria by decision of the Council of the League of Nations. This stamp is a striking example of how philately records present day events and preserves them for history. Eisenstadt was made famous as the city in which Haydn, whose features adorn the 2½ K. stamp of the musicians' set, lived many years while he was in the employ of Count Esterhazy as his music master. The stamp shows a pleasing view of the town's principal church.

180 K. stamp, violet brown, headed Klagenfurt, the capital of Karnten or Carinthia. The picture is that of the interior court of the state house. It shows the beautiful architecture of the 16th century, the time when the building was erected.

200 K. stamp, red brown marked Innsbruck. This well known town is the capital of Tirol or Tyrol. The one thing every visitor to this town hastens to see is the "goldne Dachl" (golden roof) shown on the stamp. The story connected with it is that Frederick "with the empty pockets" built this veranda on the house in 1425 and put a roof of copper, heavily gilded it over in order to prove that his nickname was not justified. The building was rejuvenated under Maximilian the First, in 1504.

340 K. stamp, chocolate brown, entitled Linz, the capital of Ober Oesterreich or Upper Austria and third largest city of the country. The stamp presents a view of its principal public square, the Franz Joseph's Platz. The center is adorned with a column consecrated to Trinity. It dates from 1723. In the background the Postlingberg is visible with its church which is praised by many pilgrims who visit it yearly in the hope of obtaining relief from their ailments.

400 K. stamp, sepia brown, bearing the inscription Graz, capital of Die Steiermark or Styria and second largest Austrian city. The principal square is shown here also with the Schlossberg (Castle Hill) in the background towering over the city. The hill carries fortifications which were erected during the 15th century as a protection against the Turks.

600 K. stamp, brown, marked Melk. This town is located in the province of Unter Oesterreich or Lower Austria, the capital of which formerly was Wien or Vienna. However during the rearrangement of the provinces which constitute the present Austria, Wien became a province of its own and Lower Austria thereby lost its capital. While for the other stamps scenes from the capital cities themselves were chosen, the "Stift Melk" was selected as the most characteristic beauty spot of the Danube valley. The picture shows us the famous Abbeys of the Benedictine monks, the makers and dispensers of the Benedictine cordial, overlooking the Danube which is discernible in the foreground. The foundations for the monastery were laid in 1089 and the buildings which resemble more a palace than an abode of monks were reconstructed during 1701-1738.

1000 K. stamp, black, entitled Wien, Vienna, the most important city of Austria and the seat of the federal government. The highest value of the set has been properly reserved for a view of this famous city from the upper Belvedere. The Belvedere is a vast castle built during 1693-1724 on one of the hills overlooking the town where Prince Eugene of Savoy lived. It consists of two buildings separated by a large garden, hence the upper and lower Belvedere. One of the statues flanking the broad terrace between the two castles is prominent in the foreground.

It is particularly noteworthy that the colours selected for these stamps are especially adapted to bring out the details of the designs in all their beauty. The highly ornamented frames are different for each stamp and of most pleasing patterns. The word Oesterreich is inscribed at the bottom of all values and the names of the two artists appear in the margin below. The stamps are square measuring 29 millimeters over the perforations the size of the pictures themselves being 25½ millimeters. They are perforated 12½ all around.

IMPORTERS SUE FOR RARE STAMPS.

A suit over a collection of rare stamps said to be worth $32,000 became known in the Supreme Court recently when Justice Ford signed an order in an action of A. Morris Dixon, Rowland E. Dixon and the importing firm of S. Dixon & Son of 115 Broadway, against Samuel H. Comstock.. The Court originally appointed Assemblyman George N. Jesse receiver of the collection on the consent of Harold A. Content, attorney for Comstock, but later vacated the order and directed that Comstock deliver the collection to his attorney to be deposited in a safe deposit box before Aug. 12, with permission to the plaintiffs to examine them and take an inventory of the collection.

Morris Dixon states that since July, 1920, he has met with a "continued series of evasions" from Comstock with regard to the stamps. He hasn't been able to find out where Comstock bought them, how he intends to dispose of them or what he has done with them, he said, and hasn't even been permitted to see them. Whenever he asked to see them Comstock always told him they were somewhere else. He intimated to Dixon that he was arranging a sale of the stamps for $32,000, which would be closed as soon as a title to all the stamps could be perfected. Later Dixon learned that the sale had been abandoned. During the past six months he asked Comstock about them in England repeatedly, he said, and the defendant told him the stamps were in America.

The Court also directs Comstock to disclose correspondence between him and a Mr. Eltes and Albert Prince, and also divulge the names of prospective purchasers of the collection.

An affidavit of A. Morris Dixon states that he met Comstock in England in the Summer of 1920 and that Comstock spoke of a collection "containing many rare stamps, local stamps and proofs practically unique" that could be bought for £6,000. Comstock is said to have told Dixon that he could resell the collection in sixty days at a "handsome profit," but that he was short of funds and couldn't buy the collection himself. Dixon states that Rowland E. Dixon agreed to put up the money and advanced £4,000 out of Morris Dixon's funds, for which he was to have a half interest in the collection.

Mr. Dixon alleges that Comstock finally wrote him on May 9 last, refusing to let him see them or to furnish any details concerning them. They were in St. Louis at last reports, he said. He says Comstock agreed in April to put them in a safe deposit vault and then told him they had been sent to London with the idea of disposing of them at the international exhibition there. — New York Times.

SAMOA

By EMIL KLEHN.

On the 6th August, 1914, Mr. Thos. Trood, the British Consul in Samoa, notified all British subjects in that colony that he had been informed by the Governor, Dr. Schultz, that Great Britain had declared war on Germany, and his Excellency had notified him that British subjects and British property would be protected so long as strict neutrality was preserved. On Saturday, the 29th, soon after daybreak, smoke was observed on the horizon, and it was at once reported that a steamer was in sight. One, two, three, four columns of smoke appeared in quick succession, followed by others, extending from the far north into the Bay of Fagaloa. The first idea was that the vessels were the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, Nuernberg, and Titania, a section of the German East-Asia fleet, who intended to give German Samoa a visit (since middle of July), but as soon as it was observed that there were more than four vessels visible, the knowledge came that either a British or Japanese squadron was approaching. Very soon the White Ensign was visible, and we knew that the squadron was British. The approach was certainly imposing. Undoubtedly such a naval display has never before been seen in the South Seas. One cruiser, steaming some miles ahead of the squadron, dropped anchor outside the entrance of the harbour. Then steam launches could be seen being lowered, and the harbour was dragged for suspected mines. A boat carrying a white flag approached the Bismarck Wharf, and two officers landed, carrying a scrap of table linen fastened to a broomstick. It is well known that no man-of-war carries a white flag, and the first white article procurable is commandeered for the purpose required. The bearers of the white flag brought a dispatch to the Governor of Samoa. After standing passively on the wharf for a few minutes they asked a civilian to go to the authorities and ask them to request the Governor or his representative to come and receive a message, in the form of a letter. Shortly afterwards two officials came to the wharf and took a letter to the Government buildings.

Some time elapsed, and the officers requested another civilian to go up to the Government building and ask for an answer to the communication, and to state that if he returned without a reply it must be taken that no answer was forthcoming. A letter was almost immediately brought by the two officials who had received the naval officers, and with that they went on board.

The nearest man-of-war was lying some distance away from the shore. A tense feeling pervaded the community as to what the next move would be. I understand, from hearsay only, that the answer returned by the German authorities was that they would not surrender Samoa, but that it must be taken.

Just after noon a landing party selected a suitable spot in Matautu, and arrangements were made for landing a volunteer force of the New Zealand army from the transports, the invasion being made with the full consent of the British Admiralty.

The force which landed expected opposition at every step, but before half an hour had passed the streets of Apia were controlled by the volunteers. Colonel Logan, the Commander-in-Chief, took charge of all Government buildings, and occupied them with his staff. The German officials were asked to meet Colonel Logan, and he then informed them that military occupation of these islands had been assumed for and in the name of his Imperial Britannic Majesty King George.

His Excellency Dr. Schultz came to town and surrendered himself later in the day. It has come to my knowledge that the reason of his delayed arrival was due to the fact that he met the chiefs of Samoa at Vaitele, and enjoined them to obey every order of the Government that was superseding him in the same way that they had obeyed his Government.

Dr. Schultz, 15 officials, and four private persons soon after left for New Zealand. All were deported as prisoners of war, and carried with them the good wishes of every right-minded settler in Samoa.

At 8.30 p. m. on Sunday, 30th August, a most impressive ceremony took place. It was the hoisting of the British ensign in Samoa. The "Samoan question," like the "Eastern question," appears to be "eternal." More changes of government, more diplomatic questions, and more diverse relations have arisen over these islands during the last three decades than over any other part of the same size in the world.

When taking possession of the islands all cash belonging to the Government, also the money and stamps found in the post-office, were confiscated. Since 1900 the stamps used in Samoa had the same design for all the values, namely, a ship. On September 3rd the stamps were overprinted with G.R.I. and the English value. The new postal authorities had no idea that by surcharging these stamps they created a philatelic event which very rarely occurs. The first issue of this provisional supply consisted of:—

3 pfg	16,000	½d

After a lapse of two days a third edition was issued:—

1 mark	15	1 shilling
2 marks	6	2 shillings
3 marks	18	3 shillings
5 marks	14	5 shillings

Total value, 151 marks.

A few stamps of the different values up to 80pfg also remained, but not being in complete sheets, they were destroyed.

Sixty sets of all values with exception of the 1sh (without "S") went to the Admiral on board of the flagship "Australia," who will divide them amongst the officers of the Australian fleet, but I do not believe that a set has been sent to the Postal Union in Berne.

These overprinted stamps of our beautiful island Samoa, called the pearl of the South Seas, will be one of the most sought after, and be classed among the rare stamps of the whole world, on account of the small quantity printed.

Having long been a collector of specialities, I noticed several deviations :–

(1.) First of all, the overprint is in all possible attitudes, caused by the antiquated printing machines used by our Samoan Printing Office, which is not adapted for fine work. Not having sufficient type of any description to print a whole sheet (consisting of 100 stamps) at once, each sheet had to be run through the machine ten times, as there was only enough type to print ten stamps at one time. The type was set up perpendicular, and not being properly inserted in the machine, the result is that each sheet shows, pretty near, ten different styles of imprints. The types do not show everywhere with the same clearness, and they are especially bad in the 1d and 3sh stamps.

(2.) On each sixth column of the sheet of ½d (brown) and 2½d (blue) there is no fraction bar in the ½d. This oversight was to have been remedied when printing the green ½d stamp, but no suitable hyphen could be found. To overcome the difficulty two small hyphens were used, which left a space in the centre.

(3.) The eighth row of the 52nd sheet of the chocolate brown 6d is overprinted twice. This sheet, after being through the printing machine seven times, was badly placed on the eighth time. The new Government having insisted that all the 60 sheets were to be delivered complete, the eighth column of this 52nd sheet had to be run through the machine again, and therefore shows a faint double print. There are altogether ten specimens of this double print.

(4.) The ninth row on each sheet of these 6d stamps shows a "9" inverted. The printing office not having sufficient "6" type, had to make use of a "9." This stamp is easily recognised by the upper loop being turned downwards to the left, and also by "d" being a little higher.

(5.) The 100 stamps overprinted "G. R.I. 1 Shillings," is, of course, a misprint, as it should have been "G.R.I. 1 Shilling."

The Administration found later on another 20, 1 mark stamps, and still later another 15 stamps of that value. These 35 stamps were printed without the "S."

(6.) One sheet of 1d stamps got destroyed in the printing. Before receiving instructions to print the whole lot the "Samoanische Zeitung" (the local printing office) had to print one sheet as a sample. Having used very small types, the printing was not clear, and not having been found satisfactory, this sheet was destroyed, and the printing as described above accepted.

(7.) When printing the second edition the postal authorities demanded right off four sheets each of ½d brown, ½d green and 2½d blue. Upon delivery it was found that there was on the tenth row a comma after "I" of the G.R.I. in place of a full stop. This mistake was detected at once by the Provost Marshal, and the balance of the stamps, consisting of 300, 300 and 1,300, had to be corrected with a full stop. The faulty stamps, however, were used right away, and distributed. Therefore there are of the above three values forty stamps each with a comma.

(8.) The 47th sheet of the blue 2½d shows a misprint. On the fifth row the overprint is inverted. From information gathered it seems that when this sheet was being printed the operator stopped after the fourth column was overprinted. When resuming work the sheet was inserted the wrong way in the printing machine.

(9.) On the 9th row of a sheet of 3d yellow the printing of the surcharge has been done twice. I was unable so far to find out how this happened.

As already stated, the new issue was handed over for distribution on September the 3rd. To make this small quantity last, stamps were sold only to those who really had letters and cards to send away by mail. There was no chance from the beginning to obtain quantities for speculation. A few days afterwards the mail left for Australia and New Zealand, and the military force occupying Samoa nearly used up the whole lot of the 1d, 3d, 4d, 5d, 9d, 1s, 2s, 3s and 5s stamps, so that even philatelists living in the vicinity of Apia were unable to get a set for their own collection. In consequence, there soon arose a sort of stamp exchange in Apia. The soldiers had mostly the call over collectors, and demanded prices out of all proportion to the value. The last hope to obtain stamps at face value were at the other post-offices in the different villages around Upolu and Savaii, but to the great regret of the collectors it was learned that none were obtainable, and that for the present the supply would be suspended. Therefore it was high time to get one's demand satisfied from those who had been lucky enough to obtain them. Collectors, and even non-collectors, were greatly excited. Stamps were the only topic of conversation. The error "Shillings" stamps were considered the pick of the issue, and for these prices were paid between £5 and £30.

As is usual when a rare issue has gone out, forgeries soon follow the originals. In Samoa this is out of the question, as the printing office of the "Samoanische Zeitung" is under Government control. (In other countries one has to be careful, as the bad and irregular printing is easily imitated. I know from my experience, being a collector for the last twenty years, how difficult it is very often to obtain a specimen needed to fill a blank, and which is found afterwards to be only an imitation.) The overprinted Samoan stamps should only be bought on their original cover, properly cancelled.

On September 29th the New Zealand stamps arrived here. These stamps are of the value of ½d and 1d (1901), and overprinted "SAMOA" across the centre in red for the first and black for the second value. Each sheet contains 240 stamps. The other values up to 1s will follow in a few days. At the same time the public was notified that the first overprinted stamps could be used for postage until countermanded. In my next I will refer to the stamps of the second edition (New Zealand).

Before closing this I find I have omitted to mention that the first ordinance issued by the new postal authorities, dated August 29th, was as follows:—"The German stamps in mark and pfennig value are from this day on out of issue." Letters with the remark "no stamps available," are accepted until the issue of intermediate stamps.

(Editor's Remarks:—Mr. T. B. Fulton, to whom we showed the above article, wrote us a day or two after as follows:—

"I was very much interested in reading your correspondent's letter with reference to the Samoa stamps overprinted G.R.I. and English currency values, and I may add that his figures regarding the quantity of stamps issued of the Mark values corroborate those supplied to me from a reliable source in Apia. I was not informed of the quantities issued of the pfennig values, but the explanation of so few copies of the 10 pfennig stamp being found is this. On the declaration of war the stamps and other Government valuables were sent to a neutral port for safety, only a small quantity of each value of stamps being retained for immediate use. Some weeks elapsed between then and the taking possession of Samoa by the British, and during the interim the 10 pfennig stamps were largely used up on correspondence, that value being the current letter rate to Germany from Samoa. As your correspondent says, the issue is exceedingly interesting, and I think will prove very hard to procure, particularly in a used state.")

ANNUAL CONVENTION A. P. S. HELD AT WASHINGTON, D. C., AUGUST 14-16.

Convention headquarters at The Shoreham Hotel, where the meetings and other events were held.

At the opening session reports of officers and committee chairmen were made.

ADDRESS OF THE PRESIDENT.

In complying with the By-Laws, it becomes my duty to address the Society in annual convention. Not being fluent of tongue or pen, I trust to be pardoned for the brevity. Philately has continued to advance in numbers and interest not only in our country, but throughout the world. Our society has felt the prosperity and publicity and is bound to grow during the coming and future years.

After long and extended waiting and disappointments, we finally received the good news last March, that Congress had passed a Bill permitting the illustrating of foreign stamps, as well as enlarged portions of the frame designs of our own. In years to come the value of this pioneer step in the direction of eventual complete illustrations of our stamps will be more fully realized and appreciated. For the present we must content ourselves with the privileges granted and await the changes, which time will bring to accomplish our fullest desires in this regard. On the passage of the legislation, letters of appreciation were sent officially to our Members in Congress, without whose assistance, nothing could have been accomplished. The Society still owes the debt of thanks and remuneration to the Executive Members of the Lookout Committee, who are untiring in their efforts and so willingly gave of their time, assistance and travel expense.

The Junior Philatelic Society's International Stamp Exhibition at London resulted in a great success and splendid publicity; many prizes and exhibits found their way to our members, and I am satisfied there would have been more, if more of our collectors had exhibited some of their treasures.

The Ferrari sales continue to receive attention in the daily press. Radio broadcasting of philatelic talks have been listened in on by thousands and so seeds are sown on fertile ground.

With growth even in the past year, it again becomes necessary to consider the increase of salaries of certain officers of the Society, and I believe it should be favorably acted upon at this convention. Changes in the By-Laws must also be considered.

Your attention is drawn to a matter which has been of a great source of annoyance and vexation to collectors and dealers for sometime past and recently more pronounced than ever, and that is the repairing of damaged stamps and also the counterfeiting of rarities, so much so, your President felt it his duty to take up the subject with the Board of Vice-Presidents and who, on April 18th last, unanimously prepared and submitted to the Tenth Philatelic Congress of Great Britain at its recent session during the International Stamp Exhibition, the following resolutions:

"Whereas the continued and increased growth of the evil of the counterfeiting of stamps, both postage and revenue, in the past few years has become, and is, a menace and injury to the cause of Philately, and that it has righteously aroused strong opposition thereto, among leading collectors, dealers and Philatelic Societies, both here and abroad; further

That this Board favors early action to overcome and stop this evil; and that this can only be done by organized Philately.

That after full consideration by this Board of the subject, we are of the opinion that all counterfeit as well as repaired and altered stamps should be branded as such, and that proper legislation and action be had by our National Society at its next Convention at Washington, D. C., towards accomplishing such purpose; and further, be it

Resolved, that we, at this time, suggest to the Tenth Philatelic Congress of Great Britain, about to convene, like and similar action, and the appointment of a Committee to co-operate with a like one to be appointed by this Society, with the idea and object of accomplishing and arriving at a proper and legal method of branding all counterfeit, repaired and

The work prices the varieties of the coils, of the imperfs., of imprints, etc., and is what might be called an elucidation of the Standard Catalogue's listings. Copious notes will be found explaining the different dies and so forth, and one of Scott's new folders with Illustrations of parts of U. S. stamps will be given, free, with the work. [tf

Signed, C. FREDERIC HEYERMAN, Pres.
W. W. MCLAREN,
OTTO F. MOSES,
JAMES A. HARRIS, JR., Board of Vice-Presidents.
H. A. DAVIS, Secretary."

One really begins to see stamps at our convention lately without going to a secret room; this should be so and I am looking forward to hearing more and more philatelic papers read and discussed, as part of our program.

Assuring it has been a pleasure to serve the Society in the office to which you honored me, and that I will do my best in the coming year,

Sincerely,
C. FREDERIC HEYERMAN.

Excerpts from Secretary's Report.

What is it that is worth more to us when broken? A record of achievement. Again we smash the record in recruiting. Records are made but to be broken and leads us on to still greater efforts to surpass each year's work.

We dropped for non-payment of dues this year only 162 members out of a larger membership than last year in which we dropped 232.

Our net gain in membership this year is 343, making our total to date 2,565 members in good standing with 86 applications pending.

The mark we have set is 5,000 members. An elaborate scheme for recruiting is being planned and worked out slowly but deliberately and surely. Watch our smoke, but work with us while you watch. We are going to ask each member to send us at least one application this year and we especially want it from those who have never proposed a new applicant.

The following is a summary of membership for the year:

Total Membership Aug. 1. 1922,		2308
New Stockholders admitted,	431
Reinstated,	28
Replaced on Roll,	27
		486
From which we must deduct		2794
Error in transfer,	2
Resignations,	32
Deceased,	20
Expelled by Board of Directors,	13
Dropped for non-payment dues,	162
		229
Total Membership Aug. 1, 1923,		2565

The Secretary has been notified of the death of the following members during the year: R. D. Craighead, Henry H. Mack, W. H. Barnes, Jho. Paul Jones, Chas. Roemer, F. J. Stanton, A. L. Tomes, Wm. Zumbro, C. F. Corbin, G. F. Schenck, H. L. Baer, E. H. Draper, Rev. H. W. Mercer, G. Fred Ralph, W. L. Hedenberg, Glen W. Perkins, B. F. Kendall, F. R. Cornwall, E. C. Dodd, Dr. A. Schirmer.

The usual letters were written to the Estate of the deceased members, but in no case has there been a request for Committee appointment.

An itemized account is given of receipts and disbursements for the year.

In closing, may I request all members in writing the officers to attach their A. P. S. number and street address to all communications. Complaints against members should be sent to the Recorder of the Board of Vice-Presidents and not to the Secretary. Changes of address should be sent to the Secretary and not to the Editor. You will obtain better service if the suggestions on the back cover of the Membership Directory are observed.

Officers were re-elected, as follows:—C. Frederic Heyerman, of Detroit, president; W. W. MacLaren, Otto F. Moses, and J. A. Harris, jr., all of Cleveland, vice-presidents; Dr. Holland A. Davis, of Denver, secretary; Howard H. Elliott, Winchendon, Mass., treasurer; Eugene Klein, Philadelphia, international secretary, and H. B. Phillips, Berkeley, Cal., and J. Brace Chittenden, New York, directors at large.

FEW CONVENTION JOTTINGS.

On the second day of the convention, the registration was well over 250.

Hawaii and Hayti were represented by delegates and Canada sent a member while the large attendance of ladies was gratifying.

Howard C. Beck gave his lecture on Early American Stamped Paper before an audience that filled the room.

The auction sale conducted by Mr. Mason was a success in all respects. There were many bidders and prices were good.

The visit to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing was made especially noteworthy by the kindness of the Director who allowed some of the delegates to see the original die used for the one cent and the three cent of 1851.

Wednesday afternoon the members went to Mount Vernon by car via Alexandria and returned by boat on the Potomac.

STAMP DISPLAY ON BOURSE.

Washington set up a bourse last night and for more than three hours trading was brisk, thousands of dollars being involved in the many exchanges and sales. The bourse was part of the program of the American Philatelic society, meeting in annual convention in the Shoreham, and the grill room of the hotel was transformed into a market for the activities of the hundreds of delegates.

More than $500,000 worth of stamps are understood to have been on display in the room. Dealers from all parts of the country displayed their wares, and the more choice varieties were quickly bought in by collectors.

Many collectors, operating on a smaller scale, exchanged stamps among themselves. One collector had with him in a small envelope a part of his collection which he valued at $50,000. Man the single stamps which were disp were valued at more than $100.

The society, at a business sessi the morning, took a step toward b ing up the habit of national orga tions holding conventions here goi the White House to "shake hands" the President. Howard C. Becl this city, told the delegates that thousands of visitors who had to b ceived by the late President Har did much to break down his health.

It was decided by the organiz that asking President Coolidge to re the delegates would be an impos upon his time. It was said the dele realized continuous receptions by executives, interfered with their wo

The delegates went to Mount Ve yesterday afternoon, and today journey to Annapolis, to visit the N Academy.—Post.

MATCH AND MEDICINE STAMPS.

By Christopher West.

P. T. IVES, 8c Blue.

(Coe's Matches.)

This factory was located in the town of Wallingford, Connecticut, which is in New Haven County, about ten miles northeasterly of the City of New Haven. Wallingford adjoins the Township of Cheshire and is only a few miles east of the towns of Prospect, Bethany and Woodbridge, where were located a number of match factories in the period just preceding, during and just after the Civil War. Probably there were more match factories per square mile in New Haven County, Connecticut, than in any other part of the United States.

Edition No. 1 of the New England Business Directory (1856), lists Phineas Ives as a match manufacturer at Wallingford, and various New England and Connecticut Business Directories mention Phineas T. Ives at Wallingford from 1865 up to 1879.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, Dec. 12, 1864.
First issued, Mar., 1865.
Last issued, Jan. 24, 1871.
60 stamps per sheet, (4x15).
860,400 issued on old paper.

"All of the 'Ives Match' stamps, including the 8c value, were used by the firm of Cowles & Leete of New Haven. Conn., in whose name the dies were registered and all correspondence conducted."

The firm of Cowles & Leete, apothecaries and druggists, was composed of Luman Cowles and Charles S. Leete, and from 1861 to 1871 their place of business was 175 and 177 State Street, New Haven. From 1872 to 1874 the business is listed under the name of Charles S. Leete at the same address.

The first Ives stamp is the only match stamp ever issued in the denomination of 8c and although the engraving measures 90x17mm (nearly 3¾x¾ inches) it is not believed to have been a "strip" stamp built long and narrow to encircle a box or package of matches, but was made long so it would effectively seal the end of a large box or package containing 800 matches. In this connection the reader is referred to correspondence between Butler & Carpenter and Joseph R. Lewis, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, on pages 123 and 124 of the Boston Book. From this correspondence it appears that the 8c Ives stamp is the only match stamp designed to conform to the standard shape and size for all match stamps which at that time the Commissioner of Internal Revenue was contemplating.

"The following, also from Mr. Lewis, is dated Oct. 29, 1864:

'The idea in reference to stamps for matches is to have the stamps similar in shape to those used for Fahnestock's Vermifuge or Hostetter's Bitters—perhaps a little longer than the former, but not necessarily so long as the latter—in order that they may be attached to the box in such a manner that it cannot be opened without destroying the stamp. If you will furnish a design according to your own taste or the wishes of manufacturers who desire a special plate, and send it to this office for approval any changes which I may desire to have made can then be suggested.'

Under date fo December 12, 1864, is the following:—

'I herewith return the model for match stamps with my approval. Be pleased to make the designs of Messrs. A. Beecher & Sons, Cowles & Leete, and any others which you may hereafter prepare, conform in their general features to this model, with such variations as to name, etc., as to render them sufficiently distinctive.'

[The Cowles & Leete stamp here referred to was the 8c die for Coe's Matches.—P. T. Ives.]

This action brought forth a storm of protest and, on Jan. 6, 1865, Mr. Lewis wrote Mr. Carpenter again as follows:—

'Your letters of the 28th ult. and the 3rd inst., together with the enclosed communication from Messrs. A. Beecher & Sons, were duly received, and have been considered. In view of the considerations urged not only by you but also by various manufacturers of matches, as to the expense and inconvenience of attaching the long private stamps to the boxes, I have decided to rescind the order requiring private stamps for matches to be made in that peculiar form; they may hereafter be made of sizes corresponding to the public Proprietary stamps, but the provision of Section 156 of the Excise law must be strictly conformed to, "that in all cases where such stamp is used, instead of his or their writing the date thereon, the said stamp shall be so affixed on the box, bottle or package, that in opening the same or using the contents thereof, the said stamp shall be effectually destroyed.'

The only result of all this was that the engraving of many stamps was delayed for periods varying from three months to as many weeks and, after all was over, things were exactly where they were in the beginning."

The design consists of a rectangle formed by fine line of color which encloses five disks or panels, placed on a background of heavy horizontal lines. This background has each of its four corners slightly hollowed. The central disk is an oval containing a full face portrait of Mr. Ives. The background of fine crossed lines, behind the head, surrounding the portrait, completely fills the oval. At either side of the central disk is an ornate oblong disk, or panel, enclosing a colorless oval surrounded by a row of pearls. The oval at the left is inscribed in three lines "U. S. Inter Rev.—Eight Cents—Coe's Matches" and the oval at the right reads "Manufactured—by P. T. Ives—Wallingford, Ct." The outside disks are identical. Each is composed of fine lathe work, the outer segments of which form a continuous chain of ten links and in the center of each disk is a colorless numeral "8."

This design is one of the early Butler & Carpenter productions and is one of the very few match stamps on which ornamental lathe work was used. Although it is about as tall from top to bottom as several of the strip stamps, it is considerably shorter from side to side, not being so long drawn out, and makes a more attractive appearance on the album page.

The writer has been unable to trace any person named Coe in connection with the Ives factory and until further information becomes available, the reference "Coe's Matches" engraved on the stamp will continue to be something of a mystery. The most likely supposition is that there was an earlier factory operated by someone named Coe from whom Ives obtained the secret or method of making his matches.

The 8c stamps were all printed in Philadelphia and probably there was only one plate. The total issue amounts to 14,300 sheets and represents a tax of about $33,500.00—that is, between $5,000.00 and $6,000.00 per year.

The stamp is usually found on thin paper in the somewhat dull blue common to Butler & Carpenter printings, but also exists in the lighter and brighter tint on thick paper, which was used about 1870 for the supposedly experimental or special printing. Stamps from the latter printing are indeed rare, and up to the time of writing only two copies have been noted. The 8c denomination is not known to exist in the ultramarine printing of 1869.

The reader may be curious to learn why it was that among all the different match manufacturers Ives was the only one to use an 8c stamp and particularly to use this denomination for over two years before any other denomination was issued to him. The writer regrets that he cannot definitely answer such a query, but suggests that the Ives matches may have been manufactured largely for export. This supposition, however, is difficult to reconcile with the revenue laws, because the writer's understanding of them is that there was no internal revenue tax on matches manufactured in the United States to export to a foreign country. The reader may recall, however, that packages of 400 matches were commonly used on the Pacific Coast, and it may be that the Ives matches were packed and stamped in double packages of 400, upon which an 8c tax was necessary and "exported" from New Haven by ship to the Pacific Coast.

The 4c general issue proprietary of the first series exists overprinted reading horizontally and another copy has been noted with a similar overprint dated Jan., 1865, reading vertically, and it seems probable that each of these stamps is half of a pair which were used by Mr. Ives before his 8c private die stamp was issued. In this connection it is rather curious to note that the Boston Book lists a similar overprint dated Oct., 1866, on the 3c foreign exchange documentary stamp of the first series and a student may be at a loss to understand why Ives would overprint any 3c stamps. However, in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY for June 16, 1906, the United States Revenue Department, edited by Charles A. Nast, mentions his discovery of the P. T. I. overprint dated Aug., 1865, on the 5c playing card stamp of the first series, and it seems most probable to the present writer that whereas it might be difficult to understand the use by Ives of either the 3c or the 5c stamp separately, it is not at all difficult to comprehend his use of one of each of them together to pay the 8c rate, and if the truth should ever become known the writer expects to find that occasionally when 4c stamps did not happen to be available Ives bought some 3c and 5c and used them in combination.

In spite of the comparatively large quantity issued and the considerable length of time it was in use, the 8c stamp has never been common, and to the writer this seems like additional evidence that the stamp was probably sent to the Pacific Coast where there was little chance that many copies would be saved. Quite a few of the known copies are in quite acceptable condition, but as it is difficult to trace more than thirty different copies this does not leave an abundant supply for collectors to cherish.

Sterling quoted $6.00 in 1888. The Scott quotations were

IVES MATCHES, 1c.

Regarding this stamp the Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, May 10, 1867.
First issued, June 10, 1867.
Last issued, Aug., 1875.
210 stamps per sheet, (14x15).
5,789,890 issued on silk paper.
4,256,910 issued on old paper.

The design is the usual 1c size and shape and in the center appears an oval containing a full-face portrait of Mr. Ives. This portrait is the same as the portrait on the 8c Ives stamp, but there is no background around the upper part of the head. The frame is practically identical with the frame of the "Franklin" match stamp, first issued two and a half years earlier, the most noticeable difference being in the curved panel over the center oval. On the Franklin Stamp this panel has a background of horizontal lines, while on the Ives stamp the letters forming "U. S. Internal Rev." are on a solid background. The frame of the Ives is also very similar to the frame of the Portland Match Co. adhesive and all of these designs were adapted from the 10c postage stamp of 1855-60.

Probably there was only one plate which was engraved by Butler & Carpenter and the stamps are all Philadelphia prints. The usual shade is a dull blue but the true ultramarine color used for a short time in 1869 also exists and is indeed rare. No copy on the thick paper of 1870 has yet been noted, but this unusual printing may also exist.

It is an open question whether the variety on old paper was used in multiple. Pairs are rare and only one has come to the writer's attention. It is horizontal and cancelled in manuscript, one stamp having a simple crossmark and the other reading "P. T. I.—July 28—1868" in three lines. The silk paper variety was certainly used in multiple and the writer has noted a horizontal strip of three with portion of the blue paper in which the matches were wrapped, still adhering to the stamps. Whether this strip was used as a 3c stamp or as part of a larger multiple stamp cannot be definitely stated. Neither of the stamps are particularly scarce, but it is often somewhat difficult to find really fine copies of the variety on old paper.

P. T. IVES, 1c.

This die is exactly the same as that of the 1c Ives Matches, excepting that the panel below the portrait has been lengthened and the name Ives has been altered to read "P. T. Ives" in slightly smaller characters. There is no available information as to why this change was made. Perhaps it was to avoid confusion between the matches made at Wallingford and those made at Rag Hollow, only six miles away. The old E. R. Tyler die was changed to read "Ives & Judd" in the fall of 1875. As neither the 1c Ives die nor the Ives & Judd die have any address, any merchant handling the product of either factory could sell them as "Ives Matches."

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, Dec. 31, 1875.
First issued, Jan., 1876.
Last issued, Jan. 20, 1881.
210 stamps per sheet, (14x15).
8,489,943 issued on silk, pink and watermarked paper.

All these stamps were probably printed from a single plate made by the National Bank Note Company of New York, and all of the stamps on the silk and pink paper were printed by that firm. Most of the watermarked stamps were probably printed by either the National Bank Note Company or the American Bank Note Company, or by both of them. But although the stamp was last issued about three months after the Bur took over the revenue stamp work, th is evidence of at least one printing the Bureau. It can hardly be doub that the rouletted stamps were made the Bureau and a few perforated co which apparently bear the Bureau p line have been noted. These stan differ noticeably in shade from co known to be National Bank Note pri The blue is duller and has a sli greenish appearance, whereas the N tional prints are a brighter, more brilli blue, several shades darker than Philadelphia prints on old paper.

None of the 1c P. T. Ives stamps particularly scarce perforated, but rouletted stamp is quite rare, only a f copies being known to exist. The stan on silk and watermarked paper occasionally found in strips of three, a it is possible that these were so us for 3c stamps. Proof, however, is lac ing.

Sterling priced the rouletted stamp $5.00 in 1888. The Scott quotations w

HARDING STAMP SALES OPEN IN MARION, SEPT. 2.

The final design of the Harding 2-cent postage stamp was selected yesterday by Postmaster General New. It will be printed in black, with the numerals 1865, the year of Mr. Harding's birth, in the upper left and 1923 in the upper right corner, and the name "Harding" beneath a profile likeness of the late President. The idea of issuing the stamp as a memorial to President Harding originated with Postmaster General New, close friend of the late President, and was heartily commended by President Coolidge.

Work on the stamp will be rushed by the bureau of engraving and printing. The first issue will be 300,000,000. It is planned to have the new stamp placed on sale in Marion, Ohio, September 2, one month after the death of President Harding.

The new stamp will supersede the regular 2-cent stamp for 60 days. These will be honored during that time, but none will be issued.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF HAYTI.

By Bertram W. H. Poole.

Chapter I.

Introduction.

The island of Hayti, or Haiti—literally "mountainous country"—is, after Cuba, the largest of the West Indian islands. It is sometimes known as Santo Domingo, and was at one time called Hispaniola, i.e. "little Spain." The island is situated nearly equidistant from Porto Rico, Cuba and Jamaica and, as in the rest of the Greater Antilles, its greatest length (about 400 miles) is in the direction—from west to east—of the chain of which it forms a part. Its greatest width is 160 miles, and its total area is 28,820 square miles, so that it is about half the size of the State of Illinois. For some time the island has been divided into the independent states of Hayti and the Dominican Republic. The Republic of Hayti, with whose postage stamps we are now concerned, occupies the western third of the island, and has an area of about 10,000 square miles, with a population estimated to exceed one and a half millions.

Hayti was discovered by Columbus in 1492, and within little more than one generation the aborigines had been swept away by the remorseless cruelties of the Spaniards. Their place was filled with negro slaves, who were introduced as early as 1505. Next, about 1630, came the buccaneers; and as they were chiefly French, the western portion of Hayti, which was their favorite haunt, was ceded to France in 1697 by the Peace of Ryswick. For nearly a hundred years vast reinforcements of Africans were imported; subsequently the mulattoes grew into an intermediate class, neither citizens nor bondsmen.

In 1791 the mutual antipathies of the three classes—white, black and mixed—burst forth into a struggle which, before the close of the century, led to the extermination of the Europeans and the independence of the colored insurgents.

In 1801 France sent out a powerful armament, treacherously seizing and deporting the deliverer of his brethren—Toussaint l'Ouyerture. In 1804 Dessalines, aping Napoleon's example, proclaimed himself Emperor of Hayti. Sometimes one state and sometimes two the country alternated between despotism and anarchy, and between monarchy and republicanism. Its only tranquil period of any duration coincided with the rule (1820-43) of President Boyer, at the close of which the Spanish or eastern portion of the island formed itself into the Dominican Republic.

The western portion of the island remained republican until 1849, when its former president, the negro General Soulouque, proclaimed himself emperor as Faustin I. In 1859 a republic was again proclaimed with the executive power in the hands of a president, usually chosen by the National Assembly, who was supposed to hold office for seven years. Few presidents have, however, been permitted to complete their terms of office, which have usually been cut short by revolutions. Official peculation, judicial murder, and corruption of every kind underlie the forms and titles of civilised government.

The country has a magnificent climate, is one of the most fertile spots in the world, and is full of mineral and natural wealth, but owing to the corruption of its government and the indolence of its people its resources are quite undeveloped. Indeed so jealous are the natives of outside interference that the land is a veritable terra incognita except as regards the coast towns and contiguous territory. All foreigners, no matter of what particular hue, are known as blancs in contradistinction to the black, which is the all-powerful color on the island. Mr. Hesketh Pritchard in his interesting book "Where Black Rules White" says:—"Jealousy of the foreigner is a very pronounced trait from the Government down to the wharfside loafer. His immigration is discouraged in every way. He may be said to have practically no rights; he can own no property in land, and if he gets a concession from the Government he is likely to find himself, sooner or later, left in the lurch. Yet it is not too much to say that the presence of the white element, small as it is, makes for good. Remove it, and the Republic would go sliding back into the depths of barbarism."

At the root of this antipathy to the foreigner seems to be the fear that, should the white man ever get the upper hand in the Republic, the blacks will all be made slaves. The people are said to be kindly, hospitable and good-natured, though incorrigibly lazy and ignorant, and their many bad qualities are undoubtedly due to the brutal system of misgovernment which so long obtained until Uncle Sam interfered.

The religion of the country is nominally Roman Catholicism, but this is little more than a thin veneer for vaudoux, or snakeworship, with its accompanying superstition, disgusting rites, child-sacrifice and cannabalism even now has a strong hold on a large portion of the population.

For over a hundred years the black has had ample opportunity of learning to rule himself. As Mr. Pritchard says:—"The negro has had his chance, a fair field and no favor. He has had the most fertile and beautiful of the Carribbees for his own; he has had the advantage of excellent French laws; he inherited a made country with Cape Haytien as its Paris—'Little Paris,' as it was called. Here was a wide land sown with prosperity, a land of wood, water, towns, and plantations, and in the midst of it the Black Man was turned loose to work out his own salvation."

And the result? Instead of progressing the negro republican has retrograded with each succeeding year, and but for the presence of the handful of white men in the coast towns he would long ago have sunk back into the very lowest type of African barbarism. Indeed, the attempt of the Haytian to rule himself would be laughable were its results not so deplorable and tragic both for himself and his country.

Eventually matters became so bad that the United States interfered in the cause of civilization and since 1915 Hayti has to all intents and purposes been a protectorate of the United States of America. To quote Mr. Everett A. Colson in the Weekly for October 9, 1920, :—"For many years prior to July, 1915, Haiti was a country afflicted with chronic revolution. Within a few months it had seen three chiefs of consecutive and successful revolutions 'elected' president in due constitutional form for terms of seven years. This condition culminated on July 27-28, 1915, in a massacre of more than one hundred defenceless political prisoners at Port au Prince, in the violation of the French Legation where the president had taken refuge from the wrath of the populace, and in his assassination and horrible mutilation, and promptly resulted in intervention by the United States. During the night of July 30, marines landed and seized the arsenal. Additional troops followed to occupy other portions of the city. The present president, Sudre Dartiguenave, a civilian and at the time of his election presiding officer of the Senate, was elected president of Haiti on August 12. Later in the month the American squadron, under Admiral Caperton, entered the principal ports of Haiti and took possession of the custom houses, and the occupation was an accomplished fact. Shortly thereafter a convention was negotiated and signed September 16, 1915, between Haiti and the United States, whereby among other things the president of Haiti appoints upon the nomination of the president of the United States a financial adviser, a general receiver of customs, and engineers in charge of public works and sanitation, and a constabulary officered by Americans is created. The convention is for a period of ten years and may be extended at the option of either party for a like period. A force of American marines is maintained in and about Port au Prince and at Cape Haitien. There is an American superintendent of schools and an American director of the postal service. Legislation is subject to the approval of the American government. Revolution is no longer lucrative and glorious, or safe, the marines attending to that phase of the matter."

Chapter II.

Philatelic History.

Although the philatelic history proper of Hayti does not commence until 1881, when its first stamps appeared, there are one or two earlier episodes which are worthy of mention. During the brief reign of General Soulouque who, as stated in our introductory notes, styled himself Faustin I, the innate vanity of the nigger was allowed to run riot. A black nobility was formed with dukes and barons galore—favored beings were allowed to choose their own designations with the result that among the bevy of Dukes were their Graces of Lemonade and Marmalade — in an attempt to imitate the French Court. One day Soulouque decided to issue postage stamps but, though essays were prepared and submitted to the Emperor, for some reason or other the scheme got no further. These curious essays are described in The Stamp Collector's Magazine for June, 1867, as follows:—

Closing—The convention is over and the delegates are departing with the feeling that the meeting was an unqualified success. The climax was the banquet at Carvel Hall, Annapolis, Md., where two hundred visitors spent an evening most enjoyably with the Baltimore members as hosts. At this dinner, Mr. H. A. Mount, Philatelic Stamp Agent of the Philatelic Bureau of the P. O. Department and Mr. M. L. Eidsness, Jr., Superintendent of Stamps, were present, and pledged their co-operation with the members and incidentally both of the gentlemen applied for membership in the A. P. S.

Briefs—Detroit is to have the next convention; the by-laws are to be revamped; the support of the Society was voted for the philatelic activities of the government; the endorsement of the international philatelic exhibition at Philadelphia in 1926 was given and several recommendations for the improvement of the internal workings of the society were adopted.

The fact that the issue of several of the new aeroplane stamps was hurried was a tribute to the society.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—A. A. Wasserscheid informs us that he has received specimens of new advertising cancellations as follows:—from Savannah, Ga., "Tri-State Exposition, Savannah, Ga., Oct. 27-Nov. 3rd" and from Raleigh, N. C., "North Carolina State Fair, Raleigh, Oct. 15-19, 1923."

—Herman E. Robertson sends us a specimen of the new advertising cancellation from Norfolk, Va., as follows:—"V. F. W. Encampment & 80th Division Reunion, Norfolk, Aug. 27-31."

—We are informed that the Weko Local Stamp Club of Chicago, which is a branch of the world's largest collector club will celebrate this month its first anniversary. This is a lively club and has showed a great progress in the first year of its existence. Stamp auctions are held at every meeting and there also can be found many other features of interest. Anyone interested in the club may communicate with the Secretary, G. C. Huebner, 1015 Oakdale Ave., Chicago.

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By Warner Bates,
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers who send in specimens for examination will enclose postage for the return of their stamps. —Ed.)

Here are some more laws and rulings regulating postal rates on low values issued before 1890. As was stated in a previous article on this subject, these are reviews of philatelic information that have frequently been printed and that is A B C stuff to the advanced specialist. But we are sure that they will be of interest to the newcomer and to the amateur specialist. Corrections of errors and additional information on the same subject will be welcomed.

At the time of the issue of the 1870-71 stamps the following rules were effective under treaties and conventions with foreign countries.

Rates to England, Sandwich Islands, British Columbia, 6 cents. The rate to Germany was made 7 cents on April 7, 1870, and six cents on March 31, 1871. Denmark, 7 cents. Italy, Belgium, Switzerland and Salvador, ten cents. British Honduras, New Zealand, twelve cents. Brazil, fifteen cents.

The five cent stamp of 1875 was prepared to meet the rate established for postage between countries belonging to the Postal Union.

In 1883 the letter rate for each half ounce was reduced to two cents. To meet this condition the two cent "claret" and the four cent stamps were issued.

In 1885 the postal rate for ordinary letters was reduced to two cents per ounce, which is still effective. Drop letters were made two cents an ounce, including delivery at letter carrier offices; or one cent where free delivery was not established.

I do not know how others feel about clipping their Weekly. Personally, I feel that the real value of this department will be in clipping it from week to week and keeping it in a scrap book under various classifications, so that as the information accumulates the specialist will have a work of handy reference giving odds and ends of information but gradually growing into a valuable and well classified whole. To this could be added other clippings from the Weekly and other magazines pertaining to the subject. Such a book, together with the various booklets published on specific phases of the subject would form an invaluable little reference library for the specialist.

Those who wish to keep complete and unmutilated files of the Weekly could well afford to subscribe to two copies of Mekeel's. The price is so low that two copies will break no one.

Earle A. Young, 363 Third Avenue, West Haven, Conn., writes that he is much interested in the two cent brown, No. 210. Regarding the shading under the shield which was mentioned by Major Bonesteel recently, he says he has two unused plate number strips of a very clear impression, one of which, Plate 460, shows no sign of shading and the other, Plate O 560, which shows the shading strongly. This might indicate that the shading under the shield was due to a recut. I recently saw a plate number block which now belongs to J. W. Andrews, but do not remember whether it showed the shading or CARTHAGE.

By CHARLES G. WILSON.

n several of the stamps of the nch Protectorate of Tunis, of the e of 1906, there is shown a portion a palace on the citadel of ancient thage and a view of a Carthaginian ey in the gulf of Tunis. The ruins Carthage are only three miles from is, the capital of the Gallic Protec- te, and these ruins together with a eum, are all that remains of the d and powerful republican city se navies swept the Inland Sea and se empire spread from all northern ica into Spain and Gaul and who bid to conquer Rome.

arthage, at the time of her greatest er, was the head of an empire of tary states. She was ruled by an rchy of rich and powerful men, who n followed their own interests at cost of those of their country. Sit- as she was just across from Sicily, hich island she held valuable posses- s, and being a great trading nation, hage came naturally into conflict Rome. In 264 B. C., there began Punic Wars, wars occasioned by d, fanned by private political ambi- s, and which did not come to an until 118 years later (146 B. C.) n Carthage was utterly demolished. e were periods of so-called peace n the combatants lay panting and ng their wounds until able once more ally to the fight. For years they ht upon the sea building and de- ing great navies until the Cartha- ns were beaten at the Aegatian Isles B. C.) and sued for peace. Then hage carried the war to the Euro- Continent, and using Spain as a Hannibal crossed the Alps and for ears he raided Italy from end to unconquered until he finally was aded in Calabria, the heel of Italy, ice he retreated to Carthage. The te of Zama bringing defeat again to e Carthaginians closed the second c War. The final struggle which 56 years later was carried on nd the walls of Carthage in the of a stubborn and relentless siege. oured by famine the Carthaginians l on until the Romans took the city ssault and there followed six days house-to-house fighting before the tael surrendered. POSTAGE STAMPS OF SOMALILAND.

BY BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

CHAPTER XI.

The Second Issue of Official Stamps.

The second issue of Somaliland official stamps consisted of the ½, 1, 2 and 8 annas, King Edward type, and the 1r Queen's head type of the ordinary postage stamps of India overprinted "SERVICE" at top, and "BRITISH SOMALILAND" in two lines at the bottom.

All five values were overprinted in entire sheets of 240 stamps at one operation, the same type being used for all. Like the first series the sheets are in two panes of 120 stamps each, placed one above the other and divided by a strip of margin. A width of 7½mm separates the word "SERVICE" from the rest of the overprint and the two types of "BRITISH SOMALILAND" may be found as in the case of the stamps for ordinary use.

In the upper panes all the stamps are type 1 with the exception of the ninth and tenth specimens in the third row (Nos. 45 and 46) which are type 2. In the lower pane the two types are distributed as follows:—

1	1	1	1	1	o	2	2	1	1	1	2
1	1	1	1	1	1	2	2	2	2	2	2
1	1	1	1	1	1	2	2	2	2	2	2
1	1	1	1	1	1	2	2	2	2	2	1
2	2	2	2	1	1	2	2	1	1	1	1
1	1	1	1	1	1	2	2	2	2	2	1

It will thus be seen that there are 180 stamps of type 1 and 60 of type 2 in each sheet—a proportion of exactly three to one. There are also in each sheet fourteen horizontal and twelve vertical pairs showing both types together.

The sixth stamp in the third row of the lower pane (marked with an "o" in the above diagram), is particularly interesting, for the word "BRITISH" is much more to the right than usual. In this stamp the upright stroke of the "B" is in line with the last vertical stroke of the "M" of "SOMALILAND" and the second vertical stroke of the "H" of "BRITISH" is in line with the upright stroke of the "D," so that it is neither of the regular types.

An important error, with the second "I" of "BRITISH" entirely omitted, is known in connection with all five values. It occurs on the twelfth stamp in the seventh row (No. 84) of the top pane.

Another important error, showing the "E" of "SERVICE' dropped, appears on the sixth stamp in the top row of the upper pane. In the case of the ½ and 1 anna values the letter is about 1mm below the level of the other letters; in the 2 annas it is not dropped so much; in the 8 annas it is very little below the level of the rest of the word; while in the case of the 1 rupee it is nearly normal. This would appear to show that the higher values were overprinted first and the "E" moved lower and lower as the work proceeded.

On the fourth stamp in the sixth row of the top pane the first "I" of "BRITISH" is like the figure "1," while on the same pane the eighth and twelfth stamps on the tenth row have thick "D" in "SOMALILAND." Both these varieties are common to all five denominations.

There are several broken letter varieties but the only one worthy of more than passing notice is found on the ninth stamp in the second row of the upper pane. This has the top of the "O" cut entirely away so that the second word appears to read "SUMALILAND."

A curious variety occurs on the seventh stamp in the top row of the lower pane in all values. This has the word "SERVICE" very widely spaced and in a distinctly different style of type from that shown on all the other 240 stamps composing a sheet.

The seventh stamp on the sixth row of the lower pane shows the variety "SOMAL.LAND" in the case of the ½ and 1 anna values, while on the corresponding 2 annas stamp the letter "I" is like a note of exclamation (!). On the 1 rupee denomination the fifth stamp on the sixth row of the lower pane is the variety "SOMAL.LAND," and the sixth stamp on the third row of the same pane in this value has a very wide space between the letters "RI" of "BR ITISH."

A minor variety of some slight interest is found on the fourth stamp in the fifth row of the lower pane of the four King Edward stamps. This has a bar about 1mm. long above the "S" of "SOMALILAND" and level with the top of the "B" of "BRITISH."

There are a number of minor varieties, such as short "I," small "L," "N" or "A" and slightly raised or dropped letters, as in the other printings, but none of them are of sufficient importance to warrant special mention.

It is very generally assumed that none of these stamps were ever placed in use in spite of the fact that used copies of the two lowest values are said to exist. In the Philatelic Record for January, 1906, we find the following statement:—

"An official letter from Berbera, in answer to an enquiry about the stamps offered for sale by the Crown Agents for the Colonies, states that the Queen's Head Indian stamps of 1 rupee overprinted "Service British Somaliland," and the King's Head Indian stamps of ½, 1, 2 and 8 annas with the same surcharge have never been put into use at all."

These stamps should, therefore, be correctly catalogued as varieties "prepared for use but not issued."

CHAPTER XII.

The Third Issue of Official Stamps.

Early in 1905 another set of official stamps made its appearance, the ½a, 1a, 2a, 8a and 1r values of the regular series issued in the previous year being overprinted "O.H.M.S." in one line in heavy sans-serif type. Scott lists this under the date 1904 but though "specimen" sets were seen in that year I believe none of the values were in use, or had even reached Berbera, until 1905.

"WE SPECIALIZE IN SERVICE"

The anna values of this type, as explained in a previous chapter, were printed in sheets of 120 stamps, arranged in two panes of sixty placed side by side. The overprint was apparently applied to a pane of sixty at a time, for certain stamps in the fifth vertical row of each pane have no period (or only a very faint one) after the letter "M".

The 1 rupee denomination, which was printed in sheets of sixty, was overprinted in entire sheets and in this value there are no errors.

The anna values have the Crown over CA watermark and the rupee stamp is watermarked Crown over "CC". A few sheets of the 2 annas with multiple watermark also received this "O.H.M.S." overprint and though this variety does not appear to have been discovered until the remainders were marketed in December, 1905, used copies are said to be known.

CHAPTER XIII.

Sale of the Official Stamp Remainders.

In December, 1905, a circular was issued from the office of the Crown Agents for the Colonies offering the remainders of the overprinted stamps and of the official stamps (the special use of which had been entirely discontinued) for sale. The circular stated:—

"The Crown Agents for the Colonies have been requested by the Government of the Somaliland Protectorate to dispose of the undermentioned Obsolete Postage Stamps, which comprise the whole stock remaining in the hands of the Government and of which no further supplies will be printed. All the Stamps are in sheets of 240 Stamps except where otherwise stated.

Specimens of the stamps can be seen at the Crown Agents' Office.

Offers, which must not be less than face value, must be sent in addressed as below, not later than the 31st January, 1906, on which date all offers received will be considered."

A list and description of the stamps was given, both as regards the entire sheets and part sheets, in the parcel, and

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—The Postal Bulletin for August 7th is bordered in black and reproduces the President's Proclamation calling for a day of mourning in reverence to the late President. The Postmaster-General also authorized the closing of all Post Offices for one hour on Friday, August 10th, but this order was later supplemented and in the case of some of the larger cities a holiday was declared from 11 o'clock on. All flags were ordered at half-staff until September 3rd and all Postal Conferences and Conventions were called off. It would be a fitting memorial for the Administration to issue a stamp with portrait of the late beloved Warren G. Harding.

Through the courtesy of a Shanghai correspondent I have recently had the opportunity of checking over two sheets of each denomination of the local overprint, and find that there are quite a few minor differences which will be of interest to the specialist of this stamp. I find that in the case of the 2c on 1c that there are both thick and thin figure 2 and that the "G" in "Shanghai" varies materially. The "s" in "Cts" is also in two or three fonts if we may designate as a font, a surcharge not printed from type but one that is lithographed or produced in some similar manner. They are all from the same stone, for the varieties which I will mention are constant in both sheets, of the same denomination. The word "Shanghai" shows numerous variations in the letters, whereas "China" is more nearly constant. All of the 2c on 1c seem to come from the upper left pane and the two sheets that I have inspected are Nos. 10592 and 11729.

In the case of this denomination, the first stamp has the bottom of the right leg of the "A" in Shanghai vertical instead of diagonal. The "G" is lower than the other letters. No. 4 has a flat top "G," No. 7 the "t" in "Cts" is without tail, and there is a large rectangular period thereafter. No. 9, bottom of the "2" is broken. No. 13, the bottom of "C" in "Cts" is broken. No. 36, the top of "s" in "Cts" is slanting downward. No. 41 is similar. No. 44 has the letter "G" running down to a sharp point or rather line at the right. There is no tail to the "t" in "Cts" on No. 45. In No. 42 the left leg of "H" in "China" is taller than the rest of the word. Nos. 69 and 70 have malformed "s" in "Cts." No. 77 the "N" is broken at top. In No. 91 the "C" in "China" is badly formed at the bottom and gives the impression of a different font of type. There is a large black dot in the northeast of the 2 on 96.

All of the 2c on 4c type II surface print surcharged seem to have come from the upper right pane and most of them if not all are from sheet 13129. The most important variety on the whole pane is stamp No. 73, wherein the "I" of "China" seems to be a figure "1." Stamp No. 2 has a round circle as an opening to the upper part of the letter "A" in "Shanghai." No. 4 has the "Ct" joined. No. 5 has a badly broken "4" while the right top to the first "H" on No. 13 is broken. No. 33 has an open "C" in "Cts" while the bottom of the "s" on 4 9 is broken. There is a small "I" in "Shanghai" on No. 51, while the "A" in "China" on 57 is broken. There is a wrong font "G"on No. 70, whereas No. 73 has the odd error previously mentioned. 87 has a broken 4, while we find a square period after "Cts" on No. 100.

BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE. — Mr. R. Roberts reports the 2s6d printed by Bradbury Wilkinson & Co.

BELGIUM.—Mr. Henry Hooreman and the Economist Stamp Co. have shown us copies of the 40c parcel post stamp. The shade is olive brown.

CAYMAN ISLANDS. — Mr. R. Roberts has submitted for chronicle the 3d purple on yellow and the 4½d sage green on white, both on script watermarked paper.

ITALY. — The Economist Stamp Co. advise that the pneumatic post stamps have a new value to the series. This time it is the 30c blue that has been issued.

NICARAGUA.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 10c of the 1921 issue with the overprint "R. de C. Vale un centavo de Cordoba." in four lines in black.

PANAMA.—Mr. Emil J. Rall has shown us the 2½c of the 1915 series with the overprint "2 centesimos 2" at the base and in the left centre "1923." The surcharges are in black. Mr. Rall also adds that he has it on reliable authority that this country will in the near future place on sale an entirely new set of stamps.

POLAND.—Mr. George Allan Mallory writes as follows: "I wish to inform you of the appearance of a new 1000mk stamp of a new design. On the top supported by two columns is an oblong table with "Poczta Polska." In the centre is a frame holding the portrait of Kopernik. The shield is inside of a wreath. On the bottom right and left are the values and between is a shield with Polish eagle, which breaks into the frame. The color is blue.

PORTUGUESE INDIA. — The Economist Stamp Co. advise of the appearance of a 3t 4rs in the 1913 type. The color is brown.

SPAIN.—The Economist Stamp Co. report the 25c red lilac, and the 40c blue of the new design have been placed on sale.

SARAWAK. — Our esteemed Singapore correspondent, Dr. Tan Bin Chiang, writes as follows with regard to the provisionals chronicled some months ago:—

1. 1c on 10c—issued in sheets sixty—printed at the Government Prin ing Office, Kuching. One error "CNET in each sheet.

2. 2c on 12c — issued in sheets sixty—printed at the Government Prin ing Office, Kuching. No error. I ha examined a full sheet, and found the following:—

1. Short "T" in "TWO," thin ser at top and bottom (examine the mi pair enclosed, second stamp).

2. Upper or lower bar of surcharg broken.

3. The spacings between "CENT and the upper bar are as follows:—

First, second, ninth and tenth rows—7mm.

Third, fourth, fifth, seventh and eight rows —7½mm.

Sixth row —8mm.

Dr. Chiang points out that the 2c sur charge is on the 12 cents lilac, and n on the 12c blue, as stated in our Chronic for May 26th.—Stamp Collecting.

TIMOR. — The Economist Stamp C have submitted the following new value in the type of the 1914 issue; 1½a yellow green, 7a green, 7½a blue, 9a blu 11a grey, 15a light violet, 18a dark blu and 19a dark green.

CHICAGO GETS IT GOOD.

Mr. Lueder, the Postmaster, impor tunes his clientèle to let him know o any act of attention or courtesy en countered in his part of the Feder Building; so, being of his clientèle, w forthwith do so. We strolled throug at 1.48 a. m. recently, and asked policeman in the rotunda where w might buy stamps. "Over there," h replied, courteously, pointing; and hi point too, was courteous: "over ther in the Great Northern Hotel, or som place like that. You can't get any here.

And we went to the hotel, and go them, and returned to the Post office t drop the letter, which seemed to be permissible, although it was by then 2.0 a. m. And, as we went to-and-fro, w glowed heartily with admiration of th progress made since the simple, inefficient morning when, at 1.48, we brough stamps in the post-office of Johnstow (near Gloversville, N. Y.). And tha was a bare fifteen years ago!

We were able, in a crude day, to bu stamps all night through in Philadelphia We recall a patient, kaiser-ridden gentleman selling brief-marken to us at 1.4 a. m. in Dusseldorf (or Trop Moutard as it is named on the new Poincar maps). We sneer pityingly at the backwardness of Italy, too; for once, at 1.4 a. m., we bought a francobollo in Cremona. Doubtless, Mussolini, a true progressive, will stop that medieval nonsense just as he has stopped the newspaper from being fresh.

But we're rambling! We just wish for Mr. Lueder to know that we read the signs about reporting courtesy, etcetera; for we helped hold his job for him last Spring; not that we voted for Mr. Dever, but that we didn't vote for Mr. Lueder, thereby cutting down the chances of his having to stop being Postmaster. And we think he ought to know how courteous the policeman was in telling us where we might buy stamps at 1.48 a. m. recently. . . . A useful hint to readers of "The Line," too: the Great Northern Hotel, or some place like that.—Chicago Tribune.

STAGE STAMPS OF HAYTI.

f these essays young Mr. F——has one perfect sheet, comprising seven ps (three in the top and four in bottom row), values 6, 10, 12, 15, 50 centimes and 1 franc, which are ted respectively in violet, green, ver-n, blue, orange, grey and pink, while he two remaining sheets, or rather ions of sheets, the stamps are all ed in black. There is but one de- for the whole set of stamps and escription is as follows:—rectangu- the arms of the empire of Hayti (a d bearing the imperial eagle and e of liberty; supporters, two lions) circle; and surrounded by a band ng the words 'FAUSTIN I, EM-EUR;' at the top of each stamp is inscription 'EMPIRE D'HAITI,' the date '1850' in the corners, while e bottom will be found 'TIMBRE-TE,' and the value in both corners. stamps are tolerably well executed, were prepared in Port au Prince, sheet having printed at the top REAU DES POSTES DE L'EM-E D'HAITI PAR L'ORDRE DE PEREUR,' and at the bottom T-AU-PRINCE, JUIN, 1850'."

thing more was heard on the sub-of postage stamps for Hayti until 1868, when an attempt was made me bright spirit or other to foist gus label on collectors as being a imate postal issue of the republic. he outset this was received with doubt, as the following paragraph The Stamp Collector's Magazine ctober, 1868, shows:—

e design verges on the absurd—a tree, crowned with the Phrygian t and flanked by flags and cannon. annon alone may be taken to sym- the state of the republic, and the of the republic is a convincing argu-against the character of the stamps. e moment when that portion of the termed Haiti is in a state of revolu-it is, to say the least, hardly likely me could be found by either party ttention to the issue of stamps. stating that the design is printed llow on white paper, and that it off by perforations, we may dis-this claimant for a place in our s."

some years there was much dis-n as to the status of these labels, ven such a philatelic giant as the Ir. Edward L. Pemberton was of inion that "they might turn out genuine." However, about 1872, ns to have been generally agreed he labels were bogus. Curiously , nothwithstanding the caustic al remarks quoted above as to the dity" of the design, this device of ree, cap of liberty, and cannon was y adopted for stamps subsequently in Hayti.

XVII. Presidency Series, 1917-18.

As several printings were made of all of the lower values of the Presidency series, the ½d to 1s exist in a variety of shades. In 1917 the 1d was printed in scarlet instead of the usual carmine, and in May of the following year, the 5s was issued for the first time on multiple Crown CA paper. The 2s and 2s6d were never printed on this paper.

The 2d exhausted in 1919, and following the issue of the new series in 1920, the remainders in the 1903 types were withdrawn and destroyed.

XVIII. Presidency Series, King's Head and Arms Type, 1920.

During the summer of 1919 a complete new series of stamps was decided upon for the Presidency of St. Kitts-Nevis; as a matter of fact, a report current at the time had it that two series were contemplated, one for St. Kitts, and another for Nevis. Later events proved this to be without foundation, and in the Crown Agents' bulletin of December, 1920, the unified series of stamps was announced as being in preparation.

"A complete new issue is in hand. The design consists of two medallions, one containing the portrait of H. M. the King, and the other, the Arms of St. Kitts, and of Nevis, which will appear alternately on the following duties: ½d Columbus, 1d Bath Springs, 1½d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s, 2s6d, 5s and 10s. The stamps will be printed in two colours, and follow the Universal color scheme."

The stamps were released to stamp dealers in London by the Crown Agents on May 15, 1920, and advertised in English stamp papers of the following week, but they were not issued at Basseterre, St. Kitts, until June 15th. In Nevis, they were received during the closing days of June, and placed on sale July 1st.

The formal Order-in-Council is dated June 7, 1920:

"Order-in-Council.

Whereas it is enacted by section 13 of the Leeward Islands General Stamp Act, 1890, as amended by the Leeward Islands Stamp Act, 1902, that 'there shall be a uniform stamp or stamps for use throughout the Colony whereby all postage rates and stamp duties may be respectively denoted or expressed, and such stamps shall be adhesive or embossed or impressed or otherwise as the Governor shall by Order-in-Council from time to time direct,—provided that the Governor may from time to time by Order-in-Council direct that a special stamp or stamps may be used in each or any Presidency concurrently with such uniform stamp or stamps as aforesaid';

And whereas it is further enacted by section 4 of the Leeward Islands General Stamp Act, 1890, that the Governor shall from time to time by Order-in-Council fix the design or designs and the mode in which each design shall be used and the several values of the stamp or stamps to be used in accordance with the said Act;

And whereas it is desirable that there should be a special stamp of the designs and denominations set out herein for use in the Presidency of Saint Christopher and Nevis concurrently with the stamps of the Colony;

Now, therefore the Governor in Council doth hereby order and direct as follows:—

On and after the 15th day of June, 1920, special stamps may be used in the Presidency of Saint Christopher and Nevis concurrently with the uniform stamps now in use throughout the Colony of the Leeward Islands.

The several values of the said special stamps shall be ½d, 1d, 1½d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s, 2s6d, 5s and 10s.

The post cards shall be, single ½d, 1d, reply 2d. The wrappers shall be ½d, 1d. The envelopes shall be 1d, 2½d, and the registration envelopes shall be large 3d, small 2½d.

The design of the said special stamp for the Presidency of Saint Christopher and Nevis shall be in two medallions, one containing the head of His Majesty the King, the other containing designs taken from the Arms on the Public Seal of the said Presidency in alternate values, that is to say:

For the ½d, 1½d, 2½d, 6d, 2s and 5s values, the design emblematic of Columbus sighting land.

For the 1d, 2d, 3d, 1s, 2s6d and 10s values, the design emblematic of the Sulphur Baths at Nevis.

The post cards, wrappers and envelopes shall bear designs similar to those of the corresponding values of the postage stamps.

Made by the Governor in Council the 7th day of June, 1920.

E. D 'A. Tibbits,
Clerk of the Council."

The series comprises 12 values, the 1½d and 10s being additions to those in the 1903 series. The stamps are of large size, a horizontal rectangle, 30x25mm., and typographically printed in sheets of 60 stamps (5 horizontal by 12 vertical), on paper watermarked multiple Crown CA sideways, to the right. The perforation is comb 14, and contrary to usual practice there is no plate number for either the frame or vignette plates. A double marginal line (broken at the line of perforation for the frame plate, and irregularly for the vignette plates) surrounds the pane of 60 subjects, the inner line being in the color of the frame, and the outer in that of the vignette. The colors are in accordance with the Crown Agents' color scheme.

The King's head and Arms type is an adaptation of the design used by Barbados for the 3d, 4d and 6d stamps of the series issued August 13, 1912, though much of its effectiveness has been lost in later designs, by crowding the seal portion into a small circle or shield. Stamps of conventional size, 18½x22½mm., in this design have been issued by British Guiana (1913), and Montserrat (1916), and the same general design was used for St. Kitts-Nevis, in the receipt size (30x25mm.), so that the dies made up for the 1903 series, of the seals of St. Kitts, and of Nevis, might be used.

There are separate frame or duty plates for each value, and two vignette plates. The frame design, which is the same for all values, has a double arched opening, for the reception of the vignette impression. The Imperial Crown occupies a central position at the top, with ribbons on either side lettered "Postage" and "Revenue," and in the upper corners is conventional foliate ornamentation. On colorless squares in the lower corners, the value is expressed in colored figures and letters, and on a straight label between the value tablets, is "ST. KITTS-NEVIS," in colorless caps.

The design of the vignette is in two medallions, that at the left containing the head of King George V, within a pearled oval, and that at the right, the seal of St. Kitts, or of Nevis, on alternate values.

Considerable economy was practiced in the production of the vignette plates. Not only was use made of the dies of the seals made up for the 1903 series, but the King's head is from the die of the Nyasaland keyplate design. The effect is not wholly pleasing, due to the necessity of adding "corner pieces" to the ovals containing the King's head and the seal of St. Kitts, to make them conform to the irregularly shaped opening required for the seal of Nevis (straight sides, curved at top and bottom). "They are awfully ugly, and so large" was one local comment.

Of the 1½d large numbers were required, representing as it did the Empire letter rate, as well as the rate to the United States, and three further lots were sent out in 1921. The terms of the Order-in-Council of February 12, 1917, remained in effect, although the printing of War Tax stamps ceased shortly after the signing of the Armistice on November 11, 1918.

June 15, 1920. Presidency series, double medallion type, King George V and seal of St. Kitts (½d, 1½d, 2½d, 6d, 2s, 5s), or of Nevis (1d, 2d, 3d, 1s, 2s6d, 10s). Watermarked multiple Crown CA. Perf. Comb 14. Chalk surfaced paper for 3d and above.

Don't build up the catalog value of a packet with such trash as punched Philippines stamps or Ecuador revenues. A satisfied customer is better than a single sale.

The face value of the remainders of the ordinary stamps was thus about £11,000 and of the official stamps about £1,000. As it was expressly stipulatd that no offer of less than face value would be considered it is obvious there was small likelihood of any individual or group of speculators taking up the whole of the ordinary stamps even at face value. It was further stated that no offers for a less sum than £50 would be entertained but even with this comparatively small minimum none of the ordinary stamps found a purchaser, I believe, and eventually they were all destroyed.

With the official stamps it was another story for the total quantities were not large and as a whole they represented a good speculative purchase. How many bids were made has never transpired but the late Mr. H. L. Ewen purchased the bulk of them for the sum of £2,179. A few smaller sales were made (presumably at higher bids), but Mr. Ewen managed to trace these and purchased them for £550 so that he could control the entire lot. The total cost of the lot, therefore, was £2,729 or just about 2¾ times face value. Mr. Ewen proved himself an excellent salesman and practically all the 1 rupee "O.H.M.S." stamps were sold within a few days of the purchase of the lot and altogether he did remarkably well with his purchase.

BELGIUM STAMPS OF THE GERMAN OCCUPATION (1914-18).

By DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG.

The stamps of the German Governor-Generalship of Belgium were the first of the occupation issues of the Central Powers. Broadly speaking, they are the commonest of all ex-enemy War stamps, although some of the minor varieties of overprint are highly priced in the Continental catalogues. A notable exception to this rule is the so-called "Charleroi" error, which is numbered amongst the philatelic rarities of the Great War. From the historical viewpoint, however, these stamps are, perhaps, the most momentous that have ever been issued. They stand for all time as dumb witnesses to Germany's broken pledge, through which the whole world was plunged in misery and loss. If only for this reason, they should unquestionably find a place in every present-day stamp collection as a perpetual reminder of the years of agony and remorse that followed upon their advent.

The overwhelming German Army, pursuing its relentless course through the fair land of Belgium, reached Brussels, according to schedule, on August 20, 1914, and immediately assumed control of the civil administration. For a period of ten days the Belgian Post Office continued to operate a greatly restricted service, but on September 29, 1914, the following decree was published:—

"The German Administration proposes to re-establish the interrupted service of posts and telegraphs, and later on that of telephones.

1. Posts. On and after October 1st, letters, post-cards, printed matter, circulars and commercial papers, will be accepted for transmission within the Brussels area, as well as from Brussels to addresses in Germany and vice-versa. In due course the service will be restored between other Belgian towns. Correspondence should be registered, otherwise the Postal Administration cannot for the present assume responsibility in case of loss. Letters for Germany should be handed in at the post-office unsealed.

The sender must indicate on the back of the envelope, his name and address, according to the latest order. All correspondence must be delivered exclusively to the Central Post Office or in the letter boxes fixed in the other Brussels post-offices. No other boxes set up in the town will be cleared. Registered letters will only be received at the Central Post Office.

The German Administration having no Belgium stamps, German stamps have been requisitioned with a surcharge indicating the Belgian value. Only stamps sold at the windows of the Central Post Office will be available for franking correspondence. The tariff will be the same that is now in force, except as regards printed matter. The rates for printed matter are displayed at the Central Post Office. The Belgian employees refusing to work under German direction, house to house delivery will not be made. All correspondence therefore, as from October 1st, will be held at the Central Post Office against the production of proper authority for its delivery."

The stamps referred to consisted of the 3, 5, 10, and 20pfg of the contemporary German series, with head of "Germania," overprinted at the Imperial Printing Works, Berlin, with the word "Belgien" and values in centimes in two lines of black Gothic type. To these were added, in the following March, surcharges of 50 and 75 centimes, 1, 1.25, and 2.50 francs, in the same type.

SUMMARY.

1914-15. "Belgien" and new value in local currency, surcharged in two lines of black Gothic type, at Imperial Printing Works, Berlin. Wmk. Lozenges.

3 centimes on	3pfg brn., deep brn.,	(1/10/14)
5 "	on 5pfg green,	(1/10/14)
10 "	on 10pfg rose,	(1/10/14)
25 "	on 20pfg ultramarine,	(1/10/14)
50 "	on 40pfg carm. and black,	(3/15)
75 "	on 60pfg lilac and black,	(3/15)
1 fr.	80pfg carm. and black,	(3/15)
1.25 fr.	on 1mk. red,	(3/15)
2.50 fr.	on 2mk. steel blue, greenish blue,	(3/15)

The indication of the Belgian value as expressed on these stamps was modified in April, 1916, in accordance with a notice published in No. 67 of the Amtsblattaf, which read:—

"Modification of the Surcharge in use in Belgium.

Shall be modified as follows:—

"Instead of 'centimes and c' it shall be 'cent', and instead of 'franc and fr.', it shall be 'f.' The present denominations remain valid for postage, etc."

Additional values of 8, 15 and 40 centimes were introduced on July 28, 1916, to meet new rates of postage put in force on June 1st of that year. The denomination 6fr 25 cent., added on February 9, 1917, was only sold at a few of the principal post-offices. Stamps of 2c and 20c were brought into use on October 1st of the same year in consequence of further increases in the postal tariff. The 75 centimes, although printed in 1916, was not placed on sale until October 31, 1918.

The 5 centimes of both this and the preceding issue is known bisected and used to frank post-cards at Verviers on October 1, 1918.

A single sheet of twenty 1 mark German stamps received in error the surcharge 2.50fr normally found upon the 2 marks denomination. Six used copies of this rarity were discovered, early in 1921, affixed to some odd parcels post consignment forms in the basement of the post-office at Charleroi (Belgium). This stamp is thus the rarest of all the War stamps issued by the German Government.

SUMMARY.

There are a number of type and other varieties of the setting of interest to specialists, but no good object would be served by describing them in detail here.

On December 1, 1916, another overprint was created in conformance with the following decree:—

"Brussels, 28 November, 1916.

New postal values will be issued as from December 1st, for the military area in Belgium. They will be distinguished from those used in the service of the Governor General by the suppression of the word "Belgian."

This series, comprising the denominations 3, 5, 10, 15, 25, 40, 50, 75 cents, 1, 1.25 and 2.50fr, surcharged on German stamps as before, was also current in that part of Northern France under German military control.

One week after the conclusion of the Armistice of November 11, 1918, the German administration of the postal service in Belgium was finally terminated, the remainders of the overprinted stamps being returned to Berlin for incineration.—West-End Philatelist.

THE PRECANCEL DEPARTMENT

Edited by Frederick W. Allen, 521 So. 4 St., Grand Forks, N. D.

New Issue Notes—The seven cent McKinley, precanceled New York City, has just come to hand. The overprints will appear much better on this stamp than on the old, but somehow it does not appear to be more attractive.

As the government intends to do the precanceling on some values for most of the larger cities, it will be well to save the present emissions precanceled. Numerous types are coming on the coil stamps. Rochester, N. Y., has already used five distinct types. Some are bound to be very good and it will be profitable for collectors to keep their eyes open for all the precanceled coils coming their way.

The 14 cent makes a fine showing. Whether or not this will be a hard to get precancel cannot yet be determined. I am under the impression that it will be, although it will no doubt be quite plentiful in regularly used condition. So far I have seen Baltimore, Elmhurst, N. Y., Waukesha, Wisc., and Boston, Mass. The 6 cent Newark, N. J., listed by me some time ago, was an error. There have been no precanceled stamps of this value issued up to this date. Also three cent Fremont, Nebr., and Hickory, N. C., were listed by mistake, as none of the three cent Lincoln have been used there. Many interesting items are coming to hand, such as a couple of new two cent items from Grenlosh and Overlosh, N. J. Some others are ten cent Angola, Ind., ten cent Windom, Minn., four cent Monmouth, Ill., ten cent Concordia, Kans., two cent Wintersett, Iowa, ten cent Greenwich, Ohio, ten cent Keating, Ore., two cent Tyndall, S. Dak., ten cent Rutland, Vt., and Pueblo, Colo., both in the handsome U-1 electro, and also in the same type: a five cent from that most interesting little town, "Janes"-ville, Wisc.

Big Creek, Calif.—This city has two types both of which appear to be handstamped. One comes in plain capitals between lines and is used only in the horizontal position; the other is a larger type with serifs which reads up and down. The impression just fits on the stamp in each case so it looks as if the P. M. has gone to special pains to turn out handsome precancels and that he likes 'em up and down as well as normal and inverted.

Columbus, Ga.—Altho this office only recently began to use precancels, it is now employing a second type of handstamp, reading Georgia instead of Ga. and differing in the formation of the letters from Type I.

Corning, N. Y.—The rather indistinct types known as U-8 and U-4 have been superseded by a handstamped overprint which is quite attractive. Between short heavy bars, Corning, N. Y., presents itself in medium sized capitals, without serifs.

Nevada, Iowa—This town can now put itself in the class with Indiana, Pa., Mexico, Mo., Peru., Ind., and others of the same sort of city and state combination. The one cent coil appears bearing a type much like U-28.

St. Louis, Mo.—Not content with cleaning up some three cent Victories by precanceling them, St. Louis has now resorted to this method for the twent four cent Aeroplanes in stock. This good news and one is pleased to see the appear, for they are beautiful precance with which to brighten up a collectio I hope they finish the job by cancelin up the sixes and sixteens.

Seguin, Texas—Needless to say, a new comer. I have not seen any but the tw four, five, ten and twenty-five, all of t new issue four have been reported. I sha appreciate any reader sending a copy f inspection so that this city may be co rectly listed.

Mt. Vernon, Iowa—Mt. Vernon, N. Y will now vie with Mt. Vernon, Iowa, the precancel field. The latter precan cels come handstamped in U-6. So fa I have seen the one, two, four, five an ten cents of the regular series, two ce due and one cent Pilgrim coming bot normal and inverted.

Miscellaneous—Other new items whic I have at hand are: one cent Galio Ohio, three cent Victory, Westervill Ohio, reading up, Shenandoah, Iow new type electro sim. to U-9, Riverto N. J., electro, U-9, Salisbury, Md., hand stamp sim. to U-18 and Philadelphia U- 4, 6, 7, $1.00, 1, 2, 3, surface, all double

I wish to thank Messrs. S. D. Arnet Chas. Metz, Joseph Peter, John Grave S. Hyman, and others for their value co-operation.

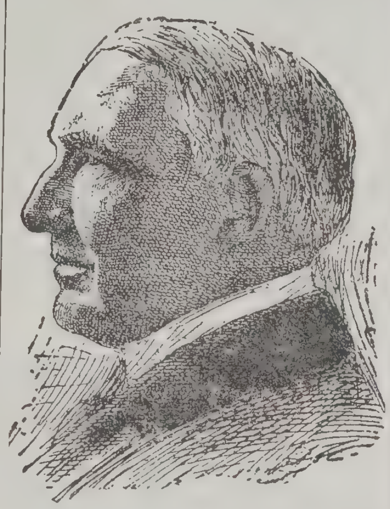
THE HARDING MEMORIAL STAMP.

TO BE PLACED ON SALE AT MARION AND WASHINGTON ABOUT SEPTEMBER 1.

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.



COPYRIGHT U. & U.

This profile likeness of the late President Harding will appear on the new Harding two-cent postage stamp which will go on sale for the first time in Marion, O., September 2. The stamp will be printed in black, with the numerals 1865 and 1923, the date of the birth and death of the late President. The first issue will be 300,000,000, and the stamp will supersede the regular two-cent stamp for sixty days.

Under date of August 15th, the Postmaster-General officially announced that the Department would issue a Harding Memorial Stamp on or about September 1st. The denomination will be 2c, the color black and it will be similar in size and plate make up to the current issue. The design which consists of a side face of the late President facing the left with deep black border together with the dates of his birth and death "1865-1923" as well as "UNITED STATES POSTAGE" was not only approved by the Postmaster-General but was also submitted to President Coolidge.

The head is from an etching made by one of the artists at the Bureau of Engraving & Printing shortly before the late President left on his western trip. The stamps will be generally distributed to all post-offices without requisition after they are first placed on sale at Marion, Ohio, President Harding's home, as well as at the Philatelic Stamp Agency where they will be sold on the first day.

To expedite production the stamps will be turned out not only by means of the flat plates but on the rotary presses also. This will permit substantial deliveries promptly for it is possible to print six million stamps a day on the rotary press while only one million, six hundred thousand are possible on the flat plate press. This by the way will be the first stamp turned out from the rotary other than the 1c, the sheets of the 2c and 3c heretofore issued being simply coil waste. No coils or booklet will be made. The Bureau expects to break all records in turning out the initial order of three hundred million of these memorial stamps which will be in use about sixty days but like all of our stamps from 1861 to date, will continue to be good for postage. I overlooked mentioning that six transfer rolls will be made from the die so that six transferrers may be working at the same time on the plates.

The Fifth Edition of XX Century U. S. Handbook

The 1922 edition of this standard work is out of print and is now going to be revised and a new edition printed. Now that the next Scott Catalogue will give major numbers to coils and imperfs. this handbook—the last word on specialism, will be in greater demand than ever. The work prices the varieties of the coils, of the imperfs., of imprints, etc., and is what might be called an elucidation of the Standard Catalogue's listings. Copious notes will be found explaining the different dies and so forth, and one of Scott's new folders with Illustrations of parts of U. S. stamps will be given, free, with the work. [tf

H. F. COLMAN 2ND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE CONVENTIONS AT WASHINGTON.

The first session of the convention of the American Philatelic Society was called to order by the president, C. F. Heyerman of Detroit, in the ball-room of the Shoreham Hotel, Washington, on August 14, 1923, at 10 A. M. The spacious room was well filled by the delegates who had come to Washington in a larger number than was anticipated; and after a prayer by the Rev. Clarence Clark Silvester, Wyncote, Pa., Mr. H. B. Mason, chairman of the entertainment committee, greeted the visitors and introduced Mr. Wm. A. Johnson, chairman of the reception committee, who welcomed the members and friends. The report of the credentials committee showed that some of the delegates had their full allotment of fifty proxies but here it may be said that there was no occasion for a proxy vote. The only ticket in the field was elected without opposition. The morning was devoted wholly to the reports of officers and the appointing of committees. Mr. Stone was selected as chairman of the by-laws committee and Mr. Severn of the committee on resolutions.

Adjournment was made in order that the visitors might be conducted through the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The auction in the evening conducted by Mr. H. B. Mason was certainly well attended and the prices that were realized were exceptionally good in instances and on the whole were well maintained.

The second session was held Wednesday morning with a somewhat diminished attendance but good progress was made in handling the routine and other business. There were occasional discussions and adjournment was made in time for the trip to Mt. Vernon where the convention picture was taken. The return to Washington was made by boat. In the evening the Stamp Bourse was held at the hotel under the most favorable auspices and until midnight the members and visitors gathered around tables and devoted themselves to barter and trade

The third and last session was on Thursday morning and the reports of the committee on resolutions, next convention seat, etc., were considered. It was ordered that telegrams of greetings be sent to former presidents, Gen. Coolidge, conveying assurances of regard and Mr. H. N. Mudge, expressing a wish for his speedy recovery from the effects of his recent accident. The local newspaper press, the management of the Shoreham and particularly the local collectors of Washington and Baltimore were given votes of thanks. Adjournment of the convention was made for the trip to Annapolis, where at Carvel Hall the convention banquet was given. Washington was reached at midnight after a day that most happily combined business in the morning with pleasure in the afternoon and evening.

There were thirty persons present when the convention of the American Stamp Dealers' Association was called to order by President Severn and no time was lost in getting down to business. The discussions were pertinent and while they centered about the adoption of the new by-laws, they were not limited to them. The results of the balloting were confirmed in the course of voting on each section of the new laws and the association now has a code of laws that is adapted to the present day needs of the society. A calendar year was adopted with the result that the present officers will serve until the new year. The usual convention picture was taken immediately after that of the members of the A. P. S. at Mt. Vernon; twenty-five persons were in the group photographed.

A NEW 2c PANAMA.

We are indebted to Emil J. Rall and Charles F. Wilkins for detailed information concerning a new 2c stamp just issued in Panama. 250,000 of the 2½c 1921 issue have been overprinted "2 centesimos 2" with date "1923."

Numerous errors are found in these surcharges and we are indebted to Mr. Rall for specimens of no fewer than five distinct varieties:—(1) surcharge 1932, (2) surcharge reading 23 instead of 1923, (3) the date showing the single figure 3, (4) the date showing the figures 1 and 2 spaced as found in the surcharge but with 9 and 3 missing, (5) surcharge 1923 missing.

Mr. Wilkins advises us that the total number of varieties found in the overprint is nine, but his information is not definite enough for us to supplement the information given by Mr. Rall. We thank both gentlemen for their favors. A Panama paper, the Star and Herald, states that a black line appears over the words "centesimos" on some of the stamps. The surcharge is in black.

ACKERMAN TO THE PHILIPPINES.

SPARING THE PRESIDENT

The members of the American Phil- alic Society, holding a meeting in ashington, set a good example the oer day when they voluntarily and no dibt at the cost of considerable per- al disappointment canceled an engage- nt to call on President Coolidge and ke his hand. They sensibly resolved spare the president that much un- essary strain.

resident Harding, with his great ing for people and his kindly wish please them, had a custom of receiving general public daily at the White use for an hour. In this time, it is d, he sometimes shook hands with as ny as 1,200 callers. That is not an y thing to do day after day. Presi- dt Harding's willingness to do these cious things doubtless had a great dl to do with bringing on his fatal less. He was too kind, too careless his own physical strength and endur- ae when there were people to please. e country realizes now more than ever ore how almost unbearable the presi- dt's unavoidable burdens are. They uld not be increased unnecessarily. e American Philatelic Society's good mple should be generally followed by sons visiting Washington. — Ohio te Journal.

J. O. MOORE, Inc. Hammondsport, N. Y.

A SWING AROUND THE CIRCLE.

The Managing Editor has returned to his desk after a five weeks trip through the West. He journeyed over 5,000 miles travelling in 17 different states as well as the province of Ontario. Mrs. Wylie and a daughter Miss Edith completed the party and a most enjoyable trip resulted.

In Chicago our associate Mr. Severn, with Mrs. Severn, showed us every possible courtesy and a visit to Skokie was enjoyed even though the mashie and its fellow clubs were perforce left behind.

A stay of four days in Denver included a two days' automobile run through Rocky Mountain Park with two crossings of the backbone of the continent at altitudes of over 11,000 feet. Our stay at Colorado Springs included all the near by places of interest. At a Rotary luncheon 250 attended with over forty visitors. A pleasant day was spent at Grand Junction, Colo., the heart of traffic for a large fruit growing belt and the writer addressed the local Lions organization with a Rotarian greeting.

Our visit to Salt Lake City included a trip out to Bingham, a curious single street town that has been developed in connection with copper ore now being blasted from a close by mountain. It is a veritable mountain of copper. The ore is shipped to Saltair for smelting. Bingham is one of the unique towns of the world.

We were in the Yellowstone Park ten days, taking things leisurely and enjoying to our heart's content the wonders of nature's greatest playground. There are geysers and hot springs elsewhere, a grander canyon, larger falls of water and bigger lakes but no one place in the world can surpass the Yellowstone. The writer visited the park last year and in the light of five trips abroad ventures his opinion.

The news of the death of Pres. Harding came as we were at Mammoth Springs. In one way it was unexpected, death is usually unexpected because we are seldom prepared, yet when we remember his manner and his appearance as seen on three different occasions during the past eight months we can but attribute the sad happening to overwork and anxiety.

A day of rest at Cody, Wyo., was followed by another at Billings, Mont., and a third at Bismarck, No. Dak. On the day we left Beverly the receipt of a subscription renewal from Dr. F. C. Stucke of Bismarck caused us to note his address and as a result this city will have a fragrant memory coupled as it is with Mr. and Mrs. Stucke's genial hospitality. The Dr. took the writer out on the golf course and gave him a drubbing as a part of the hospitality but we can forgive him that in the expectation that the tables will be turned when next Bismarck is visited.

As the writer was walking up a St. Paul street the firm name "Holm & Olson" stared at him in big letters. It seemed familiar and he dug out of his memory an experience of a dozen years ago when the selfsame store had been the object of a visitation. He stepped inside and found our friend O. J. Olson, a long time subscriber of the WEEKLY and an old correspondent of ours. He was busy but none too busy to do us welcome. Our stay in the city was short but swift. Many thanks to Messrs. Olson, senior and junior, for courtesies extended.

On our way back to Beverly we stopped off two days at Detroit. While not our first visit it was our best for we had sufficient time to do much of the city. If Boston could annex Belle Island to its possessions we should never tire of sounding its praises. We made up a Rotary luncheon by visiting the Detroit Club at the Statler and hearing Capt. O'Hay discourse on his many war experiences.

In our thirty-six days' trip our trio suffered no illness, missed no trains, had not a single rainy day, escaped all cloudbursts and managed to surmount all washout difficulties. We carried out our itinerary as planned except a visit to the Crow Agency from Billings to see the scene of the Custer Massacre. Cause —one train a day service.

We close our sketch with a word of admiration for the superb Shoshone Canyon and the fine dam recently constructed there. It is some structure. We shall remember it for its hail storm of only 20 minutes when stones as big as beans covered the ground to the level of at least an inch. Our "Swing Around the Circle" will indeed give us much food for reflection as the months roll by.

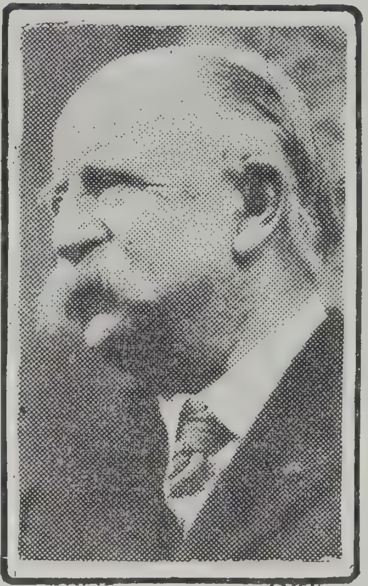
A COUSIN OF THE PRESIDENT.



President Calvin Coolidge has no fewer than four cousins in Detroit. Of these Brig.-Gen. C. A. Coolidge, the grand old man of Detroit philately, is one. On a recent visit to Detroit the President posed with Gen. Coolidge for a picture and the same was used under the heading "Two Distinguished Coolidges." We are indebted to Herman W. Boers for the use of the cut from the Detroit News. Mr. Boers sends us an extended account of the activities of Gen. Coolidge, philatelic and otherwise, but our readers are so well acquainted with the general that we hardly think it necessary to give the details of his active philatelic and military life. He is the father of philately in Detroit, having the credit of the organization of the Detroit Philatelic Society.

BIRDS, ANIMALS AND STAMPS.

Father Philipp Turns His Tobacco Money into a Better Investment.

Porcupines don't shoot their quills when angered and Mother Pelican doesn't "tear open her rash devoted breast" to feed her young. These stories are pretty little "nature fakes," according to Father Max J. Philipp, instructor of natural sciences at the Pontifical College Josephinum, 821 East Main street, Columbus, O., who has one of the largest private collections of mounted birds and animals in Ohio.

He says the porcupine loses its "stickers" by brushing up against some object, while the myth that the mother pelican feeds her young with the blood from her own breast arose from seeing the baby pelicans insert their bills into the open mouth of the parent, the lower mandible being then, for convenience, dropped down upon her breast.

SMOKE BOUGHT IT.

Father Philipp's collection runs from an eighteen-foot sawfish to a polliwog, from an elk to a field mouse, and from a black swan to a humming bird. He acquired the museum by giving up smoking sixteen years ago and turning his tobacco expenses into exhibits for his collection.

"I have something to show for my money now, whereas, if I had spent it for smoking, what would I have?" says Father Philipp. "I enjoy the work very much; in fact, I've had a hobby for collecting things since I was a boy."

Father Philipp declares that the songbirds are rapidly disappearing from Ohio, due to the hunters and the English sparrows.

BIRDS SHOW MERCY.

"But do you know that the sparrows will kill one of their tribe that is in agony?" he asked.

He described two incidents of this nature that came under his own observation. One was a sparrow that had one of its wings cut off by a street car. Other sparrows found it and killed it by plucking out the eyes of the wounded bird; although it was necessary for one of the feathery workers of mercy to get under the injured bird and turn it over to get at its eyes.

Father Philipp has the evidence of the other in a jar. It is a sparrow that accidentally hung itself on a piece of twine that it was using to build a nest over one of the windows at the college. He says the bird was hanging in torture when along came other sparrows and pecked out its eyes. He declares the "spotsies" even endeavored to sever the string to remove the dead bird.

STAMPS COST $10,000.

Not only is Father Philipp a zoological collector, but he has also a stamp collection, the equal of any in the city. He figures that it cost him about $10,000.

"It was my love for pretty things, I guess, that took me into stamp collecting," said Father Philipp. "I've been gathering stamps since I was a little fellow. I've some stamps here that I could sell for over $100 apiece, but I would not part with them.

"Philately, as the science of stamp collecting is called, proves very useful in broadening our views and adds to our knowledge of history, art, language, geography, botany, mythology and many kindred branches of learning.

"My general collection of 20 volumes of stamps of all the world proves to be an educational factor in geography and history classes. I had suitable two-faced frames constructed to receive the Krassa loose-leaves with stamps under glass. After explaining the stamps and their illustrations I let the students admire and study the interesting adhesives for a day or two. During the next period the refilled frames are eagerly inspected, especially by those enterprising young men who have espoused philately as the hobby."

Father Philipp says there have bee some noticeable changes in the colors o Uncle Sam's postage stamps since th import of dyes from Germany has bee cut off.—The Columbus Citizen.

THE LINCOLN MEMORIAL.

By CHAS. G. WILSON.

On the Dollar denomination of th new series of United States stamp which is scheduled for appearance soo there will be engraved the Lincoln Memorial at Washington, D. C.

Situate on rising ground overlookin the Potomac and clearly visible fo miles around, this beautiful monumen stands, mute testimony of a great people' love for a great and good man. It beauty lies in its sheer simplicity of design, its stately and uniform proportions. It is a gem of Grecian Dori architecture of the period of Grecian ar at its best. In effect it is a Grecia temple with a spacious portico of Dori columns carved from marble from th famed Colorado Yule quarry. It is a its base 204 feet long and 134 feet wid and is 72 feet high. Within is a memorial hall 156 feet long and 84 feet wide at one end of which is a colossal figure of Abraham Lincoln carved from Georgia marble by the celebrated sculpto Daniel Chester French, while the allegorical mural paintings of the hall are the work of Jules Guerin. The architect who designed and built the Memorial is Henry Bacon.

Work on the monument was begun more than ten years ago and brought to completion in 1922. On May 30th (Memorial Day) of that year, William Howard Taft, Chairman of the Lincoln Memorial Commission, formally presented the finished Memorial to the President of the United States, and through him to the people of the country.

METROPOLITAN STAMP CO., 7 West 42nd St., New York City.

W. S. KYLE.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

This stamp is a close copy of the Wm. Gates 1c dies, the frames being practically identical but the circular disk in the center is a trifle larger and bears a full-face portrait of Mr. Kyle, and the acanthus ornaments which form the upper corners are slightly altered to make room in each corner for a colorless five-pointed star. Also on the Kyle stamp the trifoliate ornamentation in the middle of the top just over the curved label inscribed "One Cent" is not shaded, and the background upon which it rests is composed of parallel vertical lines instead of the horizontal lines found on the Gates stamps. The inscription is changed to read "W. S. Kyle—Boston, Mass."

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, March 9, 1865.
First issued, March, 1865.
Last issued, Aug., 1875.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
17,076,000 issued on old paper.
21,155,609 issued on silk paper.

"This die passed into the possession of Austin Messinger at some time between June, 1865, and March, 1866, and although no change in the die was made up to August 31, 1875, Mr. Messinger received stamps from it from that date forth."

This statement is slightly ambiguous but means that the Kyle stamps were delivered to Messinger from and after March, 1866.

The factory was located at Norton, Massachusetts, but the head office was in Boston. Norton is a small town in Bristol County about six miles northwest of the city of Taunton and scarcely ten miles from Raynham where the Leeds, Robinson & Co. factory was located.

The Kyle stamps are rather scarce on old paper and although the total issue on both papers was over thirty-eight million, both varieties are notoriously difficult to obtain in fine condition. The chief reason for this is that the stamps were usually cut apart with scissors and as whoever did the cutting went along with never a thought for the requirements of stamp collectors the results were anything but satisfactory from a philatelic viewpoint.

Neither variety has been known to be used in multiple, and pairs, strips or large multiplies are unknown to the writer.

The old paper variety was quoted at 10c to 25c in the 1880's; 75c from 1894 to 1898; 50c in 1900 and $1.00 since 1901. The silk paper quotations were 5c to 15c until 1900; 25c to 1904 and 40c since 1906. These prices may be considered reasonable for fine copies with one straight edge, but copies perforated on all four sides, and otherwise desirable, are likely to command more.

A. MESSINGER.

Austin Messinger is listed at Norton, Massachusetts, as early as 1860, but the Directories for 1873 to 1879 list the firm as Messinger & Sweet at Norton, and the U. S. Business Directory for 1881 gives the same firm, but the address is 5 India Street, Boston.

The Boston Book states:—

Die approved, Oct. 20, 1875.
First issued, Nov., 1875.
Last issued, May 15, 1883.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
54,578,510 issued on silk, pink and watermarked paper.

"Although Mr. Messinger succeeded Mr. Kyle as early as 1866, no change was made in die until Oct., 1875."

The Kyle die was changed by removing Mr. Kyle's name, lengthening the colorless curved panel below the portrait, upon which the name appears, and inscribing therein "A. Messinger."

Probably there were four to six plates, the earlier of which were made by the National Bank Note Company and all the stamps on silk and pink paper were printed in New York by that concern. Later there were printings by the American Bank Note Company in New York and by the Bureau in Washington, but whether these later printings were from National plates or whether new plates were made by either of the later printers cannot be stated. Copies of the Messinger stamp on watermarked paper bearing the Bureau pane line have been noted and these are certainly Bureau prints, but no copies bearing marginal imprints have been noted by the present writer, and there is no method yet known by which the National and American prints on watermarked paper can be identified.

The Messinger stamps are much commoner than those bearing Mr. Kyle's name, but are not particularly easy to find in fine condition, perforated all around. The practice of cutting them apart with scissors apparently continued until the last stamp was used in 1883 and nearly all the copies available show it.

Until 1881 Messinger & Sweet appear to have been active competitors of the very large firm of Byam, Carlton & Co. of Boston, but about that time both concerns became part of the Diamond Match Company, and the Boston Directory for 1881 lists the Diamond Match Company as manufacturers of Byam Carlton matches and of Messinger & Sweet, "Boston long matches."

As both the Byam, Carlton stamps and the Messinger stamps continued to be used until the repeal of the stamp tax it is evident the factories continued in operation after they became a part of the Diamond combination.

The Messinger stamps are not known to have been used in multiple but pairs, and strips, usually showing the familiar scissors cuts, are occasionally found. The present catalog quotation of 15c for the silk, 60c for the pink and 25c for the watermarked paper are rather low for copies that have not been mutilated.

EDITORIAL.

The Hon. Chas. E. Hatfield of the Scott Stamp and Coin Company who formerly was chairman of the Massachusetts Republican State Committee was the first man to enter the office of President Coolidge and in greeting his old friend, the President said: "Charley, how is your stamp business? Ours is fine." The reference of the president was to the government's, of course.

At one of the sessions of the A. P. S. convention, Mr. Beck announced that the intention of meeting the President in order that the delegates might shake his hand had been abandoned and that the local committee felt that by not imposing upon the President's time and good nature just now, a proper respect and appreciation would be shown for the Chief Executive. The delegates approved the decision as they are aware that it is imperative that the President be shielded from needless fatigue. The Washington newspapers came out with head-lines telling of the resolution of the society, and other newspapers throughout the country, recognizing the consideration manifested by the society, told of the innovation; and further, not a few of the papers printed commendatory articles and editorials on the subject. Thus, the tidings of a good act on the part of the American Philatelic Society has resulted in nation-wide publicity for the organization.

Third Assistant Postmaster-General W. Irving Glover was called from Washington on the eve of the convention but the alliance between the government and the society was made, let us say, by M. L. Eidsness, Jr., Superintendent of Stamps, Post Office Department and H. A. Mount, Philatelic Stamp Agent, Philatelic Bureau of the Post Office Department. Through the instrumentality of Mr. Eidsness, the government stamp exhibit that was awarded the first special prize at the recent London exhibition was on view at the conventions of the American Stamp Dealers' Association and the American Philatelic Society. Mr. Eidsness addressed both of the meetings and told of some of his experiences and of his reliance on the judgment of the members in relation to stamps. Mr. Mount and Mr. Eidsness attended the banquet, and incidentally they joined the American Philatelic Society.

The issue of both the eight cent and the sixteen cent of the new airplane stamps was hurried in order that their appearance would loan itself to the convention. Mr. Mount brought the first sheets of the eight cent to the Stamp Bourse on the evening of August 15th, where they were eagerly bought, and these sales with those of the day following realized $1,500, according to Postmaster-General New. The Washington newspapers mentioned that these purchases by the members of the American Philatelic Society were "clear profit" as they "will be placed in albums to add to collections."

The social programme of the convention was carried through without a hitch and the attentions of the Washington and Baltimore entertainers will long be stored in memory. The visit to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing was a memorable one and the Director was obliging enough to order that the original dies of the one cent and the three cent stamp of the 1851 issue be shown in his room to a number of the delegates, where they were inspected with due veneration. We believe that Mr. Stanley Ashbrook made the request that was so generously acceded to and thanks are due to him as well as the Director. The picture taken at Mt. Vernon was a large one and the photographer did his work well while the trip to Annapolis with the visits to the United States Naval Academy and other historic spots impressed the delegates. The banquet at old Carvel Hall, Annapolis, was the culmination of a day that is unforgetable.

Much of the business that was transacted at the convention related to improved methods in the internal workings of the society. A committee is to revamp the by-laws with the intention of codifying and indexing them so that a continuity in dealing with any subject will be observed. Resolutions whose application is not limited to a single year are to be published so long as they may be operative in the opinion of the board. The records of previous boards of vice-presidents are to be indexed and a system installed for the use of the present and succeeding boards of vice-presidents. The liability of the Branch Sales Managers to the Branches is covered by a new by-law, in order that the society be protected. No member against whom charges have been preferred is to be allowed to be dropped from the rolls for non-payment of dues pending investigation of the case.

The attendance was very large and the registration office accounted for well over 250 delegates and this number with their families and friends made a numerical showing that was gratifying. All sections of the country were represented and Mr. C. W. Best of Honolulu, Hawaii, was given long distance honors. A number of old members larger than usual was present, including Mr. E. B. Sterling of Trenton, New Jersey, wh catalogues, published in the '80's, est lish him as a pioneer in research w in the postage and revenue stamps of t country. Mr. W. C. Stone of Sprin field, Mass., whose motion to adjo sine die is one of the ceremonials of convention, did his duty on this occas as he has at so many conventions in past. There were seven of the n directors present and they had seve meetings during the convention.

A motion was carried that a commit be appointed whose members would in the interests of junior collectors w special attention to young collectors relation to their activities as memb of societies composed mostly of coll tors not yet of age. The support of society was pledged to Mr. Mount the Philatelic Stamp Agency in recog tion of the desire of the post-office partment to meet the wishes of collecto The proposed international stamp hibition at Philadelphia in 1926, the y of the sesquicentennial, in connecti with the convention which doubtles will be held there then, was endor by resolution. A gold medal was fered for competition at the Vien stamp exhibition, which was attended Mr. Klein. A resolution was pass suggesting that members who rece unsolicited approval lots from abro send them to the International Secreta in order that he might return them to original senders with such admonit letters as may be deemed advisable.

The reports of officers were submitt and passed upon. The message of president was a review of his admin trative year in its relation to stamps a general sense. The report of the boa of vice-presidents was one that reflect the large volume of business that w transacted. Eleven members were pelled and five applications returned. special report on the evils of substi tion in sales book may be made lat The sales superintendent was ordered mark all sales books in order that th use be prohibited, outside the sales partment. On the subject of publici it was said that in view of the opini expressed generally that the deale would profit most by a publicity ca paign, it is advisable that some deale organization take charge and that t American Philatelic Society contrib to such a fund. In order to preve settlements nullifying the case, after has been presented to the board, it w recommended that no charges may withdrawn after they have been certifi to the board, except with its conse Two commercial references, neither which shall be a bank, must now given by applicants. NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The Baltic Philatelist, published in Libau, Latvia, pays quite a compliment to the WEEKLY by reproducing in miniature the title page of our anniversary number issued last January. It is accompanied by a complimentary mention of the WEEKLY and its activities in philatelic work. We are pleased to acknowledge this courtesy and any of our subscribers desiring a paper from mid-Europe will do well to send for a copy of the Baltic Philatelist.

—P. J. Drossos of Athens, Greece, sends us a specimen of the new 80 lepta Greece. It is in a fine shade of rich brown like the 50 lepta of the current issue. Mr. Drossos writes that pending final investigations by the judicial authorities of the revolutionary issues (which was bought up by the postal officials) these stamps have been recalled.

—Two new advertising cancellations have reached our desk. One is from Minneapolis, Minn.:—"Minnesota State Fair and N. W. Dairy Exposition, Sept. 1-8." The other is from Muskogee, Okla.:—"Oklahoma Free State Fair, Muskogee, Oct. 1-6, 1923."

—The West Coast Hobby House, Long Beach, Cal., has just issued Volume 1 Number 1 of the Travelling Salesman. The subscription price is given as 25c per year but a sample copy will no doubt be furnished free of charge. Nathan R. Stiles is the editor and the paper carries some little advertising in addition to the offerings of the Hobby House. We congratulate this firm upon its enterprise and trust all succeeding numbers will measure up to the standard of the initial number.

—J. Arthur Wainwright sends us a letter dealing with the enclosure of an addressed stamped envelope in letters calling for a reply. He affirms that a request upon a stamp dealer for information concerning a stamp wanted does not require this courtesy. We are not publishing Mr. Wainwright's letter in full, but will meet his contention by saying that it may well be taken for granted that a dealer failing to reply to such a communication is unable to give the matter favorable consideration.

—W. J. Zink, who has been a regular advertiser in the WEEKLY for a long time, has purchased the stock and goodwill of the Cleveland Stamp Co. and the Ohio Stamp Co. of Cleveland. We congratulate Mr Zink upon these evidences of continued prosperity.

—The article recently published in the WEEKLY on "Condition, Neatness, etc., in Stamp Collecting" has brought out some remonstrances in the direction of collecting damaged stamps. We have received a letter from Rev. A. Z. Myers, D.D., Philadelphia, Pa., who stoutly defends the damaged stamp as a solace to the boy collector. James F. Morton, Jr., writes us an article in defense of the "philatelic cripple" and this will be used in our columns.

—We are informed by Stanley Gibbons of London that the firm will shortly discontinue the Monthly Circular and will revive the old and well known Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal. We understand that L. W. Fulcher and Stanley Phillips will be joint editors. This publication always ably represented philately and we voice a strong and hearty welcome to the return of an old friend.

—The Yorkton Stamp Society of Yorkton, Sask., Can., will hold an exhibition and convention September 19-22.

—A copy of the New York Sunday Mercury for June 4, 1871, has been sent us by Charles H. Fowle. It contains a well written column article on stamp collecting under the heading "A New Mania." It occupies a front page position and is quite interesting. It features W. P. Brown, the well-known Nassau St. dealer, who up to a few months ago was a regular advertiser in the WEEKLY. Mr. Brown was then located upon John St.

—William Butler, 137 Gillard Av., Toronto, Can., would like information concerning Otto Haker of various addresses in Toronto.

—With reference to the review of "The Postage Stamps of Great Britain, 1840-1922 by S. A. R. Oliver and F. Hugh Vallancey" that appeared on page 361 of your paper, Mr. Ricketts has made a slight mistake in the price and I should be much obliged if you would correct it, as follows, all post free:—Ordinary edition, cloth bound, £1 1s. Subscribers' Edition half bound, £2 2s. Interleaved edition half bound, £3 3s. The ten sections have been reprinted in paper covers at 2s8d per section post free.—F. H. VALLANCEY.

—C. F. Busch, formerly secretary of the Kosmoplit Stamp Club of Rochester, N. Y., is now located at 26 Turner Ave., Schenectady. He would like to organize a stamp club in that city and will be glad to hear from local collectors.

—A new advertising cancellation comes from New York reading:—"Chemical Industries Exposition Sept. 17-22." Thanks to A. A. Wasserscheid.

—Our attention has been called to the fact that Victor Seitz of Fremont, Nebr., recently passed away. He was one of the oldest stamp collectors of the city, an ardent reader of the WEEKLY and an occasional correspondent. The name of Mr. Seitz will doubtless be familiar to many of our readers.

—The El Paso Stamp Club, El Paso, Tex., now has twenty-four members. J. D. Bartlett is president and A. P. Myers secretary and treasurer.

—We have been shown two new advertising cancellations by Frank A. Goldsmith:—"Missouri State Fair, Sedalia, August 18-25, 1923" from Sedalia, Mo. Also one from Memphis, Tenn.:—"Tri-State Fair, Memphis, Sept. 22-29."

—E. E. Goodchild sends us a new advertising cancellation from Montreal:—"Visit Postal Exhibit Toronto Exhibition, Aug. 25 to Sept. 8, 1923."

—Two score or more of our subscribers have sent us clippings dealing with the new Harding and air mail stamps. Will they kindly accept our thanks for the services rendered?

—The annual Sam-Sam of the United Shoe Machinery Company held at Beverly recently brought to the city J. J. Prendergast, an old friend of the WEEKLY, who favored the managing editor with a call at his office. The WEEKLY is indebted to him for a long line of courtesies extending over a period of many years.

—Frank A. Goldsmith has shown us a new advertising cancellation from Baton Rouge, La., reading:—"State Fair of Louisiana, Shreveport, Oct. 18-28, 1923."

—Carleton Fitchett, who does a daily poetic flight for the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, glided into the philatelic atmosphere on August 17, in making mention of the new U. S. aeroplane stamp issue as follows:

"They soon will issue stamps for mail that's carried through the air. They'll not be fancy—they'll be plane, the postal heads declare. What sort of paper will they choose on which the stamps to print? Fly paper would be suitable—we hope they take our hint."—WALKER C. SMITH.

Collectors and dealers are invited to submit singles, pairs and strips, on or off covers, for inspection. As a rule, single copies should have four margins, but this is not always necessary if the stamp shows one margin over 2mm wide or part of an adjoining specimen.

Items for sale or exchange should be priced—other items submitted merely out of the goodness of one's heart and a desire to help along a most difficult philatelic work need not be priced but will be equally welcome.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

NEW AEROPLANE STAMPS.

On August 15th, while the American Philatelic Society was in convention at Washington the new 8c aeroplane stamp was placed on sale. A description of the variety which is printed in olive green was given in my last Chronicle. All of those on sale the first day were from plate 14824, a four hundred subject plate. This time the first sheet was not only autographed by the Postmaster-General, Harry S. New, the Director of the Bureau, L. A. Hill and the Third Assistant Postmaster-General, W. Irving Glover, but also by the Second Assistant Postmaster-General, Paul Henderson, who has charge of the airmail flying.

The 16c in blue was issued on August 17th and was printed from plate 14828. The 24c it is expected will be placed on sale on August 21st, the die proof having been approved by Mr. New on August 15th. The Department has arranged with the Bureau to turn out exceptionally well printed stamps for the Philatelic Stamp Agency, the presses being padded in such a way that the impressions are finer. Those who were in attendance at the convention of the A. P. S. during the week of August 13th will appreciate that the Department is doing everything within their power to please the philatelist.

It may be of interest to our readers to know that the new 8c and 16c were engraved by Mr. H. P. Dawson and the 24c by Mr. John Eissler, both of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

NIGHT AIR MAIL SERVICE.

These stamps were gotten out for use on the night air mail service which will formally begin early in September. While good for regular postage the stamps pay the rate in the three zones of the air flights, the 8c covering from New York to Chicago, the 16c to Cheyenne and the 24c to San Francisco. There will be special airplane cancellations for these flights. Experimental flights will be made August 21st but the rate until the service is formally established will be 2c. No special cancellations will be used on these trial flights but the receiving offices have been instructed to back stamp the air mail so that the dates of sending and arrival will indicate the fact that the letter was via airplane.

The Department at first thought that they would reprint the old 16c and 24c for this purpose but the Third Assistant Postmaster-General desired to keep faith with the collector and refused to reissue a stamp that had been discontinued. More glory to our good friend at Washington.

AUSTRIA.—Mr. Fred S. Martin has shown us a block of nine of No. 1243 with the stamp in the centre having the "5" in the overprint missing.

CANADA.—Mr. Frank L. Belanger announces the appearance of a $1 value in the same design as the current set. The color is red-orange. Mr. Belanger also adds that after October 1st postage stamps can no longer be used as revenue stamps.

COSTA RICA.—On June 18th a set of five postage stamps was issued to commemorate the Centenary of President Jesus Jimenez. The values, colours and numbers issued are as follows:—2 centimos, brown, 150,000; 4 centimos, green, 50,000; 5 centimos, blue, 300,000; 20 centimos, red, 50,000; 1 colon, purple, 25,000. These stamps will be available for postage until December 31, 1923, when they will be withdrawn.—King's Philatelic Bulletin.

GUATEMALA.—Mr. Alex A. Cohen writes as follows:—

I have just found the following varieties in the new 12½ and 25c issues of Guatemala of 1923:—

12½c green (Palacio de Centenario), Horizontal pair, imperforate between. Only ten of these, being an entire horizontal row in sheet of 100, have so far been found.

25c brown, Top row of stamps (ten) in sheet of 100, imperforate at top, has white margin of about 15mm at top of stamp. Twenty of these have been found.

ITALY.—Mr. Fred S. Martin advises that he has the No. 425 with the surcharge "12 centesimi" instead of "11 centesimi." Mr. Martin adds that these were found in a lot of 100 sets all being in blocks of six, "12" instead of "11" being mixed among them.

MEXICO.—We have just received from the Southwestern Stamp Co. a copy of the 10c stamp showing the Statue of Guauhtemoc in the centre. The shade is claret. Our correspondent also adds that they have the 20c dark blue and 50c grey in the same series.

NAURU.—We have received information that the new stamps which have been printed in Melbourne were expected to be delivered at Nauru in July. The values are as follows:—½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 4d, 5d, 6d, 9d, 1s, 2s6d, 5s and 10s. —King's Philatelic Bulletin.

NORWAY.—A reader states that a German Aircraft Company recently proposed to the Norwegian Government that an aeroplane route should be established between Christiania, Göteborg and Hamburg. The Company proposed to supply 50,000 Air stamps, nominally Norwegian and subject to the control of the Norwegian postal authorities, free of charge. In return for their kindness, the German Company would be satisfied with four-fifths of the stamps. The offer was declined with thanks, but it is evident that there are still kind-hearted people who wish to ensure that the poor collector shall not see his hobby die out for lack of new issues to keep it going. —Gibbons Monthly Circular.

PORTUGAL.—It is obvious from an article in the Portugal Filatelico, and from information received from those on the spot best competent to judge, that the recent issue of Air Commemoratives was engineered with purely speculative intent, though the Government authorities do not appear to have been the moving spirits. As far as one can judge, the attempt has resulted in failure, thanks to the prompt publicity given to it by collectors in Portugal, and we trust the promoters have been involved in heavy loss. It is expected that a Government enquiry into the scandal will be instituted, as there is no intention of allowing the matter to drop until it has been thoroughly sifted.—Gibb

cent stamps was sent out in which value tablet was printed in blue-gr in error instead of in carmine. A co spondent of L'Echo de la Timbrol states that these stamps were immedia placed on sale and quickly bought by a local speculator. This statem however, is incorrect, as the Sara Government Secretary informs us the stamps in question were never iss and do not bear franking powers. T have recently been purchased by a dea who has been negotiating for them s they are to be described as uniss

OUR RENEWAL HONOR CLUB.

Hon. Pres., Charles R. Morse, Knoxville, Tenn.
Pres., I. Donald A. Cook, Simcoe, Ont.
Vice Pres., L. A. K. Solosth, Grand Rapids, Mich.
Sec., J. Wm. Cook, Huntington Beach, Cal.

During the past five weeks the Managing Editor has been upon a pleasure trip in the far west, the particulars of which will be found elsewhere in this issue. During his absence the Honor Club has taken things into its own hands. Many five-year renewals have been received, as have been noted in recent issues. The time is now ripe to indicate the officers of this very active organization.

The honorary presidency of the Club falls to Charles R. Morse of Knoxville, Tenn. He writes us as follows:—"Enter my renewal for eight years lacking one issue, which will put my number forward from 2085 to 2500 even. Now note this, it means that I am subscribed ahead for the time of somewhere around sixteen years or so. That ought to be the record. If I happen to drop off during that period I want you to change the subscription to the Knoxville City Library, and you are then to notify the library of my slight bequest." Of course we are very pleased to make note of this disposition of Mr. Morse's subscription, but we sincerely trust that he will more than live out the years in question.

By virtue of a ten years' renewal of subscription carrying with it a remittance of $15., I. Donald A. Cook, A. P. S. 6764, Simcoe, Ont., Can., becomes President of the organization. Mr. Cook goes us one better than our advertising has thus far indicated by wishing to know the particulars of a life membership fee. This point has not yet been determined.

L. A. K. Solosth of Grand Rapids, Mich., vice-president, renews for ten years also. He writes:—"I do not wish to miss a single number. As soon as I receive one I commence counting the days until the next comes." Mr. Solosth is a philatelist of long standing and we are glad to award him the honor of the vice presidency of the Honor Club.

To J. William Cook we are indebted for a renewal of seven years. Mr. Cook is chairman of the Recruiting Committee of the Junior American Philatelic Society and resides at Huntington Beach, Cal. He becomes the secretary of the Honor Club.

You will doubtless agree with the Managing Editor that our subscribers took advantage of his absence to show what they could do in pushing the Club. If the absence of a treasurer of the Club be noted it may be taken for granted that the Managing Editor will see that all funds are properly cared for.

As we go to press Edward Wintermute of Brooklyn, N. Y., joins our Honor Club with a five years' renewal of his subscription. He writes:—"I have been a subscriber to your valuable paper ever since it was started and have always found it interesting. I look for it every week as regularly as pay-day. Now I want to make sure of it for five years more." This is such a substantial endorsement of the WEEKLY as to cheer the heart of the Managing Editor.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found a clipping in which the collecting activities of Rev. Max J. Philipp of Columbus, O., are outlined. Father Philipp has a high regard for the WEEKLY as is evidenced by the fact that he has just renewed his subscription for five years and becomes a member of our Honor Club. He declares in his letter that we are entitled to some five-year renewals "for all the real enjoyment, valuable education and up-to-date information that young and old philatelists can derive from its pages." Hearty thanks for the words of cheer.

Two additional members of the Honor Club were received August 23, G. Russell Hovey, Worcester, Mass., and Wm. A. Johnson, Washington, D. C. Both of these subscribers make their remittance of $5 for a five-years' renewal in a very matter-of-fact manner, just as though it was not an unusual thing for them to make five-year renewals. We thank both of these subscribers for their entrance into the charmed circle.

COLLECTORS BUY $1,500 OF NEW PLANE STAMP.

Members of the American Philatelic Society, which closed its convention here Thursday, purchased $1,500 worth of the new 8-cent airplane stamp placed on sale that day, Postmaster-General New announced yesterday.

The $1,500 is clear profit to the post-office, since the stamps, it is said, will never be used, but will be placed in albums to add to collections.—Washington Paper.

RELIEF OF THE PRESIDENT.

One thing presidents of the United States have had to learn, in order to avoid being crippled, was to master the handshake. Everyone meeting the President, and often thousands lined up for the purpose, felt it his prerogative to grasp the executive's right hand and give it a cordial and loyalty-implying squeeze. Mastering the handshake consisted in the President's doing the gripping in fashion to prevent not only the squeeezing but the pump-handling that goes with it unless forestalled. Yet this controlled contact was decidedly wearing. For long it has been a common conviction that the practice of shaking the President's hand should be abolished. But it is hard to break established customs and no president was willing to risk being misunderstood by refusing to "shake."

The American Philatelic Society has come to the rescue of President Coolidge, and set an example which we hope will receive the stamp of public approval to the point of being generally emulated. This society had an engagement to call on the President, its members to shake his hand, of course, as they filed past him. But, reflecting on the fate that overtook President Harding, the undermining of his health unquestionably having been contributed to by sacrifices of comfort and strength in meeting the public, the philatelists voted to cancel the arrangement.

Doing away with public handshaking by the President, the executive will have more time and strength for the discharge of his public duties. He is the last man in the country to be imposed upon, unless we want to break his health.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

BRITISH COLONIAL NEW ISSUE SERVICE

¶ Your Opportunity to Purchase the New British Colonials as issued at a Small Advance over actual Face Value.
¶ Read the details carefully.
¶ Send in the application blank and your deposit.
¶ Join My Two Hundred Satisfied Subscribers and Reap the Reward as these issues become obsolete.

New Issues of the British Colonies are allotted to subscribers under the following conditions:

1—A NOMINAL PERCENTAGE over face value is charged on all stamps imported. This commission covers everything except postage, which is charged up to the subscriber. Present charge for new issues is 27½c per shilling face value. Fluctuations in exchange may necessitate the raising or permit the lowering of my present basis. However, the cost to subscribers is kept below the LOWEST RETAIL SELLING PRICE of any American dealer. I GUARANTEE TO DO THIS or take back the stamps distributed.

2—Stamps which I am unable to secure in sufficient quantity to distribute will be offered in my Special Bargain Lists, issued weekly, subscription price 50c for 50 consecutive numbers—just the price of postage. Such stamps are generally provisionals, the number of which is limited by local postal authorities. However, I have succeeded in distributing most provisionals at the regular rates, as well as ordinary issues.

3—No subscription can be accepted for special issues, nor for specified colonies to the exclusion of others, except that Indian Native States and Canada are not distributed at any time. Collectors whose wants are limited to a few countries should subscribe to my Special Lists, where all new issues, both British Colonial and other foreign, are quoted as received.

4—A deposit is required from all subscribers at the commencement of their subscription, and the value of each distribution must be remitted on its receipt, so as to keep deposit intact. Deposits are for a very nominal sum and are required to assist in financing the service, profits from which are very small. The saving to subscribers over regular rates much more than compensates them for the small sum they keep on deposit.

5—The minimum subscription that can be accepted is for one copy each of all stamps up to and including a face value of one shilling and for this an initial deposit of $5.00 is required. If pairs, strips or blocks are desired, deposits must be increased in proportion. Exact deposit requirements are as follows:

Up to and including 1s face ....$ 5.00
Up to and including 2s 6d face 8.00
Up to and including 5s face 10.00
Up to and including 10s face 15.00
Up to and including £1 face 25.00
Up to and including all issued 45.00

6—Distributions are made monthly, except when the number of new issues received during the month are too few. All stamps are sent at subscribers' risk. Letters will be registered on request at subscriber's expense.

7—The signing of the order form provided herewith will be taken as a definite order for the stamps specified, same to include all British Colonials within the limits set with the exception of Indian Native States.

8—The terms quoted apply only to the special New Issue Service. Stamps to order or repeat orders will be supplied at regular rates.

9—Two months' notice is required for the discontinuance or for any alteration thereof, such notice to date from the first day of the next month following its receipt.

NOTE:—Names of subscribers who will gladly attest the efficiency of the Service will be furnished on request. For reference I refer you, by permission, to Willard O. Wylie of this paper or to the Secretary of the American Stamp Dealers' Association, of which I am a charter member.

EXTRAORDINARY OFFERING OF RARE STAMP

JUST SECURED---NOT ONE OF THESE EVER OFFERED BY ME BEFORE!

THIS is just the kind of an ad I like to be able to write! It is NOT a "Clearance Sale" of picked over stuff, not item of this sort being included in the lot. It IS a very choice selection of most desirable stamps, in UNCOMMONLY FINE CONDITION, picke from a fine collection just secured—the collection was begun in 1882 and nothing has been added to it for a long time—the stamps were bought when were much cheaper than they are now, therefore I am able to let them go for quick sale at the attractive prices below. This is the kind of stuff tha practically all be higher in the new catalog! You can check me up on that and see if it doesn't. Every one of these items are a good investme the prices appended—you can certainly never buy them cheaper in the condition these are in—neither could I tell you when I MIGHT be able to you many of these items again at ANY PRICE! My advice is to BUY NOW any of these items you may require to fill in with, or even as duplicat

I GUARANTEE EVERY STAMP TO BE GENUINE, WITHOUT TIME LIMIT and, where desired, will give written guarantee with any purc I have only one of most of these stamps, though several of some kinds, so order early. STAMP NEWS IN BRIEF.

BRITISH EMPIRE.

Canada.—Following the plan now in use in the U. S. A., says Mr. Eric L. Burgess, meters are to be rented for the printing of metered mail. By this means the stamping of correspondence in large offices is done away with, the machine itself impressing a device in place of the usual adhesive, at the same time registering the number of impressions made, so that the user can be charged with the face value plus a small percentage, when the machine is examined periodically. The sample of the meter-mark shown us by our informant bears the value in words and figures on a transverse label, with the words "CANADA LICENSE" above, and "METER POSTAGE" below, in a neat framework. Values up to 10c are expected to be available.

China (British P. O.'s).—Messrs. Whitfield King & Co. show us the 1c old watermark, showing the crown broken at right, as known in the Hong Kong stamp. More interesting still is a block from the same position on a sheet with Script wmk., in which there are clear signs of the damage having been repaired.

Fiji.—Mr. John N. Luff points out that in our recent article on the Local Postage Dues, we were wrong in stating that the combination sheet was printed in vertical rows. Obviously one horizontal row, including the various values, must have been repeated, or the saving of labour aimed at by repeating the row would not have been secured.

Hong Kong.—Messrs. Graca & Co. send us a vertical strip of three from the right bottom corner of the left bottom pane of the 2c Script, the top stamp of which has a white dot in the King's eye. They state that this small variety is constant.

Jamaica.—Mr. L. Whiteley states that, in giving us the information regarding the current 2½d with colour of the central portion showing through on the back of the stamps, as mentioned in the April M. C., he omitted to point out that this was due to the centre being printed in an aniline colour. He now shows us the 1s with the same peculiarity. The Legislative Council has recommended that the charge for inland postage shall be reduced to one penny. Will our P. M. G. (if he is still in office) please note!

We regret to note from the latest Crown Agents' Bulletin that the ½d, 1½d and 2½d, Child Welfare stamps already referred to in these columns, are to be issued in November and will be on sale for three months. The designs will depict native children, and the stamps will be line-engraved.

The current 5s on Script is now in preparation.

Malta.—In reply to a question in the Senate the Minister for Industry and Commerce said that he would not fail to give consideration to a proposal to issue postage stamps bearing the portraits of such Maltese patriots as Dr. Fortunato Mizzi and Sir Philip Sceberras. A question on an earlier day in the Assembly as to the intention of the Government to issue stamps portraying Lord Plumer, Colonel Amery, and Monsignor Canon Ignazio Panzavecchia, was apparently "writ sarcastic." We sincerely hope the Minister concerned will give all proposals for new stamps his very best consideration—and then turn them down with a dull thud.

Malta has had enough rope in this direction lately. The journals containing this information all come from our kind Malta correspondent, Mr. J. F. Darmanin. A Krag Stamping Machine has been purchased in order that correspondence may be postmarked with the addition of cancellations advertising the island. A circular "British Empire Exhibition, 1924" cancellation, with a lion in the centre, is at present in use.

Mesopotamia—Iraq.—The new stamps are the work of Messrs. Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., Ltd., and sheets of all values bear their imprint, with the exception of the 3a, Arch of Ctesiphon. Mr. R. Roberts draws our attention to this.

Palestine—Trans-Jordania.—In view of its present independent status this district will apparently have to become a "main-heading" in the next catalogue. Meanwhile there is a new issue to chronicle every month. To commemorate the grant of self-government, certain sets of Palestine stamps have been overprinted with a three-line Arabic inscription, and Messrs. Whitfield King & Co. state that 240 sets were thus treated, 216 of which were distributed among Government officials. This does not quite agree with other information available. One reader states that the issue was for one day only, and that there is a scarcity of them on the spot. He understands that the whole of the remainder, including sheets with double impression, misplaced surcharge, etc., has been purchased by a dealer in Jerusalem who is sitting on them, but this latter piece of information may possibly apply to the earlier provisionals, and not to the independence issue. Another correspondent states that he has received a set purchased at the G. P. O., Amman, on June 24th, the description of which agrees with that of the set described by Messrs. Whitfield King. Of course, there may be two Independence sets, and we shall be glad to have further information and to receive specimens for inspection, before we attempt to list them.

The O.P.D.A. and H.J.Z. Revenues are to be replaced by permanent Revenue stamps.

Sarawak.—Mr. Ho Hong Soon writes that there is an interesting variety in the 10c blue, in the current portrait type, all the stamps in the sixth vertical row having the word "POSTAGE" at right and the line below it double. The specimen before us shows clear traces of this, and the variety is, of course, also found in the 1c on 10c Provisional recently chronicled. In the "TWO CENTS" provisional listed last month, there were two different types of "w" in "TWO," the first type used for the first to eighth rows and the second for those of the ninth and tenth rows.

Straits Settlements—Trengganu.—Mr. C. D. Twynham informs us that there is no immediate intention of issuing 6c, 12c and 35c stamps, though these are now the rates most frequently required.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

Belgium.—The handsome new stamp issued in aid of disabled soldiers has, says Mr. P. Massez, been printed to the extent of one million copies.

Colombia.—Though the Air stamps of this country are issued by a private company operating under Government license, they have a thoroughly official status, and may possibly have to be included in the catalogue eventually. Meanwhile collectors of Air-post stamps will be glad to have the following information, kindly given us by General Ridgway. May, 1923. New issue. Design slightly changed from previous series, now showing a waterplane instead of an aeroplane. Printed in Hamburg. Overprinted "A,"; 5c, yellow; 10c, bright green; 15c, red; 20c, grey (overprint in red and also in black); 30c, deep blue; 50c, deep green. A feature of interest concerning these Colombian Air stamps is that they are affixed to correspondence coming from abroad, in addition to the ordinary postage stamps of the country concerned and correspondence so franked completes the last stage of its journey by Air. The "A" overprint on the series described above indicates that the country of origin is Germany.

Costa Rica.—Señor G. Noriega kindly informs us that two new sets will shortly appear, one to commemorate the centenary of the birth of ex-President Dr. Jesus Jimenez, whose portrait has figured on several stamps of the 1901, 1907 and 1910 series, while the other will be a definite issue to replace the series of 1910. The former will include stamps of 1, 2, 4, 5 and 20 cent, and 1 colon, while the latter consists of the same values with the addition of 3, 10, 12 and 40c stamps.

Greece.—The set of 56 provisionals issued to commemorate the Revolution is rather a heavy philatelic dose to swallow, but many of the stamps have been overprinted in small quantities and are not likely to trouble the ordinary collector. Mr. P. J. Drossos states that the 56 varieties listed by us are the only ones officially authorized and issued. Many other stamps of Crete were overprinted, but they were ordered to be destroyed, so that if any of them come on the market they can only be the result of leakage and cannot be regarded as issued varieties. Applicants at the Post Offices only received five or ten stamps of each kind that happened to be available, while 500 complete sets were sold to collectors and dealers. An official list of the quantities overprinted is expected shortly.

Holland.—From a report of a case in the Dutch courts, regarding an alleged overcharge for the imperf. stamps issued recently, sent us by Mr. Gordon Wimberley, we learn that these varieties were issued as a result of a strike at the works of Messrs. Enschedé, the Government printers. Giving evidence, the adviser to the Postmaster-General stated that 15,000 of each of the two values were issued, and all post-offices were circularized informing them of the reason for the issue. Another witness, President of the Dutch Bond of Philatelists, estimated their philatelic value at one florin each.

Japan.—A reader informs us that the inscriptions on the recently issued commemoratives read (upper label) "Crown Prince's visit to Taiwan" (lower corners), "Commemorative" (lower label) "Japanese Post" and the value.

J. E. GUEST VISITS BEVERLY.

The Beverly office of the WEEKLY was favored on August 22 with a visit from J. Eustace Guest of Dallas, Tex., Sales Superintendent of the American Philatelic Society. Mr. Guest attended the convention at Washington and extended his trip north, including a visit to his brother who is located in Beverly, where he is pastor of the M. E. Church. Mr. Guest was warm in his praise of the success of the Washington convention.

HARDING MEMORIAL STAMP.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The Harding memorial stamp will go on public sale on Sept. 1, 300,000,000 of the stamps having been ordered from the Bureau of Engraving by Postmaster-General New. After Sept. 1 requisitions from postmasters for two-cent stamps will be filled up to Dec. 8 with black and white memorial stamps.

The first sheet of the new stamps to be run off the press will be presented to Mrs. Harding, with a special mounted die proof prepared from the master die. The first stamps produced after what is expected to be a record-breaking run by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing will be put on sale at Marion. Stamps will also be on sale to collectors at the Philatelic agency of the Post-office Department.

The issuance of a Presidential memorial 2-cent stamp is a precedent. Hitherto only one dead President has been immediately memorialized with a special seal. Soon after the death of President Lincoln a 15-cent mourning stamp was issued in his honor. Even the regulations of the Postal Union have been waived to print the Harding stamp. One of the agreements of the union is that the first letter rate of postage in all signatory countries shall be printed in red. Postmaster-General New recently cabled the headquarters of the union at Berne, Switzerland, advising of the temporary change of color.

The Harding stamp will be of the same size and shape as the regular two-cent stamp, with a profile portrait of the President within an oval, over which appear the words "United States postage." The portrait used is a reproduction of a copper-plate etching made of the President a few weeks before he started on the Alaskan tour. It was his favorite engraving. In the upper left-hand corner will appear the date 1865 and in the upper right-hand corner the date 1923. A deep black line will edge the stamp.

The stamp engraving will be one of the best produced in the United States, according to those who have seen the artist's proof. Its distinctiveness will obviate confusion with the black stamp in the current denominations, the seven-cent McKinley stamp.

Sales of the new 8-cent airplane stamp during the first day of the issue amounted to $1,500, Postmaster-General New announced today. Members of the American Philatelic Society, who are in convention here, purchased the entire amount. None of these stamps will be used in the transportation of mail, but will be placed in collectors' books or sold to other collectors. The sale more than doubles the entire cost of engraving and producing the new stamp.—N. Y. Times.

ST. KITTS-NEVIS, 1890-1922.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

XIX. Unfair Discrimination.

Coincident with the issue of the new series of stamps in the Presidency, collectors and dealers who had been in the habit of remitting direct to the local Post-offices for supplies, were informed by the Postmaster that in future they should send their orders to a local stamp vendor.

A letter of complaint addressed to the Administrator questioning the validity of such action brought forth the statement that the ruling was one which had the approval not only of the Presidency administration, but also the Governor of the Colony, and the Colonial Office.

> "Administrator's Office,
> ST. KITTS, WEST INDIES,
> 20th October, 1920.
> Sir:—
>
> I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 6th. October, and to inform you that the action taken by the Postmaster of this Presidency is that directed by the Governor of the Leeward Islands and the Secretary of State for the Colonies.
>
> I have the honor to be,
> Sir,
> Your obedient servant
> J. A. BURDON, > Administrator."

The first notice sent out by the Postmaster made no mention of the ruling having the approval of the Colonial Office, but subsequently, the notice was revised, and took the following form:—

> "IMPORTANT.
> It has been ruled by the Secretary of State for the Colonies that orders for stamps accompanied by remittances are no longer to be sent to the Postmaster of St. Kitts, or the Postmistress of Nevis. These should be sent to a local stamp vendor. Names of vendors are sent herewith.
> GEORGE H. KING,
> Postmaster, St. Kitts,
> 27th September, 1920."
>
> Names of vendors recommended:
> A. M. Losada, Basseterre.
> W. F. Malone, Basseterre.
> E. Pereira, Basseterre.
> Miss L. Todd, Basseterre.

The function of the Post-office is to transact postal business, and the sale of postage stamps to the local individual who passes his 6d over the counter, or to the collector abroad who remits 5s, 10s, or £1, is a part of that business. No line can be drawn. As a matter of fact, there is a clear profit on stamps sold to collectors and dealers abroad, as few of these are ever called upon to do postal duty.

While it is true that postage stamps are not issued to accommodate stamp collectors, the Post-office should endeavor to meet its expenses, and contribute to the general revenue, and in many of the smaller Colonies, the sale of postage stamps alone determine whether there is to be a surplus or deficit on the year's operations.

Colonial Postmasters can refuse to render courtesies to applicants through the post, beyond the supplying of stamps ordered in specific quantities and denominations, but the majority realize that much of the Post-office revenue comes from stamps sold to collectors and dealers, and extend a treatment, leaving little further to be desired.

One case in point is Barbados, where the Post-office serves a population of over 200,000. In the report of the Colonial Postmaster (H. W. Collymore), for 1918, there is a paragraph of considerable interest to collectors, and which incidentally, should serve as an object lesson to others.

"Paragraph 22.—The value of postage stamps sent abroad to collectors during the year was more than £1500. This represents a clear profit to the Government, as few, if any of these stamps are ever used for postal purposes. The putting up of such stamps to go abroad takes up a great deal of the time of two responsible clerks, as the stamps have to be carefully packed, any tear or crease would make a specimen unfit for a collection."

H. F. COLMAN 2ND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

There can be no logical reason for Post-offices refusing to fill orders received through the post when supplies permit. When stock is low, orders from abroad running into large amounts, can be held until stock is replenished. Under such circumstances, in some islands, orders from abroad are acknowledged by the Postmaster, and the remitter advised that the stamps will be dispatched as soon as the new indent is received. This safeguards low stocks much better than placing the whole foreign stamp trade in the hands of local vendors. Local folk can always obtain supplies of stamps, even when stocks are limited, and the opportunities for embarrassing the postal officials are multiplied by such a ruling rather than decreased.

A ruling of this sort enables stamp vendors to secure stamps in quantities, and while local folk have more right, perhaps, to speculate in their own stamp issues, than collectors abroad, the placing of the foreign stamp business in their hands, such as sanctioned by this ruling, creates a position where they may take an unfair advantage of their position. They are permitted to secure their supplies from the Post-office, while remitters from abroad are debarred.

In the Leewards the discount to stamp vendors was 5% (lowered to 2½% in 1922), and no commission was charged by the vendors of St. Kitts for filling orders from abroad.

As the result of the many letters of complaint addressed to the Colonial Office in London, the former practice of supplying stamps was resumed, before the end of the year.

"Downing Street,
29th November, 1920.

Sir,—

I am directed by Viscount Milner to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 6th November, regarding the sale of postage stamps in the Leeward Islands, and to inform you in reply that the Colonial Government has recently been asked to adopt the standing arrangements in other Colonies, which provide that an application from a collector or dealer in stamps for postage stamps in current use, accompanied by a remittance in full, should be complied with by the local Postmaster, if he is able to do so, as with any other applications for stamps on the part of the public.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
G. GRINDLE."

From local sources it was learned that the ruling had been made with the idea of relieving those in charge of the local Post-offices of the extra work required in filling stamp orders. This work requires careful attention, and due to the under-staffed condition of the Post-offices, has to be performed in many cases after office hours.

HONOR CLUB—NEW MEMBERS.

John W. Haarer, Lansing, Mich.
H. C. Flierl, Buffalo, N. Y.
Henry Jonas, Goshen, N. Y.
E. Dixon Ward, Pierre, N. D.
Fred Krueger, Fargo, N. D.
J. M. Wilson, Allentown, Pa.

We are indebted to John W. Haarer of Lansing, Mich., for a five-year renewal of his subscription to the WEEKLY. Mr. Haarer is an old friend of our publication and fearful that he may receive a notice of arrearages while making his "annual trip into British Columbia" he takes time by the forelock with the renewal indicated and thus becomes a member of our Honor Club.

Our mail of August 25 brought us two five-year renewals, one from H. C. Flierl of Buffalo, N. Y., and the other from Henry Jonas, Goshen, N. Y. Mr. Flierl uses one of our renewal slips and makes the remittance in a very matter-of-fact manner. Mr. Jonas called at our Portland office where he informed Mr. Jewett that he had been a constant subscriber for years and was a subscriber to the Weekly Philatelic Era in its palmy days. We welcome these new members to our Honor Club.

On August 27, two more five-year renewals were received, one from E. Dixon Ward, Pierre, S. D., and the other from Fred Krueger, Fargo, N. D. We thank the two Dakotas for these evidences of appreciation. Mr. Ward would part with $10 rather than lose the WEEKLY for a year. Mr. Krueger has four years yet due him on his current subscription, so he is now a paid-up subscriber for nine years. It is an endorsement of the WEEKLY that carries with it something emphatic.

As we go to press a five-year renewal is received from J. M. Wilson of Allentown, Pa. We welcome Mr. Wilson to the charmed circle. What we have written of Mr. Flierl will apply to Mr. Wilson.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF HAYTI.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

The next move of philatelic interest was the establishment in 1866 of a British post-office at Jacmel—the most important town in the republic after the capital itself. The British stamps used here may be at once distinguished by the postmark. This consists of a transverse oval obliterator containing "C 59," with three heavy bars of unequal length above and below, and two thinner bars at each side. The following list of the known varieties with this particular cancellation is taken from Gibbons catalogue though we have arranged the various stamps in the order in which they are listed by Scott, viz.:—

1858, 2d deep blue (Scott's No. 31), Plate 9.
1864, 1d rose red (Scott's No. 33), Plates 87, 95, 122, 136, 137, 139, 150, 152, 157, 159, 160, 166, 171, 181, 186, 187, 192, 200.
1862, 4d vermilion with hair lines (Scott's No. 34a).
1865, 4d vermilion (Scott's No. 43), Plates 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14.
1865, 1s green (Scott's No. 48), Plate 4,
1867-69, 3d rose (Scott's No. 49), Plates 5, 6, 8, 9, 10.
" 6d dull violet (Scott's No. 50).
" 6d bright violet (Scott's No. 51). Plates, 8, 9.
" 9d bistre (Scott's No. 52).
" 10d red brown (Scott's No. 53).
" 1s green (Scott's No. 54), Plates 4, 5, 6, 7.
" 2s blue (Scott's No. 55).
1867, 5s rose (Scott's No. 56), Plates 1, 2.
1870, ½d dull rose (Scott's No. 57), Plates 4, 5, 6, 10, 11, 15.
1869, 2d blue (Scott's No. 58), Plates 13, 14, 15.
1870, 1½d dull rose (Scott's No. 59), Plate 3.
1872-73, 6d brown (Scott's No. 60), Plates 11, 12.
" 6d gray (Scott's No. 61).
1873-74, 3d rose (Scott's No. 62), Plates 11, 12, 14, 16, 17, 18.

1880, 4d gray brown (Scott's No. 75).
" 1s salmon (Scott's No. 76).
" 2s pale brown (Scott's No. 77).
1880-81, 1d red brown (Scott's No. 79).
" 1½d red brown (Scott's No. 80).
" 2d lilac rose (Scott's No. 81).
" 4d gray brown (Scott's No. 84).

In 1870 a British post-office was opened in the capital, Port au Prince, and the British stamps used here may be at once distinguished by the cancellation which is of similar type to that used at Jacmel but contains the number "E 53." According to Gibbons' catalogue the following British stamps were used at this office:—

1864, 1d rose red (Scott's No. 33), Plates 87, 154, 167, 171, 174, 193, 202, 206, 209, 210, 218.
1865, 4d vermilion (Scott's No. 43), Plates 11, 12, 13, 14.

These post-offices were closed in 1881 when Hayti issued its own postage stamps.

Hayti joined the Universal Postal Union in July, 1881, and in the same month its first set of postage stamps, comprising six different values, was issued. These were imperforate but in the following year stamps of a similar type were issued with perforation. This same design, with slight modifications as regards the 1c, 2c and 5c continued in use until 1887, when four values showing the portrait of President Salomon appeared. In 1890 the first provisional was issued and in 1891 a new design was introduced for all except the 20c denomination. Another 2c provisional appeared in 1892 and in the following year a new version of the "palm tree" design, including a 20c, was placed on sale. In 1896-98 the colors were changed, and slight alterations in the design show that new plates were used for this series. In 1898 Hayti settled down to the business of issuing stamps in real earnest. It was quite a busy year and commenced with the issue of more 2c provisionals; then a whole set was printed in a new design—of which only two values were actually issued—and finally a very "fine and large" set in two designs and comprising no less than twelve different values made its appearance.

In 1899, the 1c, 2c and 5c were issued in Postal Union colors, and in 1902 all denominations were suitably overprinted to show the advent of a Provisional Government. The year 1904 was another busy one for not only were two separate sets issued—one for regular use and one to commemorate the centenary of the Republic's independence—but both also appeared with a special overprint. In 1906 there was another orgy of stamp issuing. First of all some 1c and 2c provisionals were issued; then the remainders of the 1898-99 issues were pressed into service for foreign postage by being adorned with a more or less suitable overprint; four new stamps were supplied for domestic use, and a set of no less than twelve different denominations in nine distinct designs was issued for use on letters sent out of the country. In 1907-08 a number of different 1c and 2c provisionals were issued while in 1910-11 four new stamps for foreign and two for domestic postage were issued. In 1912 two new stamps for internal use and one for exterior postage made their appearance and in 1913 seven denominations were issued in the designs of 1906 but in new colors. On February 7, 1914, General Orestes Zamor became President and he ordered all the stamps then current, as well as many obsolete issues which were still in stock, to be overprinted with a handstamp consisting of his initials and the date of his taking office. Shortly afterwards a new issue was ordered from New York six values of which bore the portrait of Zamor but as a large quantity of these stamps were stolen while in transit from the printers to the republic they were never placed on sale.

In October, 1914, about two months after United States forces had taken charge of affairs in Hayti—an outbreak of surcharging commenced which grew into a calamitous flood by the end of 1919. Stocks of all sorts of issues were resuscitated and converted into provisional stamps of low denominations and while it is said that they were necessitated by legitimate postal demands and were all free from speculation we "have our doubts." Certainly the sale of these provisionals, culminating in their quick exhaustion and the issue of new varieties in an almost endless chain, was due to the presence of interested collectors on the spot and we imagine a very small proportion of those issued were ever used for the purpose for which they were said to be so sorely needed—local and internal postage. Our opinion is that most of them were quite unnecessary and only the fact that they were issued more or less under United States auspices gives them any standing at all.

In April, 1920, the issue of a new permanent series brought an end to this orgy of overprinting and completes Hayti's philatelic story to date.

STAMPS OF THE DETROIT MATCH WORKS.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

D. M. RICHARDSON.

Red—1c—Black.

Statements contained in the correspondence between H. E. Pierce and E. B. Sterling, given in the article on the Pierce Match stamp indicate that the factory which was later known as the Detroit Match Works and which grew to be one of the largest factories of the country, was first started by a company of four men, one of whom was H. E. Pierce, early in 1855. The correspondence indicates that the first firm was called J. W. Hibbard & Co., but there is no information directly connecting D. M. Richardson with this firm.

In one of his letters Pierce states: "The company failed. * * * A few years after they started up again called the Richardson Mfg. (Match) Co." In a later letter Pierce stated "D. M. Richardson Co. I think started the next year after J. W. Hibbard & Co., or 1856."

There are many references to this firm in the early directories. The proprietor was David M. Richardson and for many years, commencing as early as 1869, the firm maintained an office in Chicago at 13 Michigan Avenue, H. W. Durant being their agent. The factory was at Woodbridge Street at corner of 8th Street in Detroit.

The first 1c die used by this firm was the first die approved for any match manufacturer and the 1c stamps printed in red were among the first private die stamps issued, if they were not, in fact, the very first. The frame work of this die was later used, in whole or in part, for several other match stamps,—in particular the Farr-Hotchkiss series, which the Richardson stamps greatly resemble; also the Brown & Durling and the Henning & Bonhack stamps, but on these latter two only the upper part of the frame was adapted from the 1c D. M. Richardson.

Regarding the red stamps the Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, June 3, 1864.
First issued, Aug. 4, 1864.
Last issued, March, 1865.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
3,675,000 issued on old paper.

The design forms a rectangle of the standard 1c size. The lower portion contains a circular disk bearing a nearly fullfaced portrait of Mr. Richardson, which is surrounded by a colored band inscribed "D. M. Richardson" above and "Detroit, Mich." below. Following the curve of this band in the lower corners of the stamp are two labels; the one at the left inscribed "Friction" and the one at the right inscribed "Matches." Above the portrait disk is a small oval panel inscribed "1 ct." with "One" at left and "Cent" at right in small colorless capitals. The top of the stamp is formed by a curved band, the ends reversed and terminating in acanthus leaves. Each encloses a small colored disk, the one at the left inscribed "U." and that at the right bearing "S." The band reads "Inter. Revenue." Acanthus ornaments at the upper sides and triangular devices in the lower corners complete the design.

In connection with this stamp the following letter from Butler & Carpenter to Mr. Richardson, dated September 17, 1864, cannot but be of interest.

"Your favor of the 14th inst. is at hand. We regret that you are not satisfied with the color wherein your one cent stamp is printed. You directed it to be a light red, something like a faded three cent Postage stamp enclosed. We printed what we believed to be a much richer and more brilliant color. We beg to say that so light a red would not appear at all well on your stamp; and all these rose-pink colors fade very rapidly on exposure to air and sun. Hence another reason for making your color a deeper red; as it will soften with time. * * * The One Cent proof you return us is in black and we will henceforth print your plate in that color as you desire. We have no recollection of receiving a black one cent stamp in your favor of the 17th ult., but only the light, pale red Postage stamp. We presumed you therefore meant to have the one cent in a light red, and the three-cent in a bright red to distinguish it from the pale red of the one cent. * * * However, there is but a month's supply, about, of your One cent stamps on hand and you will, therefore, soon exhaust it."

The black stamps had hardly gotten into use when Mr. Richardson concluded that, after all, he preferred the red ones and, upon so advising Butler & Carpenter he received the following reply, dated March 17, 1865.

"We are sorry not yet to be able to carry out your instructions to print your stamp in red. If you remember you expressly objected to that color when we printed it and desired black to be used instead. * * * As it is we have upwards of 5,000,000 yet on hand in black. We regret not to have anticipated your change of opinion as it is much easier and more economical to print in red than black although it is due to candor to state that yr-stamp appears to much greater advantage in the latter than in the former hue."

This settled the matter and the use of the black stamp was continued.

This die was engraved by Butler & Carpenter in Philadelphia and the entir issue—17,500 sheets—was printed ther There may have been two or even thre plates, but probably there was only on

One may readily believe that when th stamps were printed many of them wer truly beautiful, because the design i well balanced and not unattractive, bu the color of the specimens usually see is very dull and appears considerabl faded. Copies showing any brilliancy ar exceptional and the usual color may b described as a dull rose or very pal lake. Perfection copies are rare, th great majority of the specimens in ex istence not being finely centered an usually having other defects.

Pairs are unknown to the presen writer and it is doubtful if the stam was ever used in multiple.

Old time prices indicate that the 1c red was considered nearly, or fully as scarce as its companion, the 3c vermilion, which would agree with the writer's experience. From 1902 until 1920, however, the 3c stamp was priced a little more than twice as much. The 1c stamp has never been common among collectors. Sterling quoted it at $8.00 in 1888. The Scott quotations were:

1894-1895,	$10.00
1896-1898,	8.00
1900-1920,	7.00
1922,	10.00

1c Black.

The first printings of this stamp were made from the same plate or plates that printed the 1c red. Later, on account of the large quantity issued, it became necessary to make additional plates and the total number of plates was probably about ten or twelve. These plates were all made in Philadelphia and all the stamps were printed there by the Carpenter firm.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

First issued, March, 1865.
Last issued, Aug., 1875.
56,670,267 issued on old paper.
59,010,990 issued on silk paper.

Headquarters for Colonials, [eow1
FORREST SHREVE, CARMEL, CALIF.

Commencing with April, 1875, all nps from this and the 3c plate were or-ed by The Richardson Match Co., ugh the change in the dies was not e until December of that year."

either of these stamps is known to have used in multiple, and pairs or larger iples are extremely unusual. Both eties have been very common for y years, but in recent years the easing demand for finer condition brought about an enhancement in the e of the old paper variety. Owing he large number of these stamps ted it is quite possible that this p existed on the experimental silk r of 1870 and on the several varie- of old paper used about that time.

Vermilion—3c—Blue.

his strikingly beautiful adhesive is he form of an upright rectangle of standard 3c size. In the center is oval containing a portrait of Mr. ardson similar to that found on the stamps. Surrounding the portrait is a colorless band inscribed "D. Richardson" above and "Detroit, igan" below. A doubly curved crossing the top of the stamp s "U. S. Inter. Rev.," and straight ls at the sides of the stamp read ction" at the left and "Matches" at ight. A curved panel at the bottom he stamp is divided by a small cir- disk bearing a colorless numeral 3 on the curved band we read "Three" he left of the numeral and "Cents" he right. The background between panels bearing the inscriptions is in with heavy horizontal lines and our corners of the stamp are com- of entwined scrolls. To see this p is to love it.

garding the early printing of this p, in vermilion, the Boston Book the following data:—

approved, Sept. 22, 1864.
st issued, Sept., 1864.
t issued, Feb., 1865.
stamps per sheet (17x10).
,000 issued on old paper.

the same letter of September 17, 6 previously quoted, Butler & Car- r wrote to Mr. Richardson:

e have stopped your * * * 3 cent r red, which will be printed hence- in a light blue. * * * The mistake e red for both stamps (as we under- it) has made us strengthen and n the red of the 3 cent stamp, more, bably, then you intended."

is stamp has always been extremely ar with collectors. While it has been common yet neither has it so rare that only collectors of derable means could afford it. Un- edly the brilliant color in which it printed has had much to do with opularity. The present writer can- ecall ever having seen a copy which de from the wear and tear in- t to the way in which the stamp used—did not look as though it had printed the day before yesterday. bably its actual scarcity has been what overrated. For many years s priced as high, or higher, than private die stamps which, in point of available supply, were much scarcer, but this high price is justified by the greater popularity, i.e., demand, for the stamp. The 3c "red" Richardson is certainly much commoner than the Bauer & Beudel match on silk paper, or the Burhans on silk paper, or the L. G. Hunt match on full silk paper, or the Wilmington Parlor match on full silk paper, or the green Zisemann-Griesheim, and other scarce match stamps, yet a study of the older catalogs, by those who reckon scarcity by price, seems to give a false idea of the scarcity of the Richardson stamp.

Unfortunately it is extremely difficult to obtain a really fine copy. About 90% of these stamps are more or less off center and they frequently have tears and other defects. The writer has probably seen less than thirty different copies and while a very patient searcher might be able to find fifty different copies, the hunt for them might require fifty years.

The entire issue of this stamp comprised 5,000 sheets and was engraved and printed by the Carpenter firm in Philadelphia. Probably all the vermilion stamps were from the first plate. There were less than one-quarter as many of the 3c vermilions issued as of the 1c red, but there is little difference in their relative scarcity. The stamp is not known to have been used in multiple and the writer has yet to see his first pair, strip or block.

In 1888 Sterling priced the stamp at $8.00. The Scott quotations have been

1894-1895,	$12.50
1896-1898,	8.00
1900-1901,	7.00
1902-1922,	15.00

3c Blue.

In regard to the blue 3c stamp inscribed "D. M. Richardson" the Boston Book gives the following data:—

First issued, Feb., 1865.
Last issued, Aug., 1875.
32,408,210 issued on old paper.
25,289,806 issued on silk paper.

In all probability the first printings in blue were from the plate previously used for the 3c vermilion, but the large quantity of blue stamps issued indicates that later it became necessary to make more plates and probably the total number of plates used for the stamps was about seven. All these plates were made in Philadelphia and all the stamps were printed by the Carpenter firm.

As would be expected from the length of time it was in use and the large number printed, the stamps vary considerably in shade. Copies on old paper are frequently in the dull blue with a slight greenish cast common to the Carpenter printings of blue stamps, but both lighter and darker shades are to be found, and although no copies have been noted by the writer the stamp probably existed on experimental silk paper. The printing in light blue on thick paper which was probably made about 1870 is quite scarce.

The silk paper is commonly found in a darker blue than any of the old paper shades but also exists in a light blue and is rarely found in an entirely different light shade, which is much brighter and suggests ultramarine. This is undoubtedly the shade listed as ultramarine blue in the reference list of the Boston Book and is probably responsible for the belief that the 3c Richardson stamp exists in ultramarine. As the true ultramarine pigment was used only in the fall of 1869 and the silk paper did not come into use until the late summer or early fall of 1871, two years later, it is difficult to see how this stamp on silk paper could exist printed in the true ultramarine. It is quite possible, of course, that there was a printing in ultramarine on old paper but no record of any copies that fulfill the requirements of this printing has been found.

The stamp is not known to have been used in multiple and the writer has no record of any pairs or strips on either paper.

The 1888 edition of Sterling's catalog prices the old paper at 50c and the silk paper at 20c. The Scott prices have been

	Old	Silk
1894-1898,	$ .20	$ .10
1900,	.20	.12
1901,	.20	.15
1906-1922,	.50	.25

Really fine copies on old paper are not common to-day, and the catalog prices may be considered rather low.

3c Essay.

At one time Mr. Richardson contemplated using a long "strip" stamp of the 3c denomination. The Boston Book states that the order for this stamp was given and the die was engraved but though it is possible that the plate was made, no impressions, other than proofs, were ever printed in this design.

Die proofs of this essay are found in various colors. The design is very handsome and, in the writer's opinion, is truly equal to that of any of the "strip" stamps. It measures ⅝ inches tall and 7⅛ inches long and may be considered to consist of five sections. Each end of the stamp is composed of an upright shield bearing a large colorless numeral 3. The center of the stamp contains a circular disk with a portrait of Mr. Richardson, similar to that found on the issued stamps but with the background around the head almost entirely removed. At either side of the portrait disk and following its curve is a colored label inscribed in colorless capital at the left "Friction" and at the right "Matches." The body of the stamp consists of two large shaded panels with irregular borders composed of ornate acanthus scroll work. These panels join the shields at either end to the central portions of the stamp and are inscribed in two lines of large colorless capitals. The left panel reads "D. M. Richardson—Detroit, Mich." and the right panel reads "U. S. Inter. Revenue—Three Cents." The design is filled out profusely with floriate ornaments.

The following, copied from Mr. Carpenter's Journal, is a concise history of this essay:

"1870, July 27, Engraving to D. M. Richardson.

For profit & loss on latter's order; he having withdrawn order & compromised for $175. on the die. Should he ever use the plate he is to pay $175.00 for it, $175.00."

EDITORIAL.

When one starts out to furnish a story that the newspapers will take up as carrying sufficient information, innovation or human interest, the task is almost always fore-doomed to failure. Hits of the kind usually are spontaneous and are based on a genuine and not an artificial feeling; and they are not premeditated attempts to gain publicity for advertising or personal reasons. When Mr. Howard C. Beck addressed the convention of the American Philatelic Society at Washington recently and said that it had been decided to spare the President of the United States the time and effort necessary to shake hands with the delegates, he was animated by the best of motives and he did not forecast in mind the consequences of his commendable resolution. First of all, the Washington papers reported the decision as an item of news and then came the deluge of editorials in newspapers throughout the country telling of the considerateness of the members of the American Philatelic Society in foregoing their moment of glory in grasping the hand of President Coolidge. From all parts of the country the tidings come in commendation of the action and if ever a society has been the recipient of favor and fortune in a newspaper sense, it is the A. P. S.; and the harvest has been the result of the gracious deed of Mr. Beck and his associates of the convention city. When the Baltimore News published an editorial on the subject, Mr. Beck told the paper of his appreciation of the notice, whereupon the editor wrote to Mr. Beck saying that he hopes "a great many other organizations will follow your splendid lead."

From Mr. W. G. Windhurst, Marion, Ohio, we have received word that the Harding memorial stamps will be on sale only at the Marion office on September first and he comments on the lateness of the WEEKLY in telling of the new stamps. Our correspondent, Mr. Ward, was informed of the news before it was allowed to be released but he was not permitted to give it to us in advance of the date it was to be told to the papers. As a consequence, there was the inevitable delay in getting it to our readers who, of course, read of the decision of the authorities in their newspaper before the WEEKLY could get in action.

Mr. Eugene Klein writes that he is now in Italy on the way to the Vienna exhibition; and he hopes to send us a report of the display. Mr. Klein's trip has given him a chance to acquire a number of rarities, including "a pair of Campeche 25c used together with a Mexico, 1874 issue 100c on original cover."

* * *

Every now and then, an article clipped from the lay press involves us in more or less embarrassing explanations. Usually the objection that is made is lodged against the ignorant surmises or opinions that are expressed, but occasionally it is a more serious charge that comes in for condemnation. In the issue of August 4th, we reprinted an article from the Industrial Worker on Postage Stamps and Progress, in which the pictures of some of the past presidents of the United States were called a gallery of "second rate citizens." In consequence, we have the following letter from Mr. E. W. Clarke of Pleasantville, N. Y.:" Referring to the enclosed clipping, I beg to take most emphatic exception to the sentiments expressed therein. I am very much surprised that you allowed such disrespectful language to get by your blue pencil. To call the past presidents of the U. S. 'second rate citizens' and to couple the names of an agitator, a crank and a banker who in his way did good work for the country, with the name of the presidents is absolutely inexcusable. In execution and design the present issue is so far ahead of the monstrosities that Mr. Smith lauds as showing progress that the article is stamped at once as being the work of a crank and the paper from which you took it is futile evidence of the propaganda spirit that it shows. I feel that you should apologise to your readers for inadvertently publishing such a piece, unless you feel that it really represents the ideas of your editorial office, which I would and will regard as being the case if you ignore this protest. I am sending a copy of this letter to Mr. Heyerman at the A. P. S. convention with the suggestion that he bring it to the attention of a representative of vour paper and to the convention if he thinks proper." In its wish to encourage printed references to collecting in outside papers, we record in the aggregate a wide variety of publicity; and if we remember rightly, we took something from the Industrial Worker once before. We can see how the article with its joker in a few lines slipped in and it is not necessary for us to say that the expression is not countenanced in an editorial sense. In fact, we distinctly repudiate and reprobate it; and we are glad to set right those who may feel that we should stand back of the comments of others when they are embraced in material that we take from all sorts of papers that notice stamp collecting. This is a large contract to enforce but at any rate, we are pleased to scotch the belittling words that Mr. Clarke cites. It is a puzzle to tell how the original and the reprinted matter in a newspaper should be differentiated between in the mind of the reader and we shall not try just now to describe what the remove is between the original and the reprinted material.

Some weeks ago we deplored the fact that an editorial writer in the Hearst newspapers while speaking with a sympathetic regard for stamp collecti asked if anybody collected stamps nov adays. We felt that the writer who theory keeps his finger on the pulses the people of the world should not ha known that philately was still extar The writer of the first editorial no sponsors another in which the amen honorable is made but we are perplexe as before by the tergiversation, as seems to us, of the editorial mind. Wh the first editorial, Stamp Magic, a peared on July 27th, a reader of o paper sent the editor, who sounded t knell of stamp collecting, a copy of t WEEKLY for July 28th. The writer (whom we gave our attentions in o issue of August 11th), in a second ed torial weaves an interesting editori about Barbuda and other countri whose very names sound remote. T writer of the editorial says that h correspondent undertakes to enlighte him about "what he calls 'the philatel vote'." Then he proceeds to say th interest in stamp collecting "accordin to this authority" has waxed so gre that "the chances of a recent candida for president who announced that h will not permit any changes in the a pearance of postage stamps are alread hopeless on account of the oppositio of the 'philatelic vote'." Here is a flaw less example of obtuseness on the pa of a great and good man and in orde that readers may appreciate the work ings of the editorial mind when grapplin with a subject that is eel-like in it slipperiness, we must beg the pardon o readers for reprinting the WEEKLY edi torial of July 28th that gives color to th heading "The Philatelic Vote," and t the surprising statements of the writer On second thought if our raillery is ac cepted as a statement of fact by the con fiding editorialist we have overshot ou mark but it cannot be that the obviou is ignored to that extent and we suspect that in some subtle way the edito is having fun with us. We are pleased that the editor is wise and fair enoug to say that he lives and learns.

The editors of the Smart Set are running for president and vice-president o a rip-snorting platform whose planks ar somewhat full of splinters. One of th promises made by the candidates is they "promise on their sacred words o honor to leave the postage stamps alone and not to have the faces on them changed constantly, as at present." Here is where these babes in the political wood sit in the poison ivy. They alienate the philatelic vote and sign a testimonial

HON. E. R. ACKERMAN SAFE.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Carl S. Davis informs us of the death of Mrs. Ferd. Jornes, wife of Ferd. Jornes A. P. S. 5602, of Kansas City, Mo. Mrs. Jornes took quite an interest in stamps and several years ago managed a stamp office in Kansas City near the Armory where her husband was stationed.

—Any stamp club wishing a file of the WEEKLY from May, 1921, to date can have the same by applying to M. M. Wolf, 1614 N. Payson St., Baltimore, Md.

—Eugene Klein, the well known Philadelphia dealer, is on a visit to Switzerland. We are in receipt of a card of greeting from him postmarked Basle bearing a Swiss airmail stamp and cancellation.

—We have received a new advertising cancellation from Savannah, Ga. It reads:—"Tri-State Exposition, Savannah, Georgia, Oct. 27-Nov. 3."

—A new advertising cancellation has appeared from St. Louis, Mo.:—"Third National Aero Congress, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 1-2-3."

—Gilbert S. Perez informs us that Fabian de la Rosa, one of the best known of Philipino artists, has been asked to submit designs for a new issue of Philippine stamps. A fund of 10,000 pesos has been authorized for preliminary expenses.

—Through the kindness of J. A. Urquhart we have received an air-mail letter through the experimental night air-mail flight. The cover in question bears the dated postmark "San Francisco, Cal. Aug. 21, 6 A. M." and "New York, N. Y. Rec'd. Aug. 23, 3 P. M." and a local Beverly marking "Aug. 24, 7.30 A. M." Upon the face of the envelope is the rubber stamped device of the air-mail service of the winged circles. This is a first-tripper.

—F. B. Fuller of Balboa, Canal Zone, sends us particulars concerning the 2c Panama provisional but nothing additional in the way of news to what has already been inserted.

—The New York American recently published a picture of an airmail cover bearing a block of four 2c stamps with a special delivery. The wonder is that a press service such as the United would issue a thing of this kind without realizing that it is an infringement upon the laws.

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By WARNER BATES,
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers who send in specimens for examination will enclose postage (and registration when desired) for the return of their stamps.—Ed.)

The interest in this department seems to be running high and many contributions are coming in. That is fine and seems to indicate that it will be possible to make it a permanent feature of MEKEEL'S. Correspondents should not forget to send specimens, unless their descriptions are explicit and easy to understand. Also, return postage where specimens are enclosed.

Col. F. H. Sargent of St. Augustine, Fla., says: "Referring to your remarks in MEKEEL'S of April 29th relative to Scott's No. 210, I think that the lack of shading on some of the stamps of this issue is due to the amount of ink used. The same thing may be observed in the diagonal lines of the five cent brown, No. 205. Mention is made of Scott's No. 210 in the Collector's Journal for September, 1917, and the two so-called varieties are illustrated. The double transfers of this stamp are described in an article by Dr. William Evans in the December, 1915, number of the same magazine and the article is illustrated by Mr. H. P. Atherton. Fourteen varieties are described.

Here are some extracts from correspondence last January and February between the writer and Dr. William Evans of Norfolk, Va., which will throw a little additional light on the subject of papers of the National, Continental and American issues brought up by Mr. Boggs in a recent number:

Letter from Dr. Evans:

"Dear Mr. Bates:

As to intermediate paper, what you say about it makes me think you refer to the hard paper used for a few printings or a printing or part of one, by the American Bank Note Co. It was described first by Stevenson in the Collector's Journal, later by Wiley in his booklet on the Three Cent Green issued by MEKEEL'S. It exists with both Continental and American imprints and the one, two, three and five cents at least were printed on it. It may have been a left over stock of the Continental or a small supply purchased by the American Company to tide over a temporary shortage. Nobody seems to know anything about it.

There is, I think, no longer any doubt that the Continental Company used a soft paper for a short time in 1878. Covers dated in that year bearing stamps on soft paper exist. I have one with a one and two cent and another with a three cent. Also, two cent off cover showing the year date on stamp.

The American Company evidently did

AIR MAIL COVERS, NIGHT FLIGHTS

What could you add to your collection of more interest philatelically as well as historically than a cover sent from coast to coast during the department's experimental flights? It was difficult to get the letters through, for the postmaster just picked mail at random. In one lot of eight covers just exactly one went through via air mail. In another little lot I was more successful. I have just exactly ten which left New York, August 21st, 9 A. M., and are back stamped San Francisco, Aug. 22nd, 6.30 P. M. For these I want $5.00 each.

Out of twelve from San Francisco, just one got through, postmarked San Francisco, Aug. 21st, 2.30 P. M., and back stamped Phila., Aug. 24th, 8 A. M. For this I want $10.00. When these are gone, where will more be obtainable at any figure? Expect to have some first day covers of the formal service to be inaugurated about Sept. 1st? What do you need?

Collectors and dealers are invited to submit singles, pairs and strips, on or off covers, for inspection. As a rule, single copies should have four margins, but this is not always necessary if the stamp shows one margin over 2mm wide or part of an adjoining specimen.

Items for sale or exchange should be priced—other items submitted merely out of the goodness of one's heart and a desire to help along a most difficult philatelic work need not be priced but will be equally welcome.

If you have any 10c blacks you've reason to be proud of, please drop me a line. [tf

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—In the Postal Bulletin of August 24, 1923, the Third Assistant Postmaster-General, Mr. Warren Irving Glover, officially announces to postmasters that the Harding memorial stamp will be placed on sale on Saturday, September 1, 1923, at the post-office at Marion, Ohio (home of the late President), and at the Philatelic Stamp Agency at Washington, D. C. This stamp will be issued by the Department for a limited period, probably not to exceed 90 days, but those remaining on hand in post-offices after their issuance has been discontinued will be sold to the public until the supply is exhausted and they will be valid for postage until used.

As sufficient quantities of these stamps will not be available for general distribution until after September 1st, postmasters are requested not to submit requisitions to the department for them until after that date. The issue will be limited and is not intended to displace the current 2c red, Washington.

The department describes the stamp as follows:—"It is the same shape and size as the current 2 cent stamp and bears the portrait of Warren G. Harding within an oval and partly enclosed in a panel, which is supported on either side by acanthus scrolls. Above the portrait within a curved panel appear the words 'United States Postage,' in white Roman capital letters. On a ribbon below the oval is the name 'Harding,' and under this at the bottom of the stamp appears the word 'Cents.' In both lower corners within ovals with dark backgrounds is the white numeral '2.' In the upper left hand corner appears the year of birth, '1865,' and in the upper right hand corner the year of death, '1923.' The entire stamp is enclosed within a plain black border. The stamp is printed in black ink."

They will be printed from plates of 400 subjects which will be distributed in post-office panes of 100. It is expected that they will be produced from both the flat plate and the rotary presses which means that we will have the variety perforated both 11 and 10. The stamp will be printed in bank note black the same as the current 7c and will be printed upon unwatermarked paper. It is stated that the first order on the Bureau of Engraving & Printing calls for 300,000,000 stamps.

Since my last Chronicle, the new 24c carmine, airplane stamp, has been issued, the variety having been placed on sale at Washington on Tuesday, August 21, 1923. They were all from plate 14840, the only one completed in time for this date. A full description of the variety was given last week. The series for the night air flights is now completed.

1923, Air Mail Stamps.

8c green (August 15th).
16c blue (August 17th).
24c carmine (August 21st).

The department started its night flights experimentally on August 21st, planes leaving both New York and San Francisco on that date. The plane travelling west reached San Francisco in about 24 hours and covers which I mailed in New York at 9 A. M. August 21st are back stamped San Francisco, August 22nd, 6.30 P. M. No special cancellation was used from New York but the sending and arriving postmark indicate the fact that it travelled by air mail. Mr. R. H. Mower kindly sent me a letter from San Francisco but as the plane coming eastward had trouble it did not reach New York until August 23rd and landed in Philadelphia on the 24th. The San Francisco postmaster on some letters used the insignia of the Air Mail Service as shown on the 16c stamps as a postmark while other letters went through without it. Mr. Jos. A. Steinmetz has shown me a cover from Cheyenne, Wyoming, and in addition to the Air Mail insignia this postmaster stamped the cover "Night and Day Air Mail." In making these experimental flights the department took letters from the regular mail, hence only a 2c postage charge. It is expected that on September 1st, the service will be formally inaugurated when the zone rates for which the air mail stamps were issued will go into effect.

I have had submitted to me for inspection what was supposed to have been a horizontal pair of the 1c, issue of 1902, imperforated between. Careful inspection shows that the variety was not perforated at the Bureau but was made from the imperforated sheet. The pair in question is postmarked "Flemington, N. J., Apr. 29, 6.30 P. M."

Mr. O. J. Olson submitted for inspection a block of fifteen (3x5) of the recent 2c stamp, issue of 1911, wherein a tear in the sheet had been patched at the Bureau by means of a piece of brown paper, this paper being finally perforated and gummed. The bl came from the lower right corner pane 13770.

Philippines.—While at the Bure recently I had the pleasure of insp ing the die and a die proof which h just been approved of a new 16 centa stamp which will shortly be issued. T head of Sampson which has been up this denomination from the first will replaced by a portrait of the Hero Manila, Admiral George Dewey, tak from a photograph by Cleindenct. T proof had been approved by Gene Frank McIntire, Chief of the Bureau Insular Affairs, who has charge of t work. The die was engraved by Mr. Pauling.

COLOMBIA.—Mr. Francis J. Field, Sutton Coldfield, informs us that sin the middle of June the air stamps this Republic have appeared in ne colours. So far he has seen the follow ing, used on envelopes:—

10 centavos dark emerald.
30 centavos blue.
50 centavos blue-green.

We also learn of the appearance o new series of the semi-official adhesiv which were the subject of comment our issue for June 23rd, comprising t following denominations:—

tiful lot of mixing. They printed Continental plates, National Plates eir own. Just what values they from the various plates will be fully known. I have some six evidently printed from National or a National plate, on typical an paper.

Continental Company did an artis- of mixing papers. The hard of or like the National, double paper with silk and some other of fibers, ribbed paper, soft paper o or three kinds of hard paper per with plenty of straw in it. Continental imprint does not al- ean that a stamp bearing it was by that company as the Ameri- ank Note Company used many ntal plates without any changes. the only way to tell a Continental per is by the date on the stamp over—year date."

from the writer to Dr. Evans:
Dr. Evans:

efer, as you suggest, to the hard sed for one or a few printings by rican Bank Note Company. This e "Intermediate" paper. I can- Wiley's reference to it. What ease? I have this stamp on the t blue with the American Bank print but have never seen it with tinental. I don't think it was a stock of the Continental company and yet it may have been. At any rate, I am convinced it was used sometime in 1879 or possibly in 1878-79.

Yes, the Continental people used a soft paper exactly like the American soft paper and used it in 1878. I have copy of the one cent blue dated Nov. 11, 1878, and other copies of other values to indicate this. Of course, a date stamp may have been set wrong and thus a stamp used later than 1878 might bear that year date, but I think enough copies of this variety have been noted to prove pretty conclusively that the soft paper was used before 1879.

What puzzles me is this: If the Continental people started using the soft paper just before the American took over the work, how was it that both the Continental and American companies used the intermediate. It seems quite logical to me that one of these papers should have been used by both companies but it is hard to reconcile the fact that apparently both companies used both kinds. If so, then which kind was the carry-over. Perhaps the Continental used intermediate for a short time, following its use of hard paper and then discarded it for the soft, keeping a stock of the intermediate on hand. Then, perhaps, the American took over the stock of both papers, used up the soft which the Continental people went to at the last, then cleaned up the left-over stock of intermediate, and then secured a fresh stock of soft paper for its subsequent use. What do you think?

Or, it may have been that the Continental never used the intermediate paper but that the American Company printed on it, using plates with the Continental imprint. Unless there are sufficient dated copies in existence to prove that the Continental company used the intermediate paper, I should incline to this opinion.

You say that the American Company printed from National plates. I did not know this, although I have at least the six cent and two cent brown on the soft paper like the American. However, my six cent is undoubtedly a National print and, as far as I know the two cent brown Jackson was not printed by the American people, so I am inclined to believe that the National people used a batch of soft paper. Mr. Krassa, who has shown me National printings on the soft paper, inclines to this opinion, also. What proof have you that the American people used National plates?" (Since writing this the writer has found a number of three cent greens on the "National soft paper").

Letter from Dr. Evans:

"Dear Mr. Bates:

You will find the description of the paper you call intermediate on Page 13 of Wiley's book on the Three Cent Green under the title 'two-in-one' paper. Stevenson mentions it in the Collector's Journal published in Chicago, but I do not recall what number.

I think it is generally conceded that the Continental Bank Note Company used soft paper in 1878. There have been, as you say, enough dated copies found to set aside the probability of error in setting up the date by postmasters or clerks. It is also certain that the American Bank Note Co. used some hard paper. It is found with their imprint. Of course, the imprint of the Continental Co. on this paper does not prove that it was used by that company, as it might have been printed from a Continental plate by the American. Dated copies are again needed to establish that it was used by the Continental Co. Not much of it was used. It is far from common. It is therefore quite likely that it was all used by the American Co. I have never seen a dated stamp on it so far as I remember. I have rather favored the theory that it was part of the Continental stock and carried over for no reason except that most of that company's paper was hard, but that is not very conclusive evidence.

Here is something else to consider. The soft paper was tried by the Continental Company. Not much of it was used by them. It was another of their paper experiments. It probably was not purchased from the same mills that made the hard paper and probably only in a small quantity. They were nearing the time of the amalgamation and perhaps the stock of their regular paper was small and they did not see the necessity for purchasing a new stock or a large stock of any paper. They bought this small quantity of soft paper and it, with what they had on hand of the hard, carried them over to the time when the American Company took over the contract.

It's all theory. In fact, about the paper question is theory and likely to remain so unless the American Bank Note Co. at some future time permits someone to see their records and dig up some facts, which so far they have refused to do.

As to the using of National plates by the American Company, I have no absolute proof. Three or four or possibly five copies of the six cent stamp printed from a National plate on soft paper, about the shade of the other American stamps of this value, or rather part of them are, and one or two are nearer the National shade. I have never seen a two cent brown on soft paper and was not aware that it existed. Consequently, conclude that the six cent was the American printing. That theory seems to be erroneous. It's easily modified. None of my stamps of this kind are dated. It is unfortunate that more careful observations were not made while they were in use. Some of the problems

The Mansion House of Mount Vernon occupies a beautiful site overlooking the Potomac River, sixteen miles south of Washington, D. C. It is of wood, cut and painted to resemble stone. The building, 96x30 ft., has two stories and an attic with dormer windows; the roof is surmounted by a cupola, with antique weathervane. In front extends a piazza 15ft. deep and 25ft. high, with square pillars, and a floor tiled with flags from the Isle of Wight. Two kitchens are connected with the central building by colonnades. In front of the house are shaded lawns, and a deer park below; in the rear are lawns, gardens and orchards, and disposed about the grounds are the outbuildings of a Virginia farm. The main hall of the house extends through from front to back; the six rooms on the first floor are the Banquet Room, Music Room, West Parlor, Family Dining Room, Mrs. Washington's Sitting Room and the Library.

The Mansion House was built in 1743 by Lawrence, half-brother of George Washington. The name of Hunting Creek Estate was changed to Mount Vernon in honor of Admiral Vernon, under whom Lawrence had served against Spain. On the death of Lawrence and of his only daughter, Washington inherited the estate, and came to live here soon after his marriage in 1759. Here he conducted his farm until called to the field of battle; to Mount Vernon he returned after Yorktown, and again after his terms as President; and here he lived in dignified retirement as a private citizen until his death in 1799.

Looking at the above engraving, the window opening into the room in which General Washington died is located just above and to the right of figure No. 12.

The Associations of Washington with the place during his lifetime and the presence of his tomb here made Mount Vernon a shrine of patriotism. When in 1855 John Augustine Washington, being without means to maintain the estate, offered it for sale, a patriotic daughter of South Carolina, Ann Pamela Cunningham, resolved to save the Washington home as a permanent shrine of patriotism. With a high courage, which in its very daring augured success, devoted herself to the tremendous of raising the sum of $200,000 req for the purpose. In 1858 the M Vernon Ladies' Association of the was organized * * * popular port was enlisted. concerning them bid fair never to be solved."

In conclusion, let me say that the paper I call intermediate and which is designated by Wiley as two-in-one ribbed is so pronouncedly different that I feel it should be listed in the general catalogue as a distinct variety of the American printings—perhaps under the name "American hard paper" with a description to distinguish it from the Continental hard paper. Surely it should be noticed in the specialized catalogue. I first called it intermediate because at that time I thought it was the last paper used by the Continental people and then used up by the American, but this name does not seem so good now that I believe it was used by the American Company only. Neither does Wiley's "Two-in-one ribbed," as it is by no stretch of imagination a ribbed paper. "American hard paper" would seem the best cognomen, provided it can be definitely and finally proved that only the American company used it.

All of my copies of this paper in the one cent, or nearly all, are distinctively American printings in the inks used by that company. Likewise, the three cent and the two cent vermilion. But in the six cent, the ink seems more like a Continental printing.

As an example of the confusion which exists regarding this paper, I sent to several large stamp dealers three specimens of the one cent, one a Continental printing, one an American and the other of the American soft paper, asking them to designate the issue. In every case they came back with two of them marked as Continental and the third American. The reason for the error was that the dealers all seem to classify the American hard paper as Continental on account of its hardness.

In a later number I will give a description of some of the stamps mounted in the American hard paper section of my own collection to show how this paper differs from other papers used in the period between 1870 and 1888 and also to list some of the shades found and other differences. At that time I will attempt to show that there is considerable cancellation proof to show that this paper was not used before the American Company took over the printing.

In the meantime, would appreciate it if anyone who can throw any further light on this subject would send in a letter for publication.

CANADIAN NOTES AND NEWS.

By William Butler, Toronto, Can.

The paramount news topic of the month is the establishment of a stamp agency for the sale of postage stamps to collectors by the Canadian Post Office Department. By this action Canada becomes the second country in the world to officially recognize Philately, although it did so some time ago when the Minister of Customs imposed a sales tax (polite name for robbery) of 6% on all consignments of stamps entering the Dominion.

All orders for stamps should be addressed to W. J. Glover, Financial Superintendent, Postage Stamp Division, Post Office Department, Ottawa, Canada, to whom all remittances should be made payable. It is preferable that payment for stamps ordered from the Philatelic Agency should be made by Money Order or Postal Note although express and certified bank checks will be accepted if the latter are made payable at Ottawa without discount. Registration and return postage should be included in each instance except for Canadian orders as they will be sent out under frank.

Stamps for sale by the Canadian Agency:—Present issue, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 10, 20, 50 cents, $1.00; King George, 1c green, 2c red, 5c blue, 10c red-brown; Postage Due, 1, 2, 5c; Special Delivery, 10c, Special Delivery, 20c. Confederation, 3c; 1Tc red, also brown; War Tax, 1 and 2 cents; 1898, 2c Map stamp; Tercentenary 1908, ½, 1, 2, 5, 7, 10, 15, 20c; Postal Union Cards, 2c, Queen Victoria and King Edward; Letter cards, 1, 2c. Queen Victoria, 1897, ½c selling at five (5) cents each.

The obsolete issues are on hand in small quantities only and will be sold in limited amounts. It was expected that when the Philatelic Agency was established that a considerable quantity of the old issues would be recovered from country offices and exchanged for new stamps but up to this time very few have been found, hence the neccessity for the rationing order. Stamps of the present issue will be sold in blocks if desired.

It has been erroneously stated in the philatelic press that the 7 cent stamp had been withdrawn from circulation. This denomination is on sale at all post-offices, and can be obtained on requisition by postmasters.

The new one dollar stamp is on sale generally but contrary to expectations it has appeared in what might be described as a warm shade of orange brown, and not the discarded colour of the two cent stamp—carmine.

A collector in the Weekly reports the current Canadian three cent adhesive in imperforate condition. The Post Office Dept. can suggest no solution just how this stamp got out.

Precancel fans will be glad to learn that all of the four newly issued stamps as well as the dollar value have been precanceled and are now in general use. In this connection I would like to suggest that collectors of these interesting stamps should purchase a copy of Thompson's "Canadian Catalogue of Precancelled Postage Stamps." It covers the field of Canadian precancels thoroughly and is well worth the fifty cents asked for it. The catalogue is obtainable from The Philatelic Publishing Company, 374 Sackville St., Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Canada is making considerable progress philatelically if not otherwise. Local clubs are springing up everywhere but it is particularly noticeable that the collectors of Toronto, the philatelic capital of Canada, are somewhat neglectful in this respect. Co-incident with the appearance of Fred Jarrett's finely printed and illustrated handbook on "Canada" (obtainable of Marks Stamp Co., Toronto, Canada, $1.05), comes a new stamp paper The Kingston Stamp News, published by W. F. Connell at 11 Arch St., Kingston, Ontario, a monthly at 30 cents per year.

The special delivery service in Canada is very unsatisfactory at the present time, the rate having been raised from ten to twenty cents but a short time ago. The new stamp that appeared is much like the service given—very unsatisfactory. Business men state that special delivery letters come long after the regular mail is in and even after business hours. One very large stamp company in this city requests its customers by means of its house organ to refrain from making use of the special delivery on orders as they are thus delayed and owing to a misunderstanding of rates 20 or 40 cents is collected on delivery. Telegrams are a more satisfactory substitute.

A perfectly new cancellation is "Provincial Convention, G. W. V. A., St. Catharines, Ont., Sept. 3rd, 4th and 5th" in four lines, from St. Catharines, a pretty health resort in the Niagara Peninsula 12 miles from the famous Niagara Falls. The Great War Veterans Association is the premier soldier organization of Canada.

The Yorktown Stamp Society, (Saskatchewan) is holding a convention and exhibition in that town Sept. 19-22, 1923. Cups and medals are offered and all stamps exhibited will be insured—The International Exhibition in miniature. Particulars can be obtained from W. H. Porvis, Yorktown, Sask.

DON'T SHOOT THE "SPACE FILLER!"

By James F. Morton, Jr.

The article by Leonard A. Gibbens, attributed in your issue of July 28 to Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly, repeats for the millionth time the supercilious sneer of the "philatelist" against the "space filler." Isn't it nearly time that the poor worm who simply collects album varieties should be permitted a chance for his life?

We mere "general collectors" have long endured in silence the incessant imputation that we are the lunatic fringe of philately and that we exist simply on tolerance. It is seemingly forgotten that we form an immense proportion of the whole body of collectors, and that the dealer would be in a bad way without us. Nor are we all "small boys." The pleasure of gathering varieties of stamps is a hobby with many of us, who have much serious work to do in the world and perhaps other avocations as well outside of our working life. We are not so situated as to be able to concentrate on the close study which is the delight of the specialist; and the technicalities which afford him boundless delight are so much Greek to us. Yet we drink in something from the fount of philatelic knowledge. It is impossible even to seek to "fill spaces" without being constantly brought into contact with problems of color, watermarks, perforations and roulettings, kind and quality of paper and much else; nor do we escape without gradually absorbing a goodly bit of geographic, historic and other incidental knowledge. Then too, every now and then, one of us poor pluggers conceives higher ambitions, and actually develops the ability to graduate into the ranks of the lordly philatelist, leaving the rest of us to worship afar off.

The general collector, too, has his thrills. It is not a matter of mere buying with him, unless he be one of the few wealthy collectors, in which case he is likely to become a specialist, and to indulge his taste in gathering the extreme rarities of which his humbler brother can only read in the philatelic papers. The general collector of small means will, indeed, be tempted to purchase now and then, and to seek bargains which are often less brilliant than they seem. He will make prodigious mistakes, from which he will learn something. If he has not the excitement of attaining at long intervals exceedingly rare variations which raise him into the seventh heaven of ecstasy, he has the lesser but more frequently recurrent pleasure of witnessing the gradual growth of his collection, with every now and then a windfall which brings him an accession as precious to him as the unique specimen to the wealthy specialist. For him, too, there are the delights of exchanging with others of his kind. No doubt his joys are of a humbler sort than those of the specialist; but they are not wholly to be condemned. The "space filler" is not such utter vermin after all. Let him have his "place in the sun," and help to spread the gospel of philately, even though he be unworthy to stand among the chief priests at her altar. Let not collectors of the higher grades exhibit too snobbish an attitude toward those who move in the lower circles.

GIRL DESIGNED NEW IRISH STAMPS.

The new Irish Free State stamps have aroused the enthusiasm of philatelists by their beauty of design. They owe their origin to Millicent Girling, a Waterford girl of 22, who while she has been an art student has found time to qualify as a technical instructor in the Department of Agriculture. She pursued her own studies with such success that she obtained a scholar's scholarship to the Dublin School of Art. This she utilized to such advantage that the commissioners granted her an "extension." Miss Girling's design has the merit of effective simplicity. On a background of shamrock is impaled a shield containing the arms of all the provinces, with "Ireland" in Gaelic above and the value below.

MAFIA MYSTERY SOLVED

By D. B. Armstrong.

Time was when the provisional war stamps of Mafia were solemnly banned "with bell, book and candle" by the High Priests of Philately. To-day they are generally accepted as being at least as legitimate as the majority of their prototypes. They figure now-a-days in most of the leading catalogues, albeit the lists there given are incomplete. The latest edition of Field's War Stamp Catalogue alone recognises the existence of an issue previous to that overprinted on the German fiscal stamps.

War stamp specialists have long been aware that in the early days of the British occupation of Mafia, former postage stamps of German East Africa were provisionally employed there, overprinted with the inscription "G. R. Mafia." A year or two ago a set was sold at auction; there is a set in the Royal collection, and a third in the Imperial War Museum collection of war stamps. Authentic information relating to this particular issue has been lacking, however, and consequently certain philatelists have been inclined to look askance at it.

Through the courtesy of Lt.-Col. J. D. Mackay, first Military Governor of Mafia, the Philatelic Magazine is enabled to lift the veil and to disclose for the first time the true and particular history of this little known series of occupation stamps. The facts are vouched for in a statement signed by Lt.-Col. Mackay, under whose authority the stamps in question were issued.

Mafia Island, off the coast of German East Africa, with its important harbour of Kilindoni, was occupied by British troops as a base of operations early in 1915, and in January of that year Lt.-Col. Mackay took up his duties as Military Governor of the island with its area of 540 sq. miles and population of about 48,000.

First Provisionals.—In the post-office there he found a small supply of "Deutsch Ost Afrika" postage stamps, which he proceeded to overprint "G. R. MAFIA" in two lines of small capitals by means of a handstamp cut out of a piece of India rubber. The overprint was struck indifferently in black or violet ink, and the stamps thus distinguished placed on sale to the public, at face value, on or about January 22nd, 1915. All letters were sent by steamer to Zanzibar, where they were cancelled with the regular postmark of that port, and forwarded to their destinations by the postal authorities there. The original rubber stamp proving unsatisfactory, the Governor, on his next trip to Nairobi, obtained an outfit of metal type, which was used for all subsequent impressions.

The postal arrangements instituted by the Military Governor were subsequently confirmed by the G. O. C. in East Africa.

Numbers Printed.—No account was kept of the exact number of stamps overprinted, but the statement declares that "The complete set consists of ten stamps, i.e., 3 rupee, 2 rupee and 1 rupee: under that value the stamps are in Heller values, i.e., 45, 30, 20, 15, 7½, 4, 2½ heller. As the rupees stamps were very few in number a very liberal estimate gives this complete set issued at about 12 to 15 sets in all, but of the lower values, i.e., 45 heller to 2½, some 40 (forty) sets were issued."

Second Issue.—When the supply of German East African stamps was exhausted, some Indian postage stamps, both ordinary and "Service" were obtained and overprinted in a like manner. One day a trader presented a letter at the Mafia post-office franked with a Zanzibar 6 cents stamp. He was informed that it could not be accepted without the imprint of the British Military authorities, but that as the stock of Indian stamps was running low they would buy all the Zanzibar stamps he could produce, about 20 in all. This they did, overprinting them "G. R. Mafia" as before.

New Handstamp.—About July, 1915, the higher command raised objection to the form of the overprint on the stamps used at Mafia, as not being sufficiently distinct, and forwarded a new die lettered "G. R. Post 6 cents Mafia" with instructions that it was to be used for all future printings. This second type of overprint is accordingly found upon all values of the ex-German East African stamps used in Mafia, as well as those of India and a very few of Zanzibar.

On leaving the island in September, 1915, Col. Mackay destroyed the original handstamped used for the "G.R. Mafia" overprint, handing over to his successor only the latest "G.R.Post 6 cents Mafia" die provided by the military authorities.

Subsequent issues of Mafia stamps overprinted on German East African fiscals and later on the Indian Expeditionary Force series were made under authority of Capt. Brook, and after him, Lieut-Commander Clarke, R.N. (vide "War Stamps of the Allies," page 53).

AIRPOST STAMPS OF DENMARK.

By Autolycus.

The Danish aero stamps have been, so far, all of a semi-official nature, although it is rumoured that a Government issue is about to make its appearance in connection with the existing service between London and Copenhagen via Amsterdam.

To make use of an Hibernianism, the first Danish air stamp was a postmark! It was used on July 29, 1912, on letters carried on an experimental flight at Haraskov and took the form of an oval cachet inscribed FLYVE POST—ULRICH BIRCH No. 1, struck in violet.

A circular cachet letter BESORGET MED DANMARKS—12 MAI 1914—1ste FLYVEPOST, also in violet, was employed under similar circumstances at Roskilde on the date specified.

A supplementary fee of 5 kronen levied upon letters conveyed by air between Copenhagen and Skagen in September, 1919, was defrayed by means of an elaborate stamp, in large upright format, depicting an aeroplane flying over the Danish Archipelago. It was printed in four colours and perforated 12, the inscription at the foot reading DANSK LUFTBEFORDRING KOBENHAVN—SKAGEN.

5kr blue, yellow, red and lilac.

For another mail flight between Naestved and Copenhagen, which took place on September 13, 1919, a simple type-set label was provided, of the face value of 50 öre, with the words FLYVE POSTMAERKE—Pris 50 öre in the centre, surrounded by an oblong decorative border of printer's ornaments, perf. 13.

50 öre black on solférino.

EUROPE'S UNREST SEEN IN STAMPS.

PROPAGANDA OF NEW AND OLD NATIONS PROMINENT FEATURE OF DESIGNS.

By KERMET E. PARKER.

Postage stamps can not quite put themselves in Louis XIV's place and say, "I am the state," but they are so inextricably linked up with the state that there is no important change in government, wealth, or feeling that is not reflected upon a nation's stamps.

In the nineties the Central American states were bankrupt and their few means of support included the issuing of a flood of stamps for sale to collectors. Later came Mexico and its revolutions, each faction putting out stamps in support of its claims to authority. But Mexico has settled down, and a fine new set now appearing shows the firmer basis of the present government. Central America still continues, for lack of funds prevents the ordering of adequate supplies and surcharging is frequently necessary during a shortage of certain values.

The mass of issues, however, no longer comes from America, but from the redivided continent of Europe. Old nations have collapsed and new ones are struggling to take their places, resulting in uncertain and chaotic conditions, all of which are reflected on the stamps. Ambitions, traditions, and other propaganda are prominent on these stamps, forming a part of the campaign to create a feeling of nationalism and patriotism among these long-oppressed peoples.

Symbolic Issues.

The early issues of these liberated nations bore national emblems, rising suns, and men breaking their chains, symbolical of the new freedom. Latvia, for instance, issued a series showing the ship of state being guided through a troubled sea towards a rising sun. Ireland's new issue contains a design showing the "Sword of Light." Czecho-Slovakia favors us with an ancient Bohemian three-tailed lion breaking its bonds. Mustapha Kemal's government has put forth a series, but one value, in curious contrast to the above optimistic designs, depicts a wolf roaming a desolate plain; if this is a portrayal of conditions in Turkey, it is surely an accidental one!

These new nations, however, can not live up to their pretensions. Their unsound financial bases and depreciating currencies are shown by the continual issuing of higher and higher denominations of stamps. Before the war, Germany's highest value was five marks, but recently a 5,000 mark has been issued and the end is not yet in sight. Russia went even further, getting up to 200,000 rubles.

Designs Crude, Quality Poor.

Conditions in these countries are also shown by the general poor quality of the stamps. The designs are crude, the printing poor, the paper coarse. The issues of the Caucasian republics of Armenia and Azerbaijan are examples. The latter put out a cheap set showing a native soldier with flag, castles, and a rising sun, the labels being printed in three and even four colors. Armenia has been occupied by the Bolsheviki, and the series of 1922 shows the Bolshevik device of hammer and sickle, along with many cheaply-produced local views; the queerest of the lot, though, are those showing ancient bas-reliefs from the ruins of Ani, harpies, winged horses, and such.

Fiume Stamps.

Fiume, especially when D'Annunzio was in possession, has issued sets of stamps as fast as they could be designed and printed. So it is not at all surprising to find them ugly things, but they are even more hideous than could be expected. The series shows a bust of the bald-headed soldier-poet which looks like the contents of the basket after the guillotine has done its work. Another set is replete with knives, thorn-crowned sufferers, and flowing blood, the effect being horrifying.

Epirus, across the Adriatic, is Fiume's chief rival in this chamber of horror business. The first issue placed on sale in 1914, shows a skull and cross bones, and later emissions feature a wicked-looking double-headed eagle.

Republics, regencies, and soviets came and went so fast in Hungary that an issue barely got to the post-office before it was confiscated by some insurgent party and surcharged with polysyllable words.

H. F. COLMAN 2ND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Another device used for overprinting was a sheaf of wheat, this being intended to commemorate the conclusion of peace. Hungary's worst offense came during Red rule, when a set of five ghastly portrait stamps was thrust upon suffering philatelists. These labels show Karl Marx and other Socialists and the engraving is execrable, the gaunt faces and staring eyes making the subjects like famine sufferers.

Altars and Knights Popular.

Poland had its ups and downs in the stamp game, but now seems to have settled down, a permanent type being adopted and few higher values being necessary. One crude design showed a childishly drawn segment of the sun, but the stamp most interesting to Americans is probably that showing Ignace Paderewski, the noted pianist-premier.

Burning altars, charging knights, and peculiarly clothed and entirely unclothed figures are featured on Lithuanian stamps. Its offshoot, Central Lithuania, set up by Zeligowski's insurgents, has a mask of a girl's head which resembles that of D'Annunzio mentioned before. Central Lithuania has, however, issued a series of postage dues that are effective, the designs showing various scenes in Vilna, all in silhouette. This country was handicapped by lack of perforating facilities, so the contractors perforated what they could and sent the balance imperforate; these latter stamps were sent to country offices, where it was claimed the postmasters had more time and could cut them apart!

Airpost Stamps Queer.

Another Baltic state, Esthonia, has done rather better than its neighbors, producing several pleasing stamps, especially the mark values, showing an ancient Viking ship in silhouette, and a triangular airpost stamp.

These airplane stamps are a queer lot. They emanate from small countries which would seem to have no need of air mail service, but it would seem that an aerial service does exist between various Baltic cities. Several of the airpost issues are, however, purely speculative, one being placed on sale—to collectors—a few days after the service was stopped.

The French have not issued stamps for use during their occupation of the Ruhr, but already six distinct series have appeared for the Saar, the other coal valley under French control. One series is a veritable encyclopedia of coal mining; miners at work in the shafts, slag heaps, breakers, barges, and blast furnaces are shown, convincing anyone that there is no romance in coal mining.

The commissions in charge of the plebiscite district—Silesia, Allenstein, Schleswig, etc.—made their bit by turning out rapid successions of issues, mostly surcharged or crudely lithographed labels.

Bolshevik Crime.

The Bolshevik at first set up the principle of free postage, but this made unprofitable even the haphazard service which they carried on, so the Reds added another crime and issued badly-conceived and poorly-executed stamps. The device of hammer and sickle is prominent, as are anvils and drums, but one well-done design shows a half-naked worker killing the dragon of Capitalism. Weird-looking charity stamps have also been made, one design, which is a tremendous affair of almost mustard-plaster dimensions, showing a scene on the Volga, the people, boats, and houses, greatly resembling those of children's wooden toy villages.

The free city of Danzig has but one effective series in all its attempts; this shows a medieval caravel under full sail. The charity series showing St. George slaying the dragon is by no means as attractive, the drawing being crude and the colors weak.

Two countries in recent years have overreached themselves and issued stamps to commemorate events that did not transpire. Thus Turkey was so positive that it would capture Egypt that it prepared a series showing the Sphinx and Pyramids, but the army failed, and heavy surcharges were used to blot out the Egyptian portions of the stamps, after which the issue was placed on sale in regular Turkish offices.

Map of "Greater Bulgaria."

Bulgaria in 1916 ordered a set showing a map of "Greater Bulgaria", Czar Ferdinand in Macedonia costume, and Macedonian scenes, the issue to be used when Macedonia was annexed to Bulgaria. This, also, was a wrong guess, but after the war the stamps were placed on sale just as though the plan had been carried through. The Allied commissioners, however, stopped the sale of the series. Bulgaria has recently honored two writers with commemorative series: Ivan Vasoff, the Bulgar poet, whose picture, home and characters are shown on the stamps; and J. D. Bourchier, an Englishman, who was Balkan correspondent of a London paper and used his knowledge and influence to settle problems of the peninsula.

The newborn countries have not been the only ones to put forth peculiar and unbeautiful stamps, for such states as Germany and Austria have been among the most flagrant producers of this type. This is due to the political unrest in those countries, for any sane design would cause trouble, but two Czecho-Slovak stamps showing John Huss had to be withdrawn from circulation because of protests from religious sects.

Austria's present issue purports to show the occupations of the country, but this allegory is badly done. Agriculture is suggested by a head of wheat and industry by a half-hidden hammer, but philatelists have yet to discover how a head adorned by a tiara can typify Science. Austria has gone even further in its airpost stamps, which are adorned with a poorly-drawn bird; this is known to collectors as the "Flying Clothespin." One really handsome issue, though, is the charity series of 1922, showing famous Austrian and pseudo-Austrian musicians: Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Bruckner, Strauss and Wolf.

Futurism Feature.

Germany has avoided trouble by using large numerals as the chief feature of its designs, while posthorns, blacksmiths, miners, and farmers are also shown. Futurism ran away with the Germans, and the 20 mark of 1921-22 shows two horses, plough and ploughman, all done in extreme impressionistic style. The recently issued airpost stamps are even worse, the bird there depicted being so bad that it is called the "Flying Egg," a companion of the Austrian "Flying Clothespin." And a late issue of charity stamps shows a queer combination of praying figure, tree, shovel, and star.

The spread of this Futurism is evidenced in recent Dutch issues, the new 1 and 2 cent stamps bearing an utterly unintelligible jumble of lion, tree, branches, and fruit. The Dutch airpost and "floating safe" stamps are also futuristic. These last are used on letters sent in detachable safes which are placed on the decks of ships and float safely away if the ship sinks. A new diamond-shaped 4-cent stamp partly redeems Holland's queer turn.

Switzerland has applied this type of art more aptly in a new series of air stamps. One design shows an airplane flying over the Alps; another, a closeof an aviator in his plane, which is at angle, the stamp having a lop-sided t unique effect. All Swiss stamps, by e way, are inscribed in Latin, due to lingual mixture in the country.

Latvia found a paper shortage on its nds when it cut loose from Russia. cordingly, it used whatever paper it uld find, and we have stamps printed cigarette and ruled writing paper, on backs of unfinished banknotes, and the backs of German war maps. ose on the war maps proved so pop-ar that when more paper arrived a sh supply of maps was printed and n stamps were impressed on the re-rse side! So a collection might be med of the backs of stamps as well as faces.

The spread of Western ideas in the ient is shown by the Chinese stamps picting an airplane flying over the eat Wall and by the Siamese stamps the Wild Tiger Corps, an organiza-n similar to the Boy Scouts. The er was made by overprinting regular mese stamps with a tiger's head.

Stamps Like Rugs.

There are many other interesting mps which have appeared recently. land has issued a charity stamp which no frame line and resembles a seal re than a stamp. North Ingerman-d, a Russian district, produced a queer one value of which depicts a burning ding with collapsing tower. The mps of Hejaz (Mecca) are alluring ause they greatly resemble rugs. thwest Africa, ex-German colony, been provided with a series by the edient of surcharging the stamps of Union of South Africa with the name he new colony; the odd thing is that the surcharge is in English and Dutch on alternate stamps, pairs showing both languages being easily obtainable.

Palestine, under British occupation, received a set of stamps, and this is overprinted with the name of the country in three languages: English, Arabic, and Hebrew. The black overprint did not show well on the dark blue 1 piastre so silver powder was sprinkled over when the ink was wet and, adhering, shows the surcharge nicely.

Jamaica recently issued a stamp which had Union Jacks at the sides. One of these flags was soon discovered to be upside down and was ordered corrected; the printers re-engraved the stamp, but a part of the flag is still in distress!

So many interesting and instructive stamps appearing in the last few years have greatly increased the numbers of collectors, but an even greater boost has been given in this country by the new United States issue, showing, besides statesmen, Niagara Falls, Golden Gate, the Statue of Liberty, the Capitol, and other points of interest. The stability of our government is shown by the total absence of any freak stamps such as mentioned in this article and by the fact that we have never had to resort to surcharging.—Hartford Courant.

A WORD ABOUT ACKERMAN.

(Clipping from Philip H. Ward, Jr.)

Representative Ernest R. Ackerman, of Plainfield, N. J., who has just advised his sister, Mrs. Frank L. Hatch, a resident of Washington, that he escaped the disaster in Tokio, was once ambitious to be American Ambassador to Japan.

After the resignation of Charles Beecher Warren, of Detroit, as Ambassador, Mr. Ackerman was indorsed for the position by many of his friends in New Jersey. He received some support also from the members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, of which he is a member.

Through most of his career Mr. Ackerman has been active in the politics of New Jersey. During Woodrow Wilson's regime as Governor Mr. Ackerman was president of the Senate and in the absence of Mr. Wilson served as Governor. In spite of his activity in public affairs, he has found time to travel widely. His present trip to Japan, on which he has been accompanied by Mrs. Ackerman and her sister, Miss Juliet Weber, is said to be his forty-eighth trip to the Orient. In addition to being considerable of a globe-trotter Mr. Ackerman has achieved considerable prominence as a collector of stamps.—Phila. Public Ledger.

THE HARDING STAMP—AND OTHERS.

The Herald has received from A. A. Leve, a Syracuse philatelist, one of the first copies of the Harding memorial stamp. Being available for letter postage, it is of the 2-cent denomination, and its widespread circulation is therefore assured.

In design and execution it is an excellent specimen of the engraver's art. In the upper corners are the years of the late President's birth and death—1865 and 1923. The Harding portrait selected for the impression, which has already been reproduced in these columns, is in profile, and in outline and expression one of the most satisfactory of the many likenesses of the lamented President.

No limitation of time is fixed for the Harding issue. This will be determined by the demand for the stamps. It will be large enough, however, to satisfy all sentimental requirements, and temporarily it will rival the regular letter stamp bearing Washington's picture. As in the case of other special stamps, it will fall into disuse after a while, but for years to come specimens of it will be carried in the mails as a reminder of the genial and popular Chief Magistrate.
